Peter Wilson, owner of the Loyalist Motel on Highway 2 in Belleville, claims the provincial government should have made Highway 2 between Kingston and Trenton a second branch of the Ontaro Heritage Highway which runs along Highway 2 between Cornwall and Windsor. The route leaves Highway 2 at Kingston to join Highway 33 through Prince Edward County, bypassing Belleville.

Motel Owner Protests Route

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario's Heritage Route runs along Highway 2 between Cornwall and Windsor except for a 60-mile stretch between Kingston and Trenton — and one Belleville motel owner is upset about it.

Peter Wilson, owner and operator of the Loyalist Motel on Dundas St., W., says he has only begun his fight to include Belleville on the Heritage Route.

In 1973 the ministry of industry and tourism designated the Heritage Highway as being along Highway 2 between Cornwall and Windsor. The route leaves Highway 2 at Kingston where it follows Highway 33 through Prince Edward County and then joins Highway 2 at Trenton, bypassing Belleville.

"Our business is beginning to hurt," said Mr. Wilson, who has owned the Loyalist Motel for eight years. The number of American tourists using the facilities at the motel has dropped considerably, claimed Mr. Wilson.

Mr. Wilson doesn't want the route to be changed from Highway 33 to Highway 2 but he thinks there should be an A and B section of the route incorporating both highways. The ministry of industry and tourism claims that Highway 33 is the most scenic route.

Mr. Wilson sought the help of the Ontario Motel Association who have petitioned the ministry for a change in the current route. City council Monday night endorsed this move and threw its weight behind the claim that Belleville is being neglected on the route.

Mr. Wilson wrote directly to Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, complaining about the issue. Mr. Bennett replied saying that five new recreational routes were developed this year and one, the Rideau-Trent-Severn Route, encompasses the Belleville area.

Mr. Wilson rejects this answer on the basis that the new route is mainly for boaters and he seldom has patrons with boats at the motel.

"Many people don't realize that tourism is an important part of Belleville's commerce and this slight is affecting many businesses," said Mr. Wilson.

He plans to continue his fight by seeking the support of other motel owners this fall. Mr. Wilson had to abandon expansion plans this year due to a drop in business.

Mr. Wilson claimed that Highway 33 actually provides fewer accomodations for travellers and the ferry slows mainly tourists up. He does agree that the Highway is more scenic.

Early Bird

Hugh O'Nell, Liberal candidate in Quinte riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election, was up bright and early today for his initial thrust on the campaign trail. At 7:30 a.m., he was at Union Carbide Canada Ltd. at 621 East Dundas St. in Belleville to greet workers changing shifts. His first day following his Tuesday acclamation saw coffee parties all day Wednesday.

Play for Championships At the Country Club

This piece could be titled Gord Graham to the rescue.

That is only meant to say that Gord has taken some of his time to fill this department in on the fact that the Bay of Quinte Country Club is all set to crown champions this weekend.

Perhaps what I need to do, is set up office in the Country Club headquarters . . . after the new clubhouse is opened, of course.

I hate to class members of the club with the long list of prima donnas who think this department has nothing else to do but concern itself with their own particular endeavors, but that's the way it's turning out.

Anyway, consolation rounds were completed last weekend.

They get down to the nitty gritty this Saturday and Sunday with awards expected to be presented about 4 p.m., Sunday.

Leaders after 36 holes in the club championship race are Bill Dayman who finished with a 150; ill Phillip, 152; Peter Jones, 153, and Steve Jones and Frank Pinder with 155 each.

In the lead in the consolation round are Rick Hutchinson and Paul Hipkin with 163s and Gord Graham, 164.

Turning to the Juniors, the leader is Randy Hutchinson with 158 while Roger Suddard and Kelly Pender each check in with a 160.

Spence Wonnocott and Jack Lomas are at the top in the Seniors with last year's winner and a former champion, Al Graham and Dave Jones only a couple of strokes off the pace.

The titles are up for grabs this weekend.

Thank you very much, Gord.

SLICES — Now that we're accustomed to Toronto Toros, press releases are referring to the World Hockey Association team as the Bulls.

Toros or Bulls . . . take your choice . . . the team begins league play in Quebec against the Nordiques, October 14 with defending champions Houston Aeros supplying the opposition.

Except for the first part of November when the club plays eight straight games on the road, new coach Bobby Baun is happy with the Toros' 1975-76 schedule.

Baun feels that an extended road trip may as well come early in the season as late.

And this time around, the Toronto team will play 44 of its 80 regular season games against Canadian Division opponnets. That's five at home and five away against Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg.

Last weekend's publicized bantam soccer tournament was actually a tryout for the Eastern Ontario Under 16 team which will be coached by John O'neill who pilots the Belleville Olympics of the Premier Soccer League and the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association.

Belleville players selected to the Under 16 squad are George Moletta, and Paul D'Anna. From Trenton come Mark Scucatto, Sean Clowater, Larry Arsenault and Terry Cuculuzzi.

Still on the soccer kick (just couldn't let that one go by) Belleville Olympics are entered in the A Group of the Smiths Falls Tournament, Saturday. The local club meets Falcons and Kingston Italo-Canadians in its first two starts.

Trenton will be represented in the B Group by the Citizens Finance entry in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association.

A and B Division winners meet for the championship.

Enjoy horseshoe pitching but haven't had the time to join the Quinte League?

Saturday you get your chance when the Quinte Open Tournament is held at the RCAF Association 418 Wing.

There will be singles and doubles events. Registration is at 9.30 a.m.

Gai Champion Just That

For the first time at the Canadian Championships, held recently in Edmonton, a Canadian horse won the title as top halter horse.

To top it off, the distinction has gone to a horse owned by Belleville's Warren Whitley.

Gai Champion, a four year old bay stallion, was chosen as champion in the halter class, judged solely on the appearance of the horse. The judges look for such features as straightness of legs, the breeding type, and sound confirmation in general when selecting the winner.

The Belleville horse was chosen from a field of about 100 original competitors from across Canada, the U.S., and Mexico. The 100 are narrowed down to 20, then down to 10 finalists, and then the single winner. Getting to the 10 finalists is a major accomplishment, with the group dubbed as "The National Top Ten".

The Canadian and American Championships are regarded as the World Championships. Very little of this type of horse competition is done in Europe, with few horses even trained there.

The American Championships may be the next in line for Gai Champion, who is trained by Bob Klassen. The horse is in Minnesota at the present time, at the Gordon Shea farm, standing at stud.

One problem is that the Americans will be held in Albuquerque, New Mexico. The altitude in the southwestern U.S. state is well over 10,000 feet, which would definitely affect the horse's manner and appearance.

The decision must be made whether to send the horse to the Americans by early September. The Championships will be held in October, and the horse would need at least three to four weeks to aclimatize itself.

In any case, the American event would be the final event for the four year old in the halter class. Trainer Klassen feels that it is better to go out a winner than it is to come back and possibly be defeated.

He will move to the Western and English pleasure classes, in which he will be ridden, probably by one of Whitley's daughters, Cindy or Kim, who have established themselves as excellent equestrians already.

The more will not be immediate. It will take about two years to train Gai Champion to the saddle, about the same time it takes to train a horse for the halter class.

But, he should be a good one in the riding classes.

"He's got all it takes to be a champion in his own right in the pleasure classes," said Klassen, "lines, build, and the breeding."

Even if the horse doesn't approach his performance of 15 straight halter class wins, he will surely stand as one of the best ever in Canada.

BYBF and Purinaettes Open with Victories

Shirley Gulliver got the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund off to a good start in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League playoffs by hurling a four hitter at Belleville Broadloom.

The final score in the match was 7-1. In the other contest at the Alemite on Wednesday night, Purinaettes defeated Ellis Construction 9-4.

Gulliver had three strikeouts and walked seven in the four-hitter to pick up a victory.

The loss was absorbed by Sue Fobert, allowing 12 hits and three walks. Three strikeouts were credited to Fobert.

Sheila Smith smacked a home run and three singles for the winners. She drove in three runs. Marj Reid had three singles while Joyce McFarlane and Carol McFarlane singled twice.

Mary Anne Sills led the Broadloom team with a double and a single. Other singles came from Norma May and Pam Smith.

The hook up between Ellis Construction and the Purinaettes was much closer than the score indicates.

Winning hurler was Sandra Fleming. She was touched for nine hits and a walk while striking out one.

Sandra Claus took the Ellis loss, giving up 14 hits and two walks while setting five batters down on third strikes.

Fleming hit two home runs and a single to help her own cause. Darlene Bedore also homered. Brenda Hay had a triple and two singles while Roseanne Chapman also tripled for Madoc.

Ellis hits came from Sharon Francis, Verna Hill, Evalina Hill and Sally Barberstock, all with two singles.

. . . and now George, the only thing you forgot is to buy a used car from Auto Haus Bell-Ton Ltd., Trent Rd., Belleville. Phone 962-9236.

BOTTLED IN BOND

In Switzerland, they go to great heights for Canadian Club.

There's an inn 2,065 meters up at Kleine Scheidegg in the Bernese Alps that serves Canadian Club. Because anything less just wouldn't be worth the climb.

All over Switzerland and around the world, when people think of the finest, lightest, smoothest whisky, they think of Canadian Club.

Isn't it nice to know the world can get together about something?

The finest of fine Canadian whiskies is "The Best In The House" in 87 lands: Afghanistan, Algeria, Antarctica, Antigua, Argentina, Aruba, Australia, Austria, Bahamas, Barbados, Belgium, Bermuda, Brazil, Canada, Canary Islands, Ceylon, Chile, Christmas Island, Costa Rica, Curaçao, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Ethiopia, Fiji, Finland, France, Germany, Gibraltar, Greece, Greenland, Grenada, Guadeloupe, Haiti, Hong Kong, Iceland, India, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, Kenya, Korea, Lebanon, Libya, Malta, Mexico, Morocco, Nepal, Netherlands, New Guinea, New Zealand, Nigeria, Norway, West Pakistan, Panama, Peru, Philippines, Poland, Portugal, Puerto Rico, Sierra Leone, Solomon Islands, South Africa, Spain, Sudan, Sweden, Switzerland, Tahiti, Tanzania, Thailand, Trinidad, Tunisia, Turkey, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, United States, Uruguay, Venezuela, Virgin Islands, Yugoslavia, and Zambia.

Fergie Jenkins Honored

MONTREAL (CP) — Ferguson Jenkins, ace right-hander of Texas Rangers, was presented with a replica of the Lou Marsh Trophy Wednesday night as Canada's outstanding athlete of 1974.

The presentation was made prior to the National League baseball game between Montreal Expos and San Diego Padres by Harry Foster, chairman of the six-man selection committee.

Jenkins, the unanimous choice of the judges, posted a career-high 25 wins in helping the Rangers to a second-place finish behind Oakland A's in the American League West Division last year.

A native of Chatham, Ont., Jenkins has won at least 20 games in seven of his last eight major-league seasons with the Rangers and Chicago Cubs. He is 14-13 this year.

Pirates Solve Halicki

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

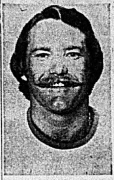
San Francisco's Ed Halicki was displaying his knowledge of the Pittsburgh hitters again Wednesday night when they suddenly taught him a thing or two.

The lesson took the form of a three-run eighth inning and gave the Pirates a 3-1 win over the Giants in a National League baseball game.

"For a young guy, Halicki knows our club very well," said winning pitcher Jim Rooker. "His pitching pattern against us is excellent."

The victory was the Pirates' second in a row—the last time that happened was an Aug. 3 doubleheader—and kept them one game in front of Philadelphia in the National League's East Division. The Braves 4-1.

In other National League games Wednesday, St. Louis Cardinals remained 2½ games back by blanking Cincinnati Reds 4-0, New York Mets dropped five games out by losing to Houston Astros 5-4 in 10 innings and San Diego Padres outlasted Montreal Expos 8-6. Los Angeles Dodgers and the Cubs were rained out at Chicago.



JIM ROOKER

The Pirates, who had dropped 11 of their last 13 games before the two wins, were blanked on two hits for 7 1-3 innings by Halicki, who had beaten them three times this season.

But Richie Zisk got an infield hit with one out in the eighth, took second on Manny Sanguillen's single and scored the tying run on rookie Craig Reynolds' double.

Following an intentional walk to pinch-hitter Bill Robinson, Randy Moffitt relieved Halicki and Rennie Stennett rapped a tie-breaking, two-run single.

Ryan Back in Groove

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California Angels have speed on the mound and on the basepaths but they slow in the home run derby.

"As goes the pitching so goes the Angels," says California manager Dick Williams, whose club has hit only 42 homers this year, lowest in the majors. "We're still trying to catch Roger Maris."

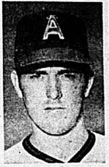
The pitching went well Wednesday with fireballer Nolan Ryan blazing his high, hard one again after missing 11 days with a pulled groin muscle and control problems.

But Ryan gave up three hits before being relieved in the eighth inning as California beat Milwaukee Brewers 6-1 in an American League baseball game. It was Ryan's 13th victory in 25 decisions.

In Wednesday's other American League games, Oakland A's beat Detroit Tigers 2-1, Chicago White Sox dumped New York Yankees 5-3, Kansas City Royals topped Boston Red Sox 3-1, and Baltimore Orioles shaded Minnesota Twins 3-2.

Ryan permitted a leadoff single to Bob Sheldon in the first inning and then didn't give up a hit until the eighth when Bill Sharp doubled and then scored on Robin Yount's double. At that point Ryan was lifted for Andy Hassler.

"I'm still not completely in the groove, but I'm satisfied with the way I threw the ball today," said Ryan, who struck out nine and walked three.



NOLAN RYAN

Pitchers Sonny Siebert and Jim Todd, not with the team at the start of the season, combined to pitch a four-hitter as the A's ended Detroit's four-game winning streak.

LOSE TANNEN

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran defensive back Steve Tannen will be lost to New York Jets from at least four to six weeks and possibly for the entire 1975 National Football League season, a team spokesman said Monday. Tannen suffered a dislocated shoulder in Saturday's 14-13 exhibition victory by the Jets over St. Louis Cardinals.

TAIWAN WINS

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Pitcher Lee Chung Yung fanned six opponents Saturday to give Taiwan a 2-1 victory over San Antonio, Texas, and the championship of the Big League Little League baseball World Series.

Esks Too Much For Argonauts

EDMONTON (CP) — Everything went right Wednesday night for Edmonton Eskimos and rookie flanker John Konihowski helped verify it after a 28-11 triumph over Toronto Argonauts in a Canadian Football League interlocking game before 24,636 fans.

Konihowski, who caught the first two touchdown passes of his young career, said his second touchdown—a seven-yard bullet from Tom Wilkinson—was an accident.

The pass was supposed to go to Tyrone Walls, said Konihowski, one of Canada's leading hurdlers, "but I didn't know that until after I caught the ball."

Konihowski's scores came in the first quarter as Edmonton built an insurmountable lead and his first one was no accident. He hauled in Wilkinson's pass and outsped two Argo pursuers to the end zone to complete a 43-yard play.

Heavy rain in the last half prevented either team from launching a solid offensive display.

Konihowski's touchdowns almost were overshadowed by the brilliance of Wilkinson, named top player in the CFL last season, and veteran flanker George McGowan, who won the honor the previous year.

Wilkinson completed 13 of 18 passes for 244 yards and McGowan caught nine for 191 yards. Bruce Lemmerman, who skidded across from the six-yard line for the final Edmonton touchdown, helped pad McGowan's total. He replaced Wilkinson after the scrappy starter aggravated sore ribs.

A strong defensive stand on Toronto's first series helped Edmonton. Three Argo running plays were stalled on the one-yard line before coach Russ Jackson elected to have Zenon Andrusyshyn try a field goal from the seven.

The kick bounced off Leroy Jones and hit the crossbar. Then Wilkinson threw three completions to set up Dave Cutler's first of two field goals.

Cutler also had three converts and a single on a wide field goal attempt.

Toronto's touchdown came on a 49-yard romp by Steve Dennis after a Cutler field goal bid was blocked late in the first half. Andrusyshyn produced a field goal, a single and a convert.

Toronto quarterback Bill Bynum had almost no success against a rugged defence, led by Dave Fennell, Jones and Sam Britts.

Wilkinson and Lemmerman completed 21 of 30 passes for 357 yards, while Bynum was good on 110 of 21 for 135. Edmonton, with three wins in four starts, had 128 yards rushing to 90 for Toronto, now with two wins and three losses.

The only consistent Argo threat was Doyle Orange, who compiled 60 yards on four pass receptions and added 47 yards on 11 rushing attempts.

Edmonton's Larry Highbaugh tiptoed along the sideline for what appeared to be a 96-yard touchdown on a punt return, but an official ruled he stepped out of bounds.

Top Seeds Move Up

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Bjorn Borg of Sweden launched his defence of the United States pro tennis championship title by breezing past Germany's Hans Jurgen Pohmann 6-1, 7-5, Wednesday night in the $100,000 tournament at Longwood.

Borg, who whipped Tom Okker for the title last year on Longwood's clay courts, is seeded second behind 1974 Grand Prix champion Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

Vilas continued his hot streak by defeating Paulo Bertolucci of Italy 6-3, 6-4. The 23-year-old South American has won 23 of his last 24 matches, capturing three of four tournaments. He is seeded No. 2 in the U.S. Open next week.

Wimbleton champion Arthur Ashe and newly-crowned Canadian champ Manuel Orantes of Spain easily moved through the second round.

Ashe, seeded third, defeated Chris Mottram of England 6-3, 6-4, while Orantes whipped Phil Dent of Australia 6-1, 6-2. Orantes is seeded fourth. Fifth-seeded Rod Laver, a five-time U.S. pro champion here, advanced to the third round Tuesday.

Nakon Upsets Dave Becker

OTTAWA (CP) — "Gutsy" is the word 11th seed Richard Nakon of Toronto used to describe the two-and-three-quarter hour tennis match in which he upset third seed Dave Becker in the Canadian national junior tennis championships Wednesday.

It took three sets, two of them tie-breakers, for Nakon to defeat Vancouver's Becker 6-7, 7-6, 6-3 in the third round of boys 18-and-under singles.

"Lately I've been a little slow but I practiced a lot before the game and it paid off," Nakon said.

Ontario team coach Ken Wood said Nakon had consistently improved in the last three tournaments. "He's peaking just at the right time.

Nakon, who last year won the boys 16 singles trophy in the Canadian international tournament, meets fifth seed Nick Mohtadi of Calgary in quarter-final action.

Mohtadi is the only player left in the boys 18-and-under singles draw who is not from British Columbia. And of the seven B.C. players left to compete for the semi-final spots, all but Nakon were in the first eight seeds.

First seed John Picken of North Burnaby, already chosen to represent Canada at the Forest Hills, N.Y. international junior tournament in September, will meet Jim Lees of Vancouver in quarter finals today.

In women's play, second seeded Sandy Sutherland of Vancouver meets Lisa Senn of Toronto in 18-an-under semi-final competition. Sutherland won the 16-and-under singles in 1974. Top seed Marjorie Black of Ottawa meets Susan Pridham of Oakville, Ont. to decide the final draw.

Colin McAlpine, last years winner of the Indonesia Cup for men's 14-and-under singles, enters quarter finals today in 16-and-under singles. The Deep River, Ont., native will meet second seed Greg Bell of Lions Bay, Ont.

Wendy Barlow of Victoria, girls 14-and-under singles champion last year, has made her way to the semi-finals in the 16-and-under singles by defeating sixth seed Sue Mathews of Vancouver, 6-2, 6-4.

Miss Barlow's runner-up last year, Sue Dale of Toronto, didn't make it to the final this time. Miss Dale was defeated by Claire Lardner of Toronto, 7-6, 6-1.

Vying for the final in girls 14-and-under singles are four Ontario juniors, including Karen Dewis of London, who took the 12-and-under girls championship last year. Miss Dewis meets Judith Pridham of Oakville. Top 14-and-under seed [illegible]olyn Kates of Toronto wil[illegible]pete with another Toronto [illegible]ayer, unseeded Angela Walker.

The 12-and-under singles in boys and girls action is nearly wrapped up. The finals are down to first seed Alan Racko of Toronto and second seed Martin Wostenholme of Ottawa in the boys. The girls finalists are Anne Merekeley of Penetang, Ont. and Marie Louise McDonald of Toronto.

Senior Women's Fastball

Four Clubs Have Perfect Records

CALGARY (CP) — Four of the 13 clubs competing in the Canadian senior women's fastball championship finished the first day of round-robin play records.

In the seven-team blue section, British Columbia and Quebec each posted two victories, while Saskatchewan, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island all had 1-1 records. Calgary and the Yukon were 0-2.

In the six-team red section, Ontario won both its games, including a perfect game hurled by Luanne Izzard, and Nova Scotia triumphed in its only outing. Alberta and New Brunswick were each 1-1, while the Northwest Territories was 0-1 and Manitoba 0-2.

Round-robin play continues today with 12 more games with another 12 scheduled Friday before the top two teams in each section meet in a double-knockout series Saturday and Sunday.

British Columbia, defending champions the last three years, posted two shutouts, blanking P.E.I. 8-0 and Saskatchewan 1-0 on Pat McGuire's homer in the eighth inning.

Keeping pace with B.C. was the youthful Quebec team, which doubled Newfoundland 4-2 before edging Calgary 4-3 in 10 innings. Saskatchewan dropped Calgary 5-3 while P.E.I. opened the tourney with a 9-7 victory over the Yukon.

Newfoundland later nipped the Yukon 9-8.

Ontario had little trouble with the Northwest Territories, hitting and scoring at will in a 21-0 whitewashing behind the perfect game pitching of Izzard. She struck out eight in the five inning game, fanning the first six.

Ontario capitalized on two costly Alberta errors for a 4-1 win in one of the evening games.

Alberta blanked Manitiba 12-0 in a game called after five innings and Nova Scotia doubled New Brunswick 4-2. New Brunswick previously whacked Manitoba 11-1.

Tomahawks Take the Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Long Island Tomahawks backed into the National Lacrosse League's regular-season championship Wednesday night without taking the floor in either of two games.

The Tomahawks inherited the crown when Quebec Caribous whipped second-place Philadelphia Wings 21-4, putting the Wings 12 points behind Long Island with only five games to play.

In other action, Boston Bolts moved within two points of third-place Montreal Quebecois with an 18-13 win over Maryland Arrows.

The Tomahawks' title-winning performance has seen them win a league-record 28 games to top Philadelphia's 27 last year in the NLL's first season.

The Tomahawks also have 14 road wins to eclipse Philadelphia's mark of 13.

Jimmy Higgs and Pat Differ paced the last-place Caribous with three goals and five assists apiece. Richard Bleau had three goals acook scored two goals and set up eight.

Jim Lynch and Wayne Spooner both scored a goal and added an assist for the Wings before 3,009 Caribous fans.

John Davidson scored three goals and set up two for the Bolts. Ivan Thompson scored two and assisted on four while Brian Thompson and Duffy McCarthy had two goals and two assists each.

Brian Tasker led the fifth-place Arrows with three goals and three assists before 1,926 Boston fans.

The Caribous visit Philadelphia in the only game tonight.

Japanese Team Likes Cool Weather Results

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Coach Masayuki Furuta feared the 18-degree temperatures Wednesday night when his Japanese baseball players met Nicaragua in Intercontinental Cup play here.

"I hope it stays cold if that's what they're going to do," he said later, after Japan unleashed a 16-hit attack and smothered the Nicaraguans 11-1 in eight innings.

Despite the second strong performance by Japan at the tournament — the club whipped Puerto Rico 9-2 Friday — Furuta says his players can do better.

He thought the four-day layoff before the Wednesday night game did not help Japan and is happier with the schedule that has the club playing a postponed game against South Korea tonight and then going into action again Saturday after the tournament moves to Montreal.

Furuta expects the U. S. club to be a tough one to beat as the tournament moves toward playoff action in Montreal a few days from now.

"They have strong pitching and exceptional hitting," he said.

The Americans have the best record in the tournament so far, having won by healthy margins all three games they played. The U.S. team won the world amateur title last year.

Tadayoshi Tamura gave up three of four Nicaraguan hits, striking out three and walking three to pick up the win on the mound.

The contest was ended in the eighth under international rules permitting such a move if one team has a 10-run lead at that point.

In the other game Wednesday, Ricardo Spic cracked two singles, scoring a run and driving in the other as Italy edged Colombia 2-0 to even Italy's series record at two wins and two losses. Colombia has lost all three games.

Giorgio Castelli also hit a pair of singles for Italy.

A Pair of Wins for Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — Gord Bertie of Montreal and Harry Geris of London, Ont., gave Canada its only victories over foreigners in the first night of Greco - Roman competition Wednesday at the nine-country International Wrestling Competitions 1975.

Bertie, his left hand taped to protect a suspected broken finger, beat Pablo Gomez of Mexico in a 52-kilogram or 114½-pound bout and Geris defeated John Major of the United States in the over-100-kilogram class.

Evgeni Artuchin of the Soviet Union beat Canada's Robert Gibbons in the only other over-100-kilogram bout.

Eleven other Canadians were losers and one won by default over a fellow member of the host contingent.

GETS NEW CONTRACT

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Deane Beman has been given a new, five-year contract as commissioner of the Professional Golfers' Association tour, it was announced Wednesday. Beman, a former touring player, was named commissioner in January, 1974. His original three-year contract had 18 months remaining.

Gray Munros Win Playoff

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Gray-Munros defeated Whitby Builders 16-12 Wednesday to win its Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A semi-final playoff series 4-1.

Whitby led 4-3 at the end of the first period, but Peterborough came back and led 9-8 at the end of the second and stayed ahead to win the best-of-seven series.

Paul Evans led Peterborough with three goals and Moe Jodoin, Randy Bryan, Steve Plunkett and Ted Floyd added two goals each. Dan Dunn, Dan Green, Mark Vitarelli, Bob Wasson and John Martin scored one goal each.

Larry Graham and Ken Colley paced Whitby with three goals each. Chris Reed added two and Wayne McGuigan, Chuck Lepine, Bryce Jordan and Tim Briscoe scored one goal each.

Peterborough will meet Mississauga Chiefs on Sunday in Peterborough in the best-of-seven final series to determine the OLA Junior A champions and the right to participate in the Minto Cup.

Dukes Crowding Tony's in OFL West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bill McNellis threw a one-hitter Wednesday to lead Hamilton Scrappers to a 2-0 win over Woodstock Warriors in an Ontario Fastball League game.

In other games, St. Catharines Mr. Jackets won the first game of a doubleheader with Kitchener Evergreens 1-0 but lost the second 2-1 and London Dukes moved to within a half game of first-place Oshawa as they swept a west division doubleheader against the Tonys 6-1 and 4-3.

In Woodstock, McNellis entered the game in the first inning after Woodstock loaded the bases against starter Wally Dick with no one out. He struck out 11 en route to the win.

Woodstock pitcher Bob Eccles allowed only four hits but Hamilton combined them with two Woodstock errors for the win.

Hamilton scored what turned out to be the winning run in the sixth inning on Cookie Appleby's single, a single by Ted Deruthier and an error by Warriors centre fielder Dan Werby.

The Scrappers added an insurance run in the seventh without the benefit of a hit. Paul Roach walked, stole second, went to third on an error, then scored on Bob Christie's sacrifice fly to right field.

In Kitchener, the Evergreens finished their season with a 21-33 record and missed the OFL west division playoffs.

St. Catharines' winning run came when pinch-hitter Bruce Orr connected for a two-out triple in the seventh inning of the first game to score Ken Hodgkins who had singled earlier.

Ken Rhora was awarded the win on his two-hit performance. Rhora retired the final 17 batters he faced. The loser was Keith Wagler.

In the second game, Ab Henshaw hit a two-run homer in the fifth inning. It appeared Orr would be the key man again for St. Catharines as he drove in the lone St. Catharines run in the first inning on a sacrifice fly.

Terry Gallamore was the winning pitcher and Dick Balint took the loss. Both pitched five hitters.

In London, Jim Brown led the Dukes with home runs in each game.

In the opener, the Dukes scored three runs in each of the second and third innings.

Don Dominas threw a three-hitter and picked up the win for London and Paul Wannamaker was the loser.

Brown scored the winning run in the first extra inning of the second game after he led off with a single and scored on Bill Shaddick's single. Shaddick had three singles in the game.

Men's Championship On Line in Oshawa

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Quebec and Manitoba will meet Sunday in the opening game of the Canadian men's fastball championship with defending champion Oshawa Tonys playing the following day.

The 13-team round-robin tournament has been divided into two divisions with the host club, the Tonys, in one section and Kitchener, the other team from Ontario, in the other.

The top two teams from each division will enter a double-knockout tournament next Thursday night with the championship game scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 30.

In Division I are Victoria, Dartmouth, N.S., St. John's, Nfld., North Battleford, Sask., Uranium City N.W.T., the Yukon all-stars and the Tony's.

In Division II are Kitchener, Gatineau, Que., Edmonton, St. Vital, Man., Saint John N.B., and Charlottetown.

Quebec and Manitoba open the tournament at 9 a.m. EDT with Nova Scotia and the Yukon meeting at 11 a.m.

CHALLENGING OPPORTUNITY

Person or persons are required in the Belleville area to work with mentally handicapped residents in their own home. The residents concerned will be attending school or working in the community.

The primary purpose of the home is to help in the training of the resident by providing a setting where the resident can learn to assume normal social responsibilities. As a "Hostess" you will work in close association with the Social Worker in planning a training program based on the Resident's needs and capabilities.

The rate of rumuneration is $8.15 a day per resident plus a clothing and spending allowance.

Anyone interested in such challenging and rewarding work, please contact:

Mr. T. A. Field,
Chief Social Worker,
Prince Edward Heights,
Picton, Ontario.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, Aug. 22

Aries (March 21-April 19) A co-worker upsets you and makes you moody today. Cheer up. Evening brings a refreshing social time.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Even though it's Friday night, you'll have a better time with family than with friends. Don't feel obligated to go out.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You'll feel that family members or even your best pal won't understand you today. Don't fret, meeting someone new can chase boredom.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) It's not a day to take chances. Lady Luck has deserted your corner. Your good fortune comes from a family member's surprise in the evening.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You tend to be extravagant today. You erroneously feel you must impress others. Satisfaction comes from being yourself.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Insisting upon having your way only results in upsetting you. The family will let you know quickly that they don't like it.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You tend to be a dreamer today. Ideas will elude you. It will be tough to accomplish the things you should.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Social obligations turn out to be needlessly expensive. Don't be trapped into doing something you don't want to do.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Examine your motives to make sure they're not completely selfish before you complain about not getting co-operation at home.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your negative thoughts hold Dame Fortune back from furnishing you with a pleasant surprise later in the day.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You delude yourself into thinking the group can't get along without you. It's going to cost you right in the pocketbook.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone could steal the applause that you richly deserve for an accomplishment. Don't despair. The day will right itself.

Racer Handlebars Okay for Young

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm planning on buying a new bicycle (a 10-speed), and I was wondering if the racer handlebars for the bike would be all right.

I've heard that it can really wreck a person's posture. I have a good posture now, and I don't want to change that. I would really appreciate your opinion. I am a girl—J.M.P.

You don't tell me your age, which could be important. However, from some hints in your letter, I am assuming you are a teen-ager.

The handlebars to which you refer (for the benefit of non bikers) are the type that are set low and curve downward. This forces the biker's body into a deep forward and downward curve, often with the back nearly horizontal to the ground.

I've tried them and, believe me, they call for some pretty strenuous contortion.

However, I have known professional riders who have adapted to this style and who have perfectly wonderful postures, so that should not concern you, especially since you tell me you have a good posture now. And, after all, I don't suppose you would be spending too great a part of your life riding a bicycle.

I would not recommend this for older persons, however, because it could lead to back problems that wouldn't be encountered by this young, apparently athletic woman.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had arthritis in my hands for 26 years. My fingers are stiff and the joints swollen. I am still able to write, knit, sew, and do my housework.

I've been told that a series of gold shots will straighten my hands out in three months. I am reluctant to go through with this treatment, because of a friend who had them 20 years ago and is worse off than ever.

My arthritis is not bothering me much, and I certainly would not want to end up in worse shape that I am in now.—L.C.

Gold salts injection is an effective treatment, but I doubt that after 26 years of arthritis it would do much good. A three-months trial would not hurt you, however, if your doctor feels it will help.

As to your friend's experience: everyone, or almost everyone with a chronic disorder of this type, can encounter someone who has had an unfavorable experience with any treatment.

There have been many treatments for arthritis, and few are as effective as aspirin or sodium salicylate.

Chronic rheumatoid arthritis is a disorder that requires adjustment by the victim, and you apparently have made that adjustment nicely.

Physiotherapy is an often neglected form of treatment. Heat massage and exercise will limber up stiff joints and lessen pain.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor informs me that I have threee healthy kidneys. I've never heard of such a thing in all my 70 years, and I am anxious to know if this is a common thing, or a rarity—L.T.

It is relatively rare. In many cases, the supernumerary kidney is attached to one of the regular ones with two separate collecting funnels. This is known as a "double kidney."

It is a genetic quirk. An extra kidney is about as rare as having six toes, one extra on each foot.

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 68 years old. Three months ago I had a prostate operation and everything went fine. My questions are: Will I be able to perform sexually? How soon after the operation would it be safe to have sex? Does the sperm go back into the bladder, and if so, are there any complications? — J.W.

Removal of the prostate gland in itself should not affect your sexual potency. A recent study showed that in such surgery seven out of 10 patients resumed normal sexual activity.

Desire remains as does ability. In cases where these seem diminished, the problem is usually psychological.

There can be confusing after effects. For example, in some cases the seminal fluid will not be ejaculated through the penis.

Since you ask about the bladder, I assume your doctor has told you that your particular prostatectomy would have this result. The seminal fluid can be discharged in the other direction into the bladder. This does no harm and does not interfere with sex enjoyment.

In all of the above, I make references to prostatectomies alone, and not procedure that involve removal of testicles also. This is sometimes done in cancer patients.

As to your question about timing If there were no complications you should be able to resume normal sex activity at will. Your doctor should be consulted on this, however, because timing can vary from patient to patient.

It is a cinch to find a way to go set at three notrump. All South has to do is to lead a diamond toward dummy at trick two and rise with an honor. East will hold back his ace. Later on South will have no way to collect more than one extra diamond trick.

South will complain that suits never break for him, but his complaint should fall on deaf ears.

If South stops to think after taking that first spade he will see that three diamond tricks will be enough to give him his contract. He will remember that diamonds do break 4-2 more often than 3-3, and he will find the safety play to take care of that 4-2 break.

When he leads that diamond he will play low from dummy. East won't be able to do better than to take his 10. Later on South will play one of the diamond honors to knock out the ace and will use dummy's king of clubs as an entry for the rest of the diamond suit.

Simple, when you stop to count.

Ask the Jacobys

A Kansas reader wants to know if we would lead the ace of clubs against six spades. Our whole hand is given as: ♠ x x ♥ x x x x ♦ x x x x ♣ A x x.

The answer is that we would like to know all the bidding but that in general with this sort of hand our best chance to beat the slam is to plunk down the ace and hope. At least the opponents aren't likely to make a grand slam.

One Out of Ten Have Seen UFOs

EDMONTON (CP) — People who sight unidentified flying objects (UFOs) often get upset about it, and part of John Musgrave's task at a UFO researcher is to convince them they are not losing their minds.

But the 34-year-old university instructional developer plans to do a lot more than offer counsel with his 6,000 grant from the federal government.

Ever since the early 1950s when Mr. Musgrave saw a bright, star-like object which split into blue and orange spheres that took off in different directions, he' been a member of the scientific community which takes UFO reports seriously. That community, he said, has grown in stature in recent years, unknown to most members of the general public.

A 1973 survey showed about 10 per cent of the adult American population had seen UFOs and while four out of five sighting could be explained, the remainder could not. It leaves people sincerely frightened, especially when they are told they are mere prepatrators of a hoax, Mr. Musgrave said.

So in the process of spending Canadian tax money ferretting out historical reports of UFOs and talking to people who have seen something strange in the sky, he plans to explain to them that they are not alone and the vivid experience they have had is consistent with what has happened to a good many other people.

Studying UFOs, he said, amounts to being part of a new science which may provide a revolutionary way of looking at the world and force all of us to acquire a new framework for our own view of things around us.

He finds the whole field intriguing, especially since no one knows exactly how to go about studying it. This led him to decide on a historical look.

He plans to begin in earnest next November when his teaching contract expires. He will spend his time in newspaper libraries and government research centres as well as interviewing those who have seen UFOs, compiling and analysing reports until his money runs out. The $6,000 is about half of what he asked for in his grant application.

As a member of about a dozen UFO clubs and societies, a contributor to periodicals on UFOs, including the Canadian UFO Report and a student of scientific history, he has heard a lot of theories about UFOs and drawn together some of the common elements of sightings.

Most UFO buffs take it for granted that flying saucers and the like are from other planets with civilizations billions of years older than ours, at least as a working theory. But there are also suggestions that what is seen is something created by the human mind, and viewed in terms of technology as we know it or can imagine it, or as visible evidence of a supernatural world existing on earth of which we are unaware.

Mr. Musgrave also speculates that there may be several different sources for UFOs, including natural phenomena that science does not yet understand. The fascination is in the discovery of the answers.

UFOs are usually sighted in rural areas, with Alberta an especially fertile field, often on Wednesday nights and usually between 2 and 3 a.m. or in early evening. Summer seems to produce more reports than winter, which might be explained by more people being outdoors in warmer weather.

Most recent reports have been of circular objects of various colors, dropping out of the sky and flying back up after scooping up sample of earth. They are reported to have chased cars and some people have said they have been taken aboard space craft and examined by the occupants, which are usually described as about one metre tall and either human or robot-like in appearance. The vehicles also make sounds, everything from beeps to lightning-like cracks. They have been plotted on radar screens. Some have said they were temporarily blinded by the intensity of the light emitted from the craft.

Election Battle Continues

Davis Leaves Campaign To Attend Conference

TORONTO (CP)—With the Sept. 18 Ontario election now four weeks away, Premier Davis is in St. John's, Nfld., to spend one day at the annual premiers' conference before resuming his campaigning.

The premier spent Wednesday at a cabinet meeting, making the break from the campaign in effect, two days long, while his opponents were hard on the trail of votes.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon finished a four-day tour of southwestern Ontario, sticking to the main themes he has carried throughout the campaign so far—government overspending, regional government and what he calls the mismanagement in Premier Davis's government.

Stephen Lewis, provincial NDP leader, finished a two-day jaunt through Northern Ontario with yet another revelation of an industrial health hazard, this time, asbestos pollution in a plant near Timmins, closed last April.

Mr. Davis is to spend only one day at the two-day premiers' meeting, but Treasurer Darcy McKeough is to stay on as Ontario's representative when the premier flies home.

Mr. Davis is expected to ask for a federal-provincial conference to define the roles of governments in Canada.

So far during the election campaign, he has made the federal government a prime target, attacking its June budget and especially the added 10-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline, a tax which he staved off with a provincial freeze on petroleum prices.

Meanwhile, back in Ontario, Mr. Nixon continued his attacks on the Davis government.

At a Brantford nomination meeting at the end of his southwestern Ontario tour, he derided the Conservative cabinet as the weakest in years.

Mr. Nixon also addressed the theme of regional government, which he has painted as a spectre throughout his southwestern Ontario swing.

He promised that a Liberal government would end what he called the master-slave relationship set up between province and municipalities under regional government.

Mr. Lewis's charges of an industrial health hazard came at a news conference in Timmins.

He said figures obtained by the NDP this week show that the level of asbestos fibre pollution in the Canadian Johns-Manville Co. Ltd., mine and mill just south of Timmins, were as high as 200 times the acceptable limit before the plant was closed down last April.

Mr. Lewis, who has made industrial health hazards a key topic so far in his campaign, said both the company and the provincial resources department knew how serious the hazard was, but neither told the workers of the magnitude of the danger.

However, in Toronto, provincial Resources Minister Leo Bernier called Mr. Lewis's statements irresponsible.

Mr. Bernier said the men's health is being monitored by the ministry of health and a team of doctors is to be sent to Timmins to conduct examinations.

Syria, Jordan Form Supreme Command

DAMASCUS, Syria (Reuter) — Syria and Jordan announced today the formation of a supreme command council to direct political, military and economic action in the conflict with Israel.

A joint communique issued at the end of Jordanian King Hussein's five-day state visit to Syria said the council, headed by himself and Syrian President Hafez al-Assad, would work out plans to co-ordinate the armed forces of the two countries.

Damascus — 1st add Mideast Command 546 — countries.

The council, which will meet every three months or when ever necessary, was also given the authority to issue instructions on co-ordination of Syrian and Jordanian policy in the Arab and international fields.

The announcement came on the eve of the expected arrival here of U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger on the third stage of a Middle East peace shuttle aimed at a further interim agreement between Egypt and Israel.

Syria and Jordan, which run along Israel's entire eastern boarder, have been concerned that the agreement may be reached without similar Israeli withdrawals from their own occupied lands.

As Egypt has modeclearits

As Egypt has made clear its determination to go its own way in seeking a negotiated settlement, Jordan and Syria have drawn increasingly together over the last three months.

The communique said the council had been formed "that the unity of the Arab homeland, with all that it provided in political, military and economic power, represented a decisive reply to all imperialist and zionist challenges and constituted the road to regain dignity and liberate occupied land."

Observers noted that while the communique stressed the supreme council would direct military unification there was no mention of an actual joint military command.

Informed diplomats in Beirut said recently that Syria already had offered to supply Jordan with anti-aircraft missiles if they are not forthcoming from the United States.

Hussein has ordered 14 Hawk anti-aircraft missile batteries from the U.S., part of an arms deal worth $350 million which is intended to protect the Jordanian Air Force against the kind of destruction caused by Israel in 1967.

But the deal has run into snags in Congress where it is opposed by Israel's friends and the anti-arms sales lobby.

Cuban Trade Ban Eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 14-year-old ban against direct United States trade with Cuba was left untouched by the state department's decision to allow foreign subsidiaries of U.S. companies to sell to Cuba.

The state department's announcement Thursday that foreign subsidiaries may resume trading with Cuba came three weeks after the U.S. joined with 15 Latin American countries in voting an end to the hemispheric embargo against Cuba.

Although the U.S. retains its prohibition against direct trade with the island, one U.S. official Thursday may help accelerate movement toward a more normal relationship with Havana.

White House press secretary Ron Nessen said lifting the ban on sales to Cuba by American firms operating in third countries "really doesn't relate to bilateral relations with Cuba—it relates more to American relations with other inter-American countries."

Asked about President Ford's view of U.S. relations with Cuba, Nessen said there would be no advantage to permanent antagonism between the two countries but that any change in bilateral relations would depend on Cuba's attitude.

The state department announcement brought expressions of criticism from Cuban exiles in the Miami area.

Juanita Castro, sister and avowed enemy of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, said: "It is disappointing that the leaders of the free world cannot learn from history when dealing with the Communists. We feel betrayed by the United States once again."

Constitutional Parley Advocated

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier William Davis of Ontario appealed to his fellow premiers Thursday to support a proposal for a federal-provincial conference to more clearly define responsibilities between the two levels of government.

The Ontario premier, in the midst of an election campaign, attended the morning session of the annual premier's conference here, then returned to Toronto to address party rallies.

There was little immediate reaction to his proposal but Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick, a long-time advocate of constitutional reform, supported Mr. Davis' position.

Mr. Davis said he feels serious difficulty is developing in Canada because Ottawa has been usurping provincial authority and taking over responsibilities clearly the right of the provinces under the British North America Act.

Sources said the premiers generally appeared willing to resume talks on constitutional reform, a favorite topic of Prime Minister Trudeau, but not before they have drawn up individual lists of priorities for such a federal-provincial conference.

Indications were that they felt pressing problems such as the effect of the federal intention to withdraw from shared-cost health programs should be tackled in conjunction with the kind of conference the Ontario premier proposed.

It was reported that Premier Frank Moores of Newfoundland would be designated to gather opinions from the other nine on their priorities and one source said the 10 premiers may be getting together on the matter in advance of their next regularly scheduled annual conference.

Estimates of the cost to individual provinces of the federal health-care spending cuts came from several sources Thursday. One said Ontario would lose $125 million next year.

The central theme of the Ontario premier's election campaign has been his attack on the federal government's fiscal policies. The election is Sept. 18.

"Inflation with us is a very serious concern—not only the cost of living for Canadians but in relation to our competitive position in the world market place," Mr. Davis said.

What's This Garbage?

WINNIPEG (CP) — Provincial Judge Lawrie Mitchell says he "spent a week" looking up the dictionary meaning of words in a pre-sentence report, but only ended up "more confused".

"Einstein couldn't figure it out," Judge Mitchell said of the probation officer's report on Jonathon Brownstone, 25, of Winnipeg, who pleaded guilty to possessing five grams of hashish.

The judge quoted this passage from the six-page report:

"Mr. Brownstone presents as a rather anxious, overly-dependent, passive-aggressive, slightly inadequate individual who has a low self-concept but is relatively well-motivated to achieve and appears to be above average in intellectual functioning ability.

"Basically, Mr. Brownstone appears to present himself in two distinct but related perspectives, the division of which seems based on a combination of multiple factors, such as psychosocial developmental maturity, motivation to achieve in an appropriate employment setting and sex-role identity stabilization."

The judge asked: "Now what's all that garbage?"

Crown counsel Bruce MacFarlane said: "I admit I have some difficulty grasping the thrust of the report myself."

Defence counsel Jeffrey Gindin said: "In all its confusion, I think it's a favorable report," a sentiment with which the judge agreed.

Judge Mitchell said he had intended to give a jail term to Brownstone, who had two previous drug convictions. But because "the couple of lines you can read" in the report were favorable, he imposed a $500 fine instead.

Millhaven Prisoners Stay in Their Cells

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prison officials said the majority of prisoners at Millhaven Maximum Institution in nearby Bath refused to leave their cells Thursday in the second day of a protest against the segregation of five prisoners who took part in an earlier protest.

Stanley Scrutton, Millhaven's acting director, said that a small percentage of the 300 prisoners returned to work Thursday, but most refused to leave their cells except to pick up food trays.

Shortly after the protest began Wednesday, prison officials said some prisoners were using threats of violence to enforce the protest against segregation last week of five men alleged to be leaders of an 11-day protest from July 31 to Aug. 10.

Mr. Scrutton said one of the segregated prisoners has been deported to England and a second returned to his own cell.

Striking prisoners issued a statement Thursday that said the earlier strike was a "spontaneous action" by all prisoners and "there were no leaders."

The statement, signed by 194 prisoners, said the first protest "was to back up our demands for a recognized prisoners' trade union and to bring to public attention the fact that we are being denied every possible outlet for rehabilition purposes."

The statement said that J. A. Dowsett, prison director, was doing "his best to embarrass the prison population" when he charged that some leaders of the first protest used threats of violence to enforce that strike.

"This is totally untrue," said the statement. "It is a complete fabrication on the director's part."

Mr. Scrutton warned Wednesday that disciplinary action might be taken if the strike continued. He said Thursday that the situation is being assessed but he does not know how long the protest will continue.

Canadian Production Stabilized

OTTAWA (CP) — The level of production in the economy stabilized during the three months ended June 30, after sliding downward during the first quarter, figures released Thursday by Statistics Canada indicate.

The index of real domestic product—a measure of productivity that discounts for the effects of price increases—held steady during the second quarter at 201.7. It had declined seven-tenths of one per cent during the first three months of the year.

Most economists feel the recession is ending in Canada, and that there may be some real economic growth during the second half of 1975, although unemployment will continue to be high. The jobless rate currently is about 7.2 per cent of the work force.

However, even though the over-all real domestic product index stabilized in the second quarter, its industrial production components were lower. Industrial production accounts for about 30 per cent of real domestic product, and it registered a fifth consecutive quarterly decline in the three months ended June 30.

Speculation Tax Opposed by Nixon

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Premier William Davis returns to the campaign fray today after taking a day off Thursday for the annual premier's conference in St. John's, Nfld.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon was campaigning in the Mississauga area just west of Toronto.

While repeating a number of his previous statements about what he calls the failure of the province's school system, Mr. Nixon also turned briefly to the land speculation tax, introduced by the Conservative government in its 1974 budget.

He said that his party, if elected, would repeal or ignore the province's 25-per-cent land speculation tax.

Mr. Nixon said he sees nothing wrong with making a profit on a land sale and said unconscionable profits could be dealt with through a capital gains tax.

He again attacked the provincial education ministry, repeating his contention that there is urgent need to reform Ontario's school system.

However, he himself came under fire from Education Minister Thomas Wells.

Mr. Wells, speaking at a nomination meeting in Toronto, said Ontario's school system is a model for North America.

He scoffed at Mr. Nixon's financial suggestions for improving education in the province, saying they are too costly and unnecessary.

Today, the Liberal campaign was to move into the Oshawa.

Meanwhile, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis continued to press one of his campaign themes—industrial safety.

He challenged the provincial government to release all pollution tests taken at the Reeves asbestos mine and mill south of Timmins, which closed last April.

Mr. Lewis said Wednesday that pollution levels at the plant reached 100 times acceptable levels before the operation was closed.

Resources Minister Leo Bernier and officials of Canadian Johns-Manville Ltd., the plant owners, have accused Mr. Lewis of attacking them unfairly.

United Appeal Adding Two Agencies to List

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

United Community Services board of directors approved motions Thursday to admit two new agencies to the existing 15 that receive allotments from the Belleville and District United Appeal campaign.

The Belleville and District Children's Service Committee and the Quinte Information and Assistance Centre have requested allotments of $7,800 and $4,200 in the 1975 campaign to be held in October.

The Children's Service Committee is a pilot project designed to deal with physically handicapped children. It is expected to have an enrolment of about 48 children in morning and afternoon classes.

The service is to be located in a building under renovation at Bleeker and Bridge Streets. With an annual estimated expenditure of about $100,000 government grants will cover 80 per cent of the costs. The Belleville Yardmen have pledged $12,000 annually. Government grants are paying all bills for renovation of the new quarters.

Quinte Information and Assistance Centre on Coleman Street applied to United Way for funds last year and was turned down, by UCS as it did not have a proper board of directors and lacked government funding.

The centre, which helps persons with consumer problems, has now received assistance from the department of consumer and corporate affairs.

One board member questioned approval of an agency that had previously been turned down by the board.

Frank Seemungal, UCS president and board chairman, said the boards could not go back on last year's promise to add Quinte Information and Assistance Centre to United Way beneficiaries if it met the boards prerequisites.

"As long as an agency is providing a service in this community that is needed by the community we have no choice but to support it," said Mr. Seemungal.

Campaign Goal Will Be Set Soon

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

The United Community Service board of directors is expected to meet within two weeks to set the 1975 Belleville and District United Way campaign goal.

Students at Whitney School have already started preparations by making about 100 silk screen copies of the United Way logo.

"The kids were happy to be doing something for the community and for themselves," said UCS director Gord Mullins.

The brightly colored mobiles will be hung in local stores and businesses during the October campaign.

Allotments to the 17 agencies the campaign supports will also be determined at that time.

Mr. Mullin said preparations for the campaign are going well and are further ahead than they were at this time last year. Last year goal was $140,000. J. Robert Burns is this year's campaign chairman. John Wiggett is deputy chairman.

Division chairmen include: corporations, Milton Duffey; national, Robert Burns; employee, Noel Stockton; professional, Jim O'Brien; education, Dorothy Blakely and small business, Jerry DiRocco. The only division without a chairman is the residential campaign.

"Our whole summer has dwelt on getting the people we have," said Mr. Mullins.

Drivers Beware

Belleville OPP remind motorists that Ontario's new school bus regulations are in effect Sept. 1 and they require drivers to stop in any speed zone on any highway or road if a school bus has its lights flashing. Previously regulations applied only to speed zones greater than 35 m.p.h. Both lanes of traffic must come to a complete stop. Here, students from Bayside Elementary School ask drivers to please stop for school buses this fall when the county's children return to school Sept. 2.

Crosbie Suggestion Earns Him Safety Council Job

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A job well done for the Canada Safety Council usually earns you a chance to do another job well — and that's exactly what happened to Belleville's Police Chief Douglas Crosbie Wednesday.

Chief Crosbie, representing the Canadian Police Chiefs' Association, attended a meeting of the traffic section of the Canada Safety Council in Toronto where he recommended that the council develop uniform legislation governing bicycles and motorized bicycles for all provinces in Canada.

For this report the council requested Chief Crosbie to head a committee to study the existing legislation and make recommendations to the council sometime in January.

Chief Crosbie said Thursday that the committee is concerned about the current legislation which can leave a scare on the young cyclist who happens to be charged with violations under the traffic legislation.

For example, Chief Crosbie said he doesn't believe a young cyclist should be charged as a juvenile offender for failing to signal properly when turning or breaking other regulations that applies to motor vehicles too.

"There must be a better way of dealing with these problem cyclists," said Chief Crosbie, who expects to take a close look at the current legislation from British Columbia and Manitoba.

He explained that uniform legislation across the country is needed because Canadians are "mobile" people and would help solve a lot of problems both for police authorities and cyclists in moving from one part of country to another.

Concerning motorized bicycles (mopeds) Chief Crosbie said that uniform legislation should also be established for them. He said the current legislation in Ontario is adequate and that further proposed legislation should cover mopeds completely.

In late July the Ontario government set down new regulations for mopeds. Some of these include the definition of a moped, such as having a motor no larger than 50 cubic centimetres, not weighing more than 120 lbs, and not having hand or foot clutches. Mopeds are not allowed to exceed 30 m.p.h.

The other change made it mandatory for a moped operators to be at least 16 years old. Pending legislation will require a moped operator to have at least a temporary driver's licence or a driver's licence. New legislation, yet to be passed, will require motorized vehicles to have plates.

Chief Crosbie said he hopes the final recommendations will be presented to the Council in Montreal next year.

Chief Crosbie has also been active in another committee looking into developing uniform traffic collision procedures for Canada.

Trenton Dials Busier

TRENTON — Bell telephone customers will have to begin dialing all seven digits of local numbers when the company introduces an additional exchange into the city's system.

The new exchange identified as 394, will complement the existing 392 exchange and will make it impossible to reach an in-town number by just dialing the last four digits.

Bob Carleton, Bell's manager commented that it would take getting used to but it would become second nature to dial all seven digits in a short time.

Fire Hall Contract Awarded

The contract has been awarded for the construction of Murray Township's new fire hall, to the Mirtren Contractors, Ltd., formerly Miron-Wiggers Construction Co. Ltd., of Trenton

The fire hall, which will be located in the vicinity of Wooler Road and Highway 2, will be constructed at a cost of $67,393 and is expected to be completed by the end of October with work being started immediately.

The fire hall will be a two-bay building with a room for the fire chief's office and a lounge for the volunteer firefighters.

Currently, the township has received 16 applications for membership on the force with officials estimating they need at least 20 volunteers to operate efficiently.

The applicants will take part in a special fire-fighting course being offered at Loyalist College, beginning September 29, lasting for ten weeks. It will be held Monday nights.

The building will house an international pumper, a standard piece of fire-fighting equipment, officials said, and a 12,000 gallon tank truck to be used as a back-up vehicle.

Currently Murray Township depends on Ameliasburg, Brighton and Frankford for its fire protection after cancelling its contract with Trenton when the municipality raised it $12,000 yearly fee for coverage, to more than $30,000.

The volunteer group will service the larger central portion of the township with the three other fire departments still contracted to protect the area near their fire halls.

Motel Has New Owners

MARMORA — Mr. and Mrs. Norman Byford, new owners of the Belle Vista Motel, are looking forward to living in Marmora because they enjoy country living.

Coming from Montreal where Mr. Byford was in the trucking business, ownership of the motel is something they have hoped for and planned for some time. They searched for several months before reading an advertisement about the Belle Vista Motel and, upon investigation, felt that its location was just what they were looking for.

"I expect we'll be busy for a while getting the hang of the motel business" Mrs. Byford answered when asked what activities they enjoy. "We both like country, living so I think we will enjoy living here."

Mary Byford sees a similarity between the Marmora area and the part of England where she comes from. Mr. Byford was born in Canada.

No changes are planned by the new owners who are very pleased with the neat and attractive looking motel at the west end of Marmora Village.

The former owners, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Ayler, have taken up residence in Tweed.

Tweed Gets New Constable

TWEED — Paul Clement, of Tweed, formerly with the ministry of natural resources, joined the Tweed Police Department July 29 as a constable. He joins Police chief Barry Wallace and Constable Tom Andrews bringing the total force to three men.

Solidarity Forever

James Taylor, incumbent candidate for the Prince Edward-Lennox provincial riding once again received the nod from the Progressive Conservative party at the nominating convention in Picton Thursday. Robin Jeffrey, left, PC candidate from Quinte riding and Flora Macdonald MP Kingston and the Islands are shown with Mr. Taylor.

Fewer Student Placements Not Disappointing in Trenton

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The job market for students this summer lived up to its advanced promise of being tight.

The Trenton Student Manpower Office, located at 57 Division St., reports more than a ten per cent drop in student placements this summer but the staff at the centre is pleased with the results.

"It could have been a very hard summer for getting jobs but fortunately, even though there were less regular job placements, area residents increased their use of student labor for casual employment," said Shirley Post, graduate assistant and in charge at the centre.

Miss Post said the success of the program was based on two main factors.

"I think the advertising program we instituted on the media was excellent in acquainting the public with the fact there were students available for work," she said. "And Hire-a-student month certainly added to the public's awareness students wanted work."

"Also the fact we are in a street-level office has made it easy for people to locate us just by the location," said Miss Post.

Not only was total placement down but figures released by the office indicated man-days worked dropped by almost 18 per cent for the period ending August 13.

The total man-days worked in 1974 was 20,849 for the period and was 16,883 for 1975.

More than 1800 students registered for the program in 1974 and this also dropped this summer with only 1,200 applying to the office for work this summer.

The three-person staff at the centre maintains daily contact with the local business community by visits and telephone solicitations inquiring about available jobs, sometimes contacting prospective employers two to three times during the summer.

"Most of the jobs we offer the students are very plain," she said. "People want their yards cleaned or windows washed but this year with the regular market so tight it was fortunate there was an increase in casual job demand."

The students are paid $2 an hour if they are under 18 and the regular minimum wage of $2.50 if they are more than 18, for regular employment.

"When the students work for homeowners doing casual labor the pay cycle is more flexible," Miss Post said.

Job Hunter

Shirley Post, graduate assistant in charge at the Trenton student manpower on Division Street has spent a busy summer with her staff finding jobs for student workers. Statistics showed placements were down but not as severely as it was anticipated at the beginning of the summer.

Mall for Gold Cup

PICTON — During the Gold Cup Races to be held this coming Labor Day Week-end, Main St., here, will be transformed into a mall, Saturday August 30.

In co-ordination with the downtown merchants Gold Cup Shopper's Fest, many of the racing boats will be brought into the downtown area for public viewing.

Along with a live radio show by CJBQ-NH, there will be a variety of draws with the grand prize being a week-end for two in Nashville to the Grand Ole Opry and to Opry-Land.

Other plans for the one day mall include a fish pond, and a window painting contest for the children. There will also be a soap-box derby the Thursday prior; and the Miss Gold Cup Competitions on Friday night at the Elks Hall.

Bicyclist Killed

COLBORNE — A bicycle-truck collision on county road No. 25 (Percy Street) resulted in the death of Joseph Curtis, 11, of R.R. 1, Grafton, Thursday afternoon.

The boy was travelling east on the gravel concession road near Brown's Corner when he was in collision with the rear dual wheels of a tractor-trailer proceeding south on County road No. 25.

The truck, loaded with corn, was driven by Dean Chapman, R.R. 1, Colborne.

The youth was pronounced dead at the scene of the accident by Dr. W.O. Elliot of Brighton.

Constable R.S. Creighton and Cpl. E.R. Bush of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are investigating the accident.

Taylor Confirmed in County, Praises Bill Davis Leadership

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Incumbent James Taylor was confirmed the Progressive Conservative candidate for the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox, at the party's nominating convention held here Thursday night.

Allen Gregg, president of the Progressive Conservative Association for the riding, called the 696 delegates for nominations after preliminary party business.

While the nominations were taking place Flora MacDonald, MP for Kingston and the Islands Norris Whitney, former MP for the local riding and Doug Alkenbrack, MP for Frontenac — Lennox — Addington spoke to the delegates.

Miss MacDonald stated, "eastern Ontario is a bright blue country and that's the way we want to keep it."

"I'd like to express my encouragement and praise to Robin Jeffrey. And I hope more women will be in the legislature after September 18, and Robin will make another fitting representative."

Norris Whitney commented on the election by saying, "We have an opportunity to continue good government."

Mr. Alkenbrack paid tribute to the work of James Taylor and called the Liberal provincial policies "nothing," and stated that they were a "negation of good Conservative policy."

With the nominations complete, there were three names offered to the delegate. Cecil Kidd Clarence Milligan and James Taylor.

After Messrs. Kidd and Milligan declined, Mr. Taylor in his acceptance speech said he came to the convention to seek support and continued to say the residents of the county were blessed with an eye for the future.

"Good government does not happen. It takes leadership and William Davis has leadership," stated Mr. Taylor.

Mr. Taylor said when Buckminster Fuller, the world re-known architect met Mr. Davis, Mr. Fuller said, "that he has a grasp on the future, more than any other politican I've met in North America."

The candidate continued by citing the record of the Progressive Conservative Government.

"In Ontario we have 52 per cent of the total manufacturing, 82 per cent of the exports and we produce 50 per cent of the gross national product."

"Since 1972, our provincial government has produced 170,000 new jobs annually," said Mr. Taylor.

A few of the area projects completed Mr. Taylor said were the new County Home, officially opened Wednesday; the solution of the water and sewer problem in Napanee; and the repaving of roads throughout his riding.

Mr. Taylor also voiced a comment about regional government and the fears of its implementation, "parish the thought."

Words of congratulations were offered by Quinte candidate Robin Jeffrey and Hastings MP Jack Ellis, who said that if the new federal electoral redistribution proposals become fact, the people of Prince Edward may see him more often.

White Sees Through Liberal Program

PICTON — Guest speaker for the Prince Edward-Lennox Progressive Conservative nominating convention was John White, minister without portfolio in the provincial government.

Small laughter was heard when the minister, after sipping some water said: 'It is just as easy to see as the Liberal platform.

Mr. White said the Davis government has integrity and that Liberal statements about the deficits were wrong.

Mr. White also forecast an increase in the gross national product for Ontario of 11.3 per cent this year.

Comparing the federal and provincial governments, Mr. White said while the federal government is increasing its number of civil servants by over 10 per cent, the Ontario government reduced theirs by three per cent.

Other policies put into action by the provincial government Mr. White said was the reduction of taxes, the freeze on gasoline, and the increased industrial development, not only in eastern Ontario but the rest of the province.

Jan Nicol Opens Picton Office

PICTON — The candidate for the New Democratic Party, Jan Nicol announced in a telephone interview the opening of her party campaign office in Napanee by Monday It will be located at 9 Market Street.

"I've been rather busy. Wednesday afternoon I was campaigning at the hydro station near Bath, and the rest of the week-end I'll be setting up the headquarters in Napanee," said Miss Nicol.

With Stephen Lewis, the leader of the New Democratic Party, coming to Trenton Friday, Miss Nicol said she plans to meet with the leader and talk about the campaign, in his Trenton visit.

Miss Nicol said she was in Amherstview talking about their problem of road development.

"One thing I've discovered is the diverse problems of the riding,".

Attending the official opening of the H.J. McFarland Memorial Home, Wednesday, Miss Nicol said she was "disgusted with the opening."

"It was a grandstand for politics. Don't get me wrong. I don't disapprove of the home, just the way it was opened," said Miss Nicol.

The statement made by Rene Brunelle minister of Community and Social Service, at the opening was just part of the campaign said Miss Nicol.

"The GAINS program (Guarenteed Annual Income System)" is a step in the right direction but it is not enough. It does not come to grips with the real problem of housing of the senior citizens."

"If there was adequate housing the need for the program would not be as great," said Miss Nicol.

The NDP hopeful stated that in the GAINS program the federal government pays $210 of the $240 supplement.

In a recent study in the major centres in Ontario, there is an estimated 18,000 senior citizens on waiting lists for homes, and that is not including nursing homes, said Miss Nicol.

The candidate said she felt the annoucement of the Ontario's Senior Citizens Privilege Card by Mr. Brunelle was a "political ploy, but if that's the only way to get things done, it is effective."

"I feel we could expand local senior citizen homes without getting too large," said Miss Nicol.

Most of the homes in the county are at the size where they could be expanded without losing the personal contact approach said the candidate.

The problem is more acute in Lennox county than it is in Prince Edward said Miss Nicol and she said it was her hope to expand the services in Lennox county.

Work Rewarded

Admission of Canadian Forces Sergeant Ed Findlater to the Most Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem was announced recently. Sgt. Findlater is a resident of Trenton and is employed at the Aircraft Maintenance Development Unit. The commanding officer of the AMDU, Colonel W.G. Doupe, congratulates Sgt. Findlater on his admission to the Order. Within the St. John Ambulance Brigade, Sgt. Findlater holds the rank of Officer and is currently Corps Staff Officer in the Quinte Corps headquarters.

Firemen To Canvass

The Sidney Volunteer Fire Department will begin their annual house-to-house canvass for muscular dystrophy Aug. 25 and ending Aug. 29. The last canvass netted $1,800 for the fight against muscular dystrophy. It was a Canadian record for fire department donations.

Toronto Youth Charged With Outboard Theft

PICTON — A 16-year-old Toronto youth has been charged, Tuesday, with theft over $200 following an investigation by Constable Cousins of the Picton detachment of the provincial police.

Charged is John Gregory Boczylo of Glenmore Rd. in Toronto.

Police report someone took a 9.8 horsepower Mercury outboard motor from an American tourist Friday, Aug. 1 near Weller's Bay.

Police report Boczylo will appear in county court Wednesday, Sept. 17.

The value of the motor is estimated by police at $600.

P.M. Sees to It His Press Meets Are Superficial Once-over-lightly Affairs

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It isn't that the press is so stupid.

Nor is it that Prime Minister Trudeau is that smart.

But it could be a little of both that result in his news conferences being such a bust.

The fatal flaw that routinely transforms what should be an electrifying informational hour into a lacklustre non-news event is the structuring of the conference.

For there is little, if any opportunity for any follow-up on questions, no pursuit of a point of compelling interest.

Instead, the conference skips from reporter to reporter, from question to question, with each issue getting little more than a quick, superficial once-over-lightly.

Unless, that is, the Prime Minister wishes to answer at length — which he usually does when he likes the question.

The answer can go two or three instructive minutes if the question presents the Prime Minister with the opening to make a case on a politically controversial subject.

But if the issue is a prickly one that the government has hesitated to grasp, the Prime Minister will give the question a fast verbal shuffle.

Like the other day when his replies raised more questions than they answered.

A reporter had reminded him that both he and Finance Minister Turner had 'warned of dire consequences to the economy" if inflation wasn't controlled and wage settlements restrained.

The situation hadn't changed, "and the government hasn't done anything," said the newsman, "are we to take from that that you're not worried about the problem any more, or you've given up, and if not, what do you intend to do?"

The Prime Minister replied Of course we're worried about it. We're still afraid of the dire consequences if we don't manage to control inflation."

Then he used up a couple of minutes reviewing what actions the government had taken in the budget.

The newsman, stubborn enough not to be so easily shaken, bore in:

"Specifically with the wage escalation, you said earlier that if the consensus program (for restraint) didn't work, you would either have to go to controls, or we would price ourselves out of world markets and face massive unemployment. That was pretty startling — has the whole thing gone away?"

Then, in reply, came an even more startling statement from the PM:

No, it's still a very stark reality and it's something we must absolutely solve otherwise we'll go down the drain if we price ourselves out of the market, and obviously wage settlements are too high, and prices have not been brought under control."

That being the case, the Prime Minister was asked by a second newsman whether he was "planning anything other than what was in the budget to keep us from going down the drain?"

There it was at last, the question, after all the non-answer fencing, that pinned it all down.

"I'm not announcing anything today," replied the Prime Minister, only moments before having announced that he was taking off on a month's vacation.

And that was it.

The tortured questioning had finally got too close to the bone, so the Prime Minister, shutting it off, turned to another reporter to reply to a question about the Helsinki summit conference that led into a dead-end discussion on defence.

So nothing was being done at the moment of present peril about the economy that the Prime Minister admitted was headed for disaster if he didn't do anything about it.

And nothing was being done about defence.

But the news conference was so cumbersomely structured, as is usual with the Prime Minister, that he never had to answer the key question Why not."

He didn't have to answer because he wasn't asked.

And he wasn't asked because when he sensed that unavoidably he was about to be confronted with the key "Why not?" he switched the line by responding to another newsman who changed the subject.

The news conference is a game to him, and the press is dumb enough to let him call the plays.

A Blend of Housing

This is far from being an egalitarian society. And it is reflected by public attitudes with regard to public housing, for instance, as much as by anything else.

Federal urban affairs minister Barney Danson wants to see less discrimination in this regard, more acceptance of public housing and more mingling of it with urban property.

He said recently there is a moral obligation to share, criticizing those who would turn their neighborhoods into fortresses, and adding: "I don't want to see any child locked into a narrow, crowded, soul-killing urban environment just because some people believe that public housing should stay downtown."

In this regard, Belleville is pointing the way — that is, toward a more composite housing milieu. For example, the attractive new homes in McFee St. and Marsh Dr., off North Park, with public housing in close proximity.

What a boon, incidentally, is the further development of Riverside Park, for people living in that area, the public in general, and for thet youngsters especially.

Meanwhile, spare a thought for those senior citizens who find themselves in straitened circumstances and with accommodation that is far from being even adequate, as the following editorial suggests.

The Forgotten Citizens

There is a category in society for whom housing can be a problem, and that is the Senior Citizen.

Some live more comfortably than others, in modern apartments or in homes designed for the purpose.

In other cases though life in the declining years can be drab, depressing — and very lonely.

The Cobourg Star has published a letter from a Senior Citizen which throws into stark relief the near-poverty and isolation which may be found in most communities.

It is there, in Belleville too, because for one thing pride may keep a person from complaining or otherwise drawing attention to his problem.

The location in this case is Oshawa, but it might be anywhere.

The letter says the writer lives in a room in a dilapidated downtown building in that city. There's no bathroom — only a public one down the hall, and one end of the room is curtained off to conceal a toilet.

Breakfast of toast, margarine and peanut butter, a cup of tea and the tea bag is used again at lunch with an egg or cheese sandwich.

"Dinner is special — sometimes I have a hamburger patty with my potatoes or beans. It is over two years since I have tasted steak, chops, or a roast of beef."

There is not enough money for new clothes, and entertainment is the park concerts. "I have very few visitors," the letter continues. "Sometimes several weeks will go by before a niece or nephew will pay a duty call. Usually they bring me a plant, and after they leave I look at it and wish to God I could eat it."

The letter was penned in reply to a letter from an inmate of the Cobourg jail asking "if he would like to trade places with me." It is neatly written, by an elderly person of obvious intelligence and education. Yet for some reason or other these are his present circumstances — what he describes as "my life sentence."

How many are there in Canada who are obliged to tolerate such a lifestyle? Can government or social services do nothing to improve their lot?

Linguistic Policy

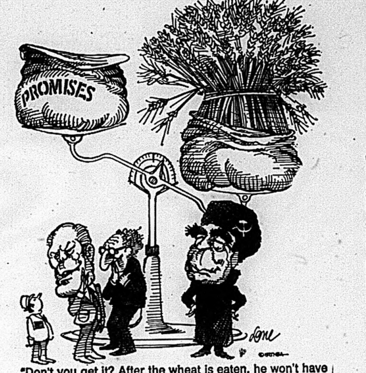
Bilingualism has reared its controversial head in yet another area — the administration of the Canadian Mint.

Gordon Hunter, whose title was Master of the Mint, reportedly has confirmed a charge that Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer caused him to resign in June, five years ahead of normal retirement.

A senior public servant for more than 30 years, Mr. Hunter is said to have stepped down because of policy differences over hiring practices at the Mint's new facility in Winnipeg.

Evidence of the disagreement has come in an exchange of correspondence to which Leeds MP Tom Cossitt, a frequent critic of the government's bilingualism policy, had made reference.

Suffice it to say that this policy has caused a lot of headaches and cost the Canadian public a great deal of money since it was instituted.



"Don't you get it? After the wheat is eaten, he won't have anything and our bag will still be full."

NDP, Unheeding of the Liberals, Goes After the Government

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Election notes: Stephen Lewis is playing a very cosy and subtle campaign.

He is very cool, on the surface almost taking the election lightly. But behind the front he is getting in his shots.

For example he says he intends to concentrate his whole attack on the government. And he does attack it in various fields such as housing and environment.

But then he says he isn't bothering about the Liberals because they aren't worth it.

Which attack hurts the most, and registers most with the public?

It was noteworthy that in the first few days of the campaign the NDP leader visited Ottawa.

This is one of the few areas in the province where the party is considered to have a good chance of making advances.

Michael Cassidy is considered a sure thing to hold his Ottawa Centre seat.

And it is believed that Evelyn Gigantes has a good chance of dropping Liberal Paul Taylor in Carleton East.

Taylor defeated Gigantes, a CBC worker, in the by-election last winter.

But she is personable and respected and people on the scene say that this time around she will probably defeat him.

Another possible NDP gain is in Welland, where Ellis Morningstar has retired.

Mayor Allan E. Pietz is to replace him as the Conservative candidate.

But he will be opposed for the NDP by Mel Swart. Swart has run in the riding twice and gave Morningstar, who had an extremely strong grip on the riding, close fights. In 1967 he came within a few hundred votes.

It is also said that John Turner, the sitting Conservative member in Peterborough, may have his troubles with the NDP.

He is being opposed by Gill Sandeman, a well-known and popular local woman.

In each of these ridings the Liberals are being rated as automatic thirds.

The two Tory veterans of the legislature have no inclination to get out.

Wally Downer who has been here since 1937, at time of writing is after his Dufferin-Simcoe nomination again, though he is being opposed by George McCague.

While Jim Allan, in his 80s, is in the field again in Haldimand-Norfolk.

Canadian Dollar Stabilizes But High Costs a Problem

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The Canadian dollar, for the time being at least, seems to have stabilized.

Foreign-exchange traders think that the dollar may be ready to regain some of the ground that it had lost during the past year.

At mid-August, the Canadian dollar was quoted on foreign-exchange markets at just under 96.22 cents (U.S.), its lowest level in several years.

But the monetary authorities at the Bank of Canada now have broadened the spread between Canadian and U.S. interest rates, so that highly mobile U.S. investment money is being sent to Canada to take advantage of the considerably higher yields available here.

"Canadian short-term interest rates will likely rise to keep the U.S.-Canadian interest-rate differential wide enough to support the dollar around 97 to 98 cents (U.S.)," says Norma Michael of Wood Gundy Ltd., investment dealers.

"Maintaining a high interest-rate differential is consistent with the Bank of Canada's desire to fight inflation.

"It seems likely that the Bank of Canada would undertake policies to ensure that Canadian interest rates maintain an attractive premium over U.S. rates."

Another major investment dealer, McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. Ltd., points out that the U.S. dollar, around mid-August, finally began to show signs of softness in relation to European currencies and the Japanese yen.

"Continued weakness at this point, assuming a stable Canadian dollar, could stimulate a northbound flow."

As interest rates in Canada move higher in relation to U.S. rates, Canadian borrowers—especially provincial governments, but also corporations—will tend to go to the New York market to raise capital.

The result will be to raise U.S. demand for Canadian funds and to cut the discount on our dollar.

Additional support for the Canadian dollar will be generated by the recovery in the U.S. economy that appears to be under way.

As U.S. business activity picks up, so does U.S. demand for our exports—and our mammoth trade deficits have been a major depressant on the Canadian dollar throughout the past year.

A reversal of the long downtrend in the Canadian dollar is not necessarily all that it seems to be, however.

In theory at least, a cheaper dollar helps our export trade by making it easier for foreign customers to buy our products.

But in practice, any such advantage is much more than offset by the sharply rising labor content in the cost of goods produced in Canada.

The strength or weakness of the Canadian dollar, in the end, is a reflection of the condition of the Canadian economy itself.

As we become an increasingly high-cost economy, our international competitiveness is weakened.

Canada no longer has a monopoly on the export of any major commodity, even on those in which we have thought ourselves to be dominant.

The outlook, then, depends largely on the prospects for a recovery in the world economy, which would lead in turn to at least a measure of expansion of Canada's export activity.

The organization for the relief of suffering owes its inception to the Swiss banker, Jean Heri Dunant, who was so moved by suffering at the Battle of Solferino in 1859 that he urged the formation of voluntary aid societies to help the wounded in time of war. The Red Cross has since expanded throughout the world to aid the afflicted in peace as well as war.

Grim Anniversary for Czechs as They Continue Life Under Their Oppressors

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Remember that tragic but telling expression "communism with a human face" which was meant to explain the impossible in Czechoslovakia of 1968, a "liberated" form of communism?

The spokesman for it and the Czech leader who attempted civil liberties under communism, was former premier Anton Dubcek, now reduced to personal oblivion and humiliation by the present Stalinist Czech regime.

Dubcek like his fellow Czech politicians who attempted to restore personal freedoms within a Communist system, have all been relegated to manual labor, along with most of the Czech intelligentsia.

This summer 114 Czech historians, none of them functioning in their country's universities, all of them eking out their livings as janitors, sweepers, garbagemen and tram conductors, issued a decree about their desperate plight.

In the so-called spirit of the Helsinki agreement which spoke in flowery terms about freedoms for the press to move between nations as well as for the peoples of the Soviet bloc, sad, sad Czechoslovakia is proof of the basic travesty of that document.

Added to the existing irony of the only democracy Slavic Europe produced being under the Russian terror, is the fact that terror has survived in the especially brutal Stalinist form.

How long in history must the Czechs suffer under these constant oppressions from Slavs and Teutons?

What has the Czech race done to deserve this treatment under Hitler, Stalin, and his successors including the smiling totalitarian Leonid Brezhnev?

How can any leader of his people, citing Czech Stalinist Premier Husak be so brutalizing to his own race, so destructive of his own tradition in Europe?

The Czechs have no one's blood on their hands. They were not one of Europe's early 20th century empires, holding captive races in their thrall, carrying out bloody programs like the Russians do or running death camps like the Nazi Germans did.

Indeed their position as a minority culture under the old Austro-Hungerian empire, which the doomd Archduke Franz Ferdinand tried to change to parity in the empire with Germans and Magyars, was benign compared to what Czechoslovakia has suffered since 1938.

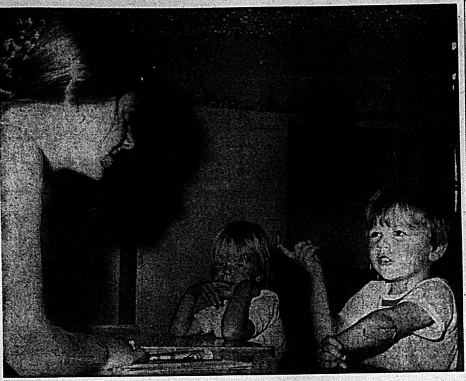
In a world of brutalization wherever we look, Vietnam being the most recent example in contemporary affairs, it is the Czech town of Lidice, its inhabitants butchered and the town burned down by the Gestapo in 1942 which lingers as a height of men's cruelty to man.

So far the Russians have not burned down Czech towns, although the 1968 invasion, seven years ago this very week, saw 800 Russian tanks rumbling across Czech fields and through fields heavy with the harvest.

But the Czechs have persecuted each other mercilessly, present Communist leaders imprisoning and executing former ones. Who will forget the further travesty of the Slansky trials? Communist butchers doing in other Communist butchers.

Brain-washing was perfected by the Russians and their Czech associates in the prisons of Prague of the early 1950s. Remember the trumped-up trial of American newsman William Oates who admitted under the pressure of brain-washing and truth drugs pumped into him in prison, to absurd espionage charges? And that was 24 years ago!

Again one asks in frustration why must the Czech race pay this price? Is it because they have been the only beacon of democracy and freedom in a Slavic Europe which must still heel to Moscow?



Explaining a Point

Showbiz Shorts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sally Struthers must decide between her role as Gloria in the All in the Family television series and other acting pursuits.

If Miss Struthers, who has missed the first four episodes of the coming season, does not appear to tape the fifth show Monday, another actress will be hired, a spokesman for the show said Friday.

Miss Struthers has become tired of playing Archie Bunker's daughter and wants to be free to pursue other assignments, her spokesman said.

A court-appointed arbitration panel has ruled she is under contract to Tandem Productions and cannot work for anyone else in radio or TV or in other areas o show business while the contract is in effect.

FORDYCE, Ark. (AP) — Keith Richard of the British rock music group Rolling Stones has forfeited a $163.50 bond by failing to appear in municipal court on a misdemeanor charge of reckless driving.

A misdemeanor charge of carrying a weapon was dismissed by Judge Thomas Wynne.

The weapon charge was filed when police spotted a leather-sheathed hunting knife on the seat of Richard's rented car after he was stopped July 5 for reckless driving.

Richard's lawyer, Bill Carter of Little Rock, had filed the motion to dismiss the weapon charge, citing a section of the state weapons control law that allows the carrying of certain weapons "on a journey."

Richard and three companions were travelling from a Rolling Stones performance at Memphis to a Dallas appearance when they were stopped at Fordyce.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Snyder, host of NBC-TV's Tomorrow show, has been sud for divorce by his wife of 17 years.

Mary Ann Snyder, 39, filed a petition Friday in Los Angeles Superior Court through her lawyer, James Cantillon. She cited "irreconcilable differences."

Mrs. Snyder sought custody of their daughter, 10-year-old Ann Marie, and child and spouse support. She asked the court to divide community property including a New York townhouse, a Beverly Hills home, pension and retirement benefits and various securities.

Mrs. Snyder claimed her monthly expenses were $5,787, including the cost of maintaining the family's Beverly Hills home. She said Snyder receives $10,000 a week as a television personality.

In addition to his early-morning talk show, Snyder, 39, is anchorman for a daily newscast in New York and for the NBC Sunday Night News.

LONDON (AP) — British actress Glynis Johns scoffed at speculation Saturday over an illness earlier this week and told reporters: "As you can see—I'm still alive and kicking."

Miss Johns, 51, was taken to London's St. Stephen's Hospital on Wednesday, suffering from what British newspapers called a "mystery illness." Hospital officials would not say what was wrong with her.

"It was food poisoning," the actress said Saturday as she arrived at Heathrow Airport to fly to Nice, France, for a holiday. "I'd eaten a bit of fish that had obviously turned a bit and made me very ill. I think it also had something to do with the hot weather and the fact that I have been working hard lately."

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Rock superstar Mick Jagger says he is not responsible for a $690,000 bill for ranch land trampled during the Rolling Stones' 1969 concert at Altamont.

Jagger testified in Alameda Superior Court on Monday that he never was served a summons and learned of the case only after the court issued a default judgment in 1973.

The suit was brought by a group of Alameda County ranchers who claimed that the 300,000 rock fans attending the free concert damaged their land.

A lawyer for the ranchers said Jagger, 32, was served with papers in the case—and that he struck Vivian Manuel when she gave him a summons aboard an airplane at San Francisco International Airport.

Jagger admitted he "slapped" Mrs. Manuel because she threw papers at him. He said those papers did not involve the damage claim

Superior Court Judge Robert Kroninger said he will make a decision Friday.

Writing Partnership Is Akin to Marriage

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Some of this town's longest marriages aren't between husbands and wives. They're between writing partners.

Ben Roberts and Ivan Goff have been collaborating since they met in the army 30 years ago.

Richard Levinson and William Link were junior high school students when they began writing together 30 years ago.

Bill Persky and Sam Denoff have been partners for 20 years - and now they live within a block of each other.

"It's like a marriage except for one thing - lack of sex," says Persky, winner with Denoff of two television Emmy Awards for the original Dick Van Dyke Show.

Writing partners generally spend as much time with each other as they do with their families - sometimes more.

Like a married couple, they must adapt to each other's quirks, and they constantly are required to make decisions which affect their future.

The script is their child. How to raise it properly can be a heated issue. And like married couples, their squabbles must be resolved if the relationship is to remain productive and satisfying.

There are male writing teams, female teams, male-female teams and husband-wife teams. There is at least one black-white writing team.

Some partners, like Roberts and Goff, describe themselves as opposites; others, like Levinson and Link - who grew up together - are similar personalities.

BGH Data Used to Study Effects of Mothers' Smoking on Unborn Babies

by Jerry Brown
and Isabel Huggan

Smoking is bad for unborn babies.

Still more proof of this now accepted fact has been produced by research conducted at Belleville General Hospital by Kay Manderville.

In a survey of the placentae of 64 women who gave birth to infants at the hospital, Mrs. Manderville found evidence that smoking had caused changes directly related to the smaller birth sizes of the babies.

The survey, done in the fall of 1972, was the heart of Mrs. Manderville's master's thesis for the anatomy department of Queen's University. She examined placentae from both smokers and non-smokers for the purpose of comparison.

"We had to arrange special permission to obtain the placentae immediately after the children were delivered," says Mrs. Manderville. "I prepared them for analysis then, so that they could be studied under my microscope later."

Although data about the mothers' personal lives and smoking habits was made available to Mrs. Manderville, it was done by nurses in order to protect the privacy of the patients being surveyed. The scientific research was primarily concerned with the visible differences in the placentae of non-smokers and smokers.

The placentae is the source of nourishment for the baby in the womb, so that any adverse change in it affects that baby's well-being. Mrs. Manderville's research disclosed that the placentae of women who smoked heavily (more than 15 cigarettes a day) had a significantly higher number of blood vessels on their surface than did the placentae of non-smoking mothers, were generally less thick and covered a wider area.

And what does that mean? Mrs. Manderville explains it quite simply.

"Nicotine and coal tar in cigarette smoke affect the blood supply to the placenta. Blood vessel walls constrict, slowing down the flow of oxygen and nutrients. To compensate for this situation, the placenta increases the number of its blood vessels in order to increase its supply of blood, and spreads over a wider area of the uterine wall in this attempt.

"But what is obvious from our studies is that the attempt is not successful, and that the babies do no receive sufficient nutrition. The placenta research simply shows the reason that babies of smoking women are smaller than they could normally be expected to be."

As background for her thesis, Mrs. Manderville compiled the following information about the smoking mothers.

Women who smoke while pregnant tend to have a more negative attitude toward their condition than non-smokers. They are also (as a group) less educated, and from a lower socio-economic level than their non-smoking counterparts, often working outside the home.

This data may explain to some extent why these women smoke, according to Mrs. Manderville. The nicotine in cigarettes gives a lift, by increasing the heart and pulse rate, that may be more sought by these mothers than those who are from a higher economic level.

"My only advice to pregnant women who smoke, and who can't break the habit, is to smoke cigarettes with a high nicotine and a low coal-tar content," says Mrs. Manderville. "Of the two, the tar is the more dangerous in its [illegible] carbon monoxide, that reduces the oxygen being supplied to the baby.

This pregnant woman, if she smokes more than 15 cigarettes a day, may be giving her unborn baby a poorer start in life than if she were smoking less or not at all.

This Research May Lead To Further Investigation

Research is tough, tiring, and far more time-consuming than teaching, says Kay Manderville. But she discusses her work with such enthusiasm it becomes apparent that the rewards of doing original scientific research are far greater than the drawbacks.

"One of the most exciting things is that it's all your own, and you have to stand by your idea," she says, speaking of the project she did for her master's degree from Queen's University. She gathered data from the Belleville General Hospital and examined placentae during 1972-73, and then compiled her information during the summer of 1974.

"I learned a lot, putting it all together," she recalls. "Even the process of having to write in a precise, scientific way was a useful experience."

Mrs. Manderville's thesis, on the effects of smoking on here at home with prepared human placentae and neonates (newly-born infants), will eventually be published in a medical journal, so that the findings of her research will be made more widely available.

"Although there's been a lot of work done on placentae, and a lot is known about babies of smoking mothers, there hadn't been anything done on how smoking effects placentae. And of course, to be a thesis, it had to be a new idea," she explains.

Although Mrs. Manderville has always been a non-smoker, it wasn't anti-cigarette motivation that prompted her research. Rather, it was the discovery that, as she was examining tissue from various placentae under her microscope, there was a visible difference in those from smoking and non-smoking mothers.

"I realized that this was an area where I could make discoveries, and find more proof of why babies of smoking mothers are smaller. One of the reasons that this whole project suited me so well was that I could work placentae sections, I didn't have to do all my work in the labs at the university."

With four children and a busy doctor husband at home, Mrs. Manderville wanted to limit her time away from her family as much as possible. Although she'll continue to teach at Queen's University this year, as she has for the past three years, it is only on a part-time basis.

"I instruct medical students and bachelor of nursing students in anatomy and histology labs," she says. "I really enjoy the contact with the students, especially during tutorial sessions."

Mrs. Manderville, a graduate of Mount Allison University in Sackville, New Brunswick, doesn't have immediate plans for further graduate work, but hopes to eventually continue her study of placentae under electronic microscope.

Holding her completed master's thesis as she relaxes on the porch of her home, Kay Manderville discusses the original research she did into the effects of smoking on placentae.

EVELINE KERR, B.A. Honors (nee Palisca) graduated from the University of Ottawa at the June convocation with a Bachelor of Education degree. Eveline will be teaching at Moira Secondary School, Belleville, this September.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dainard

Dainard — Adams

Rev. Alex McDowell officiated at the July 25 wedding of Tricia Anne Adams and Frederick Wallace Dainard in College Hill United Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Adams, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dainard.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a silk jersey gown with a high mandarin neckline, a front and back bodice gathered at an empire waist, long sleeves, and an attached train. Her four-tier veil was caught by a headpiece of lace flowers and baby's breath, and she carried a bouquet of dried orange carnations, yellow silk anemones and baby's-breath.

Lori McGarvey was maid of honor in a gown with bolero jacket in a melon shade, carrying a bouquet of yellow carnations and orange anemones.

Debbie Lundberg, Marie Dainard and Jane Moore were bridesmaids in gowns the same as the maid of honor's but in a misty melon color. Their bouquets were also identical.

Lesley Adams, the sister of the bride, was flower girl in a gown the same color as the maid of honor's and also carried a similar, but smaller bouquet. Graham Adams, the bride's brother, was ring-bearer.

The groom's brother, Murray Dainard, was his best man.

Ushers were Joe Edwards, Kevin McGregor and Craig Adams.

A buffet lunch and dance at the Elk's Lodge followed the ceremony.

The newly-married couple, who travelled to Watertown, New York, on their honeymoon, now live at 637 Sidney Street.

Colden — Paget

St. John's United Church in Brockville was the setting for the July wedding ceremony uniting Carol Margaret Paget and Richard William Colden in marriage. Rev. H. O'Brian performed the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Paget of Brockville and, the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Colden.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a pale yellow jersey gown with a scoop neckline, long full sleeves, a gored full skirt and a shoulder-length veil falling from a juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and white streamers.

Linda Bissinger, sister of the bride, was matron of honor in a full-skirted gown of creamy beige crepe with a tucked bodice and long sleeves. She carried yellow daisies.

William Beswick was the groom's best man, and David Colden and Gary Paget were his ushers.

A buffet dinner at the Grenville Motor Lodge in Brockville followed the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Colden now live in Toronto.

A Real Surprise!

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18 — Danny Zezzo, who runs a theatrical agency in San Francisco specializing in dancers and models, pops out of a party cake in San Francisco's most recent fad — a nude man popping out of cake. "There were a lot of embarrassed smiles in that mixed crowd," Zezzo says of the time he leaped from a cake at a surprise birthday party thrown by a businessman for his 45-year-old wife. "I was a little embarrassed, too. But I like the money.(AP Wirephoto)

Ann Landers

Double-dealing Homosexual Faces Eventual Blackmail

Dear Ann Landers: You called the turn on the ""Ramada Kid"—the man who meets his homosexual lover every Thursday, but claims he's a good husband, father, and businessman, and insists he'll never get caught because he's too smart to put anything in writing or carry any crazy pictures.

You told him be was the victim of a "severe personality disorder." Well, that's not all he's going to be the victim of. How is he fixed for blackmail money?

Sooner or later the wrong person will catch him at his little game of deceit. The sad part of the story is that his family will also suffer. What will 'Mr. A.C.-D.C. Dignified Businessman" do then? We see it happen all the time.—Cop On The Beat

Dear Beat: I'm printing your letter verbatim. It requires no comment from me. You've said it all.

Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem which is rather strange. It sems people keep inviting me places, setting dates and sometimes naming the place, promising to call to ask me out, and then they don't call. I mean they don't even call to cancel or confirm. No one ever apologizes for standing me up. This happens about two times out of three, with both men and womn.

When I say, "I was expecting to hear from you," they reply, "It was just tentative." Or, "Oh, yes, we talked about it, but that was all."

One man said just yesterday, "I couldn't make it last Tuesday and was unable to get in touch with you. I didn't want to call until a few days had passed because I figured you'd be boiling mad!"

What do you make of this?—Wigging Out

Dear Wig: You obviously have two problems. One is communication and another is your choice of friends.

In the future, when you make a date, and the time or place isn't nailed down, tell the other party YOU will call and verify the details. In that way you can control the situation.

Dear Ann: I read that letter from the 20-year-old boy who forged his parents' signature and emptied a savings account of $2,500. Your advice was, "Get the boy into therapy."

It doesn't always work. Our son is 17 and we've been trying since he was 13—spent a small fortune on psychiatrists and psychologists for both him and ourselves. He simply won't cooperate.

The moment a therapist gets close to his problems, the boy refuses to see him again.

We put him in a private hospital. He ran away. When he lived at home he was so hot-tempered we were afraid to leave him with his little sister. We'd give anything if we could help this tortured boy, but how? Only he can help himself and he doesn't want to. Any advice for us?—Still Love Him

Dear Friends: The key can be found in your letter—it's the second from the last sentence.

When the boy becomes of legal age tell him he's on his own—that you will pay for his education or therapy if he wants it but you refuse to bail him out of trouble. Then keep your word. Perhaps when he no longer has you to lean on (and punish) he'll shape up and accept responsibility for himself. Let's hope so.

In Nursing Home

'All They Want Is Company'

CAMBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — Every Wednesday afternoon Christine MacDonald spends a few hours at Spruce Haven Lodge, a nursing home in Cambridge, playing cards, talking and reading to senior citizens.

"I love it," she said in an interview. "I can't understand why more people don't visit."

Mrs. MacDonald, 58, said she collects newspapers from her neighbors to take to the residents. She makes sure they get the papers they prefer and puts their names on them, "because they like to have something of their own."

One rainy Wednesday she noticed one of the papers was missing. When she asked her neighbor about it, the neighbor said she didn't think Mrs. MacDonald would make the trip in the rain.

"The residents don't know it's raining outside," Mrs. MacDonald replied. "They just know it's Wednesday and you're supposed to come on Wednesday and spend time with them."

Mrs. MacDonald began volunteer work at nursing homes in 1946 while living in Windsor, Ont. She moved to Cambridge in 1960 and volunteered as a visitor with the Catholic Women's League of her church.

She still represents the church, but now she goes alone. That way she doesn't have to leave with the others if she's in the middle of a cribbage game.

The league gives her money to buy treats for the residents, such as bunches of bananas.

"You could give someone a fur coat and they wouldn't appreciate it half as much as those people appreciate one banana," she said. "The residents just want company. Sometimes they sit all day and nobody comes near."

She writes letters for the nursing home residents and takes care of the little things, such as winding a clock or watering plants.

Mrs. MacDonald is involved in other volunteer work such as Meals on Wheels, which provides meals to shut-ins. Once a month she helps pack and deliver food while it's still hot.

"It kind of annoys me that more people don't visit residents in nursing homes," she said. "You only need one hour, maybe not even that."

Costly Spa 'Recharges Batteries'

ESCONDIDO, Calif. (AP) — Kim Novak makes two visits a year to have her "battery recharged." Debbie Reynolds came with daughter Carrie Fisher. Barbra Streisand checked in before starting a new movie.

The magnet which draws the very rich and very famous is the Golden Door, a spa to end all spas.

Recently, with a minimum of fanfare, the famed health hideaway here, 90 miles south of Los Angeles, became what it says is the most expensive "luxury beauty resort" in the world.

Untroubled by recession, owner Deborah Mazzanti moved her fat-and-fatigue-fighting operation to a new $3.5-million complex and upped her prices to $1,250 a week plus 15-per-cent gratuities, a total of $1,875.

She is the first to point out that her clients—limited to 30 a week—can afford it.

"In that income bracket, it doesn't make much difference," she said.

The price increase—from a previous $1,000 a week—arrived with the opening of The New Door, a Japanese-style complex set in the midst of 150 acres, empty but for bleached rocky hills and towering trees.

"I wanted this to be a classic with the serenity that is found in old monasteries," said Mrs. Mazzanti, 53, who has been in the business since spas were called "fat farms" in the 1940s. Her two largest competitors in the United States are Elizabeth Arden's Main Chance ranch in Arizona and The Greenhouse of Dallas, Tex. Both keep their rates below $1,000. The spas of Europe are frequently housed in old hotels or manor houses and are far less costly.

For the extra dollars, Golden Door's patrons are promised neither extravagent weight loss nor restored youth. What they do get is a rigorous regime of tough exercises, tiny meals of organically-grown food and enough pampering to keep them happy.

"We're the only ones who have everyone walk up a mountain at 7 a.m.," said Mrs. Mazzanti.

"So few of our guests are overweight it's amazing. But, after all, no on spends this kind of money just to lose a few pounds."

Her clients, said Mrs. Mazzanti, are "people who live tension-producing lives, who have enormous demands on their physical and emotional energy. They come to get their batteries recharged, to build up new reserves."

Although aimed at women, Golden Door sets aside eight weeks a year for men and one week for couples who wish to recharge together.

Big Firms Blamed for Driving Gas Pumpers Out of Business

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Neighborhood service stations are dying, according to a Belleville businessman who will be hanging up the hoses this week for the last time.

On Thursday he said proprietors of gas stations are being forced out of business by petroleum companies from whom they lease their stations.

"The oil companies are making all the money and the guys pumping the gas are operating at a loss."

He feels so strongly about his claims that he ran an advertisement in The Intelligencer quoting figures showing lost profits over the past seven years.

The man, who perfers to remain anonymous because the company from whom he leases his station owes him money, said gas profits to station lessees have fallen from about 21 per cent in 1968 to about 12 per cent in 1975.

In 1968 before paying provincial taxes, lessees paid oil companies about 21 cents a gallon. This year they pay about 40 cents a gallon before taxes.

Costs, he said, have almost doubled and the lessee is now making half a cent less for each gallon sold than he did seven years ago.

"That's why you read in the newspapers about oil company profits doubling — ours hasn't gone up in seven years."

Company-owned self-serve stations, are pumping them out of business.

With increased prices, due to the oil companies and government, people are willing to drive a little further to pay a little less.

The customer, he said, is the ultimate loser. Self-serve stations lack services such as air pumps and emergency calls to the home on cold mornings.

If a station hires an attendent for eight hours a day it costs $20 and if 400 gallons of gas is sold per day it only brings in $28.

"The profit won't even cover the overhead."

Gallonage is expected to increase in July and August while people are holidaying. This year, he said, it has dropped at his station as almost everyone is pumping their own.

A survey of other Belleville gas-men indicates they agree with the man who's quitting.

Gib Woods, who ran a Sunoco station in Marysville two years ago said it is more profitable for oil companies to go self-serve or cut-rate.

"They force the guys (the proprietors) out," said Mr. Woods.

Station proprietors, he said, are making money in their repair shops and losing it at the pumps.

When he left his station a cut-rate subsidiary of Sunoco took over selling gas to motorists at the same price he was buying it for.

Company owned self-serve stations are run by an employee who is paid a salary and commission. Lessees have to make it on their own.

Cliff Broadbridge, of Cliff's Texaco, 24 Bridge St. W., said because of the self-serve stations: "We've lost gallonage. We've lost profit."

"It's a rough business. We rely on the mechanical work."

Mr. Broadbridge said gas profits are so bad customers are driving garages out of business by not dealing with them.

Jack Dodson of B and D Sunoco, 41 Dundas St. E., said he's in a different position than the lessee. He owns the station he operates.

"The profit margin on gas won't look after anything," said Mr. Dodson. It will hardly pay taxes and hydro on the station.

"If they (lessees) get any other opening they get out pretty soon," he said.

Budget Takes Bump

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

City council will be asked by the Belleville Board of Park Management to approve a tender for a proposed addition to the Alemite Field Service Building which will put the board about $6,000 over budget.

The board Thursday accepted a tender from Weiger DeJong Construction of Church St. in Stirling at an amount of $30,941 for the work at the Alemite Field.

The board had budgeted $25,000 for the addition but as city manager Wilbur Purcell noted, about $1,500 of that was slated for engineering fees, "so you're about $6,000 short."

"We might have to hope council will come up with $6,000," said Ald. Paul Russell, board chairman.

John Guthrie of the Belleville consulting engineering firm of Morden-Guthrie Ltd., of 377 Morden-Street, said, "it was anticipated construction would start by Sept. 21. If so, it could be finished before winter."

"I don't think you can cut back $6,000," he pointed out, and was supported by Ald. eorge Zegouras, who said, "I will not agree with reducing the various items."

Jerry Brennan of the Parks board said some relief might be forthcoming through $1,400 from the province's community centre grants program after the work is done but added the money would probably not arrive until next year.

And Ald. Russell said it might be possible to switch some of the $12,500 that the province has promised for work on East Zwick's Island (if the grant is designated for work already completed rather than for current construction).

Happy Birthday

TWEED — Mr. Stanley Gregg, of Vennachar, Ontario, in the Denbigh district, celebrated his 92nd birthday recently.

He is enjoying fair health, lives alone and takes care of his house with the aid of his immediate family.

Still in Control

In one of her last official acts, Belleville's Mayor Robin Jeffrey still appears to be in control after placing second-runner up to Bracebridge Mayor Jim Lang (left) in the annual CNE waterfront mayors' bathtub derby Thursday in Toronto. Controller Joyce Trimmer of Scarborough took first place over-all in the event which saw 10 contestants run two heats before the final race. Mrs. Jeffrey placed first in one of the heats.

Visiting Venezuelan Students Get Acclimatized at Loyalist

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Twenty Venezuelan post-secondary students arrived at Loyalist College Thursday for a day of a climatization before dispersing to their host families in Belleville.

The students arrived by taxi at 11 a.m. from the Four Seasons Motor Hotel where they had spent the night. They had been transported to Belleville by charter coach Wednesday evening from Toronto International Airport.

They were accompanied from Venezuela by Catharine McEvoy the college's only full-time Spanish teacher. Miss McEvoy had earlier flown to the South American country to brief the student on Loyalist and the Quinte area.

They were met at Toronto by another Loyalist teacher, Nancy Treloar and Pearl Vani, who is "serving in a liaison capacity" for the college, says Art McFarlane, chairman of student services.

Mr. McFarlane said Thursday sMis Vani will be available whenever a translator is required.

The students are part of a group of 100 currently in Canada. There are 60 at Concordia University and another 20 at the Brockville campus of St. Lawrence College.

For about nine months, they will undergo intensive English studies to prepare them for advanced college or university courses in the technological field.

It is all part of a Venezuelan program which will see 50,000 student in five years shipped around the world for such studies. This is the program's second year and Canada's first year of participation.

The Venezuelan government is paying for everything from education to accommodation and recreation costs.

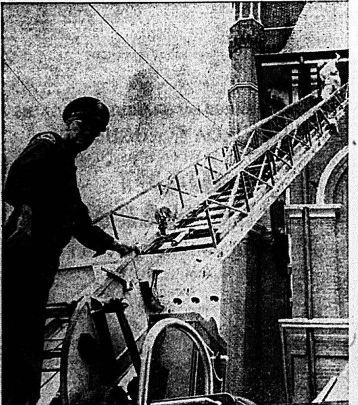
The students were welcomed by Paul King, Loyalist dean of faculty, who said the college's "keen interest in the Spanish language and cuture—finally resulted in arrangements with your government to offer this course for you."

Speaking in Spanish, Mr. King noted Loyalist has two full classes of "Spanish as a second language."

Mr. McFarlane said today the entire morning was devoted to a comprehensive language test to determine the students' initial proficiency in English.

In the afternoon, "we shall be ascertaining their interests in athletics and related recreational activities," he said.

Other plans for the forthcoming weeks will be scheduled. "Our biggest job is to get them oriented to Belleville and district," Mr. McFarlane noted.



Long Arm of Fire Department

The long arm of Belleville Fire Department helps painter Ray Marsh reach the eaves of city hall. Firefighter Walter Skinkle operates aerial truck unit five to help Mr. Marsh of B. F. Hubbs Painting and Decorating brush along the building. To help save the city money the fire department was given the task of putting the painter where he wants to splash his brush.

Headquarters In Marmora

TWEED — Clarke T. Rollins, Progressive Conservative candidate in the upcoming provincial election, has stated that his campaign headquarters will be located at the Plaza Theatre in the village of Marmora. The campaign manager will be Kenneth Smith; financial agent, Don McNevin, and public relations, Carl Bateman and Keith Brown.

Stirling Collision Injures 2

STIRLING — A two-car collision near here Thursday sent a Campbellford woman and a Belleville woman to Belleville injuries.

Injured in the accident were Queenie Anderson, 54, of RR 5, Campbellford, driver of one car and Eva Wellman, 17, of 7 Ridley St., Belleville, a passenger in the second car. Driver of the second car was Gregory Johnson, 20, of 91 Frank St., Belleville. He was uninjured in the mishap.

Madoc OPP said the accident occurred on County Rd. 8, about four miles west of Stirling. Johnson has been charged with failing to give a reasonable opportunity to avoid collision while making a turn.

Car Struck Rock Cut

KALARDAR — A Kingston man and a Mississauga man are intensive care today at Belleville General Hospital following a single car accident near here Thursday.,

Kaladar OPP said the 1966 car was driven by Donald Edward Kelly, 24, of Kingston. Mr. Kelly is in serious condition with a broken leg and cuts and lacerations to the left and right arms. A passenger in the car, Paul Sweet, 17, of Mississauga, suffered two broken legs and a fractured arm.

Police said the car left the road on Highway 7, about one mile east of Kaladar, and hit several guide posts ending up against a rock cut. There was $400 damage to the car. Constable Ronald Seaver is investigating.

Alarm Box

The Belleville fire department responded to the following calls between 8 a.m. Thursday ending 8 a.m. Friday.

Thursday 1:40 p.m.— Firemen were called to a vacant lot at 69 Dunnet Blvd. to extinguish a tree stump fire. There was no damage.

Cutting Into Holiday

It's back to school soon for Jill Gardiner but this fall she will be cutting into her leisure time as a part-time engraver at Ray's Signs, 338 Pinnacle Street. This is the first summer she's worked at it full time. Her boss, Ray LaGuff, said she's kept busy lettering trophies, plaques, plates and pieces from local jewellers.

Keegan Interested On One Condition

Ald. Art Keegan, a veteran of Belleville's municipal life for over 30 years, does have mayoralty aspirations.

It was in Thursday's Intelligencer that Ald. Keegan would not seek the mayor's post left vacant by today's resignation of Robin Jeffrey.

Actually, Ald. Keegan will run for mayor if city council decides Monday to appoint a chief magistrate. He will not run if council votes in favor of an election.

That means there are four aldermen eyeing the top seat. The other three are Ben Corke, Paul Russell and Jean Smith.

Mrs. Jeffrey has resigned to concentrate on her campaign as Conservative candidate in Quinte riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Under municipal law, council must either appoint a mayor from its own ranks or call for an election.

Yardmen Band Performs Well in Two Contests

The Grenadier-Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps took the Best Horn Line award Saturday at the Canadian Senior Drum and Bugle Championships in Guelph.

Corps director Hugh Bondy said Tuesday the band was also judged second in drumming. There were three bands in the competition.

Sunday, Mr. Bundy said the band finished 3rd among five entries at the Phoenix Drum Crops competion in Rochester, New York.

Next weekend the band will be in Hamilton for the Red Carpet Association competition. Eighteen bands are expected to compete in the event.

Tapes Stolen

Two tape decks plus tapes were stolen Thursday night from two vehicles in separate incidents.

City police report that a tape deck and 12 tapes were stolen from a car, owned by Ronald Gray, of Leland Dr., in Belleville. The car was parked at the Quinte Mall. The stolen goods were valued at $175.

A tape deck and tape valued at $61 were stolen from a car owned by Lawrence Brown, of Thurlow, parked at the Four Seasons.

Trophy Business Booming

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Ray LaGuff is pretty good with figures he has over 5,000 of them to accommodate baseball players to car buffs — so he can meet the whims of customers ordering trophies and plaques.

He has over 500 bases made out of mahogany or Italian marble.

"Wood is so dear that you can buy marble cheaper," said Mr. LaGuff, of Ray's Signs, 338 Pinnacle St.

The figures, ordered from manufacturers are made of a metal alloy coated, in silver or gold color.

With all the bits and pieces Mr. LaGuff has in stock he can make about any kind of trophy from small ones about two or three inches high and only costing a few dollars to 4-footers costing hundreds of dollars.

Mr. LaGuff doesn't make any of the parts that go into his trophies: "You can buy them cheaper in Toronto already made than make them ourselves."

He also runs an engraving service that runs eight or more hours a day. They do engraving for many of the cities jewellers or do individual jobs. He also make and engraves plagues.

Carolyne Bateman, of Trophy World Awards, 82 King St., in Trenton meets the whims of her customers by custom-making trophies as well as using ready-made parts.

She also makes plaques and recently mounted a painter's paint brush on a plaque.

The brush, brought in by the painter's boss, was sanded, painted gold and mounted on a black plaque.

"It takes a long time to come up with something different," said Mrs. Bateman.

She does the custom work because it makes it easier to satisfy customers. She has only been in business in Trenton six months.

Both her father and grandfather were trophy makers: "I guess it's in my blood."

She also does engraving and said it is the most tedious part of the job.

"It's not difficult but it takes experience."

She said she has been doing engraving for about 15 years, and does most of the jewellery engraving in the city.

Shooting for 20

Jim Palmer Not Around at End

JIM PALMER

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

By the time Baltimore got around to winning the game, it was too late for Jim Palmer.

The Orioles' ace right-hander, aiming to become the major league's first 20-game winner this year, gunned down Texas in masterful fashion for 12 innings Thursday night.

But it took Baltimore two more innings before they pulled out a 4-2 victory.

In the rest of the American League, Oakland A's beat Milwaukee Brewers 5-2, Cleveland Indians defeated Kansas City Royals 7-3 and Chicago White Sox edged New York Yankees 2-1. In the lone National League game, Chicago Cubs shut out Los Angeles Dodgers 7-0.

"Those were the two best pitchers in the league out there," Baltimore's Brooks Robinson said of Palmer and Gaylord Perry. Both Palmer and Perry allowed two runs and struck out six batters in their stints—but while Palmer allowed only five hits in 12 innings, Perry was bounced around for 13 hits in his 11 innings.

Still, a tie is a tie and nobody's a winner until somebody breaks it. Robinson did that in the 14th with a double off Steve Foucault after Tim Nordbrook had walked. Then Robinson came home with an insurance run on Ellie Hendricks' single. The victory shaved Boston's AL East lead over the Orioles to 6½ games.

Jim Holt drove in two runs and scored two to lead Oakland past Milwaukee, a victory that handed the Brewers their sixth consecutive defeat and enabled the A's to widen their AL West lead over Kansas City to 6½ games.

The A's, trailing 2-0, scored in the third inning when Holt singled, moved to third on a pair of grounders and scored Bill North's single. Oakland went ahead 3-2 in the fourth on Holt's bases-loaded single, then Holt doubled and scored on a single by Tommy Harper in the sixth.

Frank Robinson noted that Jackie Brown had been 4-0 against Kansas City last year when he'd pitched for Texas. So he started Brown against the Royals and was rewarded with a victory.

Homers by Oscar Gamble and George Hendrick and Frank Duffy's two-run single made his job easy.

Jerry Hairston's tie-breaking single for the White Sox in the ninth inning gave Jim Kaat his 18th victory of the year and handed the Yankees their fifth consecutive defeat.

Deron Johnson singled with one away and moved to second on Bill Mellon's two-out infield hit before scoring on Hairston's single to centre. Kaat needed last-out help from Rich Gossage, who chalked up his 19th save.

BROOKS ROBINSON

Rick and Paul Reuschel of the Cubs combined for the first shutout by two brothers in modern baseball history by teaming for a six-hitter against Los Angeles. Rick Monday's two-run homer and Jose Cardenal's two-run double paced Chicago's attack.

Halls of Fame Have New Look

TORONTO (CP) — Many of Canada's outstanding football and hockey stars, currently enshrined in their own Halls of Fame, will be inducted into the revamped Canadian Sports Hall of Fame during special ceremonies Saturday.

A march past, featuring many of Canada's athletic greats such as hockey stars Gordie Howe, Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Francis (King) Clancy and football player Normie Kwong, will mark the special occasion.

The inductees from the football and hockey halls will join five newly-inducted members to the Sports Hall of Fame—broadcaster Jack Dennett, boxer Yvon Durelle, golfer Pat Fletcher, speedboat racer Harold A. Wilson an doarsman H. R. (Bobby) Pearce.

Lalonde and Morenz had previously been inducted to the Canadian Sports Hall of Fame.

Toronto's Nakon Hangs On in Juniors

OTTAWA (CP) — Richard Nakon of Toronto, winner of the 16-and-under singles last year in the Canadian junior tennis championships, is holding his own so far in the 18-and-under division in this year's tournament.

Nakon has posted two upsets so far in the 18-and-under singles matches this week.

In quarter-finals play Thursday, he defeated fifth seed Nick Mohtadi of Calgary 2-6, 7-6, 6-3. Earlier, he beat third seed Dave Becker of Vancouver 6-7, 7-6, 6-3 in a match that lasted three hours.

YOGI BERRA

Yogi A Yank Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, fired 16 days ago as manager of New York Mets, will return to New York Yankees as their first base coach, The Associated Press learned Thursday.

And both current Yankee baseline coaches, Elston Howard at first base and Dick Howser at third, will likely be out of on-the-field jobs when the 1976 season begins, it was also learned.

Berra, 50, managed the Yanks in 1974 and was fired after the team lost the World Series in seven games to St. Louis Cardinals. He met with Billy Martin, his former teammate and the Yankees' manager, prior to the Yanks' Thursday night game at Shea Stadium against Chicago White Sox.

A source at the scene said Martin asked Berra if he had decided whether to accept the Yankees' offer of the first base coaching job and Berra replied:: "Sure. I'll be there next spring."

It has been reported Martin will not announce Berra's hiring immediately because of the effect it might have on the rest of the coaching staff and because he feels he has to finish the season with the coaches he has.

Howard, who played for the Yanks for 13 years and succeeded Berra as their No. 1 catcher, is in his seventh season as first base coach. It has been reported he will be offered a front office position with the team but will not be offered another coaching position.

Howser has also been a coach with the Yankees for seven years. He believes his status with the Yanks is now up in the air and that he will be told within a few weeks whether he will be with them next year.

Chargers Score First Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Quarterbacks Dan Fouts and Neal Jeffrey combined for 253 passing yards and two touchdowns as San Diego Chargers won their first National Football League pre-season game Thursday night, beating San Francisco '49ers 20-7.

Fouts threw his first scoring pass of the year to tight end Pat Curran. Jeffrey, a rookie from Baylor, threw a 23-yard scoring toss to wide receiver Gary Garrison.

Also, Ray Wersching kicked field goals of 21 and 37 yards, and rookie wide receiver Dwight McDonald caught three passes for 113 yards for the Chargers.

It was the second consecutive loss for San Francisco, which dropped a 10-6 contest to Los Angeles Rams last weekend in Los Angeles Coliseum.

It was the only exhibition game scheduled Thursday.

Women's Senior Title For Calgary Golfer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pat Heisler of Calgary carded an 81 Thursday on the par-74 Beach Grove Golf Club course in nearby Delta to win the Canadian senior women's golf championship by two strokes over Colleen McCulloch of Vancouver.

Heisler's 36-hole total was 161, while first-round leader McCulloch blew to an 84 in the final round on the 6,121-yard course and came in with a 163 total, one stroke ahead of Gwen Hibbs of Long Beach, Calif.

Kay Helleur of Toronto, Pam Moir of Delta and Ann Tachan of Winnipeg tied at 167.

British Columbia took the team title with a 498 total, four strokes ahead of Ontario. Alberta was third at 515, Manitoba totalled 517, Quebec 520, Prince Edward Island 556, Nova Scotia 565, New Brunswick 566, Saskatchewan 568 and Newfoundland 606.

The three second-day scores which counted for B.C. in team play were McCulloch's 84, an 83 by Margaret Todd of Victoria and 84 by Victoria's Joan Lawson.

Ontario's second-round scores counting for team play were 83s by Pat Austin of Peterborough and Iris Quartermaine of Toronto and 84 by Betty Ingram of Belleville.

LUIS TIANT

Tearful Reunion

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox pitcher Luis Tiant wept Thursday night as he greeted his Cuban father whom he had not seen for 15 years.

Tiant's elderly parents, who were allowed to leave Cuba by Premier Fidel Castro, were met at Logan International Airport by their son and a crowd of reporters and photographers.

Tint sobbed as he embraced his 69-year-old father, Luis.

He then embraced his mother, Isabel, also 69, who he last saw in 1968.

The elder Tiants have never seen their son pitch, but Tiant said they would be at Fenway Park when he is on the mound against Oakland A's Monday or Tuesday.

"I think I try a little harder," the American League right-hander said. "I want to make him happy."

Tiant and his father chatted in Spanish as they walked arm-in-arm through a crowd of spectators in the airport terminal. The elder Tiant, who works at a service station, and his wife, flew to Boston after leaving Cuba via Mexico.

Brampton Two Up

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Brampton Excelsiors, completely outclassing Owen Sound North Stars, grabbed a 2-0 lead Thursday in their Ontario Lacrosse Association Major finals, posting a 14-8 victory.

The third game is in Brampton Sunday and the next in Owen Sound Tuesday.

The Excelsiors led 5-3 after the first period and 11-7 after the second.

Bob Burke paced the winners with four goals. Tom Phair and Brian Robinson scored twice. Single markers went to Mike O'Brien, Bob Haw, Barry Richardson, Chuck Williams, Art Webster and Frank Helmer.

Norm Hope, Mike Lachapelle and Doug Zonneville scored two goals. Rick Herrington and Pat Fallon scored once.

It's Waiting Game For NHL Veteran

TORONTO (CP) — Centre Norm Ullman, discarded by Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League team's youth kick, now is playing a waiting game.

One thing the 39-year-old veteran does know: He's not ready to call it quits.

"But it depends on where and what kind of deal I can work out," says Ullman. "If not, then I might retire."

Kansas City Scouts had approached him, but Ullman decided he wanted to give the matter further consideration. His World Hockey Association rights are owned by Edmonton Oilers—where the native of Provost, Alta., would prefer to play—but they've shown no desire to contact him.

The WHA's New England Whalers have shown interest in the 21-year NHL veteran—the last eight with Toronto—but, Ullman's lawyer Alan Eagleson says the Oilers seem reluctant to release him "for some strange reason."

During the NHL annual meetings in June, there was talk of Ullman rejoining Detroit Red Wings as an assistant to coach Doug Barkley. Ullman said he talked to general manager Alex Delvecchio at a recent wedding in Detroit and was awaiting further word from his former team-mate.

McQuay A Patriot

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — New England Patriots of the National Football League traded a future draft choice to New York Giants Thursday for running back Leon McQuay.

McQuay, also a return kickoff specialist, played for Toronto Argonauts and Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League. He joined the Giants last season.

The Patriots also traded wide receiver Lawrence Williams to New Orleans Saints for a future draft pick and waived veteran linebacker Gail Clark.

2-way Tie

TORONTO (CP) — Herb Carnegie of Summit Golf Club shot a par 72 at Thornhill Golf and Country Club while Jack Littler of Mississaugua stroked a one-over-par 72 at Scarborough Golf Club to tie for the first-round lead Wednesday of the 36-hole Ontario seniors golf championship.

The two-day event is being played at the two clubs, with the field switching courses for today's play.

Nastase And Borg Facing Hearing

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The Association of Tennis Professionals (ATP) said Thursday it wants a hearing in New York next week for Ilie Nastase and Bjorn Borg on a complaint of unsportsmanlike conduct during the Canadian Open tennis championships.

Tournament officials, in a protest to the Men's International Professional Tennis Council (MIPTC) last Sunday, requested that Nastase and Borg be suspended and Jan Kodes and Guillermo Vilas be disciplined prior to the start of the United States Open championships in New York next Wednesday.

Vilas is seeded No. 2 for the U.S. Open, Borg No. 5 Nastase No. 8 and Kodes No. 15. However, Stan Malless, president of the U.S. Tennis Association and a member of the MIPTC before which the players would appear, said from Indianapolis that if any action is taken against the players it is doubtful that it would affect the U.S. Open.

"After the draw is made, we wouldn't want to penalize the tournament," he said.

The draw for the U.S. Open was made Thursday at the United Nations in New York.

The MIPTC, formed a year ago, includes three ATP members and three International Lawn Tennis Federation members plus the ILTF president, Derek Hardwicke of England.

Organizers of the Canadian Open said Nastase gave up in his final against Manuel Orantes, that Borg purposely double-faulted three times to run out his third-round loss, that Kodes walked off the court rather than finish his second-round match and Vilas, the defending champion, withdrew before the tournament began.

Orantes, of Spain, won the tournament in Toronto 7-6, 6-0, 6-1 after a call against Nastase was not to his liking during the first-set tiebreaker.

"I didn't try after losing the point in the tiebreaker," Nastase told reporters. "It was a very important point. I worked for an hour to win the set and then lost on a bad call. It was like somebody robbed me. I couldn't play after that."

Vilas withdrew before the start of the tournament he won last year, claiming fatigue.

Devolin Leads Auger's 2-1

Bardon Supplies to QFL Final

Howard and Robert Printing can forget any aspirations of repeating as Quinte Fastball League champs, as they were eliminated by Bardon Supplies on Thursday night.

Bardons took the series 3-0 with last nights 5-4 victory over the Printers.

In the other playoff match Devolin Motors defeated Auger Mens' Wear 4-1 to take a 2-1 lead in their series.

The Motormen have improved steadily since the first game of their semi-final series and it is Augers' who now have their backs against the wall.

Howard and Robert got off to a quick start against Bardons but it wasn't enough.

Larry Potter opened the game with a triple, with two walks by Bardon starter Earl Foster leading the bases. Dave Skelton then delivered a two RBI single to start the Printers on their way.

Bardon, the league pennant winners, had different ideas, and rebounded for three runs in their half of the third, largely on the miscues of the opposition. Two of the three errors Howard and Robert committed in the game, and singles by Doug Noble and Bill Dewey added up to a 3-2 lead.

The winners added singles in the third and fourth, offseting H and R runs, in the third and sixth to take the win.

Foster got credit for the victory, although he needed a save from Ken Demille. Foster gave up four of the six hits, while striking out two and walking three. Demille gave up two hits and no runs in the final two frames, whiffing a pair.

Ron Hill went the distance on the Howard and Robert rubber, allowin geight hits and striking out four.

Dewey led the winners at the plate with a home run and single, with Ron Weese adding a pair of singles and Marv Stacey a double

For Howard and Robert, it was Potter adding a single to his lead off triple, and Terry Pope, with a double and a single.

A solid four hitter by Don Holway gave Devolin their second win over Auger's with the Motormen getting the win on only four hits of their own.

They scored three runs in the second, on only one hit. Two walks and a fielder's choice, combined with an error loaded the bases for Eric Maher who lashed a single to score all three.

A walk and a double by Randy Lambert scored the other evolin run, in the fourth inning.

Auger's came up with their only marker in the bottom of the fifth, after a single by Daryl Kramp and a double off the bat of Bob McAlpine.

Holoway fanned seven and walked none in picking up the win, while Kramp was tagged with the loss. He went four innings, allowed all four runs, and four hits. He struck out three and walked four. Jamie Hunter came on to hurl three hitless innings in relief. He struck out two.

It's Last Home Stand

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

This weekend will close the homo season for the Belleville McDonalds in Ontario Fastball League play. Two doubleheaders at the Alemite will finish what has been a disappointing season for the Macs and their fans.

Actually, the only disappointment has been in the won-lost column, where Belleville is 8-40 at the present time.

That's a far cry from what was predicted at the beginning of the year, but it must be held in mind that the Macs are completing their rookie year.

Some sort of rebuilding plan will have to take shape for Belleville, mostly because they went through the year with too few players.

That's neither here nor there for this weekend though, as the Macs still have the nucleus of a good ball team.

On Saturday night Belleville plays St. Catharines, the team they went 27 innings against earlier in the year. The doubleheader will be an important one to St. Kitts, looking to insure themselves a spot in the OFL playoffs.

The most important player on the St. Catharines team is pitcher Dick Balint. As Mac's Frank Robinson said about them last year:

"He'd pitch four or five games in a row and still be able to work if needed."

The hitting on the Mr. Jackets is not overpowering, they have three or four people who can get on and then they go steadily downhill.

They are a very opportunistic team, capitalizing on the wrong moves of other teams.

On Sunday night Belleville meets a team known across the league as the Hamilton Scrapper "superstars". The reason for that is the fact that the club owner, Chester Waxman, has practically bought his ball club. Among his acquisitions is pitcher Bill McNellis, who has a blazing fastball and was a league all star.

At the beginning of the year Hamilton was a disappointment, but they have come on strong of late and are on their way to the playoffs.

Other "prizes" for Mr. Waxman are, second baseman and pitcher Ed Neudorff, definitely one of the best in the game. Belleville fans should remember him as the fellow who sank the Macs last time he was here.

Ted DeRuiter is a power hitting shortstop, he joined the team a little bit after the season started. Dick Bosner and the Christie brothers, Larry and Bob, are formidable opponents at any time also. Finally, hurler Wally Dick is considered one of the best on the mound.

The Macs can beat both of these teams, with a team effort from themselves and some hitting. At this point their defence is third in the league, so no one can blame the fielding. The pitching ERA's are all around 3.00 or less and lately the Macs have been giving up very little. That leaves one facet of the game to be improved, hitting.

Recently, Glenn Carleton has been hot at bat. He's always been an excellent player and has had one of the few consistent bats all year.

Wayne McTaggart is still very capable at the plate, while Steve Ling has had his share of hits. The likes of Gary Goyer, Larry Mavety, Paul Goodfellow, Carl Boomhower, Terry Meagher, Pete Harrison and Frank Robinson should not be stymied at the plate with the kind of talent they have going for them.

If nothing else, the McDonald's have provided this city with a year of exciting fastball on a calibre that cannot be questioned.

The thing to do now is not lose hope, but start building for next year, and maybe even the playoffs, for 1976.

Rained Out

The scheduled Ontario Fastball doubleheader between the Belleville McDonalds and Newmarket Rays to be played on Thursday night was postponed. Rain in Newmarket made the playing field impossible to play on. Another hook up will be scheduled by the league. This weekend in Belleville the Macs take on St. Catharines on Saturday in a twin bill and Sunday they meed Hamilton in two more OFL games at home.

Fred Stickle, Intelligencer third baseman, puts the tag on Ron Stratton of Brooke Bond in their playoff match last night. The Belleville Industrial Softball League series went to the Bondmen 3-2 after an extremely close 6-5 final.

Brooke Bond Advances to Final

Intell's Rally Falls Short

The Intelligencer had been riding through the Belleville Industrial League playoffs on their nerve, up until last night. The squad, fourth place finishers in the league's west division, and underdogs throughout, have battled back to take games and series from behind almost automatically.

Brooke Bond, the third place finishers in the east, put the Intell's uprising to an end last night, but not before the Intell had nearly pulled yet another one out of the fire.

In the fifth and deciding game of their best of five semi-final, Brooke Bond defeated the Printers 6-5, to take the series and advance to the league finals, against West pennant winners Black Diamond.

Dave Middleton was the big gun at the plate for the winners. After not having an overly productive first four games of the series, the big second sacker ripped Intell pitching for a pair of home runs, accounting for three runs-batted-in.

Middleton's second inning blast gave Brooke Bond a 1-0 lead, that lasted only until the next frame, when the winners struck for four more.

Ron Stratton drew a free pass to open the inning, with Al Colden smashing a shot into right-center for a home run. Don Goodfellow then walked, with Middleton stepping in for his second circuit clout.

The Bondmen added another, and the winning run in the fourth to pile up a 6-0 lead before the Intell got untracked. They had left six men on bases before the top of the sixth, including four in scoring position.

When the top of the sixth rolled around, it appeared that the Printers were on their way to the come from behind win.

Ron Culloden opened the frame with a single, with Fred Stickle reaching on an error in the infield. Eric Williams drew a walk to load the bases, and Glynn Reynolds delivered two runs with a bloop single to center.

With one out, Kevin Joudwa unloaded on a Ross Geen pitch, sending the ball into very deep center field, scoring three runs with a four bagger, cutting the margin to one.

That was the end of the comeback. Geen retired the next two batters in the inning, and pitched his way out of another jam in the seventh to record the win. In the seventh, Stickle reached second with two out, but a strkeout by Geen left the potential tying run stranded

Geen allowed seven hits in taking the win, striking out three and giving up four free passes. The Intelligencer used three pitcher, with starter Joey Edwards relieved by Jim McKay and Ron Culloden. Edwards and McKay allowed only six hits, walking four and managing one strikeout. Culloden silenced the winners' bats.

Along with the three home runs, Brooke Bond got singles, from Ron Stratton, Jack Walsh, and Larry Thibedeau The Intell got a pair of safties from Reynolds, and one each from Tony Goncalves, Edwards, Culloden, and Maurice Switzer.

Broadloom Close But That's All

Belleville Broadloom made things a lot closer with the Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund on Thursday night but still came out losers.

This time the score was 3-1, as the Yardmen take a 2-0 lead in the Belleville and District Ladies Leaque series. In the other playoff game Ellis Construction defaulted the game to the Purinaettes to give them a 2-0 lead in that series.

Winning hurler for BYBF was Shirley Gulliver, who gave up four hits and walked five. She came through with five strikeouts.

The loss was absorbed by Sue Fobert. The Broadloom hurler was touched for nine hits and two walks. She had no strikeouts to her credit.

Leading the way at bat for the BYBF was Sheila Smith, with a homer and two singles. Carol McFarlane tripled, and singled in the win while Donna Lusas also singled.

For Broadloom all four safeties were singles, coming from Rose Hovinga, Sue Fobert, Norma May and Helen Sills.

OASA Series Opener Won by Bardon Team

Bardon Supplies are being kept busy these days, competing in the Quinte Fastball League playoffs, and no less than the Eastern Ontario Softball Championship series as well.

Bardons took the first game of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association series 4-2 on Wednesday night.

Cobourg seemed to be loose on defence, as they made six errors in the contest.

Winning hurler was Ken DeMille, who had 10 strikeouts, allowing nine hits and no walks.

The loss was absorbed by Roger Alexander. He gave up seven hits while striking out six batters and walking seven.

All Bardon hits were singles, with two each coming from Harold Foster and Rob Wallwork.

Carl Stacey slammed a home run for Cobourg and also singled. Barry Dawe had a double and a single.

Next game is Saturday night in Grafton, starting at 8 p.m.

AVCO Senior Champs In Minor Girls Play

The Senior Championship of the Belleville Minor Softball Association Girls division went to AVCO when they defeated Stirling Sheet Metal 14-11.

Sherri Fobert was the winning pitcher with eight strikeouts. She had a double and two singles to add to the winning hits.

In Intermediate play Quinte Drive Inn was defeated by UCERA 29-8, with Barb Reid hitting two home runs.

Clayton TV defeated Cosy Grill 20-5, with the help of Helen Everand's grand slam home run.

Tebby's Texaco took an 18-13 win from Belleville Conductors. Elaine Atkins homered twice. Patty Landgraft also homered, in an 18-7 win for BYBF over Dairy Queen.

BYBF was winner again, this time over Tebby's by a close 18-16 score.

Clayton TV took a 10-2 win from UCERA. The Conductors defeated Dairy Queen 23-7 on Karen Giddings and Carolyn Holmes home runs.

Tebby's Texaco was winner in a tight battle with Cosy Grill, 16-14, eliminating Cosy Grill from the playoffs.

Conductors defeated Union Carbide 11-7 to eliminate them from further playoff action.

In Junior action Dixie Lee was victorious 22-12 over Branch 99 with Kelly Fredette slamming three homers.

Dairy Queen just got by Dixie Lee in their playoff round. Lori Moon homered to make the score 8-7 and eliminate Dixie Lee.

Little Misses defeated Dairy Queen 16-4 in their hook up.

Kenzo Dozono and Calvin Post display one of the trophies won at the Canadian National Exhibition Open Karate Championships. Over 20 of Dozono's students attended the competitions. Dozono was winner of the Black Belt Championships, while Post won the Novice title. Competition took place on August 17 with karate enthusiasts from all over Canada.

Kenzo Dozono Takes Title

Kenzo Dozono may not be very big in stature, but he's head and shoulders over many in talent.

On Sunday, he was winner of the Open Canadian Karate Championships at the Canadian National Exhibition. Being a teacher, Dozono was even more proud of the fact that one of his students, Calvin Post, was winner in the Novice class (Orange Belt) at the CNE.

Dozono competed with close to 100 black belts for the honor of being Canadian champion. The winner wa definitely pre- a point system.

Dozono was definitely prepared to go into competition. He's been a black belt for no less than 16 years.

Running a Karate school in Belleville he was particulary happy with the performance of his students who attended the competition.

"I was very happy to see my boys, especially Calvin, do so well in such an important event," he said.

Asked whether he would compete again this year he replied:

"Only in international competition or something of that nature. Right now I want to spend most of my time teaching".

With the championship went trophies for both Dozono and Post. Both intend to compete again next year.

House Dart League Moves to Fourth Spot

Branch "99" House Dart [illegible] up fourth place in Peewee division of the Belleville Minor Softball Association with two wins recently.

First they defeated Dixie Lee 20-5 and then Stephen Licence 19-17.

Len Wigger picked up both wins. In the first match he had two strikeouts and in the second he recorded three.

Daryl Brennan smacked three home runs in the first game, Wigger hit two in the second to give Branch 99 the fourth place spot.

In Squirt division play Ernie Tuck advanced by defeating Belleville Plaza 36-11.

Rick Bashall and Jody Millar shared the win. Scott Hannah homered.

Compelte Rentals defeated Sidney Inn 11-7 with Tim Cassidy and Steve Gough winning. Allen McKenzie tripled and singled to aid the winners.

AOCO advanced into the Tyke finals by walloping Richard Ellis Printing 44-17.

Todd Cook had no problem recording the win. Kevin Newell slammed a homer and two doubles in the easy victory.

Bantam action saw the Red Shark move up to shoot for the city championship, defeating Shell Car Wash 16-6.

Tame Rough Riders 23-6

Stamps Strong in All Departments

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders made it look easy Thursday night as they struck for 17 points in the first quarter and toyed with Ottawa Rough Riders for the remainder of the game en route to a 23-6 win in their Canadian Football League interlocking game.

Quarterback Joe Pisarcik, recovered from a string of early-season injuries, sparked the early burst with pinpoint passing, including a strike to flanker Tom Forzani that went for the opening 32-yard touchdown.

TOM FORZANI

Just more than a minute later, Vern Robertson picked off a pass by rookie Condredge Holloway and ran 22 yards for Calgary's second touchdown. From that point on, a rugged Calgary defence gave Holloway and Tom Clements, who played briefly in the second quarter, little opportunity.

Cyril McFall completed Calgary's first-quarter burst with a 49-yard field goal on the final play and later added two more. Gerry Organ kicked two field goals for all Ottawa's points.

The result moved Calgary into a tie with Edmonton Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers for second place in the Western Conference. Ottawa has two wins and three defeats in the Eastern Conference.

The Rough Riders, who lost fullback John Bledsoe in the first half due to an ankle injury, meet Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday in Regina in the second half of their Western swing.

Clements looked impressive during his brief performance—in which he hit Jim Foley for a 56-yard pass-and-run play, longest in the game—but Holloway went all the way in the last half.

After the Stampeder superiority was established, Pisarcik concentrated on ball control.

He got excellent support from running back Willie Burden who gained 103 yards in 20 carries. It was his fourth successive game this season in which he has surpassed the 100-yard mark.

Including Burden's production, Calgary gained only 118 yards rushing, compared with 120 for Ottawa, which was led by Art Green's total of 65 yards in 13 carries. Calgary had 16 first downs to three for Ottawa.

Pisarcik hit on 15 of 26 attempts for 175 yards while Clements and Holloway teamed for 11 completions in 23 attempts for 163 yards. So impressive was Calgary's offensive line that no Stampeder play resulted in a loss.

A large prt of Ottawa's problem was its failure to establish field position, primarily due to no-yards and rough-play penalties on punts. One apparent single point was called back when Rudy Linterman lured a rival lineman inside the restraining area on Dick Adams' punt into the end zone.

Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cyril McFall of Calgary Stampeders kicked three field goals and two converts Thursday night in his club's 23-6 Canadian Football League interlocking victory over Ottawa Roughriders to move into a second place tie in the West's individual scoring race.

The 11-point output gave McFall a total of 30 so far this season on 10 converts, six field goals and two singles. He is tied with Tom Campana of Saskatchewan Roughriders, both with 15 points behind scoring leader Dave Cutler of Edmonton Eskimos.

Strong Finish Good for Lead

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Al Geiberger played golf like a duffer Thursday.

He missed greens, visited wilderness, muffed short putts, and explored the boon docks.

And the end result was a four-under-par 66.

He tamed Colonial's terrors with birdies on four of his five closing holes and seized the first-round lead in the $250,000 Tournament Players golf championship.

Geiberger speared an 18-foot putt at the last hole to sweep past Jack Nicklaus, Hale Irwin and Bob Dickson in the race for the $50,000 grand prize.

That trio was in at 67.

Nicklaus, the defending champion, finished four hours before Geiberger and held the lead alone most of the afternoon.

Nicklaus knifed through the par 35-35—70 Colonial course like a killer shark, slashing four shots from par through 16 flawless holes.

He squandered a bit of glory in a jungle at the 17th hole, taking a double bogey six, then struck back with a near eagle at the 434-yard 18th green for a sparkling 67.

Irwin, playing with Geiberger and Arnold Palmer, also committed but one major miscue, and it cost him a share of the lead. He was four under par at the time.

"I tried to play smart golf by hitting a three wood off the tee at No. 6 but I smarted it right into the left rough," he confessed. It cost him a bogey.

A stroke back at 68 were Buddy Allin, Jim Weichers and Mike Wynn.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 76.

The game's superstars meanwhile drifted back in the pack as the 100-plus temperatures, heavy rough and Colonial's deceptive charms commanded a harsh toll.

Palmer and Gary Player remained in contention with one over-par 71s, Billy Casper and British Open champ Tom Watson were at 73, and the 75 list included Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf.

Johnny Miller withdrew with a sore wrist.

Kitchener Women Advance

CALGARY (CP) — A championship Ontario entry from Kitchener Thursday became the only team among 13 competing in the Canadian senior women's fastball championship assured of a berth in the double-knockout finals Saturday.

The Kitchen Kieswetters scored 10-2 and 7-0 victories over Manitoba and New Brunswick respectively to lead the six-team red section with a perfect 4-0 record.

The Ontario team meets the Lowly, N.S., squad in its final game today.

Edmonton Blues, representing Alberta, have a 3-1 record and can wrap up second place and avert a special playoff if they can get by New Brunswick today.

Alberta was hard-pressed in picking up two wins Thursday, coming from behind to beat Northwest Territories 6-2 in the morning, and then scoring a winning run in the top of the seventh inning in an afternoon 5-4 win over Nova Scotia.

After losing 7-0 to Ontario, New Brunswick beat N.W.T. 8-4 Thursday night to even their record at 2-2, while Nova Scotia has a 1-2 record and Manitoba a 1-3.

After their close loss to Alberta, Nova Scotia suffered a second defeat in the final game of the night by a 5-1 count to Manitoba. The victory for Manitoba was their first of the tournament.

Quebec, in the seven-team blue section, also came through with a 4-0 record as a result of a 4-1 victory over the Yukon and a 5-0 shutout over Prince Edward Island.

Blue section's British Columbia scored its third straight shutout win in its only scheduled game Thursday, an 8-0 triumph over Newfoundland.

The undefeated Quebec and B.C. squads are due to battle it out today.

In other games Thursday, Saskatchewan, with a 2-1 record, dropped Newfoundland 7-1. Calgary, host team in the tournament, picked up two victories, a 7-2 verdict over Prince Edward Island and a 12-5 decision over the Yukon in a game which both clubs took turns in trying to give away.

Tied with one win and in four starts are Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island, while the Yukon is winless in four games.

Following today's final 12 games in round-robin play, the two top teams in each section will play in a criss-cross, double-knockout series for the Canadian championship, a title held by Vancouver for the last three years.

Three Golds for the Swedes

MONTREAL (CP) — Swedish wrestlers won three gold medals and Soviet entrants two in the finals of Greco-Roman competition Thursday at the nine-country International Wrestling Competitions 1975.

Canadian competitors collected two silver medals and four bronze in the 10 events.

Leif Anderson of Sweden won the gold in the 180-pound event ahead of Sean Scott of the United States and Japan's Sado Sato. Jan Karlsson in the 74-kilogram class and Per Lindholm in the 57-kilogram category were the other Swedish winners.

Mike Barry of Saint John, N.B., picked up a bronze in the latter category behind Lindholm and Cuba's Lionel Perez.

Eugeni Artuchin of the Soviet Union won the class for entrants 100-kilograms and over, while Harry Geris of London, Ont., finished second. John Major of the U.S. took the bronze.

Rustan Kazakov won the other Soviet gold in the 68-kilogram event. Mannfred Schondorfer of West Germany was second and Cuba's Eracimo Estradan third.

Frank Troughton of Dryden, Ont., won the silver in the 100-kilogram event behind gold medallist Greg Wojochowski of the U.S.

Fred Theobald of West Germany won the 90-kilogram class over Javier Serrano of Mexico and George Richey of Victoria.

Gordon Bertie of Montreal won a silver in the 52-kilogram event behind Belgium's Julien Mewis, and Gary Gardiner of Kithener, Ont., accounted for the other Canadian medal with a bronze in the 62-kilogram class. Elario Escobar of Cuba won the event.

Japan's Kozo Onishi won the 48-kilogram class ahead of silver medalist Alfredo Olivera of Mexico, who also took a bronze in the 52-kilogram event.

The meet continues today and Saturday with freestyle competition. In the Greco-Roman events, competitors are not allowed to grip an opponent below the waist or to actively employ their legs.

MANAGER QUITS

PRESTON, England (Reuter) — Bobby Charlton, former England and Manchester United soccer star, resigned Thursday as manager of Preston North End. He quit after the directors of the Third Division club proceeded without him on negotiations for the transfer to Newcastle United of centre back John Bird for $80,000 and two players.

HARVEY SUSPENDED

MEMPHIS (AP) — John Harvey, suspended by the World Football League because of drug charges, will not play against Philadelphia Bell Saturday, Memphis Southmen owner John Bassett of Toronto said Wednesday. Harvey, a former star with Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League, received a suspended sentence Tuesday on charges of possession of cocaine and heroin for the purpose of resale.

Wings Upset

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Quebec Caribous moved into fifth place in the National Lacrosse League with an 11-10 upset win over Philadelphia Wings Thursday night.

Travis Cook scored three goals to pace the Caribous while Dave Durante was held scoreless but set up five goals. Brian Wilson had a goal and three assists and Jimmy Higgs scored a goal and set up two.

Jim Wasson, Jim Rickbeil and Larry Lloyd scored two goals each for the Wings, who held a 56-48 edge in shots on goal before 4,075 fans.

Lloyd was to undergo surgery today to have bone chips in his knee removed and will be lost for the season. He has played with the ailment for some time but aggravated the condition Thursday night.

The Caribous visit Montreal Quebecois and Maryland Arrows play Long Island Tomahawks at Uniondale, N.Y., tonight.

300 Athletes in Track Competition

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — More than 300 athletes from across the country will compete this weekend in the Canadian track and field championships which get under way today at Laurentian University.

Of the athletes competing, 50 are members of Canada's national track and field team and there are 150 athletes who have qualified for the championship through a series of regional events.

There are also 100 independent entries expected from athletes whose performances meet the required qualifications.

The athletes will be competing for spots on the team that will represent Canada at the Pan-American games in Mexico City this October. A first place finish in this weekend's championships will mean automatic selection to the Pan-Am team.

One of the highlights of today's opening activities will be the men's and women's 100-metre race.

Robert Martin of Paris, Ont., who finished second in the recent International Competition 1975 meet in Montreal is favored in today's event while Patty Loverock of Vancouver, who won a gold medal for Canada in the Montreal meet last month, is rated as the top woman.

Bruce Kidd of Toronto, a former top-ranked Canadian long-distance runner, has been listed as an entrant in today's 10,000 metre race.

Other final events scheduled for today are the women's 3,000 metre, the women's shotput and javelin and the men's hammer throw, high jump and shot put.

There will also be a start to the decathalon event as well as semi-finals in the men's and women's 800-metre race.

Jane Haist of Welland, Ont., who won two gold medals in the British Commonweath games in 1974 in the shot put and discus, is expected to dominate. She may get some strong competition from Lucette Moreau of Montreal.

Bishop Dolegiewicz, originally from Toronto and now living in Montreal, is the favorite in today's shotput event. Dolegiewicz won a gold medal for Canada in International Competition 1975.

Bruce Pirnie of Winnipeg is expected to give him the most competition for the gold medal.

Several United States and British athletes will also be competing this weekend. One is Terry Porter of Houston, Tex., considered a top world performer in the pole vault. His best distance is 17 feet, 10 inches.

Bill Collins of Houston, who once ran the 100 metres in 9.2 seconds, is also listed as an entrant.

Canadian track and field officials will also be selecting top female athletes to participate in a dual meet with the East German national team.

The dual meet is scheduled for Laurentian Aug. 29.

Oshawa Tony's Shaded 6-5

A 10th-inning single by Duane Rutley gave St. Catharines Mr. Jackets a 6-5 win Thursday over Oshawa Tonys in an Ontario Fastball League game.

In other action, Burlington Ancaster Provisioners downed Toronto Waxman Globals 4-3 in the first game of a doubleheader but Toronto came back to win the second game 3-0. A doubleheader with Belleville at Newmarket was cancelled because of rain.

In St. Catharines, Rutley tied the game with a two-run triple in the eighth inning and drove in Al Beckman with his single in the 10th.

Winning pitcher Ken Rhora gave up nine hits and struck out 10 batters. Wayne Colley took the loss, allowing 12 hits.

Beckman hit a home run for St. Catharines while Jack Sneddon homered for Oshawa.

In Burlington, the first game dragged into the 18th inning before Hal Kemp doubled, then scored the winning run on Dan Renallick's single.

Al Few threw five innings for Burlington before he was relieved by winning pitcher Bill Drennan. John Young, who relieved Reg Martin in the eighth inning, took the loss.

Burlington led 2-0 on first-inning runs by Kemp and Vern Agnew and moved to 3-0 in the fifth when Tim Butler scored on a wild pitch.

Toronto came back in the sixth inning with three runs on four hits to tie the game at 3-3 until Kemp's 18th inning score.

In the second game, Toronto scored runs in the first, second and sixth innings and held Burlington to three hits en route to the victory.

Martin picked up the win for Toronto while Kemp took the loss.

Play resumes Saturday with Woodstock at Hamilton for a doubleheader, St. Catharines at Belleville and Newmarket at Toronot.

DANNY JOHNSON RETIRES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Danny Johnson, a 30-year-old centre released early this year by Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, has announced his retirement from professional hockey. Johnson, an original member of the Jets who played previously with Vancouver Canucks and Detroit Red Wings, last season scored 18 goals and added 14 assists in 78 games while serving as team captain.

GETS NEWS COACH

ANTIGONISH, N.S. (CP) — St. Francis Xavier University Thursday named Steve Konchalski of Montreal as its new head basketball coach. The former Acadia University basketball star has been assistant coach and co-ordinator of athletics at Loyola University in Montreal since 1971. For the last three years he has been assistant coach of the Canadian national basketball team, a position he will continue to hold.

SAILS PAY $1 MILLION

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Sophomore Mark Olberding of the University of Minnesota turned professional at the age of 19 Thursday, signing for a reported $1 million with San Diego Sails of the American Basketball Association. Owner Frank Goldberg described Olberding, six-feet-nine and 230 pounds, as "a guy who will be a star in our league for many years to come."

TWO PLAYERS SELECTED

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, Aug. 23

Aries (March 21-April 19) Don't make any important decisions today. Your judgment and thinking are not clear. Be alert for carelessness.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You're still in a cycle when friends can't fulfill your needs. In fact, they can prove to be expensive today.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Avoid arguments at home today. Harsh words could inflict wounds that won't heal easily, and could leave lasting scars.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This could be one of your moody days. If you're not careful depression will control everything you think and do.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You're still spending much more than you can afford. If you watched your pocketbook, you'd have no cause to lose your temper.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Because you feel pulled in too many directions, your patience could fail. You might find yourself in a bitter argument.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're crabby today because work that you've ignored catches up with you. You'd rather be playing tennis or golf.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Today you just might say what you're thinking to another. Bite your tongue. You could lose a very good friend permanently.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) While trying to impress others with your sense of timing, you'll wind up doing just the opposite and play the bull in the china shop.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Put on your thinking cap if you're trying to remember people's names in introductions. You could offend someone important by mis-mouthing her name.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't try to match wits with the men who manage money today. You'll come up on the short end if you try to outsmart them.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be torn between the desire to do something that has to be done for a friend and the knowledge that you are probably being used in the process.

Humidifiers Can Cause Lung Woes

By C. Thosteson MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: How dangerous are stagnant water spores? I've been told they are dangerous, and that they can occur if a humidifier is not cleaned periodically. Now I'm afraid to get one.

Is it dangerous to keep a pan of water by the register? Does it become stagnant and produce spores? I refill the pan as needed and wash it once a week — Nervous.

A spore is the reproductive element of very primitive organisms such as fungi.

A recent report on this subject emphasizes that a lung disorder, an inflammation of the alveoli (tiny air sacs of the lung surface) can result from spores found in cooling as well as heating systems. The disorder is featured by fever, a hacking cough and fatigue. The culprit spores and dust particles that carry them can be trapped in such units and be ejected into the room along with the air forced out of them. The same applies to humidifiers.

It is advisable to have such units checked and cleaned professionally, at least seasonally. Filters should be changed regularly, the oftener the better.

It is also wise, incidentally, to clean devices such as vaporizers after each use, and for the same reasons. A couple of teaspoons of vinegar to a cup of water can make an adequate cleaning solution.

It is also important to clean the pan, since spores can collect if it is left untended. You needn't be nervous about your humidifier as long as you take reasonable precautions.

If your family encounters bouts of hacking coughs or the other symptoms I've mentioned, the spore problem might be considered and appropriate preventive action taken.

There's enough to worry about without spraying spores and other germs about your house.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've heard that we should not drink water or other liquids during meals, because the food taken in would just swim around in the stomach.

Do liquids help or hinder digestion? I would like your medical opinion. — Mrs. N.L.

Fluids with meals may help make food more palatable, but they will neither help nor hinder digestion.

It is important that you get sufficient liquid over each 24-hour period, but it makes no difference in the digestive process when you get it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 69 and am bothered with high blood pressure. Is there a test that will tell what causes it? — A.L.B.

We wish there were such a test.

There are several possible causes and combinations of causes of hypertension — arterial, valvular, glandular, those related to organ disorders (the kidneys, etc.), and even to the emotions. Overweight is one of the more obvious causes.

When hypertension is diagnosed, the physician must then turn detective to sift through the possible causes in order to turn up specific clues as to the underlying problem.

This involves a wide variety of tests. The best way to avoid high blood pressure? Reduce, if you are overweight, and quit or cut down on smoking.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The oldest expert was holding forth. He remarked, "I always shudder when a really bad player is defending against me. His plays are so random that I can't draw real inferences. Give me the predictable man with a little knowledge and he will belong to me."

Today's hand illustrates this. East was a good, steady, unimaginative player.

South won the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds and led a trump to his 10. West took the ace and played a second diamond.

South ruffed and led a trump to dummy. East discarded a small heart. At this point South knew that predictable East must have started with five hearts. This left just one for West. South was sure to make his contract provided West's singleton heart wasn't the king.

South led a heart, finessed his queen successfully and promptly played out three rounds of clubs.

It didn't matter who won the trick. If West won he would have to give a ruff and discard. If East won he would have to lead from his king of hearts up to dummy's jack or give that same ruff and discard.

Of course, South might have worked this play out anyway. Knowing East's type made it easy.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Georgia asks what you should lead with: ♠ 8 2 ♥ 9 5 3 ♦ J 10 8 3 2 ♣ Q J 6

Your partner dealt and bid one spade. It was overcalled with one notrump, you passed, there was a raise to two notrump, and a final bid of three notrump.

There is a temptation to lead diamonds, but we resist the temptation and open the eight of spades. Maybe our club stopper will give us time to get our partner's spades off and running.

Auto Inspection Van Is Valuable

HALIFAX (CP) — Local police chiefs are pleased with the work of Nova Scotia's travelling automobile inspection van, and say it is performing a great service to the motoring public.

The van, owned by the highways department and operated by one police constable, has visited more than 20 Nova Scotia communities since it was put on the road April 1.

The compulsory roadside inspections check the brakes, lights and other safety equipment of passing automobiles.

Frank Smith, supervisor of inspections for the department, said only a few motorists have complained about the compulsory checks. He said they realize their vehicles have defects which must be fixed, and in some cases they volunteer their cars for inspection.

Police in Truro, New Glasgow, New Waterford and Stellarton said they are well satisfied with the van and would welcome it any time.

They said the vehicle was particularly helpful in finding cars that had passed their compulsory annual inspections several months ago but had deteriorated since then.

They also said the mere knowledge that the van is operating will cut down on the number of defective vehicles on the road.

By early August the van's inspections had prohibited 21 vehicles from operation, given rejection stickers to 195, ordered repairs and a second inspection for 552, and issued 158 warnings. In addition, 57 motorists were summonsed because of vehicle defects.

Much Alberta Land Sold to Foreigners

EDMONTON (CP) — A lot of land is being bought and sold in Alberta these days.

And despite Canadian worries about foreign investment in Canada, many buyers are citizens of other countries.

"Canada is considered the best place in the world," said Ted Sharum of Block Bros. real estate. "Alberta is thought to be the best place in Canada, and Edmonton and surrounding area the best place in Alberta."

There are no restrictions against those who want to invest money in real estate in Alberta, although some foreign interests believe that it's only a matter of time until restrictions of some sort will be imposed.

Recently, a well-to-do woman from Europe visited Alberta for the sole purpose of giving birth to her child in Canada. Later, if foreigners are barred from investing in Alberta, one member of her family will be a native Canadian through whom transactions may be made.

Exact information on the number of foreigners buying land in Alberta is not yet available. Since June 1, the provincial government has been monitoring foreign land purchases, and non-Canadian buyers are required to state their nationality on applications for land titles.

Initial indications are that about 40 titles a week are registered by foreigners.

Earlier this year, an elderly German farmer bought a farm 70 miles northeast of Edmonton for $140,000, almost $200 an acre—even though all of the land was still covered by snow.

The original owner said after the sale that he couldn't resist the money. For the time being he is leasing the land back. The German farmer intends to give the land to his son, who would be unable to find a similar spread in his homeland.

Investors from the Philippines recently bought nine quarters of land west of Edmonton. Unsettled political conditions in their native country is the reason for their buying, said Mr. Sharum.

"They really don't care what they buy here. Anything is better than what they got there."

Some foreign interests are paying between $400 and $500 an acre, Mr. Sharum said. Land at that price usually is held for speculation. Farmers could never make it pay as crop land.

Block Bros. also sold an 800-acre cattle set-up north of the city to a group of Germans.

Weber Bros. Realty Ltd. have sold several farms east of Edmonton to Austrian and German buyers. They bought only the best, No. 1 and No. 2 land, according to the Canada Land inventory classification.

Most of these investors either have tenant farmers on their land or rent it out to neighboring farmers.

One real estate company lost a salesman who went to work for an Italian syndicate that bought 30 quarters about 50 miles east of Edmonton.

The syndicate paid between $225 and $275 an acre for the land, which now is being rented by farmers in the area.

Kissinger Attempts To Placate Syria

DAMASCUS (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger today assured Syria that his peacemaking efforts include all Middle East issues, including the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights.

Kissinger made his declaration on arrival in Damascus from Egypt on his latest round of shuttle diplomacy aimed at an Israeli withdrawal in the Sinai Desert.

He was expected to meet with President Hafez Assad and other Syrian leaders before heading on to Jerusalem this evening to continue his mediation between Egypt and Israel.

He said before leaving Egypt that he may return to the Middle East next month if he fails to wrap up the Sinai accord on this trip.

He told reporters in the Mediterranean resort of Alexandria that his talks with President Anwar Sadat had been "very satisfactory."

"Progress has been made," he added.

The state secretary held a 75-minute meeting today with Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy on bilateral relations, including additional foreign aid, a spokesman said.

He then left by helicopter for Giannaclis military airport and the flight to Damascus.

U.S. state department spokesman Robert Anderson said Kissinger reviewed with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat "all of the elements of an interim settlement." And an Egyptian spokesman said that while "problems still remain," some progress was made. The two held discussions until late Friday night.

Kissinger said earlier that he is "reasonably hopeful" that his latest peace efforts will succeed.

Reporters were told that Egypt is seeking an increase in U.S. aid for its ailing economy, and that the Ford administration will ask Congress for a substantial increase over last year's figure of $250 million.

Kissinger's trip to Damascus comes a day after Syria and Jordan indicated their concern at a possible separate Egyptian-Israeli agreement by forming a "supreme political command" to make political decisions on questions of war and peace. The announcement came at the end of a visit to Syria by Jordan's King Hussein.

The move indicated that Syria's President Hafez Assad has gained Hussein's support to serve notice to the U.S. that return of the Syrian Golan Heights and the Jordanian West Bank must not be neglected.

However, Israeli Prime Minister Yitshak Rabin said in a television interview he saw "extremely limited room" for an interim pact with Syria and "no room at all" for an agreement with Jordan.

Bell May Face Ontario Charges

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Handleman, Ontario minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Friday that the province is investigating Bell Canada's service reductions and may prosecute under the Business Practices Act.

Mr. Handleman said the situation is under investigation but that "we need to look into this matter throughtly before we take any action." He gave no indication when the province might be prepared to act.

A company spokesman said earlier this week that more than 2,200 new-home buyers in Toronto will be without telephones for up to 11 months.

He said the company does not have the capital to put in trunk lines to the subdivisions because the Canadian transport commission allowed only half of a requested $28-million rate increase last month.

Meanwhile, the 60,000-member Civil Service Association of Ontario has asked Premier Davis to establish a royal commission to investigate the company.

Charles Darrow, president of the union, said in a letter to Mr. Davis:

"I would suggest to you that in the heat of an election campaign you might well be advised to tackle this large corporation which sits in a very wealthy monopolistic situation."

Meanwhile, Jim O'Grady, president of the 100,000-member Consumers Association of Canada, said the association is considering legal action against Bell.

He said it is hard to believe Bell is short of money for ordinary telephone installations and that the company's stand likely is aimed at the bond market to buoy potential investors' confidence.

Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier could not be reached for comment on Bell Canada's action because he is on vacation until Sept. 4.

However, M. R. Prentis, corporate affairs director for the national telecommunications branch, said the department is studying the situation and added: "It appears to be an issue of principles. We're very concerned."

Medium, Small Eggs Up Nickel a Dozen

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board has raised the price paid to producers of Grade A medium and Grade A small eggs by five cents a dozen.

The producer price of Grade A medium eggs will be 57 cents a dozen next week, compared with 52 cents this week. Grade A small eggs will be 44 cents a dozen compared with 39 cents.

The price of a dozen Grade A large eggs will remain unchanged at 66 cents, although industry officials say the pricing formula of the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency indicates they will increase by two cents a dozen in Central Canada.

The increase in Grade A medium and small eggs follows a mid-week confrontation between the board and a group of Ontario producers.

Ontario producers said the price differential on Grade A medium and Grade A small eggs between Ontario and markets in British Columbia and Newfoundland was larger than justified by transportation costs.

Meanwhile, the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board has turned down a proposed by the Ontario egg board that egg quotas be bought and sold freely among producers.

Some Ontario producers opposed the plan because they believed the quotas would end up in the hands of feed companies and large producers.

Premiers Offer Aid To Ottawa

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Canada's provinces are prepared to take steps, along with Ottawa, to hold down wages and prices in order to reduce inflation and high unemployment.

"We're prepared to bite the bullet if the federal government is willing to get its teeth into it as well." Premier Frank Moores said Friday following the two-day annual conference of Canadian premiers.

Mr. Moores said the premiers are ready to meet with the federal government to work out a co-operative approach for solving the nation's economic ills but said Ottawa must initiate the talks.

The premiers also concluded that the only way the federal government can allay their fears that cost-shared programs may be altered in the future is by a first ministers' conference on the subject as soon as possible.

News Briefs

Dictator Will Die

ATHENS (CP) — Former dictator George Papadopoulos and two of his closest collaborators were sentenced to death today after being convicted of insurrection and high treason for planning and staging the 1967 military coup that suspended democracy in Greece. The court stripped Papadopoulos and his two collaborators, Nicholas Makarezos and Stylianos Patakos, of their officer ranks. The court meted out life imprisonment to eight of the defendants. Seven more received prison terms ranging from eight to 20 years.

Nixon Reveals Strategy

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon revealed part of his strategy for the Sept. 18 provincial election campaign Friday when he told a reporter he is breaking the election campaign down and spending a week each on a series of what he believes are key issues. This week his target was the province's education system.

Farmers Pledged Aid

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis said Friday that his government will supplement federal agricultural stabilization payments if they prove inadequate for Ontario farmers. Speaking here, Mr. Davis challenged the federal government to announce its agricultural price stabilization plans so Ontario farmers will know what price-control levels to expect this fall.

Police Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — The 27 members of the suburban St. Lambert police department continued their walkout today to back up wage demands, and Quebec provincial police were available for emergency calls. The officers, who stopped patrolling the city of 22,000 on Friday, are asking for wage parity with policemen in nearby St. Hubert.

Bomb Kills Two

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Two persons were killed Friday night when a terrorist gang hurled a bomb into a Roman Catholic bar in Armagh.

No Truce on Timor

LISBON (Reuter) — The governor of Portugal's war-torn far-eastern island territory of Timor failed in an attempt to negotiate a truce Friday night between battling independence movements. The island is said to have been plunged into a bloodbath.

Another Typhoid Case

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Medical officials confirmed another case of typhoid Friday, increasing to 32 the number of cases of the disease discovered among persons who attended a religious summer camp near here in July.

Aspirin Said Threat

LONDON (AP) — Women who take aspirin regularly during pregnancy run more risk of losing their babies in the first four weeks after birth, than those who don't, two Australian women doctors said Friday. Tests in Sydney, Australia, showed the number of still-births and deaths in the first four weeks after birth was 87 in 1,000 among regular aspirin takers, compared with 27 in 1,000 among other women.

TRENTON — Rollins Construction Company should be pushed into correcting "some really shabby workmanship" at the Burttdale Height subdivision, said NDP provincial leader Stephen Lewis after touring the development Friday afternoon.

Mr. Lewis said the blame was not totally Rollins. "The government was more at fault for what they failed to do by enforcing the regulations," at the Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) subdivision.

Residents of Burttdale Heights have been charging there are major structural faults is many of the homes that have passed Ontario Housing Corporation inspections.

Residents also displayed examples of work that had been rejected by the inspectors which had not been fixed by the construction company. They told Mr. Lewis a follow-up inspection to check on the repairs has never been made by OHC.

Robert E. Marcotte, vice-president of Rollins, said in a statement issued Friday afternoon: "I'm at a loss to understand why it is considered necessary to call any politicians into this situation."

Mr. Marcotte claims company workmen have been on the site for the past two and a half weeks repairing legitimate items, and that there was . . . "no reason for constant news releases by Mr. William Rittwage (tenant spokesman)."

Mr. Lewis toured the subdivision, examining brick work that he said, it was obvious just by looking at it, was below specifications. He also examined floors that, tenants said, were not properly braced, according to the Ontario Housing Corporation building code. Then he addressed the group of assembled homeowners. He said the HOME program was designed to provide less expensive but good quality homes and "that this kind of workmanship should not be tolerated."

The group of homeowners say they have received little satisfaction from letters to OHC complaining about the subdivision.

In one letter written to a homeowner from an OHC official who, Mr. Lewis said "should be transferred upstairs where he can't interfere with people," the representative said the OHC was only responsible for insuring a house was structurally sound not for reasonably minor final finishing items.

The letter pointed out to the homeowner the $17 per square foot price for a HOME unit as compared to the $23 charged on the open market, saying "obviously, your builder has cut his profit margin considerably to build on the HOME program."

Mr. Lewis called the official as "not a complaints officer but an apologist for the builder."

The tenants' group and officials of the construction company have a meeting arranged for August 26, to discuss non-warranty items.

Mr. Lewis said he was going to make a major statement later about the current condition of the HOME provincial program, which he said "was in tatters."

Dynamite Stick Sent Toronto Black Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Bromley Armstrong, a black community leader, received a stick of dynamite and a death threat in the mail Friday.

Mr. Armstrong, editor of a community newspaper which caters to Caribbean immigrants and a member of the Ontario Human Rights Commission, said in an interview the articles were delivered Friday afternoon to the newspaper office.

He said it was the second death threat he has received this year. The note Friday stated: "Watch your step nigger! We are! We can make it explode."

It was signed by The White Nationalist Revolutionary Society.

In the earlier threat, Mr. Armstrong said an envelope daubed with red paint was left in his newspaper office door March 23 and contained the message: "Prepare to die."

Mr. Armstrong said he did not mention the first death threat because he believed that making it public would encourage the assailants.

Loyalist Granted $50,000 More For Centre Feasibility Study

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College will initiate the second phase of a $75,000 feasibility and preliminary design study for a proposed $2.17 million community arts centre, says Wilf Wilkinson, chairman of the college board of governors.

The board announced at a Thursday press conference at the college that it has been officially notified of a $50,000 grant from the provincial ministry of culture and recreation for the study's next phase.

The first phase, unveiled in a 56-page report at the conference, was covered by a $25,00 grant from the provincial ministry of colleges and universities last September when the study was first announced.

In response to a newsman's question, Mr Wilkinson said neither the federal nor provincial governments has assured financial support towards construction, but said he ~~felt the~~ study's assessment of Quinte area culture requirements would itself be worth its cost.

"It would be a wise assessment even if it was proved we could'nt afford it (the centre)," he commented.

Mr. Wilkinson also said both senior government levels have expressed interest in providing culture-starved regions with such facilities as arts centres.

He was echoed by conference guest, Dr. Richard Potter, outgoing Quinte MLA and provincial minister of correctional services, who said, "they (government officials) are very interested."

The initial report recommends the centre be built at Loyalist and Mr. Wilkinson, in answer to another question, said there is already provincial government approval for more construction at the college.

He explained the college's 1968 master plan provides for an auditorium-style arrangement, such as the proposed centre. In addition, this approval includes community use of the facility, he said.

"It has generally been the feeling educational facilities should not be used only by institutions themselves but by communities at large," Mr. Wilkinson remarked. "This is the cornerstone that our college has been centred around."

Hastings County Council adopted the report in June but stopped short of an endorsement in principle as requested. Mr. Wilkinson said this did not represent a setback to the plans.

"They've adopted the same position as the college (apprehension concerning assuming costs)," he said. "Certainly, they're not as enthusiastic."

The college board has also endorsed the report but has questioned assuming operating costs unless the centre will benefit Loyalist academically. "This board has a well-established record of fiscal responsibility," Mr. Wilkinson said.

The study was commissioned by The Community Arts Centre Committee made up of both college and Quinte Arts Council representatives and headed by college board member Friedl Bellstedt. The committee hired a Toronto consulting firm, Dixon-Bailey Associates Ltd., to conduct the study.

The recommended facility consists of a 1,200-seat flexible-use auditorium available for all kinds of cultural activity

Funeral services were held Thursday for Clifton Zachariah of 125 Centre Street.

Mr. Zachariah died August 19 after an illness of about eight months. He was 67.

He was son of the late lavie and Charlotte Maracle and spent his lifetime in the Belleville and Deseronto area. He was employed by Crawford Metals until 1973.

He was predeceased by his first wife and survived by his second, Eva S. Austin.

Mr. Zachariah is survived by his children, Mrs. Ruth Zachariah of Belleville; Mrs. Lorne Maracle of Millbrook, and Mrs. William (Jean) Latimer of Belleville.

He was predeceased by one daughter, Eleanor and is survived by 34 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren.

He is also survived by a sister, Mrs. William Isaac (Bernice) Hill of RR 1 Deseronto and brothers, Gordon of RR 1 Deseronto, Alvis, Wellington and Louis of Belleville.

Interment was at All-Saints Cemetery. Bearers included four grandsons, Douglas, Brian, Donald and Richard Spencer and two nephews, William Maracle and Vernon Hill.

MRS. EDWARD OUTINGDYKE
Campbellford

Funeral was held Tuesday for Mrs. Mercy Outingdyke, of Campbellford, from the Weaver Funeral Home, followed by interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery. Rev. W. C. McBride officiated.

Daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. Outingdyke died Sunday at the residence of her son in her 80th year.

She is survived by two sons, Clarence (Clare) of Sudbury and Harold (Ossie), of Belleville. She is also survived by five grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Outingdyke is predeceased by a brother George Miller and three sisters Annie Herrington, Emma Coulter and Hattie Miller. She is also predeceased by her husband Edward.

She was member of the Campbellford Senior Citizens' Club and the Glee section of the club. She was also active in the Campbellford Hospital Auxiliary and a former registered nursing assistant.

Bearers were Larry and Michael Outingdyke, Douglas English, Gaius Donaldson, Glenn Ireland and Archie McMillan.

DELBERT EATON

Funeral services for Trenton taxi driver Delbert Edward Eaton were held August 16.

Mr. Eaton of 54 Elgin Street, died August 13 following a long illness. He was 64.

He was son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eaton of Stirling and had lived in Trenton for the past 25 years. He was not married.

He is survived by two sisters; Mrs. Hazel Preston of North Bay and Mrs. Allan (Shurlene) Kivell of Brooklin and a brother, William John of RR 2 Marmora. He was predeceased by two brothers.

Interment was at Greenwood Cemetery, Queensboro. Bearers included Fred Bateman, Earl Wallace, Ernest Reid, Hamilton Donnan, Rayburn Wood and Allan Sine.

Cadet Completes Training

MADOC — Ronnie Adams, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Adams of Madoc, returned home Sunday after a six-week training course at Camp Ipperwash, near Stratford.

Cpl. Adams, a cadet for two year, was the only member of the C.H.S.S. Cadet Crops to attend the Camp. However, two officers from here, both students of C.H.S.S., were a part of the Camp and will be staying on for another two weeks to finish up business. They are Lieutenant Charlie Bronson and Lt. Robert Johnson.

Cpl. Adams, a student of Madoc Public School, will be entering grade nine at C.H.S.S. next month.

The training program included watermanship, discipline, exercising, survival in the woods, map orienteering and many other aspects of army life. Watermanship covered the building of a pontoon bridge, crossing a two-strand and a three-strand bridge, paddling wreckey boats, as well as canoeing (including portaging and paddling).

The cadets were given a full schedule every day from six o'clock in the morning until ten at night every day and were always ready for bed at that time. However, they were allowed a certain amount of free social time during the six weeks there.

Cadets attending the camp were given remuneration for their attendance.

Chamber Gets Gift

TWEED — The Stoco Lake Cottage Owners Association which ceased to function in 1968, recently forwarded a cheque for $150.70 to the Tweed Chamber of Commerce to be used to further the interests of Tweed and community. The cheque represented the balance remaining in the Association's bank account.

Bureau Got $500.

Contrary to a report in Friday's Intelligencer the Quinte Information and Assistance centre did receive funding from United Way last year.

Vera Heimbach, centre board chairman, said the group received $500 last year while operating under the name of Citizen's Bureau in Trenton.

In a United Community Services meeting Thursday directors said the group was rejected in 1974 because they did not have a proper board of directors and did not have government funding.

The group apparently did have a board of directors but did not have confirmation of funding from the department of corporate and consumer affairs. They were awarded $500 of an original allocation of $2,000.

Although the name and location of the agency have been changed they are still helping persons with consumer problems. The centre is located on Coleman Street.

Election Keeps Phones Busy

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

PICTON — With less than a month to go in the provincial election, the effects of its calling has started to influence different segments of the community.

The assistant manager for the business office for the Belleville District of Bell Canada, Diane Godbout, said: "The increase in the amount of calls during any election is not unusual. There is a heavy volume."

The manager of the Trenton and Picton office, Bob Carleton said the number of calls received inquiring about the committee room phone numbers is between 400 to 500 per day.

This number represents the area extending from Trenton to Brockville and from Prince Edward County to north of Highway 7, said Mr. Carleton.

In comparison to the last election Mr. Carleton said the number of inquiries is about the same and is as "much as anticipated."

One of the problems faced by Bell Canada Mr. Charleton mentioned is the question of staffing the phones.

"The calls come in peaks and valleys and it is difficult to staff."

The problem of cable shortage for Bell Canada Toronto reported Thursday has not affected the installation of phones for the committee rooms in the Belleville-Trenton area, said Mr. Carleton.

"One manager I was talking to recently said he has run into problems of shortages but only because the lack of facilities in the rooms the party was able to get," said the manager. "We've been able to meet the demand around this area."

In a case where there are no facilities available, a political party would have to go on the waiting list, said Mr. Carleton.

To help co-ordinate the increase during the election an employee is assigned the special but temporary task to guarantee equal treatment said Mr. Carleton.

The special co-ordinator for the election for this area is Marg Thompson.

"Initially there are more calls but as advertising starts, which includes the telephone number, the inquiries decrease," said Mr. Carleton.

There is a tendency for the calls to increase during the election night by people who want numbers for rides to the polls, stated the manager.

Even though it does make the operators busy, it is "part of our day to day job. And so far I have not heard of any complaints," said Mr. Carleton.

Longtime Pharmacist W.B. Lattimer Dies

Funeral services for former Belleville druggist William Bruce Lattimer are to be held Monday at 2 p.m.

Mr. Lattimer of RR 3, Napanee, died Friday.

For the past eight years Mr. Lattimer has been a pharmacist at Lennox and Addington Hospital.

Born in Belleville, he ran a drugstore on Front Street from 1935 to 1968. While in Belleville he was a member of Belleville General Hospital Board and an alderman.

He is survived by his wife, Margery Duff, and is father to William of Fredricton, Mrs. Ronald Burgess (Jane) of Sault Ste. Marie and Dr. Bruce Lattimer of Kapuskasing.

Visitation is from 2 p.m. Sunday at John R. Bush Funeral Home, 80 Highland Avenue. Interment is at Belleville Cemetery.

Mr. Moffat joined the firm in 1968 as Manager, Profit Planning Department Store Division, was appointed Corporate Budget Director in 1970 and Director, Corporate Planning in 1974.

Michael is well-known in Tweed and district. He was born in Tweed, son of Mrs. Moffat and the late T.E. Moffat. He is a graduate of Tweed schools and of Queen's University in Commerce. His wife is the former Catherine Quinn of Tweed.

Youth Hurt In Crash

MADOC — A 20-year-old Marmora youth, was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital as a result of a one-car accident on the Quin-Mo-Lac Road, five miles east of Highway 62, Friday night.

Treated and released for possible back injuries was John Greensides, 20, of RR 2, Marmora, police report.

Madoc detachment of the provincial police said the car lost control on a curve and went into a ditch hitting a rock, a fence and then a tree.

Police estimate damage to the Greensides vehicle being $2,000.

Wins Art Prize

TWEED — The Art '75 Award, a Canadian Government Bond for $50 was presented to Miss Karen "Louise" Bronson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bronson, of Tweed, by the Loyalist Night Class in Art, held at the Tweed-Hungerford Senior Public School.

The presentation was made by the instructor, Mrs. Vera Ingles and Mrs. Myke Fraser, a member of the Board of Governors of Loyalist College, (Belleville).

It is awarded annually to the Grade 8 student with the most artistic potential.

Mrs. Ingles thanked the public for their generous donations at the recent Art Show held in Tweed, which made the award possible.

Plan Carnival

There will be a carnival for Muscular Dystrophy Monday, Aug. 25, at 1 p.m. at the empty lot, corner of Victoria Ave. and Haig Road.

Weatherman Not to Blame For Sunshine

It wasn't the weatherman that was entirely wrong in Friday's prediction in The Intelligencer.

For some unkown reason the weather announcement at the top of Thursday's front page was used again in Friday's newspaper.

It called for thunderstorms. The synopsis, correctly printed on page one, called for generally cloudy weather.

One weather prediction was wrong because it was published the wrong day and one was wrong because it wasn't right.

The error was pointed out by a Trenton weatherman who received droves of calls from readers wondering why The Intelligencer called for rain on such a sunny day.

The Intelligencer apologizes for any inconvenience caused readers.

White Cattle Visit Canada

WESTLOCK, Alta. (CP) — The meaty Marchigiana, one of Italy's five white cattle breeds, has come to Canada— and Ben Schrader is staking his future on them.

Mr. Schrader, owner of Schrader-Primrose Ranches Ltd. in Westlock, about 50 miles north of Edmonton, has the first two full-blooded Marchigiana heifers in Canada on his ranch. He also has two of the first bulls as herd sires.

"They're a well-rounded breed in almost all of the production traits involved in beef production," he said, summing up his impressions in an interview.

The Marchigiana breed accounts for about 45 per cent of the beef cattle raised in Italy. Developed in the Marche region, northeast of Rome, the breed is known for its adaptability, gentleness and easy calving.

Calves are tan-colored at birth and gradually turn white during the first months of life. Mature cattle are light gray to white in color, the skin is pigmented, and the tail, muzzle, eyes and hooves are black.

When Canada first opened its doors to importation of Italian beef breeds in the early 1970s, another of Italy's white breeds was the first to come over, the Chianina, followed by the Romagnola. Now, the Marchigiana has appeared on the scene.

Mr. Schrader, an agricultural graduate from University of Alberta, first heard of the breed in 1969 while attending a course in Banff. There were no Italian beef cattle in Canada at the time, but he was impressed with what he heard.

In 1973, the first four permits to import Marchigiana bulls were issued and Mr. Schrader went to Italy to select two bulls, including Nando, the three-year-old he shares in a pooling arrangement with Felstad Farms Ltd., 14 miles north of his ranch.

Since then, they have brought over another bull, two-year-old O.K. in 1974. Mr. Schrader became the owner of the first two Marchigiana heifers imported, Offida and Omera.

There now are 10 full-blood bulls and six heifers in Canada, with additional animals coming this summer. Bulls weigh 2,650 pounds at maturity, while heifers weigh 1,500 to 1,800 pounds.

"I think they're going to fit well into a commercial crossbreeding program," Mr. Schrader said. "I think if people try them, they'll like them."

The Marchigiana was the last of the Italian breeds to come over, he said, "not because they're inferior, but because it was just the way it happened."

The breed is known for its easy calving, even when cross-bred.

For example, Mr. Schrader said, half-Marchigiana heifers imported from the United States were bred to the Marchigiana bulls and calved last spring, yielding three-quarter calves, with little difficulty and no Caesareans.

"They calve exceptionally well, mainly because they're not a really heavy-boned animal," he said.

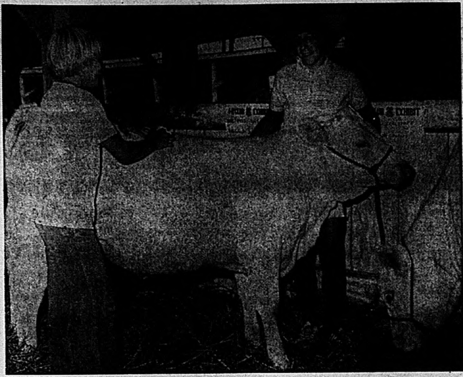
The calves are flat-sided when born, but flesh out quickly, Mr. Schrader added, "probably as well as any breed that has come over."

They also display tremendous vitality when first born. Outstanding calves have reached 800 pounds at six months, while many reach 650 pounds by that time.

"Although the breed isn't being used for milk or dairy production, this indicates adequate production," Mr. Schrader said. The beef potential is excellent, with the meat tending to be lean.

"There's no question that they are going to be a good carcass animal," he said.

"One of the real highlights, particularly for me, is their hardiness. They've done extremely well over here in winter."



Brushes for Baby

Stewart and Robert Indewey use brushes and baby powder to groom the creamy-white seven-month old Charolais calf belonging to Bill Langstaff, member of the Belleville 4-H Calf Club. The calf won first prize in the junior beef calf class at the Junior Livestock Show sponsored by the Rotary Club, held at the Quinte Exhibition Grounds, Saturday, August 16.

Diane Jarrell Top 4-H Dairy Showman

The Quinte Junior Livestock Show was held on August 16 at the Quinte Exhibition Grounds in Belleville, with 4-H members from Hastings, Prince Edward, and Lennox and Addington Counties competing. Sixteen exhibitors and twenty-nine head made an excennent show.

The Quinte Junior Livestock show provides an opportunity for 4-H calf club projects to come back to the showring and compete. This show encourages a continuing interest in the 4-H calves as they grow and develop and join the beef or dairy herd. This event is sponsored by the Roarty Club of Belleville.

G. H. Sharpe of Napanee was the judge. Results are as follows:

Gardening Column

Gardens Must Be Kept On Year-round Basis

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

Last week's column was all part of a sneaky plan of mine to convert you, to get you thinking six or eight months ahead, to keep the fever burning, and when the timing is right — swoop in and sell you on the merits of becoming a twelve-month gardener.

Such a step requires that you extend your outdoor activities — spring and fall. And in between, become a "phyto-illuminationist" which is nothing more than a high-priced word for an indoor light gardener, plus a lover of foliage and flowering house plants.

But since we're a long way from being finished with the outdoors yet, let's see some of the things you can do to extend the season a little bit.

First, let's look at your roses. If you keep them insect and fungus free, there's no reason why you can't continue to enjoy their flowering for many weeks to come. In fact, early and middle fall, usually provides a wave of blossoms second only to June.

But insect damage, and what is more likely at this time of the year — fungus damage — can cut their blossoming life short before their time.

Powdery mildew is one of the biggest predators at this time of the year, and the bugs are far from through yet. So spraying for insect and fungus protection about every 10 days is still important.

I prefer the systemic products that contain both an insecticide and a fungicide. And if you're not sure of the word "systemic" it simply means that both the insecticide and fungicide are absorbed through roots and -or foliage into the sap stream of the plant and acts like an inoculant. As a result, bugs and fungus are stopped before they start.

Now don't wait to see the signs of damage before you start. Damage can't be repaired, but it can be prevented. If stems, buds or leaves have a curious hooked appearance, or a soft greyish white coating that feels slippery to the touch — you have fungus problems already. Then spraying will help prevent its spread. But how much better to prevent its happening with regular sprayings, before the fact.

One last feeding will do a lot to assist a good crop of blooms this fall. Use a fertilizer with a low first, high middle and medium last number on the container, which means a fertilizer that is low in nitrogen, high in phosphorous and moderate in potash, for maximum flowering and root growth, and some disease resistance. But don't carry that final fertilization much past the first of September or your roses could end up going into winter with a lot of soft growth that could be wide open for winter kill.

Pruning is important too. The stems carrying spent blossoms should be removed as soon as the petals fall, with a clean angled cut about ¼" above the first five-leaved — not three-leaved floret below the blossom. Because that is where the new flower-bearing cane will originate.

Of course, all this will be in vain if you have a water problem. Roses thrive on water. I recommend half a gallon twice a week, with the soil around each shrub well cultivated for maximum absorption.

In fact, if you're planning on going the whole route, may I suggest the following sequence.

Cultivate around each shrub in the evening as deep as you can without slicing up roots and add your fertilizer to the cultivated area. Next morning, do your watering and as soon as the foliage is dry, use a watering can or sprayer to apply your systemic fungicide-insecticide. And you should be enjoying roses well into October.

Heavily-armed Iran and Moscow-Peking Stand-off Scenaros for Future War

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

In a world mainly at peace, and with the Vietnam war over at last, should we speculate that a major war, rather than our present concerns about inflation, over-population and world poverty will be the major crisis of the future?

Unfortunately the answer has to be yes. There are several "scenarios" as the military themslves call their futuristic projections, which suggest a major clash of arms could be our lot within a decade.

Such a possibility is not believed in this country where our politicians and public opinion reject any suggestion that war rather than the growing issues of survival between rich and poor nations will shake the earth around the year 1980.

There are two "scenarios" which are being played out on the military games tables of many of the world's armed forces, and one expects also by those which might be involved.

The first scenario relates to the unprecedented Iranian arms build-up on land, sea and in the air at an accelerated rate reminiscent of the European powers in the years before 1914 and the First World War.

Iranian arms purchases if carried out to completion will give that emerging empire more Chieftain heavy tanks than the British who build them (about 4,000), jet interceptor squadrons in the Imperial Iranian Air Force with aircraft as modern as in the United States Air Force and a small fleet of the new Spruance class of American destroyers now under completion in U.S. shipyards.

The purpose is to make Iran into a Middle Eastern tier nation of massive military power to prevent any direct Soviet move south from Soviet Asia to invade any of the several small Persian Gulf oil states if their governments ever turn left-wing or pro-Communist.

There will be no Portugals on the Gulf if the Iranians can help it. The ideological impetus to prevent this is growing "gung-ho" feeling among the young Iranian officer corps that all these Western weapons will give them the chance to rebuild the historic Persian empire in Asia.

Such unheard of prospects as a future invasion of next-door Pakistan to give Iran a major toe-hold in Asia, are mentioned by young and warlike Iranians.

Already small Iranian military missions, filling the historic role of former British ones, are functioning in advisory roles to the small states on the Arabian Gulf and in the Oman region with no complaints from large and conservatively-ruled Saudi-Arabia.

Th other scenario for a major war in the late '70s or early '80s refers to the still angry Soviet-Chinese Siberian border dispute and the need for both sides to maintain armies of about two millions on either side.

The prospect of a major Asian war between Moscow and Peking has been generally forgotten in the West. But neither the Russians nor the Chinese have reduced tensions in Siberia since 1963.

Peking constantly aware of its great weapons imbalance with the Russians, hastens to complete its own delivery system for its hydrogen bombs as well as trying to buy Western high-technology military equipment such as the British Harrier jump jet.

In both proposed scenarios, the Soviet Union is deeply involved, the one and the same super-power which saw the Helsinki document of detente as the wave of the future and a basis of its foreign policy.

The Russians have done this kind of dissembling before with the West in 1939 and with Hitler before 1941.

Will we in the West find again in the '70s or '80s that the Soviet propensity for mass deception has not changed?

Senior Citizen Needs

A weekly newspaper editor has been looking at the subject of retirement and he asks, given the vision of unlimited freedom, "why, then is it such a disillusioning experience for so many people?"

"What's missing, according to the psychologists and human relations consultants," the editorial continues, "is involvement in interests outside one's self."

Indeed, that is the situation in which many a retired person finds himself, being even busier in fact than th ey were in their regular job. For others though, time hangs heavy.

The subject is particularly timely because the Ontario Advisory Council on Senior Citizens has just issued its first annual report.

Council chairman Hope Holmested of Richmond Hill says the goal is to help create a province in which it is possible to grow old with dignity and a sense of usefulness . . ."

Convenor Wilson Abernethy of Toronto, takes issue with the prevailing attitude that upon retirement older people have no further responsibility to the community and should simply sit back and take it easy.

He points to the need to provide opportunities for older people to "accept these responsibilities and use their knowledge, experience and wisdom . . ."

As in many a document of this nature, it is heavy on idealism and short on detail, but hopefully plans will evolve that will help get the older folk back into the mainstream of events.

There is a good example from Kitchener-Waterloo. Senior citizens there are participating in a six-week summer course at Conestoga College which includes ornithology (bird - watching), archaeology, consumer awareness, environmental pollution, fishing, and antiques. The initiative also includes field trips and helps get the seniors out and about.

The human resources committee of the Advisory Council meanwhile speaks of legislative changes it will recommend, pertaining to hours of work, pension requirements, income etc., in order that senior citizens "can more equitably continue seuful work."

It's all a step in the right direction. The cover picture on the report sums up the concept nicely. A senior citizen, a man in his 70s, and fit and well, is shown helping a girl of perhaps ten years with some cut-out work with cloth. Not least benefit of such enterprise is companionship for folks of all ages.

Music Hath Charms

The appearance at Zwick's Island bandshell tomorrow of the Stephen Choma Strings is a reminder of the many years this trio and the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra, which Mr. Choma conducts, has given to music and the arts in this area.

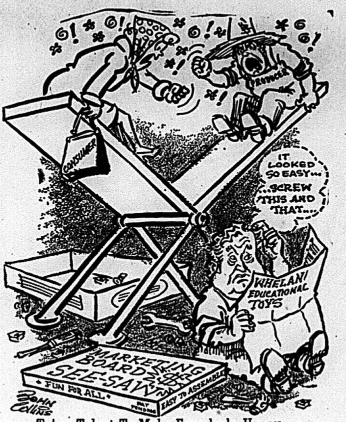
The orchestra, founded by Mr. Choma more than a decade, ago, consists of non-professional musicians and they have performed in more than a hundred concerts throughout the region.

The string group has performed before former Governor-General Michener, at banquets and receptions, and lately it has been playing to public school audiences in both an educational and entertainment capacity.

Yet another offshoot of the orchestra—is a violin quartet which performs throughout the area and has given performances on local cable television. Also providing music on a community and area basis is The Concert Brass, not forgetting the spirited Yardmen band and the veteran dance under veteran Jack Greene. And orchestra group, The Commodores.

These are groups which are known and respected beyond the community, yet they have a distinctively Belleville and Quinte-area flavor and origin. The Eastern Ontario orchestra for instance is the only regional one of its kind. All of them deserve the continued interest and support of the people of this area.

Soon it will be back to school for the young people and an opportunity for many to concentrate further on music studies, as well as participation in band activities. A phone survey being conducted by a local conservatory is another indication of the interest in music locally and of the potential for increasing musical appreciation in the community.



Takes Talent To Make Everybody Happy

Ahmed Reported Friendly to U.S.

By JOHN HAY
The Canadian Press

The emotional bond that has held disaster-shattered Bangladesh together has been snapped with the killing of Sheik Mujibur Rahman in a coup d'etat.

The ties between Mujib and his 75 million people formed a thin thread of leadership in the 3½ years since independence from Pakistan.

But those ties were weakened by a continual round of natural disasters and official graft and incompetence.

They were finally broken last week in an army-backed coup that has put a disaffected ally of Mujib, Khondakar Mushtaque Ahmed, in his place as the country's titular head.

The survival of Bangladesh—much less its economic growth—has always seemed dubious as its vast population scrimped a living on a territory about the size of the Maritime provinces.

With politicians and bureaucrats long ago discredited, only the charismatic attraction of the national father figure appeared to keep Bangladesh from chaos.

His death has left the future of Bangladesh as uncertain as the progress of the cyclones that every year rip across the delta rice paddies.

Interpreting the effects of the coup is made more difficult by the peculiar politics of the Indian subcontinent.

With all communications from Bangladesh cut off, initial reports originated in India and Pakistan—and both those governments have axes of their own to grind on the misfortunes of their neighbor.

As part of India's current state of emergency, all news reports from there must pass rigid censorship rules, and must fall within the Indian government's own view of the Bangladesh coup.

It is not surprising, therefore, that reports from India interpret the coup as the work of a small group of military officers, rather than a response to popular revulsion against Mujib.

Some Indian reports have suggested that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency was behind the coup, but offer no evidence.

The Indian government itself, which placed Mujib in power by sending troops into Bangladesh in the 1971 independence war, has withheld diplomatic recognition of the regime that replaced him.

Prime Minister Indira Gandhi issued an admiring tribute to Mujib and expressed shock at his death.

Pakistan, on the other hand, which fought a bloody war to retain Bangladesh as its eastern province in 1971, was the first country to recognize the new government.

Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto was apparently encouraged by Ahmed's declaration of an Islamic republic in Bangladesh, which had been an Indian-style secular state under Mujib.

Reports from Pakistan indicate that Bhutto, who made an immediate offer of food aid to Bangladesh, is worried that India may try to undermine the new regime in an attempt to keep Bangladesh as a close ally.

Ahmed and the army officers behind him are said to be less friendly to India than was Mujib, and more friendly toward Pakistan's chief ally, the United States.

Washington, another source of news about the coup, has its own interests to protect in future power shifts on the subcontinent.

The U.S. government backed Pakistan against India in the 1971 war, and relations with India have not improved much since.

Reports from Washington, apparently based on White House and state department sources, stress the pro-U.S. stance of the new Bangladesh regime and suggest that Ahmed is a mere figurehead for the military leaders.

This might reflect official Washington's hope that the death of Mujib will lead to expanded U.S. influence in the region.

Market Could Revive with Trading in Stock Options

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Trading in stock options could be the key to a revival of public interest in the stock market, some brokers think.

Individual investors have been staying away from the stock market in droves since capital gains were made subject to income tax in Canada in 1972, and especially after prices began their long downtrend in January, 1973.

Now there's a renewal of interest in the trading of options to buy and sell stock. It's a way of speculating on stock-price movements without having to own the stock in question.

The Montreal Stock Exchange (MSE) will introduce option trading in 15 well known Canadian stocks on Sept. 15.

Then on Oct. 1, the Toronto Stock Exchange (TSE) will take the same step, with the MSE's 15 stocks plus 10 other widely held Canadian industrials.

Options on both exchanges will be written for a term of 90 days, 180 days or 270 days. That means that the speculator has the right either to buy or sell 100 shares of the selected stock at a specific price during the stated life of the option.

Options in U.S. stocks are already being traded under the auspices of the TSE—and have been since mid-June.

Although most option specialists at TSE member-firms seem disappointed at public acceptance of the concept so far, figures just released by the TSE show a rapid rate of increase in option activity.

In the second half of July, TSE member-firms transacted 4,079 option contracts—nearly double the total of 2,147 in the first half of the month.

Of the 4,079 contracts traded, 2,653 were bought and 1,426 were sold (by shareholders, on stock they own but would be willing to part with at the right price).

Opinion among brokers seems to be that public interest will broaden once Canadian investors have the means of trading in options on Canadian stocks through their local brokers, early this fall.

The MSE has announced that its brokers will charge a commission of 1.4 per cent plus $15 on option orders involving amounts up to $2,499. The commission will be one per cent plus $25 on orders involving between $2,500 and $30,000.

Option trading has developed into a major business on the Chicago Board Options Exchange, where some 50,000 contracts are traded each day.

It was there, in 1973, that this type of activity was brought under formal exchange administration for the first time.

(Some Canadian and U.S. brokers have dealt independently in "put" and "call" options for many years).

Chicago is an appropriate focal point for option trading, since it is the centre of trading in some of the most important commodity futures.

There are some distinct similarities between trading in commodity futures and in stock options, which are another type of "future."

Both types of activity involve a greater degree of risk than does the familiar type of investing in stocks. In each case, the speculator has to be alert, flexible, open-minded, courageous enough to ride with profits but to accept losses quickly.

That requires a capacity to keep abreast of constantly changing market conditions and prices, as well as a cautious temperament which is the opposite of that of the plunger in penny mining stocks.

Matter of Distribution

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

In his recent letter regarding the "rip-off" artists on the Market Square, Mr. Hockley has, unwittingly, put his finger upon a confounding economic problem, viz: the dilemma of distribution. We have, it seems, only two alternatives: (a) to let large organizations handle the distribution of goods and services — and incur expenses contingent upon advertising and other substantial overheads and, of course, profiteering; or, (b) to let the producer (in this case, the farmer) sell his wares directly to the consumer.

To casual inspection (b) should yield lower prices than (a); since i.e., direct overhead expenses on the Market Square are nominal; and there are no middlemen whatsoever. Several factors interfere however: (1) The farmer is locked into an inflating circumstance and his expenses are spiralling; (2) The (b) arrangement is inefficient in that little produce is handled by any one producer-vendor, yet often two people put in their day at the market per vending stall . . . and if they do not sell a substantial amount, this expense to them must be apportioned amongst the quantity actually sold. It is not surprising, therefore, that market prices reflect these inefficiencies and realities and look very like supermarket prices.

What can be done?

There are three immediately obvious possibilities:

(1) Fire away, as is Mr. Hockley's wont.

(2) Elevate public awareness and acceptance of Market Square approaches to distribution, which would increase the volume of goods handled by these vendors, allowing lower prices to obtain.

(3) Assist farmers to cooperate in the selling of their present volume; so that fewer people are an expense to the consumer. This could be as simple as an informal bulletin board on the square for farmers to use to apprise one another of their existence and intentions.

VERNON MOLLOY,
Stirling.

Quinte Politics

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

If Mr. Hockley is so concerned about Mrs. Jeffrey and parking facilities for her blue bath tub, why doesn't he put his name on a ballot for the Liberal party, or would it be that the only two votes he would receive would be his own and that of his wife's.

Also, Mr. Hockley, please explain why we never paid $2.00 a pound for beef and 75 cents a gallon for gas when John Diefenbaker was in power.

Advice for Seniors

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Recently I received the pamphlet "Especially For Seniors" published by the 'Ontario Advisory Council'.

The writers have many good points and suggestions to improve the lot of the elderly, but admit that all those little improvements do not go far enough to reach the heart of the problem. Something vital is missing in the life of the average old-ager.

When Council Members visited "Home Help Service' in foreign lands, they encountered the same situation. In Sweden for instance, in this most advanced nation in Socialism and Welfare implementation, ''very few happy old people could be found.'' (Incidentally this country is known also to have one of the highest suicide rates in the world.) But letters coming from the revolution - ravaged Communist territories are even more depressing. Here people count very little as individuals, they only care about the system. As in most places, the aged are the lonely, forgotten ones, who have nothing to hope for.

Organized entertainment and the oldsters own efforts to show a good front may help some, but the lift is only temporary.

The Bible however, does not end on such a pessimistic note. Time and progress have vindicated Bible-truth and proved that our misguided friends, atheistically minded radicals and propagators of evolutionary materialism were wrong. There is more to life than the gradual disintegration of the body.

The rejuvenating Spirit of Christ is so much needed these days by young and old.

I am glad that the pamphlet mentioned above is recommending "public education on aging". Let's hope that the spiritual need of Senior Citizens will not be neglected.

J. ERNST.

Question of Identity

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

At considerable expense to Belleville taxpayers the East Zwicks Island Park has been developed and is now approaching the finishing stages. It will be an asset and a credit to one of our most efficient departments, the Parks Board.

Readers may recall that our friendly municipal muddlers gave the Four Seasons Hotel permission to cut into the property and use same as an entranceway to the hotel. The public, of course, were not consulted about this.

Now, a large sign, tells the public that the entrance is, in fact the Four Seasons Hotel, leaving the firm impression to visitors that the property is part of the Four Seasons complex.

As the taxpayers have paid for this it should be clearly indicated to all that it is a public park and open to everyone. City council has no business allowing our property to be flagrantly advertised as part of a commercial undertaking. Something should be done to rectify this at once.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

FALMOUTH, Mass. (AP) — Actress Patty Duke remained in hospital Saturday with an apparent virus illness that forced her to miss her first performance in 20 years of acting.

Her husband, John Astin, who co-stars with her in the play My Fat Friend, told the audience at the Falmouth Playhouse before Friday night's curtain that his wife had been admitted to hospital with a virus.

"Everything will be fine," he said.

Actress Jill Tanner went to Falmouth from New York to substitute for Miss Duke.

Playhouse manager Steven Langley said Miss Duke had not felt well during the week, saw a doctor Friday, underwent some tests and was admitted to Falmouth Hospital.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Reuter) — What happens to little girls who smoke, drink and swear

In the case of Tatum O'Neal, 11-year-old child star who won an Academy Award nomination for her tough little-girl performance in her first film ,Paper Moon, she wound up getting paid $35,000 a week for her second film.

Miss O'Neal, daughter of film actor Ryan O'Neal, also will be paid eight per cent of the profits of the film The Bad News Bears in which she is the only girl player on a star juvenile baseball team.

Details of the 10-week contract—expected to net her $130,000 after taxes and the costs of her lawyers, agents and expenses—were revealed in a document filed by her father in Los Angles Superior Court on Monday.

A Paramount Studio spokesman said Miss O'Neal will not smoke or drink in her second film.

She will only swear.

JOHANNESBURG (AFP) — South Africa's longest-running and most popular African musical in many years, Ipi Tombi, will tour Europe and Canada starting in Paris on Aug. 19, it was announced Wednesday.

Ipi Tombi, a colorful blend of tribal and rural African culture, will tour with a cast of 28 who will introduce scenes from a witchdoctor's curse in the countryside, and songs of local townships.

MONTREAL (CP) — Robin Spry, a National Film Board filmmaker, said Thursday the treasury board's block of interim funding to the Canadian Film Development Corporation (CFDC) has created a grave situation for the film industry.

"Some filmmakers won't be in any position to film after 1976 if there are no funds for scriptwriting and producing," said Mr. Fry.

The treasury board last week turned down an application for $2 million to cover the CFDC's operating budget for 1976. Present funds run out March 31, 1967.

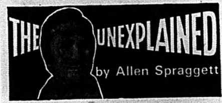
A secretary of state spokesman said a budgetary decision is being delayed pending the determination of a full film policy by the CFDC.

However, CFDC Director Michael Spencer said the interim budget turndown is not a matter of life and death. "The corporation is not funded annually," he said. "We received $10 million in 1968 and were refunded $10 million in 1972."

The Society of Film Makers, an association representing 300 filmmakers across Canada, has sent a telegram to Treasury Board President Jean Chretien "congratulating him for the foresight of his action."

Society President Peter Adamakos said no more CFDC money should be made available until the corporation is held accountable.

"The CFDC has been wasting public funds and has very little to show for it," said Mr. Adamakos.



The New Astrology

To the consternation of some hyperorthodox scientists, astrology is making an intellectual comeback.

Recent scientific discoveries have contributed to a rebirth of the ancient "science of the stars" in a form that could be called Neo-Astrology — the New Astrology.

This updated version of the ancient tradition is based on solid scientific evidence and observation. Findings by modern researchers support some of the old astrological maxims.

For example, a Jewish proverb says: "It never rains on Yom Kippur." The proverb no doubt is based on the observation that it seldom if ever rains in the moon's second quarter and the Jewish Day of Atonement is arranged to fall in that part of the month.

Dr. Georgt Owen, formerly professor of Mathematics and genetics at England's Cambridge University and now executive director of Toronto Canada's New Horizons Research Foundation, says that modern investigation supports the old idea that rain tends to follow the full moon.

A computer study of 50 years' weather records in the United States showed that there is increased rainfall during the first and third quarters of the moon and less precipitation just before either the full or new moon. The same relationship was found in New Zealand. In Texas it was noted that flash floods tend to follow closely the full moon.

"Modern space research and astrophysics have been able to explain many of the moon's effects in terms of the relative positions of the earth, sun and moon," says Dr. Owen. (The study of "the relative positions of the earth, sun and moon" is traditionally part of astrology, of course.)

What heppens, says this scientist, is that "the surface of the sun is in perpetual turmoil manifesting itself to telescopic observation in the form of sunspots. These eject fast-moving, electrically charged particles in great quantities.

"Arriving in the upper atmosphere, these particles, which constitute what is called the 'solar wind' prfoundly affect our weather. Measurements made by space satellites have shown that when the moon is appropriately placed relative to sun and earth it deflects the solar winds, which therefore impinges differently on the ionosphere." The inosphere is the radiation belt far above the earth.

In other words — the old wives' tales about the moon profoundly influencing the weather is a scientific fact.

Dr. Owen points out that the moon also has peculiar effects on certain forms of animal life, for some of which science as yet has no explanation.

Batches of oysters from New Haven, Connecticut, were taken to Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois in dark containers and kept in tideless seawater in a windowless laboratory.

"Now these oysters," says George Owen, "have what is called a semi-lunar rhythm. They open their valves twice a day at high tides.

"After two weeks the oysters in the laboratory changed their rhythm. They still opened twice a day but no longer according to the position of the moon over Connecticut, where they came from, but according to its position over Evanston! The opening of the oysters was found to synchronize with the arrival of the moon above that city."

The question is: Who told the oysters, kept in a lab under artificial light, when the moon was directly overhead? Science as yet has no real explanation for these "internal clocks" which some creatures — possess, says Dr. Owen.

What about the moon's effects on human beings? Is there truth to the old wives' tale that the "lunatic" is someone who has a "tic" of "luna" (the moon)?

"Dr. Leonard Ravitz, a psychiatrist, measured the electric voltage differences between the head and chest in both normal persons and in mental patients," said Owen. 'He claimed a variation tied in with the moon's phases and said this was more pronounced in the mental patients.

"Also a report by the Philadelphia Police Department said that in their experience violent or irresponsible behaviour increased significantly with the approach of the full moon."

There may even be truth, says Dr. Owen, in an old maxim found all over the world saying that crops which yield above ground should be planted in the light of the moon (when it's full or close to it), while potatoes and root crops should be planted in the dark of the moon (when it's in its last and first quarters).

One old proverb Owen doesn't believe is that it's bad luck to look at the new moon through glass or to see it on one's own left.

"Nor," he concludes wryly, "does it seem reasonable to suppose that a new moon on a Sunday should bring ill fortune, or if, occurring on a Saturday, bad weather."

Intrinsic Asthma Difficult Case

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please comment on intrinsic asthma. I have had this disease for the past four years and it seems the doctors are baffled as to the cause of the attacks. I have been told the attacks are attributable to a type of infection but the doctors are unable to put their fingers on just what it is.

I have had the sensitivity tests, and allergies are ruled out. I've been told that the emotions are not the cause, although I feel that they can play a part in setting off an attack. Everytime I have a severe attack it seems that my nose becomes very clogged, and I lose my sense of smell and taste. This occurs at least three weeks before a severe attack.—Mrs. J.A.

You have described a rather classic set of symptoms associated with this type of asthma.

Asthma has been classified as extrinsic and intrinsic, depending on the cause, whether external or internal. In extrinsic asthma, the cause is an outside offender, an allergen such as pollen, dust, food or molds. Intrinsic asthma is the type for which no such cause can be identified. It is usually secondary to a chronic or recurrent infection of the bronchi, sinuses, the tonsits or adenoids.

Since an outside factor, such as an allergen, has been ruled out by your doctors, the diagnosis of intrinsic asthma is appropriate, especially since you report having severe infection symptoms (nose closing, etc.) weeks prior to your severe asthmatic attacks. Thus, it seems your asthmatic problem is secondary to that precursor infection. I trust you have had sputum cultures in order to try to identify the bacterial factor.

But the cause of intrinsic asthma is rather difficult to diagnose even, as in your case, in the presence of classic symptoms. There is always the possibility of your having both types coexisting. This can occur.

The steriod drugs you mention taking will help relieve the symptoms, but they will not get at the basic cause.

I should also mention that a mental state will exaggerate symptoms, and this factor cannot be overlooked.

Otherwise drugs such as expectorants (to loosen phlegm in coughing) and bronchodilator drugs to facilitate breathing during attacks are helpful.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a woman 62-years-old and am in reasonably good health. However, for the past two and a half years I've suffered from leg cramps during the night after retiring.

My doctor has recommended vitamin D and calcium, but this does not help. In fact, I've been extra careful about not eating dairy products, especially cheese. This worries me.—Mrs. H.W.

It appears that you are working at cross purposes with your doctor. He is diagnosing a lack of calcium and vitamin D in your diet, and is prescribing supplements to make up for that. You are avoiding the foods that are highest in both calcium and vitamin D. Unless you cannot, for some reason, eat dairy products, you should be getting a fair share of them in addition to your supplements.

There are other causes for leg cramps such as faulty foot mechanics and circulatory disorders. An examination would rule these out.

What's a Tort? Look in This Book

Do you know what a tort is? Not the cream-filled layered dessert, but the legal "tort"?

It's an injury or wrong committed, either with or without force, to the person or property of another.

If you didn't know that, you're a good prespect for "Legalese. for the Layman", a booklet published by the Canadian Bar Association and the Legal Society of Canada.

Besides a dictionary of explanation from Abstract of Record to Writ, the booklet includes an explanation of judicial nomenclature.

If you're interested write the Law Society of Upper Canada, Osgoode Hall, Toronto, Ont. or the Ontario Branch of the Canadian Bar Association, 67 Richmond West, Toronto.

There's a new organization aimed at making you more interested in animal-vegetable protein combinations.

The Canadian Vegetable Protein Association wants to make the consumer more aware of the economic and nutritional value of protein products made from plants in conjunction with animal protein.

It's a representative body which will speak for manufacturers to the federal government on regulatory matters, quality standards and the like.

The address is Suite 504, 797 Don Mills Road, Don Mills, Ontario.

Have you ever heard of the Bureau of Intellectual Property? It's not part of a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta but a real department of the federal government of Canada. They're the folks who protect the rights of inventors and writers with patents and copyrights.

The Bureau of Intellectual Property is part of the ministry of Consumer and Corporate affairs which functions solely to encourage and develop a competitive market system which is fair to all, businessmen and consumers.

Its responsibilities are wide ranging: product safety, textile labelling, consumer complaints, consumer information, misleading advertising, combines investigation, bankruptcy, patents and copyrights, trade marks, industrial designs, weights and measures and electricity and gas inspections all fall under its jurisdiction along with the inspection of meat, fish and agricultural products at the retail level.

Formed in 1967, the department has aimed at developing new consumer protection laws, administering and enforcing legislation efficiently and keeping Canadians informed on all matters of interest to consumers. It administers, among others, the bankruptcy act, combines investigations act, consumer packaging and labelling act, hazardous produce act, pension fund societies act, and participates in the administration of the food and drugs act.

The local district office is located at PO box 308, 212 Federal Building, Belleville.

VON nurse Anna Maloney presents Valerie Truax with farewell gift.

VON Honors Supervisor

A banquet at the Sun Luck Gardens was held Thursday evening to honor Valerie Truax, who has been promoted from her post as District Director of the Quinte Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, to VON Regional Supervisor.

Miss Truax will begin her new duties in September, supervising an area that stretches from North Bay to south-western Ontario, with Belleville as its most eastern point.

VON staff joined the VON boards of directors and public health and home care nurses in congratulating Miss Truax, who came to Belleville in 1970 as head nurse for the VON. Since then the branch has expanded to include offices in Cobourg, Bancroft, Brighton and Campbellford.

Miss Truax will continue to live in Belleville.

Social Notes

Hope Lutheran Church, Mackenzie, British Columbia, was the scene of the August 2 wedding of Elinor Roblin and James Thomson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roblin, Belleville; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomson, Belleville.

Pastor Rempel officiated at the evening candlelight ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an a-line embossed organza over satin gown with empire waist and round neckline. Her fingertip veil was of silk illusion and she carried a cascade of red roses. The bride also wore her grandmother's three strand pearl necklace.

Peggy Thul, the maid of honor, wore a yellow crepe gown with white picture hat. She carried yellow daisies and white baby's breath.

Bridesmaid Carol Lloyd wore a mint green gown and white picture hat and carried yellow daisies and white baby's breath.

Peter Langevin, Belleville, was best man assisted by Keith Lloyd.

A dinner and dance was held at Alexander Mackenzie Hotel.

The couple will reside in Mackenzie, B.C.

Mr. Kort graduated from the Brockville Collegiate Institute, studied at Queen's University, continued on through Queen's Law School and received his LL.B. He then completed the Bar Admission course at Osgoode Hall in Toronto leading to his call to the Bar.

Mr. Kort's wife, Diane, is a native of Belleville and they have one son, Kees Jr.

Garden Club Annual Awards

Belleville's Garden Club will hold its annual Trillium Award program again this year with recognition to gardens in the residential, commercial, industrial and institutional categories.

Properties within the city limits are eligible for judging on overall effect from the street.

Nominations can come from the owner, friend or neighbor. To nominate yourself or another gardener, write the Belleville Garden Club, Box 923, Belleville.

The deadline for nominations is August 30.

Judging will take place from September 1 to 10.

CROSSING GENERATIONS

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A tiny tot attending the Tamalpais nursery school, after observing the senior neighbors in the Redwoods retirement home across the street, suggested: "Let's visit those old ladies across the street." The nursery school teacher thought it a good idea and it was arranged. Now, once a week the little ones bring smiles and happiness to the faces of the older ones.

DRINKS IMPROVE

Summer drinks look especially attractive when the rims of the glasses are frosted with lemon juice and powdered sugar.

Hearns — Forsythe

Wooler Holiness Church was the setting for the July wedding of Susan Elisabeth Forsythe and Randy Blake Hearns, in a service conducted by Pastor John Heyer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Forsythe of R.R. 1, Wooler, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hearns of R.R. 3, Frankford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace with A-line skirt, puffed sleeves, and waist-length veil held by a headpiece of white rosettes. The bridal bouquet was of peach colored roses and fern.

Jane Forsythe, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid in a peach gown with puffed sleeves and stitched bodice. She carried a bouquet of white snowball, orange lilies and yellow daisies. The flower girl, Micki Forsythe, niece of the bride, wore a peach gown identical to the bridesmaid. She carried a nose-gay of white snowball and yellow daisies.

The ring-bearer, Gordon Forsythe, nephew of the bride, carried the rings on a white satin pillow. Bob Istead of Trenton, was the best man. David Hearns of Stirling was the usher.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Wooler Community Centre, and a dance took place later in the evening.

After a honeymoon at Four Seasons Hotel and a cottage near Sharbot Lake, the couple took up residence at Fraser Drive in Batawa.

Ann Landers

Clean Home Now Man's Duty, Too

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to respond to that male chauvinist who wrote, "American women are the filthiest housekeepers in the world." He closed with this gem: "I hope somewhere there's a mother who is teaching her daughter the beauty of a clean home."

Strange how many men seem to think that only a wife should clean the house. I believe if two people live together, they should BOTH help keep the place clean since both of them are dirtying it up.

Now that nearly 40 per cent of the country's work force is female, men ought to realize they have a responsibility to pitch in and do their share at home. It's also time fathers taught their sons the beauty of a clean home.—No Maid Service In Austin

Dear No Maid: Take that and that and that, you lazy, good-fer-nuthin' husbands with working wives! The Little Woman who is slugging it out in the asphalt jungle deserves a lift with the household chores. So get off your piazzas and pitch in!

Dear Ann Landers: I am sending you something that was written by Ruth J. Reynolds at the University of Missouri extension center. I hope you will print it, because she says something that needs to be understood by parents and children everywhere. Here it is:

Parents are people who were once children—children who got a fair shake or a bad break from their parents.

Parents get confused by all the information and misinformation they receive from too many professionals.

Parents have their own needs which may not have been satisfied by their parents, by society, their environment or their education.

Parents would like their children to have the best in education, looks, intellect, friends, food, clothing and success.

Parents feel guilty when their children don't have the best and don't measure up to their expectations.

Some parents may have to raise a child by themselves, without help from a mate. It's not easy. Most parents do the best they can with the knowledge they have and the support society provides, even though they themselves may suffer from unfulfilled needs, frustration and disappointment.

Parents need empathy and encouragement from each other, from their children, friends, teachers, doctors and other professionals.

Before we say, "It's the parents' fault," we should stop and think that if we had borne that particular child, under the same set of circumstances, if we had that parent's background—then but for the grace of God we might BE that parent.—Sent By A Friend

Dear Friend: My thanks to you and Ruth J. Reynolds. She makes some excellent points. I applaud her keen insight, compassion and understanding.

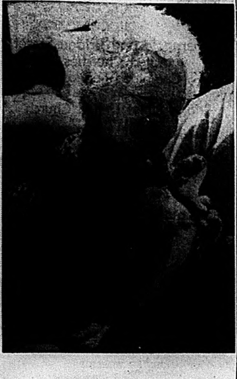
Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 16-year-old girl who wants to know if I'm wrong to feel this way.

My mother wants a complete report every time I go out with a guy. She asks, "Did he kiss you? Did he keep his hands where they belong? Did he ask you to go all the way? Did he talk about any other girls?" And on and on.

When I tell her I think she is nosy she gets mad and says, "You tell your girl friend everything, why not tell me?"

What is your opinion of this, Ann? I trust your advice.—A Daughter

Dear Daughter: Some daughters WANT to discuss such details with their mothers. Others do not. Since obviously you do not, I believe your mother shouldn't quiz you.



Turtle Lady

The 'Turtle Lady' of South Padre Island, Texas, Mrs. Illa Loetscher, holds one of the turtles she keeps as star boarders in her home. To amuse herself and visitors, she has knitted sweaters for them. One turtle . poncho and sombrero and cuts quite a figure. (CP Photo)

Widow Has Family of Sea Turtles

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND, Tex. (CP) — A widow in her mid-70s has earned the title of Turtle Lady because she helped save a species of the marine reptiles from extinction.

Illa Loetscher, who lives on this southern tip of an island in the Gulf of Mexico, has a family of sea turtles. Ten years ago, Mrs. Loetscher became interested in the Ridley turtles when she moved to South Padre after the death of her husband, a Swiss engineer.

The turtles had disappeared some 20 years before from the island, killed for their delicate flesh and beautiful shells.

A local sportsmen's club started a project to bring the almost extinct turtles back to the island. Not much is known about the sea turtles except it is believed the females return to the place of their birth to lay their eggs. But only after seven years.

Mrs. Loetscher joined the club. Eggs were brought from Mexico where the turtles were almost extinct and hatching began.

Mrs. Loetscher's interest in turtles prompted her to build a large wooden cage in a nearby lagoon and she keeps a dozen large turtles to study their habits.

Last year, one Ridley turtle returned after the seven years, proving the theory correct. She laid 117 eggs, but only 16 hatched.

Mrs. Loetscher and other members of the club formed an escort as the babies crossed the sand to the sea to prevent predatory enemies destroying the young turtles.

Mrs. Loetscher kept one turtle to study. But she pointed out it will be seven more years to verify completely the instinctive return of a female to her birthplace to lay her own eggs.

French Housewives Demand Pay

LONDON (Reuter) — British feminists are demanding wages from the government for ironing, cooking, dusting and other chores.

The wages-for-housework campaign is gathering strength here and it wants payment not just for wives who do the cleaning for their husbands.

"Housework is putting on lipstick," Selma James, the New York-born organizer of the movement, said in an interview here.

"We spend time being women instead of living. Women not only slave away doing the housework, they also spend time dressing in certain ways, dieting, tinting their hair and being sympathetic to men. Even sex is part of our duties."

"Our definition of housework includes a man whistling at a woman in the street as well as the housewifely functions we are expected to perform in an office," she said. "And yet we are not paid a penny for this vital contribution to the state."

Mrs. James and several thousand militant supporters are fighting for around £40 a week and held a public meeting here recently to publicize their demands.

"There is a lot of money around," she declared. "Of course the state can afford to pay us. The cash could come from an extra tax on company profits."

Mrs. James argues that because of the present harsh economic climate in Britain, now is the right time to launch the campaign.

"Women are going to be used as shock absorbers for the crisis. We are the ones who will be fired first because they will say we have men to depend on."

A housewife works 24 hours a day for seven days a week. But she gets no recognition, no money she can call her own and is often forced to go out to work and take on a second job as well, according to Mrs. James.

"No myth is farther from the truth than the one which describes so-called working women as 'liberated'—they just have additional work and are never free of household chores. They wear overalls as well as aprons."

Wages-for-housework supporters justify their claims by saying that men could not perform their work without women. If women left home at 6 a.m. every day, men would have to stay behind to get the breakfast, clear up, do the shopping and washing and look after the children.

"You simply cannot change diapers and make cars at the same time," said Mrs. James.

But getting men to help in the house is, apparently, no solution.

"We want slavery abolished, not shared," she said. She is married, and said her husband accepts her ideas. Wages are the only answer so women can buy more free time to pursue their own interests, she added.

Mrs. James claims that the money-for-housework wages should come from the state, rather than individual men "because the state represents all the employers for whom we—the invisible workers who comprise more than 50 per cent of the population—make the profits. The whole economy would collapse without us."

Once women received wages, sex would no longer be a duty given in return for a housekeeping allowance, but would be a pleasure indulged in at will, she argued.

Representatives from Canada, the United States, Israel, Italy, West Germany, Switzerland and Ireland were among those attending the London conference held by the wages-for-women movement.

It plans a May Day rally every year and is considering strike action in home and factory.

REALIZE THEIR DREAM

VANOCUVER (P) C— What the members of the Maplewood Child Care Society call "the realization of a dream" is nearing completion on the banks of Seymour River in North Vancouver. It is a combined day care, out of school care and pre-school centre with an adventure playground and park and an adjacent children's farm with animals and garden plots.

St. Paul's Cathedral Imperilled by Traffic

LONDON (CP) St. Paul's Cathedral, often called the parish church of the Commonwealth, is in danger. At the moment traffic and pollution give the greatest cause for concern and while not as immediate as the problems of the Great Fire of London in 1666, experts place the fabric of the cathedral in just as great peril.

Vibration from traffic can accelerate movements in the structure redesigned and rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren in 1674. Also high-frequency air-borne vibrations can set up resonances in vertical features such as parapets and statues which can loosen pointing and lead to rapid decay.

However, only substantial one of London's busiest thoroughfares would eliminate this problem.

Pollution in the air is responsible for the decay of the stonework and although London's air is the cleanest it has been for many years, the products of the internal combustion engine combine with rain to form acids that are literally dissolving the cathedral.

The present Dean of St. Paul's, Rev. Martin Sullivan, sees his greatest task as looking after the magnificent building with which he has been entrusted.

"St. Paul's is not just a national monument, it is a living cathedral," he said in an interview. "On this slight eminence of Ludgate Hill, it has on its west side Fleet Street, the centre of communications, and to the east of us is the City of London with the Stock Exchange, the finance houses and the Bank of England.

"Surely here is the place from which we can continually challenge men to recall that the real issues are not of profit and loss."

When Sir Christopher Wren's design for the great dome of the cathedral was being laid out for the stone masons, the surveyor to the fabric of the new structure called for a piece of stone to be brought from the debris of the old cathedral destroyed in the Great Fire.

He wanted to put it at the centre of the plan as a reference mark for the builders. A laborer pulled a flat stone from a great heap of rubbish and brought it to the surveyor.

It was part of a tombstone bearing one word of a Latin epitaph "Resurgam" - I will rise again.

So the new Wren masterpiece rose from the ashes of the old church, and now, in the crypt of Wren's cathedral, an exhibition has opened to mark the 30th anniversary of the placing of the foundation stone.

Dean Sullivan, opening the exhibition, said it was not 300 but 1,300 years' occupation of the site that was being celebrated.

All previous churches perished by fire, the last in 1666, but the present cathedral survived the fire caused by the blitz in the Second World War and now is well protected by the latest fire detection and prevention system.

The exhibition to mark the third centenary of the foundation of the cathedral is housed in the crypt and takes the visitor, in texts, echings and photographs, from the Great Fire to the present day.

Solutions Rewarded

EDMONTON (CP) — Donovan Dean Clayton, a civilian plumber-steamfitter at Canadian Forces Base Edmonton since 1954, recently received a $2,000 merit award from the department of national defence. The department said Mr. Clayton has saved it more than $2 million because of suggested solutions to difficult technical problems.

Religion Best Remedy For Ills of Mankind

By
Dr. Gordon C. Smith

Sooner or later everybody experiences trouble. If we know what remedies are inadequate or counterfeit, we will be closer to the cure when trouble comes.

One suggestion is pleasure. Of course, it has its place. A change is often as good as a rest. Pleasure can be a tonic, if it is a means to a worthy end. However, under the narcotic of undisciplined merry-making the torture of mind or spirit never lets up. It continues to throb, only now it is complicated by cowardice and squandered energy. Thus pleasure has no balm of healing left in it.

Another suggestion is the stoic one. The Stoics of old declared that there is a remedy for trouble. They labelled it "apathy". Steel yourself against circumstance. People are often impressed by the sight of this sort of courage. But I recommend rejection. After all, what deadens pain kills joy as well.

A third suggestion is work, Critics are seldom crusaders. Idlers usually tell you they are too busy for this or that community service. If you want to get something done, ask the busiest folk. The most active people dissolve many of their troubles in activity. But if work is something in which you are engaged simply to do nothing afterward, it presently loses its therapeutic value

Jesus, often called the Good Physician, has prescribed the religious cure. On the eve of Calvary he said to the apostles, "Let not your hearts be troubled; believe in God. believe also in me" (John 14:1).

As Dorothy Sayres wrote of the meaning of the Incarnation and the Cross: "God had the honesty and courage to take his own medicine. He has kept his own rules and played fair. He has himself gone through the whole human experience. When he was a man, he played the man. He was born in poverty and died in disgrace, and thought it well worth while."

So God in Jesus Christ became bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh, sharing our human situation to the full in order to help us believe in Him and in life. In the midst of experience at its worst He showed us God at his redemptive best.

Surely this is the comfort that we need. At any rate, it is what God offers in every generation.

Full Dinner Plate Kills His Appetite

MONROVIA, Calif. (AP) — The waitress set the laden plate in front of him. He stared at the heaped, steaming slices of white chicken, the brown dressing, the sauces and side dishes. Memories swept him. He couldn't eat.

"My appetite vanished," said Rev. W. Stanley Mooneyham, president of World Vision International, who had just returned from a visit to projects in hunger-stricken areas of Asia.

The remembered sights of starving human beings, along with the thought of how much food would be thrown out from that one over-filled restaurant plate, left him a bit sick.

At such moments, he said, when the memories come, when in mind he sees again the thin faces, the hollow eyes and hears the cries of the hungering young, "I do not sleep well. Or eat comfortably."

Dr. Mooneyham, 49, a lanky Baptist clergyman who heads a fast-growing global operation that combines tending both spirit and body has become a wide-roving, outspoken champion of the "fourth world"—the earth's underfed millions.

"The world can be fed," he wrote in an analysis of the problem entitled What Do You Say to a Hungry World?

He maintains the resources and technology are available to feed 10 times the world's present population "if we had the will."

"We have virtually everything we need except the determination to apply it" he said. "It would require changing some of our systems and scrapping others, but there is nothing sacrosanct about the systems."

Although Dr. Mooneyham, once the head of international relations for the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, is of the evangelical wing of Christianity, he holds that deeds of service are indispensable to proclaiming the Gospel.

"Great violence is done to the Gospel if it's separated into social action and evangelism," he said in an interview. "They're the Siamese twins of the church. They go together. Neither makes sense without the other."

That broad-dimensional approach is a hallmark of World Vision, a non-denominational Christian agency whose scope of work has zoomed in a period of economic squeeze when most church programs barely have held their own.

It's operations have doubled in the last six years. Its budget rose 34 per cent last year to more than 13 million. The climb is even steeper so far this year, an estimated 45 per cent, with corresponding expansion of work.

From headquarters here in Monrovia, the organization carries on projects of child care, emergency relief, vocational schools, economic development and ministerial training in 30 countries, mostly the poorer nations of Asia and Africa.

This year, the agency's 25th anniversary, it is putting prime emphasis on serving the hungry and stimulating American awareness of their needs. Part of the effort, called Project FAST, is headed by Senator Mark Hatfield, a Republican from Oregon.

"We have a choice," said Dr. Mooneyham. "Change our life-styles a little or watch millions die of starvation."

He spends about nine months of the year in travel, checking on the organization's far-flung varied projects. Unlike most evangelical groups, the organization shies away from sending American personnel overseas, relying instead on indigenous national workers. Of more than 2,000 overseas workers, only about a dozen are Americans.

"Our philosophy is different from groups that want to perpetuate an institutional name," he said. "We're there to support the national church leadership. We think it's better, smarter and cheaper to help them do the job themselves. It's on a partnership basis."

"Actually, he added, Christian overseas work is becoming a "supercultural, supernatural family of faith," free of the old Western paternalism and with Western churches providing only backup resources and specialists.

He said the main battle these days, stressed in his extensive lectures and writings, is against the economic imbalances that drive the hungry toward "the end without ever knowing a beginning."

For them, he adds, the old religious question is reversed, "Is there a life before death?"

Grant Awarded for Second Phase of Culture Centre Study

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The second phase of a $75,000 study into a proposed $2.17 million community arts centre to be located at Loyalist College should begin in September following consideration by the college board of governors, says Wilf Wilkinson, board chairman.

Mr. Wilkinson said during a Thursday press conference at the college the board will discuss an announcement that the provincial ministry of culture and recreation will grant $50,000 for the study's next phase at its Sept. 4 meeting.

The first phase, the results of which were unveiled in a 56-page report at the conference, has been conducted since last September under a $25,000 grant from the provincial ministry of colleges and universities.

The report recommends a 1,200-seat flexible-use auditorium located at the college and available for all types of cultural activity. The study is being conducted by Dixon-Bailey Associates Ltd. of Toronto, a consulting firm.

Mr. Wilkinson said the board will likely re-appoint an ad hoc committee which has been investigating the proposed facility for about 2½ years. It is composed of representatives from both the college board and the Quine Arts Council.

This second phase will cover final program specifications, architectural design and fund-raising development. Mr. Wilkinson said there is no target date as yet for either the study's final conclusion or for the beginning of proposed construction if the final report says the project is feasible.

The first phase assessed the needs of arts groups and residents of the four-county area served by Loyalist, developed a preliminary program and space requirements, estimated capital costs, conducted an analysis of markets, revenues and costs and investigated preliminary fund-raising possibilities.

The report says auditorium seating in the proposed centre would be permanent on a ramped floor but auditorium capacity should be capable of reduction to 600 seats or less.

The stage would be fully-equipped for drama, music, film, dance and a variety of other potential activities. Lighting, stage-rigging, sound systems and dressing rooms centre would be permanlnt on are all provided for in the program.

Consultant Bob Bailey emphasized the centre would be a regional concept serving Loyalist's four-county area and the college location was selected as the centre point.

"Capital and operating costs of a theatre at Loyalist would be minimized in comparison to an independently-situated facility," he pointed out. The college would operate the auditorium and a college employee would co-ordinate community use through Loyalist's extension department.

Mr. Bailey also related there was an initial 1968 study conducted by both the college and the arts council which started the whole concept of a centre — "the first major attempt at assessing a need for an arts centre for the area."

Funding Mission Warmly Received

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

In one of her last official acts as mayor, Robin Jeffrey, accompanied by city manager Wilbur Purcell and three councilmen once again approached the province to solicit funding for the Quinte Sports Centre.

The municipal contingent of the mayor and aldermen George Zegouras, Jean Smith and Ben Corke accompanied by architects for the project met Friday with Robert Secord, director of sports and recreation for the province.

The meeting was to discuss possible provincial funding for the project, inaugurated by the Belleville Yardmen, to supplement the $60,000-$70,000 raised every month from the organization's local lottery, said Mrs. Jeffrey.

They were told if the city assumed title to the project, with funding still originating with the Yardmen, the sports centre would be eligible for a total of $375,000 in grants, she said.

"We received a very encouraging response from Mr. Secord who said he would be talking with Robert Welch, minister of the provincial agency," said Mrs. Jeffrey, who officially resigned as Belleville mayor Friday afternoon to become a full-time candidate for the Sept. 18 provincial election.

In a second meeting, the Belleville party met with a representative of Wintario to establish if the city would be eligible for lottery funds, and were told they might receive grants.

"Once again we received a very encouraging response from Mr. Louis, the man in charge of dispensing Wintario funds, who said it was high on their priority list to establish a sports complex in eastern Ontario," Mrs. Jeffrey said.

An application is being forwarded to the city and it appears funding from Wintario for as much as one-third of the project cost, could be available said Mrs. Jeffrey.

The Candidate's Portrait

As part of his campaign promotion, Keith MacDonald, candidate for the Prince Edward-Lennox Liberal party nomination was in the photography studio of Lloyd Thompson in Picton Friday. Mr. MacDonald hopes to carry the Liberal banner in the riding of Prince Edward-Lennox after the party convention Monday night at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Labor Wants Election For New City Mayor

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Quinte District Labor Council has come out swinging against the results of an Intelligencer survey which revealed a majority of city aldermen favor appointing a mayor.

City Council goes behind closed doors Monday at 4 p.m. to decide how it will handle the mayorality vacancy left by the resignation of Mayor Robin Jeffrey Friday. Mrs. Jeffrey has resigned to devote more time to her bid for election Sept. 18 in the Quinte riding.

Doug Sword, president of the local labor council representing between 7,000 and 8,000 members in Quinte, said Friday the council executive favors an election and objects strongly to council appointing a mayor from within its own ranks.

"Those sitting on council have received a vote of confidence from the electorate for aldermanic positions not for the position of mayor," said Mr. Sword.

Mr. Sword said the balance of term, about one-and-half years, is too long for council to proceed with the method described in the survey. The survey revealed that eight of 10 aldermen favor appointing a mayor from its own ranks. The survey was conducted in the wake of Mrs. Jeffrey's resignation speech last Monday.

Three aldermen, Ben Corke, Paul Russell and Jean Smith, have indicated they will bid for the mayor's job. Alderman Art Keegan said he wil lseek the post if an election is called but not by appointment.

Mr. Sword said those aldermen seeking the mayor's seat should have run in the mayorality race last November instead of allowing Mrs. Jeffrey to be acclaimed.

Concerning the cost of a municipal election, Mr. Sword said the aldermen were not too concerned about funds when they approved the additiona lstones to be placed in cement along the new Dundas St. East Blvd. This apparently cost the city between $13,000 and $14,000 for the stonework a feature the Dundas St. West Blvd. does not have.

One civic official has been quoted as saying a municipal election could cost between $12,000 and $13,000. Many aldermen have maintained this money could be used for better purposes than an election.

By using the appointment method Mr. Sword said the aldermen are denying other people from running in the election. He said there may be several labor candidates interested in seeking the post However, he did not reveal any names.

Mr. Sword also said the labor council objects strongly to city council going behind closed doors to solve the problem. "It's a public issue and people should be aware of each step in the process," he added.

Alarm Box

The Belleville fire department responded to the following calls between 8 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday:

Friday 8:45 a.m. — Firemen were called to the house of Roger Johnston of McFee St. when a television set was reported smoking. Little damage resulted.

10:15 a.m. — The building fire alarm was signalling. — A false alarm at the Parkwood Apts., 217 Bridge St.

12:26 p.m. — A grass fire was reported in an empty lot on Parkdale St. No related damage.

1:50 p.m. — Grass fire reported in the North East Industrial Park. Firefighters report some of the buildings were endangered but were able to control the blaze which took three hours to extinguish.

4:15 p.m. — Firemen were called to wash off gass spill in the parking lot of Amodeo's Super Save on N. Front St.

4:53 p.m. —Grass fire was reported on Bell Blvd. behind Elliott Motors. No related damage.

Nixon Bets Beer

Liberal leader Robert Nixon wagered a beer Friday with an ex-Hastings County resident skeptical about the election outcome in the riding of Hastings-Peterborough, a Conservative stronghold.

Mr. Nixon made the bet while visiting a senior citizen's home after a day of campaigning in the Oshawa area.

While chatting with the residents of the home, Mr. Nixon struck up a conversation with Jack Moss, 66.

Mr. Moss told Mr. Nixon he originally lived in Hastings county north of Belleville.

"Oh, we just might win that one this time around," Mr. Nixon said.

"You and who else?" Mr. Moss retorted.

Mr. Nixon eventually ended up wagering a beer on his party's chances.

District Bell Service Held Up

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Bell Canada spending cutbacks are expected to affect the Belleville and Trenton district, the area manager said Friday.

"The rural construction program has been almost stopped to slow down capital expenditures," Bob Carleton said in a telephone interview.

Provision of new services to rural areas and subdivisions beyond Belleville and Trenton boundaries may be delayed for months, he said: "I can't be more specific."

Bell Canada officials said Thursday it is cutting down on telephone service because federal regulatory authorities will not allow the company to charge high enough rates to subscribers.

The company says a waiting list for new residential telephone services in central Canada (including Belleville) is growing as Bell prepares it budgets for wages and equipment.

"This wil lbe a continuing process at this point in time," said Mr. Carleton.

Priority of future jobs, he said, will be determined after evaluation of cost to the district and the number of customers who will benefit from the expense.

Critics have lashed out at Bell charging officials with attempting to intimidate federal officials into permitting higher charges.

On Friday NDP federal leader Ed Broadbent described service delays as "very close to explicit blackmail" of the government.

Ken Rubin of Action Bell Canada, which regularly opposes Bell's applications to the Canadian transportation commission for higher rates said the action represents "a typical pattern of intimidation by Bell."

He suggested Bell is trying to soften up the CTC, to which it must apply for all rate increases, before public hearings on its latest rate application starts this fall.

"Our revenues are down and we adjusted to this earlier in the year," said Mr. Carleton.

He said about 1,300 Bell Canada employees lost during the year through resignations and retirements have not been replaced.

Bell, which operates telephone services in Ontario, Quebec and part of Northern Canada, launched the cost-cutting program this month.

Company president Jean de Grandpre said it is a direct result of the CTC's July 28 decision awarding the company only half of its most recently sought increase.

Mr. Carleton said he did not as yet know how seriously the cost cutting program may affect service inside Belleville and Trenton.

R. J. Neill, general commercial manager for the central region, said waiting time for new residential telephones is expected to stretch into several months by the end of the year, "depending on when we get an improved rate situations."

Mr. Neill said the number of applicants waiting for service in the Ottawa area is expected to increase from 150 to 200 persons to about 1,500 to 2,000.

Bell Canada was awarded only half the $28 million rate increase it had sought July 28. Consideration of the other half was deferred until after further hearings later this fall.

Following the decision, said Mr. Neill, management ordered a $50 million capital spending cut.

Bell has decreased cable purchases. A company spokesman said Thursday that a new subdivision in Stouffville, northeast of Toronto, will have to wait until next March for service.

Mayor's Goodbye

Mayor Robin Jeffrey's last official act Friday saw her descend the stairs from her second-floor office at city hall shortly before 4:30 p.m. and personally deliver her letter of resignation to William Moreton, deputy-city clerk. It was accomplished quietly and without fanfare. Mrs. Jeffrey resigned as mayor to concentrate on her campaign as Conservative candidate in Quinte riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election. City council must either appoint an alderman to the vacant post or call for an election at its Monday meeting.

CENTENNIAL

Phyllis Reeve of the Bank of Montreal, Front and Bridge Streets, sizes up a T-shirt design proposed to help promote city centennial celebrations in 1978. The shirt is on display in the bank window.

Centennial Shirts Not Formal

Centennial T-shirts depicting Belleville city hall are on display at the Bank of Montreal on Front Street, but have not been formally approved by the celebration's publicity committee, said Larry Kells, chairman of the event.

"The idea for the shirt was introduced to me last week by a representative of Tri-Art, Ltd. and Robin Jeffrey and I turned it over to the publicity committee for consideration, but to my knowledge the idea has not been approved," Mr. Kells said.

Mr. Kells said he thinks the idea will be accepted by the committee and explained Tri-Art officials went ahead with the plan "after seeing the encouraging response the mayor had to the proposal."

Different Views on Return to School

MARTIN VOGT

Martin Vogt of 45 Dennett Blvd., enters Grade 8 at St. Michael's Academy said: "I'll probably like it at first but I wish the summer holidays weren't over." He said he went to Florida and played baseball during the summer. He doesn't expect any problems in Grade 8.

JIM STECKLER

Jim Stckler of 9 Hope Cres., will be starting high school this year. "I'm not looking forward to it at all. I don't like the idea of making kids wear suits." Jim will be going to Nicholson Senior. "They make you wear them in 90 degree weather."

KAREN GLEN

Karen Glen entering Grade 6 at Prince Charles, said she's looking forward to going back. "I just like all the subjects. I like science best." She said she enjoyed camping most this summer. The prospect of having a new teacher this year doesn't bother her.

TERRY GRIMSON

"Having to wear a suit bothers me," said Terry Grimson of 324 Foster Ave., entering Grade 7 at St. Michael's Academy. He spent the summer working for the Roman Catholic Separate School board cleaning boilers and helping a friend deliver newspapers. He said he'll be happy to be resuming classes.

BRENDA ELLIOT

Brenda Elliott of Main Street in Foxboro said she hasn't been doing anything special this summer. She enters Grade 12 at Centennial. "I did well in Grade 11 and I'll do well this year if I keep at it." She said she would rather have more time off.

Twins' Rookie Is a Believer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Obviously, Vancouver's Dave McKay believes in the power of suggestion.

"Just before I left Tacoma, Dick Renick said to me, 'Why don't you hit a home run your first time up like I did,'" McKay related Friday night.

So when he stepped to the plate for the first time in the major leagues in the third inning of Minnesota's game against Detroit, he took Renick's suggestion literally and walloped the second pitch from Vern Ruhle 356 feet into the left field seats.

The blow snapped a 1-1 tie and the Twins went on to defeat the Tigers 8-4. Elsewhere in the American League, Boston Red Sox edged Chicago White Sox 2-1, Baltimore Orioles downed Texas Rangers 8-5, Cleveland Indians knocked off Kansas City Royals 9-5 and New York Yankees turned back California Angels 5-2. Oakland and Milwaukee were rained out.

McKay became the 42nd player in major league history to hit a home run in his first time at bat. The 41st was Detroit's Reggie Sanders last season. For the record, Renick, McKay's Tacoma team-mate, turned the trick for the Twins July 11, 1968.

Following McKay's blast, Phil Roof also homered and Dan Ford added a home run later on while reliever Bill Campbell blanked the Tigers on two hits over the last four innings.

"The Twins gave me the silent treatment when I came into the dugout after I hit it," said McKay, who joined the club as a replacement for regular third baseman Eric Soderholm, who suffered two broken ribs when he fell into a manhole while inspecting some suburban lakeshore property.

"I wasn't expecting it, but then after a few moments they all came over and congratulated me," he said. "After four years in the Twins' farm system I was hoping to be called up at the end of this season once I was through playing in the Pacific Coast League.

"But I guess I didn't expect to make it quite this soon. I guess it was the tops in my thrill book."

After his home run, McKay, who was hitting .257 at Tacoma with seven homers, grounded out and flied out.

Roger Moret hurled a four-hitter and Boston nipped the White Sox on Dwight Evans' solo homer and a run-scoring single by rookie Fred Lynn. Evans homered in the fifth and the Red Sox scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth when Carl Yastrzemski singled, stole second, continued to third on catcher Brian Downing's wild throw and scored as Lynn poked a single through a drawn-in infield for his 89th run batted in, tops in the AL.

Elrod Hendricks hit a two-run homer to key a four-run third inning and Don Baylor hit a two-run shot in the fifth as the Orioles remained 6 games behind Boston in the AL East.

George Brett's throwing error gave Cleveland two of its four first-inning runs and the Indians held on to beat Kansas City, dropping the Royals seven games behind rained-out Oakland in the AL West.

Chris Chambliss drove in three runs with his eighth homer and a single and Jim (Catfish) Hunter won his 17th game with a five-hitter.

Larry Parrish

Colbert and Parrish Team Up for Expos

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers weren't the least bit upset when San Diego Padres decided to dispatch Nate Colbert to the American League during the winter.

He may not have done much against anyone else but Colbert is a longtime nemesis for the Dodgers and Friday night he showed why.

Back in the National League, in the colors of Montreal Expos, Colbert entered Friday night's game with a less-than-fearsome .147 batting average.

But in one swing he ruined an apparent Dodger victory. Colbert slugged a pinch home run in the ninth inning off Doug Rau to get the Expos even at 1-1, then Larry Parrish popped a two-run homer in the 12th off Al Downing to win it 3-1.

Ron Cey's seventh-inning homer, his 16th of the season and his 75th run batted in, appeared to be enough for Rau, who was heading for his second shutout of the season.

NATE COLBERT

But Colbert ended that when he homered on a 1-0 pitch to lead off the Expos' half of the ninth inning.

Mike Marshall replaced Rau, pitched his way out of a jam, and then Al Downing took over in the 11th. He escaped one bit of trouble but after walking Mike Jorgensen with one out in the 12th, Parrish unloaded his eighth homer.

For Downing, 2-1, it was his first defeat in more than a year. He hadn't been beaten since Aug. 13.

The Dodgers now have scored one run in their last 22 innings. They were shut out Thursday in Chicago, 7-0.

Rau was superb for eight innings and so was Expos' rookie left-hander Dan Warthen, who gave up only three hits in eight innings—one of them Cey's homer in the seventh.

Bob Bailey collected half of Montreal's eight hits, all of them singles.

For Parrsish, the two-run homer produced his 48th and 49th runs batted in, tying him with Jorgensen for second on the club to Gary Carter's 55.

Now It's Cincinnati On the Skids in NL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The red-hot Pittsburgh Pirates and slumping Cincinnati Reds—a slight reversal of form?

A week ago, the Pirates were stumbling through a six-game losing streak—four of them in Cincinnati—and the Reds were on a nine-game winning spree.

But not any more. It's what you call your basic about-face. Both are on four-game streaks—but it's the Bucs who are winning and the Reds who are losing.

"I think our slump is over. We're aggressive again at the plate," Dave Parker said Friday after his dramatic two-run homer in a four-run eighth inning catapulted the Pirates to a 4-2 victory and a twi-night doubleheader sweep of the Reds. Two-run singles by Craig Reynolds and Rennie Stennett in a five-run sixth inning and Richie Zisk's two homers carried Pittsburgh to a 7-2 victory in the opener.

The twin-killing of the Reds widened the Pirates' National League East lead to 1½ games over Philadelphia, which edged San Diego 6-5. In the rest of the league, Atlanta defeated St. Louis 9-5, New York beat San Francisco 6-4, Montreal trimmed Los Angeles 3-1 in 12 innings and Chicago downed the Astros 6-5 in 11.

DAVE PARKER

"We've had troubles, but we're getting it back together," said Parker. "And the big guy, meaning Willie Stargell, says he'll be back in the lineup Monday, so that's good news."

Stargell, recovering from a cracked rib, was out of the lineup during the Bucs' recent 2-12 road trip. "Maybe it's best that we got it out of our system then," he said.

And what about Cincinnati's sudden downturn? "When you're hitting the ball, there's no such thing as a slump," says manager Sparky Anderson. If that's case, the Reds are in a bad one. They managed just 11 hits in the twinbill against starters Larry Demery and John Candelaria and reliever Dave Giusti, who appeared in both games.

Still, it's a harmless slump. Cincinnati leads Los Angeles by 16 games in the West.

Mike Schmidt's two-run homer in the ninth inning vaulted the Phillies past San Diego and kept them within striking distance of the Pirates. Dick Allen, who had homered earlier, doubled with one out before Schmidt sent his 29th homer into the left field bleachers.

Rookie Rob Belloir drove in four runs, two with a single in a six-run sixth inning, to lead Atlanta past St. Louis and drop the third-place Cards four games back of the Pirates.

The Mets gave Tom Seaver a five-run lead in the first inning and he needed all of them to become the first 18-game winner in the league. Rusty Staub's two-run homer highlighted the burst that kept fourth-place New York from falling more than 5½ games back of the Bucs.

An error and Jose Cardenal's bunt single gave the Cubs two 11th-inning runs and their victory over Houston.

TRADES RECEIVER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins traded wide receiver Cotton Speyrer to Miami Dolphins on Friday for an undisclosed future draft choice. Speyrer previously played for Baltimore Colts of the National Football League.

Weslock Scores No. 5.

TORONTO (CP) — Nick Weslock shot a 72 Friday to win his fifth Ontario seniors golf championship.

Weslock, 57, finished with a 145 total to beat first-round leader Herb Carnegie of Newmarket, Ont., by three strokes.

A change in the tournament's minimum age limit to 55 from 50 will make it more difficult for golfers to match his victory total in the future. The lower limit was in force when Weslock became a senior.

Carnegie dropped back to runner-up spot with a 148 total after shooting a 76 Friday. Herb Epstein of Toronto was third at 151 and Stan Fesuk of Hamilton fourth at 155.

Jack Littler of Mississauga, Ont., topped golfers at least 60 years old wih a 150 total.

Other winners were Alan Tutty of Thornhill, Ont., who topped golfers 60-64 years old with 153, Littler, who led golfers 65-69 and Sandy Norton of Dundas, Ont., who had a 165 total to lead golfers 70 and over.

Canadians Hang On To Shade Colombia

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada hung on for an 8-7 win over Colombia and Puerto Rico edged Italy 5-4 Friday night as the eight-country, round-robin Intercontinental Cup baseball tournament moved to Montreal after 14 games in Moncton, N.B.

The results gave Canada six points in Group A, equal to Japan and Puerto Rico, but the Japanese are undefeated in three games while Canada has a 3-1 record and Puerto Rico is 3-2.

Italy fell to 2-3, good for second place in Group B behind the 3-0 mark of the United States, while Colombia is winless in four outings.

Canadian starter John Osborne needed last-out help in the eighth inning from Fred Cardwell after giving up three runs that pulled Colombia back into contention after Canada had led 8-2.

Humberto Bayelo's run-scoring ground ball and a two-run single by Abel Leal preceded a walk to Herrero Castro and spelled the end for Osborne. Cardwell caught Wilfrido Tobinson looking at a third strike to end the rally, and retired the side in the ninth.

Marty Maxwell and Dennis Lindstrand each drilled a two-run triple for Canada, with Lindstand trotting home after his hit when second baseman Bayelo fired the relay from the outfield into the stands for his third error.

Leal's RBI single in the bottom of the first and Marcial Del Valle's run-scoring hit in the second gave Colombia a 2-0 lead, but Kevin Keith singled in a run in the third for Canada.

Longshot Winner of Feature

A surprise finish highlighted the Corby's Special Select at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway on Friday night.

The winning horse, Lucky Homedale, had the odds against it, but came through with the win, Harry Burkitt at the reins.

The purse was $800 and a Corby's cooler was presented as well.

It paid off to bet on Lucky Homedale to win and Charity Chick to come in second, as the exactor paid $471.70 for the combination. Pat Hunt drove Charity Chick to the second place position.

Another big payoff came in the seventh, when Presto Heel, driven by Vince Gemmitti, came in to pick up a $325 purse. Second went to Boyceland Magic, with Larry Zebedee driving. The payoff on the exactor was $237.

The best time of the night came in the ninth. The race was run with the winner coming in at 2:09.

Guy LaRush still heads the driver listings, though he has been inactive at the QER in recent weeks. His total is 20 wins, followed by Pat Hunt at 14 and Larry Zebedee with 13. Brian Bellamy is next at 11. Jack Harry and Ed Weeks each has seven wins.

In the percentages Guy LaRush leads at .471, then Brian Bellamy at .446 and Pat Hunt, also at .446. Gord Whyte with a .429 and Arli MacDonald at .412 are next in the driver standings.

Esso Midgets Take BMLA Title

A and D Esso wrapped up the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association Midget crown Thursday night, defeating Union Local 183 4 - 3 in the second game of a two game total goals series. A and D had taken the first game of the set 9 - 5 to win the series 13 - 8.

Gord Male led the winners in the well-played game with a pair of goals, with Roger Chapman and Brent Walmsley adding the others.

Andre Hall, Jeff Runciman, and Larry Inwood each tallied once for the losers.

The game was one of four that will decide the house league champions throughout the BMLA. The other three games will be played Saturday, starting with the Novice game, at 10 a.m. The peewees game commences at about 11:15, while the bantams will take to the floor at about 12:30 p.m.

The midgets played the game Thursday night to allow most of the players on the team to travel to the Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association playdowns in Toronto on Saturday.

Look Before You Leap

Black Diamond's Myles McDonnell appears to have evaded Brooke Bond catcher Bob Pozzo on this play at the plate during Friday night's Belleville Industrial Softball League final playoff opener. However, Myles leaped too high and missed the plate. He was tagged by Pozzo. But Black Diamond didn't need the run as it turned out. Brooke Bond fell grudgingly in an extra inning, 6-5.

Brooke Bond Is Tough Luck Team

Brooke Bond played the part of the hard luck team in Friday night's Belleville Industrial Softball League best of seven finals opener, and came out on the short end of a 6-5 score, in eight innings, against Black Diamond.

Brooke Bond, the third place finishers in the league's east division, had to come right back from their semi-final series which was completed only Thursday night with The Intelligencer, and face the powerful Diamond team, West pennant winners, with only one pitcher.

The pitcher, Ross Geen, had his problems. After pulling up lame after stepping in a rut in the pitching area in the third inning, he was grounded in the eighth frame after taking a wicked shot, off the bat of Tim O'Connell, directly in the abdomen. The ball bounced off Geen so hard that it rolled nearly under the player's bench, at the Alemite.

O'Connell eventually scored the winning run after reaching first on the play. Lou Rivers was called in from third base, where he had played very well, to throw after Geen was unable to continue, walking the first two batters to load the bases.

Ron Andrews then stepped in, and after taking two pitches, laced a single through the hole at second to score O'Connell and end the game.

Black Diamond opened the scoring in the first inning, with a walk to Gene Francis, two infield outs, and a single by Ron Bateman adding up to a tally.

The Bondmen came back with a run in the top of the second, after Dave Middleton connected for a solid triple to left field, continuing his torrid hitting from Thursday's game with The Intell, in which he ripped a pair of home runs. Middleton scored on a base hit by Jack Walsh.

Black Diamond came back with one in the bottom of the frame and scored once in every inning but the third. The losers tallied twice in the fifth and sixth to tie the score, sending the game to extra innings.

Brooke Bond did come out on the top of the hit parade, lashing out 15 hits off Black Diamond pitchers Ron Andrews and Bateman.

Rivers had four singles in five appearances at the plate to lead the way, while Middleton had his triple, adding a base hit. Ron Stratton, Al Colden, Jack Walsh, and Bob Pozzo each had a pair of safeties, with Geen and Larry Bilham adding one each.

For the winners, it was O'Connell doubling twice and adding a single in their 10-hit attack. Jack Francis connected for a fifth inning triple, while Mark McDonnell doubled in the second. Checking in with a single each were Andrews, Bateman, Terry Hiddleston, Doug Stewart, and Howie Meeks.

Bateman got credit for the win, in relief of Andrews Bateman pitched the last two and two-thirds inning, allowing only three hits, walking one and fanning two. Andrews lasted five and one-third frames, touched for 12 hits. He walked one and fanned one.

Geen was the loser allowing nine hits. He struck out two, but suffered control problems, walking nine before being gunned down on the mound. Rivers pitched to only three batters, walking two and allowing the game winning hit by Andrews.

The second game of the series goes Monday night, at Queen Elizabeth Public School, with game time set for 6.30.

Bayview Orchards In; Ameliasburg Is Close

Bayview Orchards advanced to the finals of the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League Thursday night with their third consecutive win over Belleville J. Goodes in their best of five semi-final set. Bayview took the third game 5-3.

Dennis Snell and Don Bonter shared the win for Bayview, allowing 10 hits. They walked two and struck out one. Sonny Holoway was tagged with the loss, fanning five and walking one while giving up seven hits.

John Allison led the winners at the plate, with a double and two singles in three trips to the plate, scoring three times. Four players had two singles each for the losers.

In the other semi-final game, Consecon defeated Ameliasburg A's 9-2, to take a 2-1 lead in the best of five series. The fourth game in that matchup will take place Sunday night, in Ameliasburg. Game time is 7 p.m.

Young Sailors Are Learning

TRENTON — Passing boatmen near the CFB Yachting Club need not be alarmed by the sight of four or five small albacores, (a racing sailboats,) capsized during the summer months.

It is all part of a sailing program for local youths.

More than 70 Trenton and Belleville youths have been learning sailing, boat care and racing techniques during one of two month-long instructional courses at CFB Trenton's Yatch Club, this summer.

Sponsored by the base yatching club, the program is open to all youths, from off and on the base who are interested in "action learning" said Major Peter Detracey, Junior Commodore for the CFB fleet.

"We don't want them to sit in hot classrooms all the time they are here," he said. "We concentrate on learning by doing things."

The only requirements for entrance into the course are to be between the ages of 10-16 years old and to pass a swimming test administered at the beginning of each season.

"The younger, less experienced sailors have a four-hour session each morning when the winds are lighter and there is less chance of them having trouble," the major said. "Some of the better sailors from the later session help the instructors with the morning group giving them all more valuable assistance."

In the afternoon the more experienced group takes to the bay under the scrutiny of the two full-time instructors.

Racing techniques are emphasized with more sophisticated procedures learned and practised during the afternoon meeting.

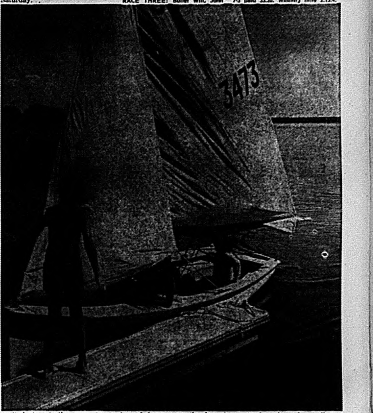
"We have the students spend at least 80 per-cent of the time on the water, racing and studying under actual conditions," Major Detracy said. "We try to make it as much fun as possible so the novices want to learn, and introduce skilled games for the more experienced sailors."

The students can check their progress during the course against a large objective board which is periodically revised by the instructers indicating the youth's developing skills.

The students derive part of the learning experience from exchange visits with other local sailing groups, holding regattas with Picton and the Bay of Quinte Yacht Clubs.

"We want to interest more Trenton people from the base and off the base to take the course," said Major Detracey. "It's easier for the youths to come to the base on their own if they are from the area while if they come from Belleville they have to be driven over by parents."

The cost for the four-week program is $40 for club members and $45 for non-members.



Students at the summer sailing course offered by the CFB Trenton's Yachting Club docking after a morning of lessons on the bay. The course, for youths 10-16 year-old, is structured in two parts for the more advanced and novice sailors, with an emphasis on practical training.

Sport Briefs

PRESIDENT RESIGNS

WARSAW (CP) — Stanislaw Nowosielski resigned Friday as president of the Polish Sports Federation after criticism of his handling of scandals in Polish sport. Affairs came to a head in June when Poland's Olympic sabre champion Jerzy Pawlowski was arrested for spying. Nowosielski was criticized for allowing a too permissive altitude in sport.

CHAMP WINS

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP) — Rocky Mattioli, welterweight champion from Australia, defeated Fernand Marcotte of Quebec City on a technical knockout in the ninth round of a scheduled 10-round bout Friday. Marcotte, 27, has lost five of 51 professional fights.

ORANTES MOVES UP

BOSTON (AP) — Manuel Orantes is closing in on Guillermo Vilas in the race for the $100,000 top prize in the 1975 Grand Prix tennis series. Orantes, winner of the Canadian Open at Toronto last week, has a total of 449 points, 71 behind Vilas, last year's winner. The grand prix links major tournaments around the world with a point system leading to $750,000 in bonus money.

PLAY IN SWEDEN

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Milt Black, who played last season for Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, has had a successful tryout with Sodertalje of the Swedis Hockey League. Also, it was announced Wednesday that Kevin O'Shea, a forward for the National Hockey League's California Seals will play for Timra of the Swedish semi pro league. And Morris Mott who picked up 10 goals and 10 assists with the WHA's Minnesota Fighting Saints has signed with the Vastra Frolunda team of Goteburg.

INCREASES LEAD

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Hans Fromming, 65, of West Germany, has widened his lead over Herve Filion, 35, the French Canadian driver, in career harness victories. The United States Trotting Association said Fromming has 5,304 triumphs going back to 1926 while Filion, from Angers, Que., has 5,298 since winning his first race in 1953. Filion has won 90 per cent of his races with pacers while Fromming has won all of his, except one, with trotters.

COSMOS PLAN TOUR

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League announced Friday a 12-game, eight-country exhibition tour with their prized player, Pele. The tour will take the club to Montreal, Istanbul, San Juan and other stops.

Saskatchewan Defence Sometimes Overlooked

REGINA (CP) — So much attention is paid to the offensive exploits of fullback George Reed and quarterback Ron Lancaster that the defensive talents of Saskatchewan Roughriders usually are overlooked.

This season is no exception.

The Roughriders have scored more points than any other team in the Western Conference and have given up only one point more than Edmonton Eskimos although Saskatchewan, which meets Ottawa Rough Riders on Sunday afternoon in a Canadian Football League interlocking game, has played one more game.

It's somewhat surprising that the defensive squad has stood up so well through Saskatchewan's first five games—four wins and one loss for sole possession of first place—because two of four players named to the all-star team last season are missing this season.

Gone is Pete Wysocki, whose linebacking abilities impressed many observers more than they satisfied, Saskatchewan general manager Ken Preston. Also absent, at least temporarily, is safety Ted Provost, injured in a pre-season exhibition game.

Canadian Bob Clarke, unsuccessful in an attempt to make Edmonton last season, has helped fill the linebacking gap and a series of adjustments have been necessary to replace the brilliant Provost.

A new problem has surfaced since Jack Abendschan has been suspended. He will not play Sunday. Ivan MacMillan, picked up after British Columbia Lions let him go, probably will handle Abendschan's kicking chores.

Ottawa has troubles of a different sort, caused by a hairline fracture to fullback John Bledsoe's ankle. His absence will force Jim Foley to remain out of position and increase pressure on rookie quarterback Condredge Holloway.

Holloway has given most eastern teams trouble with his scrambling this season. However, he was controlled Thursday as Calgary Stampeders whipped Ottawa 23-6 in the first half of the Rough Riders' annual western swing.

The Ottawa loss was the fourth in a row for Eastern Conference clubs in interlocking games this season. Saskatchewan administered two defeats, nipping Toronto Argonauts 14-12 and Montreal Alouettes 24-20.

Saskatchewan is on top of the WFC standings with four wins and one loss. Ottawa has won two of five games, tied with the Argos for second place behind league-leading Montreal.

The game will be televised by the CTV national network at 4:30 p.m. EDT.

Now, Geiberger Faces A Mystery Challenger

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — With the spectre of Jack Nicklaus reduced to a wispy shadow, front-running Al Geiberger faced a new mystery challenge today in the third round of the Tournament Players golf championship.

The mystery was not exactly who, but how much and how many.

A torrential Texas thunderstorm interrupted play Friday, capturing some 34 players on the course and preventing at least two contenders from completing play.

Hubert Green and John Schlee, both at three under par, were among those booked for sunrise action today—Green at the next-to-last hole and Schlee at the 18th.

Geiberger toured the sultry 7,190-yard Colonial Country Club course in two-under-par 68 Friday for a two-shot lead over two players who finished before the storm hit.

Geiberger's 66-68—134 provided a semi-comfortable cushion over Dave Stockton and Bob Dickson, fighting his way out of a severe slump.

Stockton stripped five shots from par on the front nine for a record 30 Friday, finished with a 64 despite bogeys at 10 and 12 and was in at 136 with Dickson, 67-69.

George Knudson of Toronto had a 74 Friday after an opening-round 76.

The shocker Friday was Nicklaus, twice a winner in major events this year and the defending TCP champion. He shot a whopping 75 after opening with a 67 and his 142 total left him eight strokes off the pace.

The Quebecois Get Must Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Quebecois grabbed a much-needed win in National Lacrosse League action Friday night, but for Long Island Tomahawks it was simply a case of padding their record.

The Quebecois took a 12-8 decision at home against Quebec Caribous to move into sole possession of second place, two points ahead of Philadelphia Wings.

Meanwhile, before 4,179 fans at Uniondale, N.Y., the Tomahawks downed Maryland Arrows 18-11 to increase their mark to 29-16.

Al Gordaneer scored four goals as the Tomahawks pushed their record-setting goal total to 754. Paul Warden contributed three.

Jan Magee and Dave Wilfong scored twice each for the winners, and Paul Suggate and Ken Henderson replied with two apiece for Maryland.

The Quebecois rebounded from a first-period deficit to down the Caribous.

Bruce Arena, Ross Jones, Serge Loiselle and John Davis each scored two goals for Montreal, while Brian Wilson led the Caribous with two goals before 4,576.

Action resumes Sunday night with Long Island at Maryland and the Wings invading Montreal to try to pull back into a second-place tie.

Host Pro and Unknown Share Lead

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — Host pro Al Kennedy and unknown Ron Wells of Portland, Ore., took advantage of good morning weather to shoot four-under-par 68s and share the first-round lead in the $20,000 British Columbia open golf tournament Friday.

They take a one-shot lead over four rivals into today's second round on the 6,405-yard, par-72 Quilchena Golf and Country Club course.

The 34-year-old Kennedy birdied five of the first six holes on the back nine en route to a four-under 31 while Wells, playing for the first time in Canada, missed only one green and sank five birdie putts of under 10 feet in length.

As soon as their rounds were completed, rains soaked the Quilchena course and the struggle for survival started as the temperature dropped to 10 degrees Celsius and the winds blew at 20 miles an hour.

Despite the downpour, amateur Muncie Booth of Vancouver and professionals Dave Barr of Kelowna, B.C., Tom Storey of Las Vegas, Nev., and Gord Hepp of Seattle, still finished with 69s.

Barr, who finished in a second-place tie last weekend in the Alberta Open at Calgary, said the wind was more of a problem than the rain.

"It was the wind that made it so cold," said Barr. "I had trouble holding on to the club at times."

Storey had one of the few eagles of the day when he hit a 30-foot sand wedge into the hole from just off the ninth green.

Booth led a strong amateur contingent from Marine Drive course in Vancouver. Besides his 69, clubmates Jim Marshall had a 71 and Jim Nelford an even-par 72. Nelford won the Canadian amateur last weekend in Saint John, N.B.

Pros Mark Ludeman of Burnaby, B.C., and veteran Frank Fowler of Calgary were two shots behind the leaders.

Besides Marshall, seven other players—all pros—were at one-under 71. They were Jason Paukkunen of Vancouver, Al Feldman of Auburn, Wash., Leo Bradshaw of Toronto, Ed Vossler of Oklahoma City, Okla., Moe Norman of Gilford, Ont., John Elliott of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Dean May of Palm Springs, Calif.

Pre-tournament favorite Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., came in with a 74. Panasiuk, winner of the Alberta Open, leads all money winners on the Canadian tour with $9,945.

Buck Houle Won't Be Back

TORONTO (CP) — John F. Bassett, president of Toronto Toros, confirmed Friday that general manager Buck Houle will not be with the World Hockey Association team this season.

Bassett said there was no hard feelings between Houle and himself.

"I've just decided we'd go without a general manager," Bassett said. "We're in the process of reorganizing, and eliminating the general manger's job we thought was a step in the right direction."

Houle, who has been with the team since it was formed as Ottawa Nationals, said that he should be relieved of his position "by the end of the month."

"I was somewhat disillusioned about the position," Houle said. "Bassett was the GM: He did everything but play."

"I just wish I was informed of the Toros' plans in May, so I could have found another job."

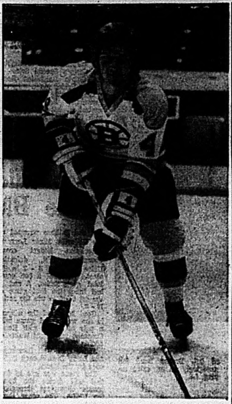
In the shuffle, Toros' vice-president Bob Giroux will assume the business end of the general manager's job and former director of player personnel Gilles Leger will take over the player end of the job as assistant general manager.

BRUINS SIGN TWO

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League have signed their first and second amateur draft choices, defenceman Doug Halward and centre Barry Smith. Halward played last season for Peterborough Petes of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series. Smith played for New Westminster Bruins in the Western Canada Hockey League last season.

TAKES TITLE

LIEGE, Belgium (Reuter) — Thomas Huschke became the first East German to win the world amateur pursuit title when he defeated Soviet Vladimir Osokin at the world track cycling championships Friday.



Bobby Orr

Boston Star Set to Jump?

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Boston Bruins defenceman Bobby Orr is on the verge of signing a lucrative contract with Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

The paper quotes an unnamed WHA trustee as saying: "If they (the Saints) have $1.5 million (the signing bonus) in the bank on Monday morning, Orr will be with them."

"The 14 teams have been asked to each throw in $100,000 for the signing bonus," the paper quotes the trustee as saying. "It's possible some of them will be unable to get it by Monday, so Minnesota will pick up the balance."

Orr has one year left on his contract with the National Hockey League Bruins. The Minnesota offer is thought to be a two-year deal calling for Orr to receive about $300,000 year.

Wayne Belisle, president of the Saints, said Friday that he had talked with Alan Eagleson, Orr's lawyer, and that negotiations were continuing.

"Each time you talk you feel you're getting closer," Belisle said. "I can't say I'll be seeing Eagleson today or tomorrow, but it will be shortly."

Out Of Court Settlement

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — A series of suits launched against and by Jimmy Connors have been settled out of court, the tennis star said Friday.

The suits date back to 1974 when Connors, who had won the Australian Open, first leg of the tennis grand slam, was banned from the French Open after signing with Baltimore Banners of World Team Tennis.

Connors retaliated with a $10 million suit against Commercial Union, sponsor of the Grand Prix tournament events; Jack Kramer, executive director of the Association of Tennis Professionals and Donald Dell, general counsel for ATP.

Kramer filed a $3 million action against Connors for libel. Then, in a counter claim, Connors hit Dell and Kramer for $5 million in slander.

Al Gordaneer Leads the Way

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) — Al Gordaneer's four goals paced the regular-season champion Long Island Tomahawks to an 18-11 win over Maryland Arrows in a National Lacrosse League game Friday night.

Paul Warden added three goals for the Tomahawks, who moved their won-lost record to 29-16, increasing their league record for wins in a season.

Jan Magee and Dave Wilfong scored twice each for the winners while Paul Suggate and Ken Henderson replied with two each for the Arrows.

Maryland held a 49-47 edge in shots on goal before 4,179 fans.

The Top Seed, Racko Slows Pace and Wins

OTTAWA (CP) — Alan Racko played one to three hours of tennis every day this year except Friday when he became champion in 12-and-under singles competition at the Canadian national junior tennis tournament.

"Today I only practised for half an hour," said Racko, the youngest winner at the closed tennis meet. "You can't play too much before a tournament or you'll be tired."

First seed in his class, Racko won 6-0, 6-1 over second seed Martin Wostenholme of Ottawa in final competition Friday.

The Toronto junior moves on to the international junior tennis competition here next week.

His female counterpart, Anne Merkeley of Penetanguishene, Ont., defeated Louise McDonald of Toronto 6-3, 6-1. Miss McDonald was unseeded.

The 14-and-under girls singles championship was taken by Karen Dewis of London, Ont., who scored an upset over first seed Carolyn Kates of Toronto, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2.

In boys 14-and-under singles play, finals will be decided today when first seed Robert Gordon and second seed Glen Michibata meet. Both are from Toronto.

In semi-finals Friday, Michibata scored 7-5, 7-6 over John Nicolls of Vancouver. Gordon defeated Richard Lewis of Toronto, 6-0, 6-1.

Tournament officials say finals will be played in all singles and doubles events today.

Boys 18-and-under singles brings together first seed John Picken of North Burnaby B.C., and fourth seed Bill Rennie of Cambridge, Ont. Friday, Picken bumped Richard Nakon who made a surprising rise to the semi-finals by upsetting seeds three and five.

First seed Marjorie Sutherland of Ottawa in the girls 18-and-under class will meet third seed Lisa Senn of Toronto in a final singles match. The girls teamed up to win a doubles match Friday over Julie Cobb of Ottawa and Laurie Roper of Toronto, 6-3, 7-5.

Girls singles 16-and-under finals will match Claire Lardner of Toronto with Wendy Barlow of Victoria. In semi-finals Lardner defeated Sally Cates of Vancouver 6-3, 6-2 and Barlow beat first seed Nicole Mariols of Quebec City, 6-4, 6-1.

In boys 16-and-under singles competition, Martin Lachapelle of Laval, Que., and Dan Whittaker of Toronto face each other today. Both scored upsets in the semi-finals. Lachapelle defeated Mike Puc of London, Ont., 6-3, 6-0 and Whittaker beat Greg Bell of Lions Bay, B.C., 7-6, 6-3.

Some Top Athletes Miss Pan-Am Games

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — It is unlikely Hugh Fraser of Ottawa will be going to the Pan-American Games in Mexico City in October, despite the fact he automatically qualified for the Canadian team with a win in the 100-metre race Friday at the Canadian track and field championships.

"It would be nice to go to Mexico City for the Pan-Ams," Fraser said. "They'll be a lot of good competitors there."

"I doubt I'll be able to go there, though. I'm in law school at the University of Ottawa and it's impossible to get three weeks off.

"I have to work during the school year, too, so I can't afford to take the time off."

Kathy Prosser of Cornwall, Ont., winner of the women's 3,000 metres, also will probably not go, but for another reason.

"The 3,000 is a new event," she said. "It's unlikely I'll be going there because of that.

"There's a lot of improving to be done in the 3,000."

Two Canadian records were set in field events on the opening day of the three-day meet at Laurentian University.

Murray Keating of Victoria set a record in the hammer throw while Bruce Pirnie of Winnipeg had a record-breaking performance in the men's shot put.

Other winners were Carmen Ionesco of Montreal in the women's shot put, Patti Loverock of Surrey, B.C., in the women's 100 metres, Richard Cuttell of Vancouver in the high jump, Jan Dahlgren of Vancouver in the javelin, and Jerome Drayton of Toronto, who captured the 10,000 metres, finishing ahead of Grant McLaren of London, Ont.

Keating, making a comeback after a back injury, had a throw of 67.46 metres to break his old mark of 62.48 which he set in 1973. Scott Neilson, who like Keating attended Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C., finished second, setting a Canadian junior mark with a throw of 65.46.

Pirnie, the veteran of Canadian national competition, won his fifth championship in the shot put with a toss of 19.77 metres, .10 metres better than the old mark held by Bishop Dolegiewicz of Montreal.

Pirnie is confident Canada will do well in the forthcoming games at Mexico City.

"I expect to throw over 20 (metres)," he said.

"We are planning on taking two medals. I think we should get first and third place at a minimum. I'm sure we'll do very well there."

Pirnie, 33, has been battling Dolegiewicz for top shot put honors in recent years.

"Bish won the pre-Olympic meet in Montreal last month," Pirnie said. "But I consider the national championship meet to be my own. I think we're good for each other."

Pirnie used his last throw to set the record before less than 400 fans.

There was one injury suffered during Friday's competition as Robert Martin of Paris, Ont., who finished second to Fraser, suffered a gash on his leg when he ran into a piece of track equipment.

The meet continues today with finals in the 20-kilometre walk, men's 110-metre hurdles, women's high jump, men's long jump, men's and women's 200-metres and men's and women's 800-metres. The meet concludes Sunday.

FILES LAWSUIT

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The University of Alabama filed a lawsuit Friday against the National Collegiate Athletic Association challenging the legality of rules recently adopted which limit the size of football squads. The suit asks that the NCAA be enjoined from enforcing the rules so long as athletes involved were under scholarship contracts approved before Aug. 15, the date the convention approved the regulations.

IN MEMORIAM

HOLLINGER — In memory of a dear uncle David who passed away August 23, 1974.
Gone but not forgotten.
—Sadly missed by Mary, Orley, Mabel, Maurice, Marjorie, Earl and families.

DALEY — In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. Della Daley.
We do not need a special day
To bring you to our mind.
For the days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more.
To see the face of mother dear,
Come smiling through the door.

DALEY — In loving memory of my sister-in-law, Mrs. Della Daley.
What would I not give to clasp her hand,
Her dear sweet face to see;
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
That meant so much to me.

McENVOY — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother who passed away August 24, 1972.
Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of her today
Are those who loved her best.
The flowers we lay upon her grave
May whither and decay,
But the love for her who lies beneath
Will never fade away.
—Sadly missed by Terry, Mary and Jackie.

HOLLINGER — In loving memory of our brother David who passed away August 23, 1974.
A golden gate stood open
One year ago today,
With farewells left unspoken,
You suddenly slipped away.
—Ever remembered by your sisters Martha, Bessie and Margaret.

IN MEMORIAM

HOLLINGER — In loving memory of my nucle, Mr. David Hollinger, who passed away August 23, 1974.
"Though he has gone from this life forever"
He is lovingly remembered by his niece Mabel and Maurice Reid.

NICKLE — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Albert Nickle who passed away August 23, 1972.
As time unfolds another year,
Memories keep you ever near,
Silent thoughts of times together
Hold memories that will last forever.
—Always remembered by wife, Freda and family, Grant, Edith, Eileen, Doris, Gerald, Gardiner, John and Ross.

KYD — In loving memory of a dear sister Maidie McKay Kyd, who passed away August 25, 1971.
The years may wipe out many things,
But this they'll wipe out never,
The memory of those happy days
Which we have spent together.
—Ever remembered by sister Iris, brother-in-law Donald and niece Donna.

HOLLINGER — In loving memory of a dear husband David L. who passed away so suddenly August 23, 1974.
Wonderful memories woven in gold,
This is the picture I tenderly hold,
Deep in my heart your memory is kept,
To love and to cherish and never forget.
Resting where no shadows fall,
In perfect peace you wait us all,
Our God above will link the chain,
As one by one we meet again.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Elizabeth Bessie.

PARKS, Freeman — In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away, August 22, 1968.
Although we smile and make no fuss,
No one misses him more than us;
And when old times we oft recall,
That's when we miss him most of all.
—Sadly missed by wife, Beryl, children Bill and Sylvia.

CARDS OF THANKS

Mrs. William Whalen and family wish to express their heartfelt thanks for the many tokens of sympathy, mass cards and flora tributes. Special thanks to all the priests, to the O'Brien-Steele Funeral Home at the passing of a loving husband and father William Whalen.

I would like to say thank you to friends and relatives for cards, flowers, gifts and calls. Special thanks to Dr. Mustard and staff of Sixth Floor for the care during my recent stay in Belleville General Hospital.
Frances Seames

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Shaw, Tweed, will be at home to their relatives, friends and neighbors on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary Sunday, August 31, 1975 from 1:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Best wishes only.

WHY PAINT
Siding on your home costs ½ the price of painting and protects your home from weather conditions. A coat of paint won't keep your home warm, so be smart — call today for a free estimate.

Your Sunday and Monday Horoscopes

For Sunday, Aug. 24

Aries (March 21-April 19) Don't waste time today trying to win over one who is unwilling to co-operate with your plans. She can't be sold at this time.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) You'll be able to conduct your commercial transactions today profitably if you keep all kibitzers out of the act.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Try not to take sides today in a sticky situation that will arise between two persons you're very fond of.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You are quite capable of achieving your goals today without resorting to pressure methods. Tact will take you to the top.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You tend to lack faith in your own ideas today. You shouldn't. They're good. They'll work if you'r, bold enough to try.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your day will be quite enjoyable if you dismiss thoughts of more material interests. Stop counting pennies. Have fun.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't close your ears today to advice offered by your mate. There is a constructive way you can use his suggestions.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're very enterprising and imaginative today. Channel your efforts toward a material goal. Today will prove profitable.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Others will find you attractive and appealing today. You're likely to command considerable attention wherever you go.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There are a few domestic priorities you'll be anxious to clean up today. You'll suffer some interruptions, but they'll get done.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) One who has been opposed to your plans can be swayed today if you present your reasons for your way in a logical manner.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You're far more self-sufficient at this time than you give yourself credit for. You won't, as you thought, have to seek assistance.

For Monday, Aug. 25

AIRES (March 21-April 19) You're very resourceful today, especially where self-interests are concerned. Something of personal value will be gained.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You must follow your hunches now. Act promptly to implement any innovative ideas. Tomorrow will be too late.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friends who are always on the go and like to be active are available today. Call them if you haven't made other plans.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Behaving rashly could hamper your plans and put you in a bad light in the eyes of others. Think before you act.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're still in a cycle where bold daring plans can be achieved. Put into operation that which you've been hesitant about.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be alert for the chance to become involved in a project someone else is masterminding. Participation could be very profitable.

LIBRA (Sept .23-Oct. 23) You might feel you're being pressed to do something which has not been well-thought-out. If you can delay, results will be better later.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You work well today with people who have new, fresh ideas. Try to associate only with this type if possible.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you have speculative desires or an urge to gamble today, go ahead. Follow your instincts. A GOOD day to play long shots.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It might annoy you to see one who is usually unreliable gain approval for a hastily accomplished task. This time, however, they'll deserve the praise.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Spur-of-the-moment happenings could be the most fun today. Keep your schedule clear.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) When fortune rings your bell, answer the first time. You have a chance to score, but you can't procrastinate.

Opening lead — 10 ♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Aces were made to take kings. At least they can take kings when the occasion arises. Furthermore, they should do just that most of the time.

South's four-heart opening was supersound. Even though North had dealt and passed there might well be a slam in the cards.

Actually, the way the cards lay there was no play for the game. This didn't keep South from making it with a little help from West.

He won the club lead and played three rounds of trumps. East discarded a couple of clubs. Then South led his king of diamonds. West looked the card over with disdain and played low. A second diamond was led and West had to take his ace. That left him on lead with no lead to make. A spade would set up South's king, or a club would give a trick to dummy's ace.

If West had thought things out thoroughly he would have seen that the correct play would be to take the ace of diamonds and lead a diamond right back.

This play would succeed against the actual holding or if South held the doubleton king-queen of diamonds. It would lose only if South held king-queen-small.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Vermont wants to know the correct rebid. You open one spade and your partner responds one notrump. You hold:

♠ A K Q 8 6 4 ♥ A 2
♦ A 4 ♣ 9 7 4

We recommend a jump to three notrump. You have eight apparent tricks at either notrump or spades. Why try for 10 when you can try for nine.

Joins Legal Firm

REGINA (CP) — Kim Thorson, former industry and commerce minister who lost his seat in the June general election in Saskatchewan, has joined the law firm of Griffen, Beke, Olive and Waller. Premier Allan Blakeney is a former partner in the firm.

For Small Business

TORONTO (CP) — More than $333 million has been lent to the small business sector of the Canadian economy since the Small Businesses Loans Act came into force in 1961, the Canadian Bankers' Association says. For the first three months of this year, loans more than doubled to $9.7 million f om $4.7 million during the corresponding quarter a year earlier.

Moving Eath

DIGBY, N.S. (CP) — The citizens of this southwestern Nova Scotia port place a wreath every year to honor local citizens who have been lost at sea over the years. The ceremony was postponed for one day this year because Hurricane Blanche struck the province. Capt. T. E. Connors, speaker at the ceremony, said Hurricane Blanche illustrates how calm waters can be transformed suddenly into moving death.

Geared To Income

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Housing Corp. has helped develop 3,872 public housing units in the province since it was established in 1967. Rents are geared to family income with rent subsidies shared by the municipal, provincial and federal governments.

Getting Too Easy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some school trustees say they fear too many students are graduating after seeing statistics that the number of graduates in Grade 12 has risen sharply. About 79 per cent of 1974 Grade 12 students graduated during the year compared to about 60 per cent the year before. Trustees said they feared it was getting too easy to receive a diploma.

Open Libby Dam

Canada Reaffirms U.S. Oil Cutbacks

LIBBY, Mont. (CP) — Canadian Energy Minister Donald Macdonald says his country is prepared to co-operate with the United States in finding ways of easing the energy shortage, but that Canada will not put her resources on the line.

Macdonald told President Ford Sunday that Canada still intends to phase out exports of natural gas and crude oil to the U.S. The minister said later any co-operation with the U.S. in energy-related matters would be based on enlightened self-interest.

Macdonald was in Montana to participate with Ford in the dedication ceremony of the $470-million Libby Dam on the Kootenai River, built under a 1961 Canada-U.S. agreement calling for joint water resources co-operation. Macdonald had a brief private meeting with Ford prior to the ceremony.

During his dedication speech Ford made several lengthy references to the 16-country International Energy Agency, a co-operative body put together primarily by the U.S. to help offset moves of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC). Canada is a member of the IEA.

Macdonald said both Canada and the U.S. can benefit by taking a pragmatic project-like approach to the energy problem but added that Canada's national policy and her own needs prevented a comprehensive package for a special North American energy deal.

Macdonald deleted the only reference to the IEA from his prepared text.

The energy minister said in an interview later that as an IEA member, Canada is "interested in co-operation in (energy) research projects," but he added:

"The notion of access to resources is . . . a broader application of the continental energy policy proposal which, of course, we do not favor.

"An international agency imposing a timing of development on Canadian resources would not necessarily be in our interest."

Ford admitted that each country had to cope with its own requirements first, but stressed that Canada's program of phasing out oil exports would mean a daily loss to the U.S. of about one million barrels of crude.

Ontario Storm Claims Two Lives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rains heavier than Hurricane Hazel in 1954 drenched southwestern Ontario on Saturday night and early Sunday, claiming at least two lives and causing extensive flooding and the evacuation of some homes.

Part of New Hamburg was under five feet of water early this morning as the Nith River, a tributary of the Grand, crested in that village about 15 miles west of Kitchener. No damage estimates were available.

Area Storm Effects

A spokesman for the Grand River Conservation Authority said minor flooding is expected to continue along the Nith—swollen to 9½ feet above its normal level through Ayr, Plattsville and Paris until midnight Monday night.

He said the flooding will be less serious than area residents experienced last April, but many have set up sandbag barriers to prevent damage.

Heaviest rainfall during the weekend was reported in the Orangeville and Mount Forest areas where close to five inches fell. Hurricane Hazel dumped 3.97 inches of rain in a 24-hour period.

Today's forecast calls for warmer, hazy weather with a chance of a thunderstorm late in the day.

Dale Ivan Long, 18, of Lindsay, Ont., died Sunday when he was swept into the Nith River about 30 miles northwest of Kitchener. He and four companions were trying to salvage scaffolding and plywood at a bridge construction site.

Another man, William Joyce, 37, of West Lorne, Ont., was killed Saturday when the car in which he was riding struck a large pool of water that had collected on a highway north of St. Thomas. The car left the road and hit a tree.

Smith Opposes Black Demands

VICTORIA FALLS (AP) — The Rhodesian constitutional talks between Prime Minister Ian Smith and black nationalist leaders are to open in a railway car parked on a bridge today with Smith still adamantly opposed to black rule and the Africans still demanding it.

There was speculation of a breakthrough following a last-minute announcement that Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa and President Kenneth Kaunda would preside at the meeting.

But Smith in a speech Saturday said his white minority government has "no policy to hand our country over to any black majority government, and as far as I am concerned, we never will have."

The African National Council (ANC), representing the black majority in the former British colony, is demanding immediate majority rule.

Smith said earlier that he might turn his back on the ANC and seek a political settlement with conservative black leaders amenable to continued white domination.

The scene of the opening meeting was a railway car parked on the Victoria Falls bridge over the Zambezi River, the border between Zambia and Rhodesia. But the two sides also disagreed over the future course of the talks.

Smith maintained they should agree on a declaration of intent, then set up committees to meet inside Rhodesia and discuss provisions of a new constitution. The ANC said its representatives would only negotiate on the border bridge. It feared that any exiled black leaders who entered Rhodesia to take part in the negotiations might be arrested.

News Briefs

Continues Investigation

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Two top-ranking police officers from the Peel regional force are going to Hungary to continue a two-year investigation in the death of Christine Demeter, 33, a former fashion model who was found battered to death at her home in July, 1973.

Commute Death Sentences

ATHENS (Reuter) — The Greek government decided today to commute the death sentences of former president George Papadopoulos and two of his deputies in the ousted ruling military junta.

Call for Death Penalty

QUEBEC (CP) — A resolution calling for enforcement of the death penalty was passed by a vote of 62 to 46 at the Canadian Bar Association (CBA) convention here Sunday.

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The U.S. Federal Trade Commission has ordered the manufacturers of Poli-Grip denture adhesive and Polident and Efferdent denture cleansers to substantiate advertised claims about their products.

Reagan Must Decide

WRIGHTSVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Ronald Reagan must decide soon whether to openly challenge President Ford for the Republican nomination next year, strategists for the former California governor say.

Parents Not Satisfied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The parents of Mary Jo Kopechne indicate in an article published by New Times magazine that they are not satisfied with Senator Edward Kennedy's account of the auto mishap that took their daughter's life.

Crombie Off to China

TORONTO (CP) — A trip to China has been arranged by the Canadian high commissioner for Toronto Mayor David Crombie, the mayor said in a telephone interview in Hong Kong Sunday.

Bus Drivers Halt Service

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland remained without cross-province ground passenger service today as a strike by its 43 Canadian National bus drivers entered its second day.

Police Chiefs Fear

TORONTO (CP) — Some Canadian police chiefs say they fear the public might resort to vigilante action to deal with murderers if the federal government continues to commute death sentences.

Will Investigate Practices

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is setting up a six-member team to investigate dishonest business practices, says an official of the ministry of consumer and corporate affairs. Donald Goudy, registrar of the ministry's consumer protection bureau, said in a weekend interview that alleged offenders will be taken to court under legislation passed earlier this year.

Need Basic Studies On Violence: Juneau

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Public concern about violence on television is growing constantly but more needs to be known about its effects and means of control, Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC), said Sunday.

He spoke at the opening of a 2½-day seminar sponsored by the CRTC at Queen's University, attended by leaders of the broadcasting industry, government officials, writers and leading university research workers in the social sciences.

Mr. Juneau, whose agency licenses and sets program standards for the broadcast industry, said the CRTC has considered having a formal public inquiry into the subject but believes more fundamental knowlege is needed first.

The seminar, drawing about 100 participants, was shown a National Film Board documentary on congressional hearings held in Washington in 1972 concerning a surgeon-general's report which declared television violence is harmful to children.

In the recorded testimony, it was stated that the major television networks gave the report scant attention, vetoed the participation of some research workers known to be hostile to them and let it be understood that television violence was not injurious to normal children.

Violence in entertainment dates from the earliest days of the printed word. Garth Jowett, an historian at the University of Windsor, traced it back at least as far as 1561 when Foxe's Life of Martyrs became a popular book because of his vivid descriptions of the gory deaths of Christian martyrs.

Bargemen Block Holland's Routes

AMSTERDAM (AP) — Dutch bargemen fighting a government plan to reduce the numbers of their craft blocked Holland's inland waterways today with 800 barges.

The barges sealed off more than 20 vital waterways at strategic points, making passage impossible for thousands of pleasure boats and barges not taking part in the protest.

However, the main international ports of Rotterdam, Amsterdam and Hook of Holland—were not affected by the blockade. The main Rhine River links with West Germany also were left open.

Leo Van Laak, 21, a member of the protest committee, said the barges might maintain the blockade for a month. But he said it was tentatively planned to last until Friday when Parliament is due to debate a proposed reorganization of domestic shipping.

The government plan includes new cargo-distribution programs that would reduce an estimated surplus of 1,000 barges totalling 400,000 tons.

Seaway Tolls May Increase

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — If current proposals are accepted, tolls on the Canadian section of the St. Lawrence Seaway will increase by at least 25 per cent, George Franklin, chairman of the Great Lakes Waterways Development Association, said Monday.

City Police Buy Taping System

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

The Belleville Police commission approved Saturday the purchase of a $15,000 taping system that will record all emergency calls made to the station.

The system, equipped with 35 tapes, provides instant playback of any calls.

"This is rather important," said Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Sometimes in an emergency people call while they are excited and blurt out a message and hang up."

The tapes, he said, can be re-used unless the telephone message is needed in court.

The taping system is being purchased along with a new $64,000 radio system to be in operation by next spring.

The Ontario Police Commission pays for 75 per cent of the radio system but does not help pay for the taping system.

Moderates Predict Goncalves Removal

LISBON (AP) — Political moderates continued today to predict the removal within days of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves in the wake of more civilian demonstrations and show-of-strength military manoeuvres by both sides in the power struggle.

Anti-Goncalvse army units had access to most of the approaches to Lisbon, but a light artillery regiment reported to be one of the few units backing the premier commanded the main highway on the northern outskirts of the capital.

Anti - Goncalves army units parked mobile howitzers at the gates of its barracks less than a mile from the Lisbon airport and stacked sandbags in defensive positions inside the camp. Anto — aircraft emplacements were manned by soldiers in camouflage uniforms.

At Leiria, 75 miles north of Lisbon, besieged Communists used fireworks and rifle grenades Sunday to drive back more than 300 anti-Communists trying to burn down their party headquarters.

The mob, which came from a Roman Catholic rally of 5,000 persons protesting the government's pro-Communist trend, ran for cover as 175 army commandos lined up in front of the party headquarters and fired into the air. There were no reports of injuries.

The Weather

Synopsis: Warm, unstable air will produce showers and thunderstorms in southern Ontario today with more thunderstorms tonight and overnight as a cold front approaches. Possible heavy thunderstorms and hail overnight. Partial clearing Tuesday with gusty winds and cooler temperatures.

PLO Wants Israel Out of United Nations

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Nineteen Arab countries and the Palestine Liberation Organization asked the Third World conference opening here today to join in a demand for Israel's expulsion from the United Nations.

The request to the conference of 78 self-styled non-aligned countries was unanimously adopted Sunday night at a four-hour Arab caucus, said Syrian spokesman Mouaffok el-Allaf.

This Syrian proposal and a Palestinian draft submitted earlier to the conference accused Israel of violating the UN charter by continuing to occupy Arab lands seized in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Big Island Had Big Disasters

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

BIG ISLAND — Located two miles north of Demorestville, on the Bay of Quinte, Big Island is a quiet, scenic area but, the island residents say the area was notorious during the late 1950s for a high number of airplane disasters.

Maurice Rich, of Minwandum Farms, became puzzled when he discovered pieces of tiny, twisted metal in his back field. He learned through a neighbor that a T-33 jet trainer crashed there in September, 1955. The metal pieces were missed by the clean-up crew.

The T-33 was on a routine training flight and was returning to Trenton when it suddenly dipped and blew up when it struck the ground, killing the two occupants and scattering the wreckage over a 10-acre field. The force of the explosion blew a crater eight feet deep in the ground.

Big Island farmer, Borden Wager, witnessed the crash that night and was the first person on the scene.

"There were a lot of small fires burning in the field," recalls Mr. Wager, "and there wasn't one piece of the wreckage so large that it couldn't fit inside a 45-gallon drum."

Mr. Wager remembers three other air crashes which occurred during that same period of time in the Big Island area. About a year later, a T-33 jet left a formation and crashed in the Bay of Quinte near the east end of Big Island. It exploded when it hit the bottom of the bay.

The same year, another T-33 crashed through the ice off the west shore of the island. The pilot was making a routine flight to check his jet trainer when suddenly he had no hydraulic control and with landing gear, wing flaps and speed brakes down he went into a tailspin.

The pilot did manage to eject himself and parachute to safety.

Some years prior, still another plane crashed through the ice off Grape Island, near the west end of Big Island. It plunged straight to the bottom, killing its occupant, added Mr. Wager.

Examine Old Wreckage

Michael Dickinson (left) of Stouffville, and Maurice Rich (right), owner and operator of Minwandum Farms, Big Island, examine pieces of wreckage from a T-33 jet trainer which crashed 20 years ago next month in the field where they are standing. The few remaining pieces still retain the faint odor of jet fuel. The jet was one of several T-33's which crashed in the Big Island area during the late 1950s.

Mishap Costly

TWEED —Damage is estimated at about $2,000 following a two-car collision about 12.44 p.m. Sunday on Highway 7 about five miles north of Tweed.

A vehicle driven by Donald Olmstead, 33, of Quebec, was in collision with a vehicle driven by Edgar Cohn, 45, of Maryland, said Madoc OPP.

There were three passengers in each vehicle. There were no injuries and no charges have been laid, said Constable Scott Robinson.

Car Rolls, Woman Unhurt

THOMASBURG — A Belleville resident escaped injury Saturday when the vehicle he was driving rolled on Fuller Road about 2½ miles west of here.

Chander Sharmfa, 22, of 66 Highland Ave., told police he lost control of the vehicle he was driving after he swerved to avoid an eastbound vehicle.

Damage is estimated at about $500. No charges have been laid. There were no passengers in the car at the time of the accident.

Hydro Cut After Crash

TWEED — Hydro was cut to parts of the village for about two hours Sunday after a car hit a utility pole guide wire near North Victoria Street about 2.50 a.m.

Daniel Lynch, 19, of RR 3, Tweed, and three passengers were not injured after the vehicle driven by Lynch hit the wire and stopped 10 feet from the Moira River, said Constable Tom Andrews, of Tweed Police.

Damage is estimated at about $200 to the hydro guide wire and about $500 to the car, said police.

Mounting Vandalism Concerns Police Chief

Vandalism is still on the rise in Belleville and the police department has decided a preventative program is the best way to combat the damage increase.

Chief Douglas Crosbie told a police commission meeting Saturday he has approached local school boards and they are willing to meet this fall in an attempt to develop an educational program.

"There should be more input into the educational system to teach respect of property," said Chief Crosbie.

"We feel a prevention program is probably the best way to reduce it," he said.

The department's second quarterly report for 1975 indicates willfull damage to private property has increased to 257 cases in the first six months of the year from 204 in the same period last year.

Cases of break and enter, assault and auto damage, however, have dropped.

Damage to public property, mostly schools, has remained about the same. There were 94 complaints in the first six months of this year and about 90 in the same period last year.

New Police Radio Will End Interference

No one likes hot muggy weather, but for the Belleville police department it results in more than discomfort, it's an interference.

In humid weather, he said, Belleville police messages are interfered with by messages from the Sheriff's office in Tomkins County, New York.

That's one reason why Saturday the police commission approved the spending of about $64,000 on a new radio system.

The Ontario Commission, which evaluated tenders submitted, pays 75 per cent of the cost. A tender from Motorola Canada was accepted.

"The sooner we get the new system the better," Chief Douglas Crosbie said Saturday.

Chief Crosbie said the interverence has not as yet caused any serious problems; Belleville police have not as yet attempted to answer orders from the American office, but it does make listening to the radio difficult.

Chief Crosbie said the problem began when the Sheriff's office across Lake Ontario installed a new antenna. The county, he said, is hilly so they located their powerful antenna in the southern part of the county.

In hot weather their messages bounce across the Lake and Belleville officers pick up messages from the American Sheriff's office and Belleville police headquarters.

The Sheriff's office, with new equipment, howevery, are able to filter out Belleville messages.

Joint Program Speeds Messages

Belleville Police Commission Saturday approved spending $64,000 and joining a province wide police communication program.

After the system is installed next spring, it will give the police department "much greated mobility" said Chief Crosby.

Using the new system, Belleville police personnel will not only be able to communicate with each other but they will be in contact with other forces.

The system includes three antennas, nine mobile units and 25 portable units.

"The sooner we get the system the better," said Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Alterations, said Chief Crosbie, may have to be made to the police building to make room for the new equipment. If necessary, he said, costs will be applied to next year's budget.

Tools Taken

A theft of about $60 worth of tools was reported to city police on Saturday, August 23, from the garage of Edward Stevens of 21 Octavia St., Belleville.

Police said the theft took place sometime between the dates of Monday August 18, and Saturday, August 23.

Sidewalk Stars

Three members of the musical group The Gad Guys entertain the shoppers at the Belleville Plaza Saturday afternoon as part of the plaza's sidewalk sale. Members Clyde Dawson (left to right) Gordon Stafford and Oscar Nesploi, all of Arden's Accordion Academy will be recording a album later this month to be released by the end of September.

Brief Thunderstorm Causes Little Flooding or Damage

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Quinte area residents can breathe easy for most of today before they have to endure a repeat of this morning's fierce thunderstorm which flooded Belleville's streets and interrupted power for about 30 minutes in some parts of the city.

A spokesman for the weather office at CFB Trenton said thunderstorm activity and more rain is forecast for tonight and Tuesday norning. A tabulation on the amount of rain which fell early today would not be known until after press time, he said.

Ontario Hydro reported only 12 trouble calls in six locations in the total area of its Frankford operating region which covers from Campbellford to Shannonville and almost to Tweed.

A hydro spokesman said there were only three automatic closures at the Belleville transformer station which merely blinked the lights. "Our protection equipment worked properly," he said.

A Belleville Utilities Commission spokesman said there were "a few" power interruptions in the city — the worst encountered between Adam St. and University Ave. in the industrial park area. He said the area was blacked out for about a half hour.

The spokesman added that there were two calls from the east hill and one from West Park Village. All interruptions involved blown transformer fuses and line switch fuses — no poles were hit by lightning.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville said although road conditions were hazardous during the storm, no calls were received from stranded motorists and there were no accidents.

Learns Hard Way

TWEED — Damage is estimated at about $2,000 following a single vehicle accident about 10:30 a.m. Saturday involving a driver with only 30 minutes driving experience.

Rebecca Alcock, 17, of Cloyne and her husband, Douglas, a passenger in the vehicle, were treated for minor injuries after their van slammed into a tree after leaving Flinton Road about 10 miles north of Tweed.

Constable Al Borger of Madoc OPP said Mrs. Alcock had gotten her driving learner's permit the morning of the accident.

Displays Antique Cars

As part of the Belleville Plaza's Sidewalk sale held this week-end, Ken Vivian of Shannonville displayed one the antique cars he has restored. His 1914 Ford Model T was one of three cars parked in the concourse of the plaza. "This car is not for sale but I've know some antiques sold for over $10,000," said Mr. Vivian.

Thieves Grab $40

City police reported today a breaw-in at the home of John Bleys of 233 Victoria Ave., Belleville, that occurred Friday night or early Saturday, August 24.

Access was gained police report through an unlocked back door with approximately $40 taken from a purse.

Two Held In Gas Theft

Two youths were arrested on a charge of theft by city police after a quantity of gas was stolen from a truck owned by Acme Plumbing and Heating on the corner of Henry and Everett Streets, Sunday morning.

Police said Mike Jeffrey Rushlow, 17, of 36 Mill St., Tillbury, and Larry Paul Aylesworth, 17, of 25½ S. Church St., Belleville, have been charged in connection with the incident.

The Canadian Armed Forces. A lot more than just another job.

Instead of looking for any old job, think about what the Canadian Forces could do for you.

You could join 'Combat Arms', in which case you'd lead a satisfying, rugged outdoor life.

You could learn a trade; anything from carpentry to electronics. And a man with a trade is set for life.

If you measure up, you could get into 'Maritime Command'. You could learn any of the trades associated with ships.

In 'Air Command', there are also many trades to choose from.

And if you show merit, you could be paid to go to school or university and further your education, maybe ending up as an officer.

The Canadian Forces has a lot going for you. A chance to do something worthwhile. A chance to travel. A chance to mix with people of similar interests. A future that's as good as you are.

Call your nearest Canadian Forces Recruiting Centre or Canada Manpower Centre and get all the information; from entry qualifications to pay scales.

Concessions by Israel Are a Key Element in Kissinger's Mid-East Diplomacy

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

However it works out in the very long run, Henry Kissinger's personal diplomacy in the Middle East crisis will remain as a tour de force in his career.

The Arab-Israeli conflict has lasted since the end of Second World War co-existing with the larger one of capitalistic-Communist stand-offs in the post-1945 world but far more dangerous than the latter.

Arabs and Israelis have fought each other four times since 1945—the 1948-49 struggle called the "war of Liberation" by both sides, the 1956 Suez war, the Six day war of 1967 and the Yom Kippur war of late 1973.

On the other hand the U.S.-Soviet relationship which has gone from the Cold War era of the late '40s and the atom bomb build-up of the early '50s to detente in the mid-70s, has not yet resulted in a clash of arms between Russians and Americans.

It is understandable why the Middle East ongoing crisis would be harder to "manage" at the personal level by a super-diplomat like Dr. Kissinger.

To fail ultimately means the conflicting nations would revert to yet another war with disastrous results and the possibility of an emnity, like the Islamic-Christian hatred of the Middle Ages, could last centuries rather than decades.

The proposals being discussed again during Dr. Kissinger's eleventh such trip to bring Israel and Egypt together, require major strategic and economic concessions by the Israeli government.

Under the interim agreement, Israel would give up all of the Mitla Pass and most of the Giddi Pass. These are the only two routes in the sandy deep or mountainously high Sinai Peninsula through which an army can move against Egypt.

She will hand back the Abu Rudeis oilfields which used to supply Egypt with most of her oil and since 1967 has done the same for Israel.

The immediate result of this will be a $350-million increase in Israel's already staggering balance-of-payments deficit to pay for imported Iranian crude oil, as well as the loss of self-reliance in the vital economy.

A deep, 30-mile long UN buffer zone will be created and American radar technicians joined by Israelis and Egyptians, will man the $60 million electronic surveillance network the Israelis built around the passes.

Egypt would pledge to keep on renewing the three year mandate of the UN Emergency Force, let Israeli shipping use the re-opened Suez Canal, cool down its anti-Israeli propaganda and perhaps most vital of all, promise not to support the many Arab states already opposed to any agreement by any Arab state with Israel.

Many arab states are already bitterly opposed to Egyptian President Sadat's support of such an agreement.

And in Israel, the country is clearly split over the major "give-aways" in the agreement, even though Israel will get a bumper $3 billion in the latest U.S. long-range jet interceptors, ground-to-ground missiles and tanks.

Overall, what must be borne in mind, that this agreement covers only one of the many pressure points between Arabs and Israelis.

The Golan Heights, the future of Jerusalem, the Palestinian homeland are all sources for a ne war, but are not included in this Egyptian-Israeli breakthrough, for that is what it must be called.

'Brutally Frank' et al

Quinte Information and Assistance Centre representative William Hockley wants to have his cake and eat it.

Referring recently to the report of field research worker Anne Walsaw, commissioned after the then Citizens' Bureau had sought government funds, Mr. Hockley said: "We asked for her to be brutually frank. We didn't ask for an unprofessional compilation."

Or as centre board of directors chairman Vera Heimbach was quoted as saying: "We didn't ask for a lot of gossip and rumor."

But wasn't Ms. Walshaw being 'brutually frank," and close to an accurate impression when she said, by way of concluding her report: "by presenting a high profile, a confronting stance and, if necessary, a polarizing style, the Citizens' Bureau moves away from the intent of the Ontario government's information centre program as outlined specifically in the criteria for funding."

The rest of Ms. Walshaw's report and Information Centre (former Citizens' Bureau) reaction to it — mainly hostile—have been documented. But one point she made was that the bureau's service was not equally accessible in effect, to all segments of the community because of the style in which it chose to operate.

Mrs. Heimbach and centre members deny this, pointing out that "outspoken enemies" have come to them for help.

No one disputes that the centre (as the bureau did before it) does a fine job in many ways, but if they wanted a frank appraisal of what the public thought of their modus operandi they got it in part at least from Ms. Walshaw.

Meanwhile, it is interesting to see that Donat Clement has joined the centre's board of directors. Mr. Clement, a civilian tailor at CFB, Trenton, led the citizen's committee established to bring public opinion to bear in favor of the Quinte shopping mall, after it had initially been turned down by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Klan Switches Course

There were times in the past when crosses were burned in the Quinte area, signalling the presense of the Ku Klux Klan.

The Klan is still around in the United States, but it reportedly has changed its image — from an organization professing hatred of and actively menacing blacks — to one that now accepts blacks more as equals.

But the Klan has undertaken another crusade: it has taken on the Communists — and attempts by them to undermine the security of the State through subversivt practices.

That information from a recent article.

The Klan is playing the Reds at their own game, infiltrating their ranks and by harassing tactics.

All the more surprising then to read of he Federal Bureau of Investigation revealed as having run a covert operation stretching over a decade to disrupt the Klan, by sowing divisions in its midst. The FBI, like the CIA, one would assume, is on the side of national inegrity, and against infiltration by Communism; but then these days it is difficult to know whose side anybody is on anymore.

Washington's zeal meanwhile for uncovering absolutely everything about the country's security people could negate any remaining effectiveness they ever had.

Wasting No Time

Observing the brisk — almost frenzied — pace of the construction work on the Century Place complex is to be impressed with what can be accomplished in a short time.

It is not often citizens have such a ringside seat, as it were, in the role of sidewalk superintendents.

True, there are deadlines to be met, but the pace the construction men are setting suggests they might even be showing off a little!

It is not that they are drawing crowds, but rather that anyone passing can see what is being done, see the giant crane moving the equipment to where it is needed, and the men working as a closely-knit team.

They belie any notion of a slack workforce in Canada. Rather they exhibit a willingness to get on with the job that might be copied in those sectors — the exceptions that prove the rule — which do walk off from time to time in wildcat or long-term strikes.

Many a youngster, seeing all the activity, might opt for a job in the construction industry.

Ballyhoo Out and Fighting Spirit In with PCs

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The Big Blue Machine has decided to don a mask for this election.

The Tory's power-house organization which got so much publicity in 1971, both for the premier and itself, this time apparently has decided that both should be more low profile.

On the campaign tour there is no gaudily-decorated bus or aircraft as in other years. Commercial flights are to be used where possible. On other occasions planes and buses will be chartered by the day. Also there will be no bands or girl cheer-leaders along with the leader.

This, of course, is partly a bow to inflation.

In these times of high prices and high government spending a campaign such as the party conducted in '71 would look vulgar.

It also would be aimed at reflecting the government's claim that it has been practising economy.

The party election council apparently decided that this time fight would be substituted for flair.

In this election to date the premier has been very much in a fighting mood.

Bob Nixon, of course, gave him an opportunity to get publicly mad with his crack about integrity, and he has maintained the impetus that opening gave him.

The contrast to '71 is strong. Then the premier was Mr. Nice Guy.

This doesn't mean that the Blue Machine(it also has added a touch of yellow this time) isn't hard at work and as potent as ever.

It is, it's just that the strategy has changed.

After Labor Day we probably will see more evidence of the old methods and be more aware of its presence.

The campaign is expected to really peak following the holiday, and by then the wraps will be off advertising (Under the new Elections Act advertising is restricted to the last three weeks of the campaign).

Stephen Lewis has a tricky problem in devising his strategy.

The NDP leader's aim has to be to become the official opposition; He has no dreams of winning the election.

This means undermining the Liberals.

But if he does too good a job he could be defeating himself.

For the Liberals are expected to take away Conservative votes. And this will include ridings in which if the PCs are cut down the NDP could win.

Just how far can Lewis go in his own interest in attacking the Grits?

Ivan the Terrible, Czar of Muscovy, was born 445 years ago today—in 1530—and succeeded to the throne at age three. During his teens, he seized control from the council of noblemen (boyars) and became the first Russian ruler to claim title of Czar. Ivan laid the foundations of a modern Russian empire in a decade of impressive conquest but from 1560 onwards his morbid fears of treachery opened the doors to mass murder and destruction. At age 50, Ivan killed his only son and heir in a fit of rage and the throne passed to the Romanov family at his death in 1584.

1927—Japanese destroyers Warabi and Ashi sank and 129 drowned.

Old Home Week Possible?

The Trentonian

With plans being mooted for some type of special Trenton event again next year, we wonder why the people involved don't imitate some nearby local towns and have an Old Home Week.

Former Trenton residents could be invited back and the celebrations could be planned to have events based on 90 years ago, 70 years ago, 50 years, 30 years ago, and 10 years ago, for example.

This would leave scope for excursions, and who knows, we might even get that CNR steamer here for the week to run train trips from the Junction to Picton and back, with intermediate stopping places.

Perhaps we could even get some special tour boats here for the week, and send some up the Trent, and some out across the bay, notably to Twelve O'Clock Point, a former favorite picnic ground in this area. Perhaps the service clubs might even set up a midway there!

It's an idea worth exploring. To our knowledge we have not had a real Trenton Old Boys week for a long time, if ever. So perhaps the Chamber of Commerce could look into it.

Safety And The Barbecue

Cornwall Standard — Freeholder

There's nothing quite like that delicious aroma from the barbecue wafting on the breeze of a warm summer evening. It's irresistible! Family and time-honored North American tradition. Perfect! But the Ontario Safety League asks you to be safety conscious while enjoying your barbecue.

Last summer, an Ottawa man was enjoying the evening with his family. He had planned a typical barbecue menu. The coals started alright, but didn't seem to heat up fast enough for him. Impatiently, he ignored the warning on the starter fluid can and gave the small fire an extra squirt. Some of the burning vapor was drawn back into the can. The resulting explosion drenched him in flames. He died five days later.

This past spring, two Toronto men died in their cabin after barbecuing steak indoors. The burning charcoal filled the cabin with deadly carbon monoxide. Both men fell ill and lay down to sleep it off. They never recovered.

Those two tragedies serve as graphic illustrations. When using barbecue starter fluid, follow the instructions on the can. Keep children and pets away from the fire. Never bring the barbecue or hibachi indoors. Be sure you're never downwind from the fire when cooking —, a spark or flareup could ignite your clothing.

Follow the Ontario Safety League's advice and keep summer cook-outs fun and safe!

Motorbike Noise Is Nuisance

Kitchener — Waterloo Record

Few things are more irritating these days than the sounds of sports car and motorcycles racing about the streets in the wee hours of the morning when most citizens are trying to get some sleep. The roar of motors and the needless screeching of tires on pavement has become, particularly in some areas of the Twin Cities, a serious nuisance.

It is not only a problem in the Twin Cities. In smaller centres as well it is a regular occurrence. In some summer resort towns frontstreet drag races are commonplace, especially on weekends.

This is a good thing to remember when we would reject the idea of returning to God even a small portion like the tithe (ten percent of our income) to Him. "He giveth thee power to get wealth."

Upwards of $250 Million in Securities Offer by Development Corp.

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

It often seemed that the day would never come, but Canada Development Corp. (CDC) is at last going public.

An initial public offering of stock in the giant Crown-owned holding company is taking place in early September.

It is generally expected—although not confirmed—that CDC will issue at least $125 million of its securities to the public, and perhaps as much as $250 million.

At $25 million, the CDC issue would equal the largest amount of capital that Canadian investors have ever put up in response to a single financing—the recent issue of Bell Canada preferred shares.

Prior to the formal offering, stockbrokers and banks across Canada are distributing CDC's preliminary prospectus to anyone who asks for it.

More than 500 requests are coming in each day, according to the underwriters.

"These securities are speculative," the front cover of the prospectus proclaims in boldface.

"They are not guaranteed in any manner by the Government of Canada or any other government, nor has any government any direct or indirect obligation with respect to them."

Even that unequivocal statement may not be enough to convince some people, given the great expectations that have been built up around CDC over the past dozen years or so.

The origins of the CDC lie in Canadian nationalism. Over the years, the concept has been promoted by politicians and others—not all nationalists, necessarily—as a vehicle for preserving Canadian ownership of enterprises that might otherwise fall under foreign control.

But in the November, 1971, legislation that finally created CDC, there is little nationalist rhetoric.

Rather, the act puts the emphasis on such objectives as creation or development of business enterprises, the widening of job and investment opportunities for Canadians, and earning a profit for CDC shareholders.

(Net profit was $2.1-million in 1972, $18.7-million in 1973, and $59-million in 1974).

In its initial years as an enterprise wholly-owned by the federal government, CDC has interpreted its referendum in ways that have surprised some Canadians.

One example was its takeover of Texasgulf Inc. of New York, which has major mining properties not only in Northern Ontario but in the United States as well.

Its acquisition of the well-established Polysar Ltd. from the Crown typified the kind of activity that the public probably expected of CDC.

Polysar owns 60 per cent of Petrosar Ltd., a world-scale crude-oil topping and naptha-cracking unit and styrene plant, being built near Sarnia.

The public's participation in such enterprises as Texasgulf and Polysar will be possible through the medium of CDC's seven per cent preferred shares that are to be offered at par of $100.

Each preferred share carries the right to receive a bonus common share in 1980 and another in 1985. And each preferred share is convertible into 10 common shares.

The support of brokers and investment dealers is almost guaranteed by the generous discounts available to them—$3 on each $100 or preferred share, or a total of $3,750,000 if the size of the issue is confined to 1,250,000 shares.

In addition, according to unconfirmed reports, the management group and banking group—that is, the primary underwriters of the offering—are to receive a net of $1 per share.

But the financial community, the CDC offering will go a long way towards paying for this year's overhead—especially since the annual Canada Savings Bond issue this fall will be much smaller than last year.

Poor Deal Results In Canning Plant

HILLIER — More than 30 people stand at the assembly line, in plastic aprons, slicing away at the bright red vegetables, first coring them then, slipping the loose skins off.

Nothing is wasted at Pleasant Valley Canners here as the large, meaty whole tomatoes are placed in cans while the cores and remnents move down the conveyer belt until they reach the end of the line where a worker dumps the pieces into a pulverizer that converts them into juice.

The juice is redirected down a pipe and automatically poured into the cans of tomatoes moving closer to the sealing machine.

A piece of salt drops into the passing cans for a bit of flavor, and it will be disolved when the sealed cans slide down the chute into the cooker where they spend one hour and ten minutes as part of the final process before they are labeled for shipment to customers.

"We have two of our own labels we use and we put on any the customer orders, if that is what they want," said John Taylor, 70, owner and operator of the plant and farmer of 100 acres of tomatoes.

Mr. Taylor said he went into the canning business in 1958 when he felt he wasn't getting a good deal for his tomato crop and now the family-owned business is what keeps him farming today.

"We used to can for other farmer but you needed a special permit and forms had to be filled with the government and it was just too much trouble, so this year I decided to rent some more land and just can my own crop," said the local farmer.

After the tomatoes are canned they are stored until inspected by government officials who remove six cans from a day's production and take them to the laboratory for analysis.

"They check the cans for solid content, there must be more than 60 per cent tomatoes in a can for it to be designated as choice," Mr. Taylor said. "We always aim for choice even though sometimes we are classified the higher grade of fancy."

A can may be rejected for the poor coloring of the tomatoes or if they don't taste proper to the inspector, but Mr. Taylor said he has had little trouble with his product.

Parked Car Hit, Passenger Hurt

AMELIASBURG — A Carrying Place man was charged with careless driving early today after his car collided with a parked vehicle here causing estimated $1,400 damages.

A police spokesman said Kenneth Fowler, 21, was eastbound on County Road 19 when his car entered the south shoulder, came back on the road into the west lane then swerved to the north shoulder hitting a parked car owned by Sharon Sills of Ameliasburg. Damage to the parked vehicle was estimated at $1,000 while damage to the Fowler car was set at $400.

A passenger in the Fowler car, Edward Callow, 18, of Ameliasburg was taken to Belleville General Hospital.

The collision occurred at about 12.30 a.m.

Yacht Club May Expand

PICTON — The Prince Edward Yacht Club here is currently studying a plan for future expansion of the existing structure. vice-commodore and chairman of the redevelopment committee of the board of directors, Carl Boyd, says the present structure is too small and the plan includes a new dinning room, an entension to the lounge, expanded kitchen and washroom facilities, a conference room and a patio deck.

Tomatoes Galore

Reg Newcombe, 14, of Hillier dumps tomatoes onto the conveyer belt carrying them through the steamer to the peelers waiting inside the cannery. The steamer loosens the skins and allows the workers to core and peel the tomatoes for canning.

Fire Damages Former Canadian National Station

MADOC — Damage is estimated at about $15,000 following a fire Saturday at the old Canadian National Railways station in the west end of the village here.

Cause of the fire, which started about 6.40 p.m., has not as yet been determined, said Bob Kirkwood, Madoc fire chief.

The fire in the one-storey building, now owned by Canada Talc Co., took volunteer fire fighters about 1½ hours to extinguish.

Chief Kirkwood said 16 men and a pumper answered the call turned in by persons living near the building.

Canada Talc, with a mine near Madoc, was using the station for storage of bags and containers used in shipping talc.

Damage to the building is estimated at about $5,000. Damage to contents is estimated at about $10,000.

Fire fighters had little trouble putting out the fire as there was no wind but had to return later in the evening to put out flying sparks.

19-year-old Killed

BRIGHTON A 19-year-old Brighton youth was dead following an accident at Presqu'ile Provincial Park Saturday when the car he was driving went out of control and rolled several times.

Dead is Kenneth Wells, of 128 Prince Edward St. He was killed when he was thrown from his car after it rolled over several times while he was travelling north on the main park road one half mile from the gate. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. B. Loughlin, of Brighton.

A passenger in the car, David Stone, also of Prince Edward St., Brighton suffered a broken foot and is in satisfactory condition at Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Heavy Rain Eases Tweed Fire Danger

TWEED — The ministry of natural resources, Tweed district, reports two fires burning in Tweed area.

Firefighters are working on a 40 acre blaze which broke out Saturday in Elzevir Township, just north of here. A small fire, caused by lightning in Miller Township near Rhinestone Lake, broke out Saturday and men and supplies were dropped into the area by helicopter.

Officials report the 2.10 inches of rainfall today has aided their attempts.

A total of 135 fires in the Tweed protection area since April 1 have burned over 1,404 acres including forest, bushland and grass fires.

Stolen Car Recovered

CONSECON — A car owned by John Baxter of RR 3, Carrying Place, reported stolen from the Consecon Auto Body Shop Saturday night, was discovered by Picton OPP early Sunday morning on a Hillier Township road. Charged in the incident is 20-year-old Richard Todd of RR 3, Consecon.

IGA Robbed

BRIGHTON — Thieves broke open the safe at the Brighton IGA grocery store, 41 Prince Edward St. after it closed Friday and made off with about $9,000 police reported this weekend.

The burglar removed the outer door layer to expose the locking mechanism, and force open the safe said constable Ken Pratt, of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police in what he described as a professional job.

Police Vehicle, Car Collide on Highway 41

CLOYNE — Damage is estimated at more than $9,000 following an accident about 6 p.m. Saturday involving a four-wheel drive police vehicle and a car.

Rita Mary Yeates, 53, of Westhill is in Belleville hospital in fair condition with leg and chest injuries after the vehicle she was driving was in collision with a vehicle driven by Constable Peter Ballantyne, 37, of Kaladar OPP.

Constable Ballantyne also was taken to hospital for treatment and released.

The vehicle driven by Mrs. Yeates on Highway 41 north of Cloyne went onto the shoulder then crossed in front of the police vehicle, said Madoc OPP Constable D. A. Scott.

The Dodge Ram Charger, owned by Madoc OPP, was on loan to Kaladar OPP who were looking for a missing person.

Truck Rolls, Driver Hurt

CHERRY VALLEY — A Picton area man has been charged with careless driving following a single car accident on County Road 10 Sunday that caused $2,000 damage.

Charged is Larry Norman, 19, of RR 2 Picton driver of a car owned by Donald Lloyd of Picton.

A police spokesman said today the driver apparently lost control of the car which struck six guide posts before it overturned.

Mr. Norman and his passenger Donald Lloyd excaped with cuts and bruises.

Canoe Stolen

OUTLET PARK — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police is investigating the weekend theft of a 15 — foot fiberglass canoe from Outlet Provincial Park.

The canoe, valued at $400, is owned by Jerry Zanduliet, of Toronto.

Quinte Cuisine

Mickey Lake's face is familiar to moviegoers who have bought tickets from her at the Quinte Mall Cinema since its opening, or before that, at the Belle. Mrs. Lake recommends this Sandwich Spread to busy, budget-conscious mothers who need something "on hand" for hungry kids. This recipe comes from her husband's mother, an excellent cook, says Mrs. Lake.

Sandwich Spread

five cups green tomatoes (measured after being minced and drained) ¼ cup salt
one cup vinegar
one cup sugar
two tsp. flour, (heaping)
two tsp. mustard three eggs, well-beaten two sweet red peppers, minced two green peppers, minced
one can condensed milk

Let the tomatoes stand for two hours with the salt on them. Drain, then add the vinegar. Boil for half an hour, and then cool.

Add the sugar, flour, mustard, eggs and minced peppers. Boil again for half an hour, stirring often. Add one can of condensed milk, bring to a boil again, and then remove from stove.

Fill jars while the spread is hot, and seal with paraffin wax or self-sealing metal lids.

Do you know any good cooks? The Intelligencer is looking for cooks in the area willing to share their recipes with our readers. If you're a good cook, or if you know one, write The Women's Department, The Intelligencer. Be sure to include his or her address and phone number.

Social Information For Brides-to-Be

Engagement announcements should be brought to the main desk of The Intelligencer from 8.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Those without photographs cost $4, and those with photographs cost $8.70.

Wedding notices should be brought to the women's desk upstairs at The Intelligencer, between 8.30 a.m. and 3 p.m. weekdays, or from 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. Information about weddings should be set down on wedding forms available from either the main desk or the women's desk. here is no charge for the description of the wedding, but a charge of $4.70 is made for reproduction of a photograph.

Black and white glossy photographs are recommended for the best reproduction in the newspaper. If, however, you have only color photos, bring the negative so that it can be used to make a black and white print.

Hyderman — Radway

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hyderman

Ramona Jean Radway, daughter of Colin Kenneth Radway, and Robert George Hyderman, son of Bernard Calwin Hyderman, exchanged wedding vows August 2 at Bridge Street United Church.

Rev. George Ward officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin gown with empire waist. Her waist length veil was held by daisies and she carried daisies with miniature red roses.

Judy Wake, the bride's cousin, was matron of honor in a soft pink gown and carried pink mums with long white ribbons. Carol Hyderman and Melanie Field were bridesmaids in pink gowns.

Orma Field was flower girl in a pink gown and carried a basket of daisies and miniature red roses. Neil Hyderman was ring bearer.

Charles Hyderman, the groom's brother and Richard Radway, the bride's brother were ushers.

A dinner and dance was held at the Legion on Pinnacle Street.

The couple took a wedding trip to Cornwall and Ottawa.

They will reside at 10 Patterson.

Summer's End Best Time For Lawn Improvement

Despite fertilizing and watering, many homeowners find that areas of their lawns grow poorly for one of many reasons — too thin a layer of topsoil, poor drainage, excessive shading, weed competition.

J.K. Hughes, horticulturist with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, suggests how, after identifying the problem, homeowners can take the necessary steps to correct it.

"For example, where topsoil is shallow, or low in fertility, top dressing will improve the rooting medium, and help to level out slightly uneven areas," he says. Frequent light treatments give best results, and should be spread evenly over the surface, then raked in.

If the topsoil is too thin on your lawn, thoroughly work up the lawn area and add at least four inches of good topsoil, then reseed.

Sometimes only small areas requre renovation. "But it is difficult to establish new seed in turf unless the soil is well worked prior to seeding," the specialist adds. With areas larger than one square foot, work up the soil, reseed and keep the area well watered.

Lawn areas that have thinned because of excessive shading should be replanted to a grass that is shade-tolerant, such as one of the fescues.

Take a look at your lawn and plan your renovations during August. When the nights are cooler in September, you can start making the necessary corrections.

Ann Landers

Woman Who Assisted Stranger 'An Idiot' In Her Family's Eyes

Dear Ann Landers: Several days ago when I was alone with my three-year-old daughter, a man rammed his car into a large tree in front of our house.

I heard the crash and ran to the window. I saw him get out of his car, his face covered with blood, and head for our front door.

I let him in the house, helped him to a chair and told him I would phone the police. He asked me not to because he had already received several tickets and was afraid his licence might be taken away.

I offered to drive him to the hospital or call an ambulance. He said, "No, I've been in iVetnam and I've had enough of doctors and hospitals."

I then gave him a cloth, told him to go into the bathroom and wash off the blood. I made a pot of coffee as he tried unsuccessfully to phone his family.

By that time his nose had stopped bleeding and he seemed to be in fairly good condition. He thanked me for my kindness and called a tow truck.

Just as I was about to drive him home, a woman friend dropped in. I explained the situation and she came along with me, the man, and of course, I took my child. The man again let me know he was extremely grateful.

That evening when I told my husband and family about the incident they said I was crazy to have let him in the house— that it might have been a scheme, he could have raped me, robbed the house, and so on.

I still think I did the right thing, Ann. They insist I'm a fool. What is your opinion?—Samaritan Or Idiot?

Dear Samaritan: How sad that we are living in an era when people are scared to death to aid a person in need for fear of being raped, robbed or worse. It is also sad that people like your husband and his family have become so callous to the needs of others.

I say, in light of the facts as stated in your letter, you did the right thing. I would have done likewise.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is 23 years old. I am 22. We've been married less than a year. His sex drive isn't what it used to be.

I asked him yesterday what was wrong. He said, "It's the way you keep our apartment. The place is a mess and it turns me off."

Do you believe it?—Not Crazy Clean, So What?

Dear N. C. C.: No. I don't believe it. If a husband is really interested, He'll step over the garbage. Look for another reason.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 16, a girl, and have been told I'm very pretty. I've been dating for a couple of years and am considered fun.

Last night I had a blind date with a guy who was really neat. I was quite shook when he told me I kissed like an amateur. When I asked him what he meant he said, "It's like swimming with your overcoat on."

What DID he mean, Ann? How can I improve my kissing?—Miss W. W.

Dear Miss W. W.: Sorry, kissing instructions are out of my line. But I do give advice. And my advice to you is to cool it, kiddo. When you meet someone you really care about (and you can't make that decision on the first date) you won't need any lessons.

Too Fat? This Computer Will Explain Why

TORONTO (CP) — Two signs hang at the exit of a unique computer exhibit located in the Ontario Science Centre. They read: The average 30-year-old is as fit as the average 60-year-old Swede. and; More than 50 per cent of the adult Canadian population is overweight.

They are enough to give a jolt to the viewer, especially when he or she has been told frankly the bad news seconds earlier by a computer program, called Nutrimetrics 07.

For $1.50 and five minutes of time, anyone visiting the Science Centre can get an accurate, computer-fast report on what's wrong with the way he eats.

The report will tell if he is eating too many fattening desserts, drinking too much alcohol or getting a healthy balanced diet with all the vitamins he needs.

The $1.50 is the price of admission to the centre and the five minutes time is spent filling out a questionnaire on eating habits and exercise, feeding it into a computer and getting the printout.

The program is in operation daily from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m.

A consultation with the computer begins with filling out the questionnaire. The candidate is provided with a full list of all the foods eaten for the previous two days and then weight, height and activity level are recorded.

It's frank. The printed advice may be—go directly to a doctor; or, you're eating too many chips and snack foods you don't need, or it's time to start a regular exercise program.

Lorraine Oostwoud, a member of the centre's education staff, provided the initiative for bringing the computer system to the centre.

It started with a discussion of what the centre should do as part of a women's year project.

"First, we looked at the areas in which women are at most risk," Lorraine said, "and the main areas are nutrition and physical fitness."

She added: "Then we went to Nutrition Communication Systems, a newly formed company established to bring nutrition information to the general public. They set up a program for us.

"We didn't want another one of those handouts that are taken home and forgotten. We wanted something that would make an impact—enough of an impact to make people modify their eating habits," she said.

Nutritionist Mary McGrath said: "It is causing some people to make changes for the better. We've already had several people come back for a retesting to see if they're improved, and we've only been open a month."

Lorraine said that the exhibit demonstrates that people are not satisfied with their bodies.

"They pinch it, squeeze it, paint it, pierce it, and raise it on platform sole shoes.

"We try in every way possible to get our bodies to conform to some arbitrary ideal be it Twiggy or Raquel Welch," she said. "Look at any mail-order catalogue. There are pages and pages of girdles featured. Unless you make use of your natural muscle girdle, it will lose its muscle tone. Then you may resort to artificial help which leads to muscle atrophy."

Brazilian Children of Poverty Beg to Survive

FORTALEZA, Brazil (Reuter) — Agenor is 12 years old. As he drags himself along the floors of the seaside cafes in this northeastern Brazilian city, he represents in an extreme degree the plight of millions of other Brazilian children officially listed as needing care and protection.

Agenor is crippled, his right leg atrophied. Stopping at each table, he looks up from the floor and holds out a hand for money.

His eyes, shining under a mop of fair hair, show dignity, not self-pity.

When he has covered one cafe, he crawls to a resting place where his elder brother, Chico, 15, picks him up and carries him on his back to the next.

"There are four of us at home, each from a different father," Agenor explains. "But we do not get on with our mother and Chico and I have run away. The police took us back once but we ran away again."

Sometimes Agenor and Chico make a lot of money, sometimes they make nothing. In either case, they sleep on the beach and use what they earn to eat.

They have long since dropped out of school but they have organized their lives. Every week they go to a neighboring beach where they pay a woman five cruzeiros (about 60 cents) to wash their clothes.

Agenor is crippled but throughout Brazil hundreds of thousands of other children, relatively healthy though hungry, are sent out by their parents in search of money, sometimes by petty crime.

Exact estimates of the number of these children, who are also described as abandoned, are hard to obtain, but in Fortaleza alone, some 90,000 participate in various social projects organized by the authorities.

In Sao Paulo in the south, the state secretary of security, Col. Antonio Erasmo Dias, has estimated that there are about 600,000 children in need of care and protection.

Of these, he said, 70,000 are potential criminals, neither going to school nor having regular work.

"Any other problem—economic, social, financial, religious or philosophical—pales into insignificance in the face of this," he said in one newspaper.

In Rio de Janeiro, officials of the National Foundation for Juveniles put the number of children in need of care and protection at about 500,000.

In this country of 105 million, the 500,000 form part of the 30 million minors under 18 who are underprivileged, with problems of education, training or health, the foundation estimates.

Many, of course, do not present the social problems of children roaming the streets in big cities and towns.

Some street vagabonds earn up to 1,500 cruzeiros ($180) a month, almost three times minimum salary. Their jobs include cleaning car windows, shining shoes and peddling sweets and other goods, according to foundation officials.

The father of a large family, who is unemployed or underemployed, himself barely earning the minimum salary — if that — willingly sends his young children out to work instead of to school.

New Welfare Action Centre Gives Advice and Comfort

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Smith called up the New Welfare Action Centre, a private referral service, crying.

"My husband just walked out on me and the three children," she said. "I have no skills or any idea what do do."

"Don't worry," came the reassuring reply from the other end. "I have been there before, I know what you're going through."

Margaret Bassett, executive director of the New Welfare Action Centre, gave these sympathetic answers from experience. When she broke up with her husband, she managed her family with welfare.

"I started at the centre from the ground up," said Mrs. Bassett. "I turned to family benefits in 1969. I was one of the first clients of the welfare centre, because I disagreed with the welfare department's handling of my case."

After volunteering at the centre, which handles welfare, housing, legal aid and unemployment insurance advice, Mrs. Bassett became director in 1973. She often spends 18 hours a day in a small office in a shopping plaza.

The centre's staff of four paid workers and 15 volunteers handle free-of charge about 90 to 125 cases a month. The centre is funded by Local Initiative Program grants, United Community, metropolitan social services and the suburban Borough of Etobicoke.

"We really lead a hand-to-mouth existence," said Mrs. Bassett. "With about a $25,000 budget the staff really has to be dedicated."

Staff members, mostly young, earn about $110 a week. Certain staff members specialize in specific areas, such as workmen's compensation and locating low-income housing. Case-workers visit homes and often accompany clients to court.

"I became specialized in unemployment insurance benefits," said Neil Kitagawn, 27, "because so many persons call up about it."

Mr. Kitagawn said he preferred working at the centre rather than at a conventional social service set-up.

Three types of cases handled at the centre, said Mrs. Bassett, are advocacy action—immediate work; advocacy education—telling persons how to help themselves; and giving quick information.

Lewis Attacks Housing Policies

TORONTO (CP) — The campaign for the Sept. 18 Ontario election enters its third week today after a relatively quiet weekend.

Both Premier William Davis and Liberal Leader Robert Nixon took Sunday off, while NDP Leader Stephen Lewis used the day to expand on housing policy, one of the key planks in his campaign platform.

Mr. Lewis said an NDP government would work to increase housing starts by overhauling the province's Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) program.

He said the plan, as originally conceived in 1967, was an intelligent approach to the construction of moderately-priced housing but has been ruined by the developer-oriented direction of the Davis government.

The NDP leader said fewer than 20,000 homes have been built under the program, compared with the stated goal of 20,000 units annually.

He said his party would aim for 10,000 HOME-program units annually, as part of an over-all goal of 116,000 housing starts a year.

Initially, the HOME program was set up to allow the government to buy and service land, hire contractors to construct homes, then lease houses at low rent to buyers. Purchasers had an option to purchase the land from the government after five years.

The maximum cost of homes under the program was first fixed at $15,000 in 1967. The ceiling was adjusted upward later and then abandoned in 1974.

Mr. Lewis said he wants to see the ceiling fixed at $15,000 or $16,000, a figure he said would put homes within reach of most Ontario families.

Liberal Leader Nixon was on the campaign trail in central Ontario Saturday. In a speech in Orillia he levelled a blast at Premier Davis, continuing the verbal duel the two men have been conducting since the campaign started.

Earlier in the week, the premier had quoted some of Mr. Nixon's proposed budget cuts, and suggested the opposition leader's mathematicl abilities were rusty.

Saturday, Mr. Nixon retaliated, saying he is annoyed that the premier pokes fun at the idea of reducing government spending.

"Bill Davis says I can't add," Mr. Nixon said. "His problem is he can't subtract."

He went on to condemn the Conservative's regional government policy, saying a Liberal administration would save the taxpayers $65 million by ending the trend to regionalization.

He said the province spends millions annually in grants to regional governments and plans to expand regionalism across the province.

The Liberal leader said the cost of such expansion eventually might run as high as $65 million.

Mr. Nixon also attacked the CBC for its election coverage, saying the network is covering the campaign like a theatrical event.

Dayman Is Bay Of Quinte Club Men's Champion

In the world of professional golf, a regular tournament is scheduled in all but one case, for 72 holes. In only one, the Bob Hope — Pebble Beach Classic, does it go into five full rounds to determine a champion.

The Bay of Quinte Golf Club may not be the Pebble Beach Club bordering on the Pacific Ocean, but it took 90 holes of golf to decide their annual club Men's Championship there this year.

Two players finished tied at 305 after the regulation 72 holes had been played, the first two rounds last weekend, and one each Saturday and Sunday. Checking in with the identical scores were Bill Dayman and Al Graham, the defending title holder.

Dayman ended up the eventual winner of this year's edition of the event, beating Graham by five strokes on an 18 hole playoff, the fifth round they had to shoot.

Dayman had led the field after last weekend's opening rounds, with a 150 score, on round of 74 and 76, while Graham had recorded rounds of 79 and 81 for a 158 total.

During Saturday's third tour of the links, the pair had identical 76's, leaving Graham eight strokes off the pace.

During the final round, a somewhat tired Dayman blew to an eight over par 79, but Graham carded a one-under 71, to tie the score at 305 strokes apiece, setting the stage for the playoff.

After a short rest, the pair teed off once again for their second round of the day.

The first hole was the downfall for the runnerup Graham. He went out of bounds on the par four first, ending up taking a seven, three over, while Dayman put together a par four.

The three strokes Graham lost were never really made up. He eventually took a 78 on the course he had tamed for a 71 just hours before.

The par four on the first extra hole Dayman picked up was typical of his playoff round. He lost just one shot to par over the 18, despite three-putting four greens for a solid 73, and the 1975 Men's Club Championship.

Frank Pinder was in at 310 for the 72 holes, good enough for third place.

In the consolation round, Mike Jones tallied 323 to take top honors, three strokes better than his nearest rival. Jones had 18's of 83, 84, 79, and 77 to wrap up the win.

In second spot was Rick Hutchinson, who had led the field going into the final 18. He took an 82 on the final round for a 325 total. Colin McKay was in with a 326, one shot back of Hutchinson, for third place.

In the Seniors division for members over 50 years of age, Jack Lomas led the field for the last two rounds, tallying 340 to take that title. Keith Baldwin carded a 353 for second, while Bill Salter and Dan Mahoney tied for third with 369 totals.

Eighty-eight entries were received for the Junior Club title, with the field cut to 32 before the start of play through qualifying rounds. After 54 holes, the group was once again cut, down to nine finalists, including last year's winner, Randy Hutchinson.

At the end of the 72 holes, it was once again Hutchinson at the top of the field, with a 313 total, winning by a wide 24 stroke margin over Roger Studdard.

Hutchinson combined rounds of 82, 76, 78 and 77, while Studdard had a more inconsistent four of 77, 82, 91 and 87, for a 337 total.

Bill Dayman, winner of the 1975 Bay of Quinte Men's Club championship, accepts the trophy from tournament director Dave Henderson. Dayman won the event with a playoff win over Al Graham, the defending champion, in an 18 hole playoff.

President's Open Taken by King

Playoffs seemed to be in order for local golf tournaments on the weekend, and the Belleville Golf and Country Club was certainly no exception to the rule.

In the annual President's Open, played Saturday at the Marysville links, Fred King, of the Belleville Club, defeated Bob Hogeboom of the Napanee Golf Club on the first extra hole to take the title.

King sank a 35 foot putt to save par on the par three first hole, while Hogeboom settled for a bogey four, and second place.

Both had finished the regulation 18 holes at 72 strokes each. Third in the A flight low gross was Mike Adams, of Picton Golf Club, with a 75.

Cliff Dell of Bay of Quinte topped the A Flight Net section, with a 67, while Bob Lake of Glen Lawrence of Kingston was in with a 69. Larry Towns of Belleville was third with a 70.

A 78 by Jim Cole of Belleville was good enough for top honors in B Flight, two shots up on Bill Hannah, also of Belleville. Napanee's Reg Vick was one more shot back at 81 for third spot.

Jim O'Brien's net 62 was best in low net, with Wilson Terwilligar of Picton next in with a 64. Dave Reid, also of Belleville also had a 64, but was lowerd to third on a basis of less lower scoring holes.

Napanee's Doug Yearwood carded an 85 to take C Flight low gross laurels, with Norm Barriage of CFB Trenton in with an 87. Jim Anderson of Stoco Golf Club had an even 90.

John Buckley of Stoco recorded a 60 to take C Flight low net, with Sam Mulholland, of Belleville, shooting a 63. Stewart Hill, also of Belleville, was five shots back at 68 for third.

OMLA Champs

Juvenile Lacrosse Crown Taken by Belleville Club

The Belleville Juveniles came up with no less than an All Ontario Juvenile "D" Ontario Minor Lacrosse Association Championship, Sunday, in Huron Park, Toronto.

Given little chance of winning the tournament, the Belleville team did just that in fine style, coming from behind in each game.

In their first game Belleville won 10-5 over Stratford, with Brian Towers in the nets for the winners.

Roger Chapman scored four times for the locals, with Chris Rutledge adding three markers and Wally Inwood, Brent Walmsley and Larry Wilson contributing singles.

Things were a lot closer in Belleville's second contest, as they were victorious by a 10-9 score.

Brian Towers and Steve Hale shared the goaltending duties in the close match.

Wally Inwood came up with a hat trick for the winners, including scoring the winning goal late in the game.

Chris Rutledge also had three markers, while Brent Walmsley scored twice. Rick Hounslow and Andy Tipper had the other Belleville goals.

The Championship game was another close one, with the Belleville club coming out ahead 7-5, after being down 3-1 after two periods.

Brian Towers and Steve Hale again shared goaltending duties, and were stingy in the late minutes.

It was Inwood again for Belleville, this time with a hat trick, including the winning goal at 18:33 in the third period. Steve Hicks, Brent Walmsley, Gord Male and Chris Rutledge also scored in the championship game.

CHRIS RUTLEDGE

This team now has two consecutive championships, the Midget "D" last season, and Juvenile 'D" crowns this year.

Olympics Second At Smiths Falls

The Belleville Olympics finished second in their grouping at the Smith Falls Soccer Tournament Saturday just missing the finals.

Belleville was victorious twice, tied once and were defeated once by the eventual finalists, Kingston Italo-Canadians.

The Olympics took the first game against the Ottawa Falcons 2-0. Kevin Kirby and Ernie Brown scored for Belleville.

In their second match Belleville met the hot Kingston Italo team, and were stymied 2-0 by Kingston's goaltender.

Against the Oshawa Hurricanes Belleville met more success, winning 2-1. Dave Kidd and Zdravko Fundic both scored for the Olympics.

The last game Belleville played in the tournament was a tie with Kingston Swiss Chalet. The two teams battled to a 1-1 tie. Kevin Kirby scored the tieing goal for Belleville.

In the finals it was the Kingston Italo Canadians against the Kingston Portuguese. After regular playing time and overtime were exhausted the decision finally went to the Portuguese on penalty shots. Ralph Hooverman scored the winning marker to give the Portuguese the championship.

Bantams Forced To Third Game

Home park advantage seems to mean nothing in the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Bantam A playoffs between Belleville Downtown Merchants, and North Bendale. Last weekend Belleville travelled to the Toronto suburb, and came away with a 4-3 victory in the first game of the three game series. Sunday, on the home Alemite park, Belleville dropped a 9-6 decision in 12 innings to force a third and deciding game.

Belleville was forced to play catch-up ball for most of the game, and had to come up with a pair of runs in the bottom of the ninth to force the game to extra innings.

In the ninth, Belleville had the potential runs on base, but couldn't get any more across than the two they needed to tie the game. The locals left the bases loaded after scoring the pair.

North Bendale scored four runs in the top of the 12th to put away the win, setting down the Belleville side in order in the bottom of the frame.

Rick Tripp fired the first nine innings for Belleville, allowing 11 hits. He struck out three and walked one. Tim Soule came on in the tenth to throw the last three frames, and was tagged with the loss. He gave up three hits, striking out three and walking none.

Barry Holt went the route for the winners, striking out five in an 11 hitter. He walked none.

Doug Campbell had a home run and single to lead the Belleville hitting attack, with Bob Hedge and Ron Begley adding two base hits each. Five others had one hit apiece.

For the winners, it was Derek Brough leading the way with a home run, double, and two singles. Holt checked in with a triple and three singles, while Pete Jeffrey had a pair of safeties.

The third and deciding game of the series will be played in Belleville, at the Alemite park, next Saturday. Game time has not been finalized as yet.

Thurlow Ousts Prescott

Thurlow Bantams won their Ontario Baseball Association series with Prescott on the weekend, dropping the first game of the best of three set, in Prescott on Saturday, but rebounding for two wins in Cannifton on Sunday.

The Thurlow squad came up with a 6-5 win in the third game of the set, scoring a pair of runs in the bottom of the ninth to do it.

Rick Woodward and Gary Badgley shared the mound duties for the winners, with Badgley getting the win in relief. The pair allowed nine hits, all singles, while fanning nine and walking one.

Bill Sullivan led the winners' attack with two triples and a double, while also walking twice, intentionally. Ron Landry's single in the ninth drove in the winning run.

Dave Forestell, called up from the Thurlow peewees, was on the mound to take the win in the first game on Sunday, pitching eight and two-thirds innings before needing last out relief heldp from Badgley. Forestell struck out eight and walked three in a twp hit performance. Badgley struck out the last Prescott batter to pick up the save. Tom Windsor threw a five hitter in defeat, whiffing 10.

Forestell was also effective at the plate, ripping a double and single to lead his own cause. Tom Masterson had a two base hit, with Sullivan and Steve Gilbey adding the other hits, both singles.

Prescott took the first game of the series, 6-5, in Prescott Saturday.

Macs Take Two of Three

Wins Show Hope for '76

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

The Belleville McDonalds ended their 1975 Ontario Fastball League season home games on a happy note over the weekend.

Saturday night Belleville split a doubleheader with the St. Catharines Mr. Jackets, losing the first game 2-0, but rebounding to win the nightcap 4-3.

On Sunday night it took Belleville 14 innings to defeat Hamilton 4-3. The second game was called because of the city bylaw. That bylaw states no new innings may begin after 11 o'clock at night. Belleville held a 2-1 lead in the match after three innings.

Unfortunately for Belleville, who were hot at the time, the game was called and will not be replayed, as it has no bearings on the OFL standings.

Scott Reid looked on his way to his fifth win of the year, with the help of some heads up play by Carl Boomhower.

Boomhower, picking up the signs used by the Hamilton catcher, called out to Steve Ling what pitch would be thrown and Ling tapped it for a run scoring single.

"I just yelled "'slow ball" and Steve got some wood on it" Boomhower chuckled.

Hamilton	100—	1	3	1
Belleville	200—	2	4	0

In the first game things were a lot more serious though, as the game went 14 innings, with almost every inning seeing men on base for either club.

Belleville took an early lead on two runs in the second inning to make the score 2-1.

Hamilton came back with a run off "Ed Neudorf's home run to tie things up and send the game into extra innings.

From there it was a take a little, give a little situation, with Hamilton scoring in the 11th.

It looked like the Macs might be finished on another one run game, but Glenn Carleton came through with a clutch double to put a man on second base. Gary Goyer contributed a run scoring single to tie the game up once more.

In the bottom of the 14th Larry Vavety walked and went to second base on Terry Meagher's sacrifice. Boomhower drove him in on a well hit single to left field.

game winning hit

Jim Chase pitched well for nine innings for Belleville before he had to be relieved by Ted Waite, who was the eventual winner.

Chase allowed six hits, and Waite four, as the two pitchers helped the Macs to their 10th win of the year. The two combined for seven strikeouts and three walks.

Wally Dick took the loss in relief of Bill McNellis. The two hurlers gave up 10 hits between them, while walking two and striking out 11.

Tops at the plate for Belleville was Gary Goyer with a triple and a single, Glenn Carleton doubled and singled in the contest. Terry Meagher, Paul Goodfellow, Frank Robinson and Jim Chase each singled once. Carl Boomhower singled twice, including driving in the winning run. Jim Chase had two RBI's in the game.

Fielding in the game for Belleville was excellent. A double play in the first inning kept Hamilton from getting an early lead. Particular standouts in the field were Paul Goodfellow, Terry Meagher and Frank Robinson, but, as usual, it was a team effort.

On Saturday night Dick Balent stymied Belleville in the first game, throwing a shutout for St. Catharines.

Al Beckman's homer in the fifth inning insured St. Kitts of the win.

The loss was absorbed by Ted Waite. He allowed four hits while walking six, striking out seven batters.

Belleville had just three hits off Balint, including two singles from Carleton and one from Ling.

In the second game Reid picked up his fourth win of the year.

He was touched for four hits and two walks while striking out seven batters.

Mavety, Goyer, and Carleton had two one-baggers, while Steve Ling, Doug Dafoe and Boomhower singled once. Goyer had another good night at the plate with two singles.

The Sunday encounters may have ended the season for the Macs, depending on whether the games rained out in Newmarket Thursday night are rescheduled or not played. They might not be played, because they have no bearings on the standing, and the OFL would like to go ahead with the playoffs.

If the games are not played, the Macs will end their first year at 10-41, not very impressive, but that's not the whole story.

As it stands Belleville has the nucleus of a winning ball team for 1976. Owners Doug Adams and Dale Duval have both assured the team they will be back again next year, and the OFL has indicated it is happy with the calibre of ball Belleville presented.

Crowd support for the Macs was great all year, a tribute to the fastball fans of Belleville, who came out to watch good fastball, if not just wins.

SLICES: Paul Goodfellow still leads the league in doubles, with eight, followed by Pat Werby and Dan Werby of Woodstock, each with seven.

Gary Goyer had 14 hits for the Macs and batted .280 after coming to them from Devolin Motors of the Quinte Fastball League.

Jim Chase and Wayne McTaggart both batted over .250 for the season also.

Leaders in RBI's were Steve Ling and Larry Mavety with 11. Paul Goodfellow and Terry Meagher both had eight as of August 9.

In other Ontario Fastball League action over the weekend St. Kitts defeated Burlington 5-4 and 4-2 on Sunday night, giving St. Kitts a shot at first place in the West Division.

In games in Woodstock on Saturday, Hamilton lost the first one 2-0 and then took the second 2-1.

Townsend Third

The three-day national water skiing championships at Leany Lake north of Ottawa finished Sunday with Belleville's Harold Townsend capturing third place.

Townsend was third overall in the Senior Men's Division, picking up 2,369 and 2,295 points respectively.

Cara McArthur of Cambridge and Richard Gruneau of Kingston finished ahead of him in the point standings.

Oshawa Takes Post Office Tourney

A team from Oshawa won the sixth annual Eastern Ontario Post Office Softball tournament, held at CFB Trenton Saturday, while Petawawa took the consolation title.

Belleville bowed to Oshawa in the A semi-finals, after taking a pair of victories, from Napanee and Cornwall.

Gord "Soup" campbell was named Most Sportsmanlike Player of the tournament, while Cobourg was chosen Most Sportsmanlike team.

Umpires from the Belleville and District Umpires Association donated their time to officiate the games.

Domville Ekes Out Overtime Contests

Devolin Motors must be wondering today how long they must play to be able to win an Ontario Amateur Softball playoff series. Sunday, the squad played no less than 31 innings in two games in their first round Senior B action with Domville, and came up empty handed, bowing out in three games. Devolin had won the first game of the series in Belleville last Sunday night.

The first game lasted 13 inning, with the Belleville crew dropping a 4-2 decision, with the second a 1-0 heartbreaker in favor of the Domville team.

Devolin opened the scoring in the top of the first in the first game, on only one hit. A walk, two errors, Larry Griffin's single, and a sacrifice added up to a pair of runs for Belleville.

However, with Belleville appearing to be on the way to a first game victory, Domville came on with a pair in the bottom of the ninth, on solo home runs by Wayne Jones and Dale Kingston.

Pete Onstein held Devolin to only four hits, all singles over the 13 innings, three of them off the bat of Griffin. The other safety went to Dave Horwood. Onstein struck out 22 Belleville hitters, walking three.

Griffin gave up nine hits, striking out five for Devolin, walking only one.

Don Holoway held Domville scoreless until the 18th frame, when a solo homer won the game for the home squad, but his mates couldn't come up with a run to back him up. The big right hander threw the strikes past 19 Domville batsmen, walking only three.

Pete Healy picked up the win for Domville, allowing eight Belleville hits for the shutout, whiffing 24 batters, and giving up three free tickets.

John Burnside connected for a double and single for the losers, with Jim Horwood and Gary Johnson each bagging two base hits.

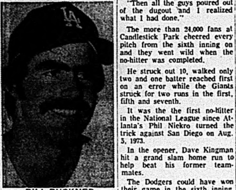
Halicki Fires Gem at Mets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

While Ed Halicki was throwing zeroes at New York Mets for the Giants in San Francisco, the Dodgers were coming up empty in Los Angeles.

While Halicki was the reason the Mets lost a 6-0 no-hitter to the Giants in a National League baseball game Sunday, the Dodgers had themselves to blame for a 5-3, 14-inning loss to Montreal Expos.

Virtually everything that could have gone wrong went that way for Los Angeles, which wasted 11 innings of four-hit pitching by Don Sutton, had an apparent winning run nullified when an illegal Dodgers bat was discovered, and saw the winning Expos run score on a wild pitch by Mike Marshall.



BILL BUCKNER

The Mets, at least, were overpowered by a pitcher who permitted only four batted balls to reach the outfield; one who missed the strike zone only 35 times in 122 pitches.

Four batted balls to the Los Angeles infield turned into errors—two by Dave Lopes and two by Bill Russell.

The Mets had topped the Giants 9-5 in the first game of a doubleheader. In Sunday's other National League games, Houston Astros defeated Chicago Cubs 8-4, St. Louis Cardinals stopped Atlanta Braves 6-2, Pittsburgh Pirates dropped Cincinnati Reds 5-1 and San Diego Padres swept Philadelphia Phillies Philadelphia 7-2 and 7-6 in 12 innings.

On Saturday, San Francisco edged New York 2-1, Los Angeles downed Montreal 3-1, then lost the second game of a doubleheader 5-2, Houston outlasted Chicago 14-12, St. Louis whipped Atlanta 7-2, Cincinnati outslugged Pittsburgh 12-7 and San Diego crushed Philadelphia 8-3.

Halicki, a six-foot, seven-inch pitcher said Sunday's game was like a dream for him.

"I was oblivious to everything," he said, "It was like a dream.

"Then all the guys poured out of the dugout and I realized what I had done."

The more than 24,000 fans at Candlestick Park cheered every pitch from the sixth inning on and they went wild when the no-hitter was completed.

He struck out 10, walked only two and one batter reached first on an error while the Giants struck for two runs in the first, fifth and seventh.

It was the the first no-hitter in the National League since Atlanta's Phil Niekro turned the trick against San Diego on Aug. 5, 1973.

In the opener, Dave Kingman hit a grand slam home run to help beat his former teammates.

The Dodgers could have won their game in the sixth inning, but Bill Buckner's bat was ruled illegal after he had delivered an apparently tie-breaking hit. Buckner was called out and the run was cancelled.

Gary Carter walked with one out in the 14th inning of the tie game and moved to third on Pete Mackanin's single. Then Mike Marshall let fly a wild pitch that sent Carter home and led to two others.

Lopes, who had stolen three bases in the game and a major league record 38 in a row, wanted a fourth steal in the Dodgers' 12th. But he was cut down by catcher Carter.

Clements Comes Off Riders' Bench to Direct Ottawa Win

REGINA (CP) — Quarterback Tom Clements of Ottawa Rough Riders made his Canadian Football League debut Sunday and played as if he is unwilling to return to the bench.

The former Notre Dame quarterback, replacing the injured Condredge Holloway, directed a steady but unspectacular attack as the Rough Riders defeated Saskatchewan Roughriders 23-16 in a CFL interlocking game.

Clements was given good field position through most of the game by a defensive team which intercepted four passes and recovered three Saskatchewan fumbles. He completed 12 of 23 passes for only 154 yards and used Art Green to highlight a ground game which netted 122 yards while keeping mistakes to a minimum.

By contrast, veterans Ron Lancaster and George Reed of Saskatchewan had a tough time on rain-soaked Taylor Field before a crowd of 20,111.

Lancaster committed a costly fumble besides throwing his four interceptions. Reed, playing with a touchy shoulder, gained 123 yards rushing but fumbled twice.

Lancaster completed 14 of 28 passes for 216 yards but offensive errors and the stubborn Ottawa defence kept him from controlling the game.

Lancaster got his mates going late in the first half to overcome a 10-point deficit and create a 13-13 halftime tie, but he could not sustain momentum.

Perhaps the biggest fumble recovery was made by guard Tom Schuette of Ottawa, who pounced on a bobble by Green for the opening touchdown. Green was punished as he reached the goal-line. The ball squirted into the end zone and Schuette beat several Saskatchewan players for the recovery.

Green scored on a one-yard drive for the final touchdown, late in the game. Gerry Organ kicked three field goals and converted both touchdowns.

Lancaster hit Leif Petterson for the Saskatchewan touchdown. Ivan MacMillan, signed last week to replace suspended veteran Jack Abendschan, completed Saskatchewan's scoring with three field goals and a convert.

The victory—first of the season by an Eastern Football Conference team in an interlocking game—helped Ottawa atone for a dismal effort Thursday night in a loss to Calgary Stampeders.

Holloway and fullback John Bledsoe were injured in that game and did not play Sunday. The result was Clements' first start as a pro. He showed none of Holloway's scrambling ability but used Green and his pass receivers intelligently to move Ottawa into a tie with the idle Montreal Alouettes for first place in the EFC.

Saskatchewan, which lost its second game in a row at home, remained first in the Western Conference, but has only a two-point edge over Edmonton, which has played two games less.

Saskatchewan suffered a possibly-crippling injury late in the game when Tom Campana hurt his wrist. The versatile back caught three passes before his injury.

Rowdies Chop Up Timbers

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Substitute defender Arsene Auguste broke a scoreless tie with a second-half goal and Clyde Best added another to give Tampa Bay Rowdies a 2-0 win over Portland Timbers in the North American Soccer League championship game Sunday.

Goalkeeper Paul Hammond, who didn't allow a goal in the playoffs, made several spectacular saves for the shutout. Defender Stewart Jump of the Rowdies was named the most valuable player in the game.

The Rowdies, Estern Division champions who allowed 27 goals in 22 regular-season games, became the third consecutive first-year expansion team to win the league title. The Timbers also joined the NASL this year, and both finalists were stocked primarily with Englishmen.

Auguste, from Haiti, scored his goal from about 30 yards out 21 minutes into the second half and three minutes after entering the game. Best scored with 2:23 left in the game.

Thomas Back in Light

HONOLULU (AP) — Running back Duane Thomas, playing in an unfamiliar league, once again is the centre of controversy.

But this time, the flap is not about Thomas's moodiness or his unpredictable behavior, but over which World Football League team has the right to sign him.

Thomas had not even taken the field for the Hawaiians on Saturday night when Philadelphia Bell announced that it owned the rights to his services and would fight to keep them.

Still dickering with the Hawaiians for a long-term contract, Thomas agreed to play under a one-game agreement. He carried five times for 17 yards and was cheered by the crowd of 10,313 which saw the Hawaiians defeat Chicago Winds 28-17.

"We absolutely have the rights to him," said Ed Sultan Jr., one of the Hawaiians' owners. "We've already reached an agreement with the Bell."

League president Chris Hemmeter, who was one of the Hawaiians' owners last year, said Thomas's appearance Saturday "is only a one-game agreement and it is perfectly legal."

Sox are Pennant Bound

Boston's Magic Number Is 28

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The time has come to start talking about magic numbers when discussing Boston Red Sox. The magic number for the American League's East Division leader is 28.

"We should make it this time," Bill Lee said Sunday after defeating Chicago White Sox 6-1 for his 17th triumph this season.

"We lost a lot of tight ball games last September when we just stopped hitting, but I don't think that's going to happen to this team," Lee said. "And Baltimore isn't as strong a team as it was a year ago."

In fact, the Orioles lost ground when they dropped a disputed 8-7 decision to Texas Rangers, falling 7½ games back in the American League's East Division.

Both teams have 34 games remaining and any combination of 28 Boston wins and Baltimore losses will give the Red Sox the division flag.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee Brewers edged Oakland A's 7-6, Kansas City Royals downed Cleveland Indians 5-2, California Angels took a pair from New York Yankees, 9-0 and 2-1, and Minnesota Twins beat Detroit Tigers 3-1.

Saturday, Chicago beat Boston 6-4, New York downed California 12-4, Detroit defeated Minnesota 6-5, Oakland took a pair from Milwaukee, 6-3 and 9-3, Cleveland beat Kansas City 7-1 and Texas edged Baltimore 1-0.

Home runs by Carl Yastrzemski, his 13th, and Jim Rice backed Lee's eight-hit pitching against the White Sox.

Lenny Randle scored from third base on Mike Hargrove's ninth-inning grounder with the disputed winning run as Texas beat Baltimore.

Milwaukee had to score three runs in the seventh and three more in the eighth against Oakland to end an eight-game losing streak, while Al Fitzmorris pitched seven-hit ball as Kansas ended a three-game skid and climed to within 7½ games of Oakland in the AL West.

Frank Tanana, the major leagues' strikeout leader, hurled a four-hitter and struck out eight to defeat the Yankees in the opener. California picked up its second victory in the nightcap with some help from the Yankees who committed six errors, three by third baseman Graig Nettles and two by catcher Ed Herrmann on one play.

Rookie Dave McKay of Vancouver tripled to lead Minnesota's decisive two-run sixth inning off Mickey Lolich. McKay scored on a single by Glenn Borgmann, who came around on singles by Jerry Terrell and Craig Kusick. Jim Hughes stopped Detroit on seven hits.

WHA Directors Meet To Discuss Orr Salary

TORONTO (CP) — World Hockey Association officials will discuss pooling their resources to hire defenceman Bobby Orr at a directors' meeting here today.

Today's edition of the Globe and Mail says only two WHA teams, New England Whalers and Edmonton Oilers, have indicated they will refuse to contribute to a pool to lure Orr away from Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

BOBBY ORR

The newspaper says each of the 14 teams in the WHA will be asked to contribute $100,000 to assure a $1.5-million signing bonus.

A similar deal enabled Winnipeg Jets to sign Bobby Hull three years ago.

Bud Poile, director of hockey administration for the WHA, says the Orr situation will on top of the agenda at today's meeting.

Wayne Belisle, president of Minnesota Fighting Saints, said Saturday he has been negotiating with Alan Eagleson, Orr's lawyer-agent, in an attempt to sign him.

The newspaper says Orr, Eagleson and Belisle will hold a meeting of their own today to try to work out contract terms.

"Bobby and I will be meeting with our financial and tax consultants to discuss the Minnesota offer with Belisle," Eagleson said Sunday. "These negotiations won't be all that simple. There's numerous tax and financial problems to work out."

Poile said the WHA undoubtedly will give Orr one week to decide on whether to accept or reject the offer. Eagleson said he has told his client he'll have to make up his mind quickly.

The 27-year-old Orr, named the NHL's top defenceman eight times, has one year remaining on his contract with Boston. The Globe and Mail says the Bruins could release him from that final year to avoid paying his $225,000 salary.

John F. Bassett, president of Toronto Toros, said Sunday the WHA schedule would have to be revised if Orr was signed by Minnesota.

This season's schedule has each team playing more games against its divisional rivals than against the other WHA teams.

That schedule has the Saints, who play in another division, paying only two visits to the Toros this fall.

"The schedule is the first thing we'd change if Orr is signed," Bassett said. "I can't see any of the team going for a deal that saw Orr coming to their buildings just twice a year."

Orr broke into the NHL in 1966 at the age of 18 and won the Calder Trophy as the league's top rookie. The next year he won the Norris Trophy and has won it every year since.

Last year he led the league in scoring with 135 points on 46 goals and 89 assists.

But He Won't Sign Today

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Wayne Belisle, president of Minnesota Fighting Saints, says a report that defenceman Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins would sign today with the World Hockey Association team is "totally erroneous."

A Toronto newspaper said in Saturday editions that Orr would jump the National Hockey League if $1.5 million in bonus money was placed in escrow in a St. Paul bank today.

Belisle acknowledged that he has been negotiating with Alan Eagleson, Orr's lawyer from Toronto, in an attempt to sign the player, who has one year remaining on his Boston contract.

The newspaper said Orr was prepared to sign a two-year contract with the Saints for the bonus, plus $300,000 in salary.

"Alan Eagleson has never said precisely how much it would take to sign Orr," Belisle said Saturday night. "If Eagleson said we would have Orr if we had $1.5 million on Monday, I'll guarantee you I'd have the $1.5 million on Monday."

Montreal Strong in Second

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Quebecois strengthened their hold on second place and Maryland Arrows moved into a tie for fifth in National Lacrosse League games Sunday night.

Gerry Pinder scored three goals to lead the Quebecois to a 15-14 win over Philadelphia to put the Wings four points behind Montreal. Philadelphia has three games remaining while Montreal has two.

Maryland Arrows upset regular-season champion Long Island Tomahawks 17-14 in the other game.

Serge Loiselle and Bill Squires contributed two goals apiece to the Quebecois attack. John Grant scored three for Philadelphia, who held a 53-40 edge in shots on goal before 4,352 Montreal fans.

At Landover, Md., Paul Suggate fired five goals and assisted on five others as the Arrows moved into a fifth-place deadlock with Quebec Caribous. Both clubs have 40 points and two games left.

Loved, remembered, longed for always Bringng many a silent tear.
—Husband and family.

RUMP — In loving memory of a dear father Albert Rump who passed away August 25, 1974.
Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain;
But though we're parted for a while,
We know we'll meet again.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day we know not when,
We shall meet in a better land,
Never to part again.
—Lovingly remembered by daughter Victoria and grandchildren.

RUMP — In loving memory of a dear husband Albert Rump who passed away August 25, 1974.
(One) year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home—it was His will,

VACANT LAND

Approximately 35 acres of land in the centre of the Trent Valley, almost a half mile of water front. It could make the perfect spot for a marina. Give us a call for location and further information.

EXECUTIVE HOME

One of the best buys in the Belleville area. Five large beautifully carpeted and decorated bedrooms with large main bathroom and a 3 piece off the master bedroom. Family room with fireplace on the main floor level. Many,m any more features. A phone call will get you an appointment to view for yourself.

COMMERCIAL PROPERTY

In Trenton, live in this very nice 3 bedroom 1½ storey home and have your business in the rear yard. Over 2,800 square feet of floor space that can blend to many types of business. In a very good location, across the street from the new east mall. Plenty of parking area. Please give us a call for further information.

THREE BEDROOM HIGH RANCH BUNGALOW

The weather may be hot now, but there will be snow next winter, so put your car inside in one of the two garages in the basement of this beautiful home. Then go from the garage into the recreation room or to one of the four piece bathrooms, this one is just off the recreation room which also has the fourth bedroom if you desire it. Another 1½ bathrooms on the main floor, the half bath off the large master bedroom, and also a large walk-in closet is a real asset off this bedroom. The split entrance is very attractive and so is the price and location. It's a beautiful evening for a drive, give the office a call and we will go visit this place only 3 miles from the city in a very nice subdivision.

Interested in a new house with good construction, good arranged mortgages and almost immediate possession? Then give us a call for further information.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE Bede Osol

For Tuesday, Aug. 26

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Because you feel luckier than you are today, you could miscalculate and cause a loss for the family. Weigh decisions carefully.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be cautious when you are working or traveling. You're in an impulsive mood today. This could spell trouble.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your pocketbook is vulnerable today. Someone is ready to take advantage of your happy-go-lucky nature.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Just when things seem to be opening up for you, a sudden problem at home prevents you from getting what you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) Watch what you say or do today. A thoughtless remark or act could make you wish you could disappear quickly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Shy away from borrowing anything today. Things will not happen as you anticipate. A friendship could be severely damaged.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your erratic temperament negates anything someone might do in your behalf. In addition, it causes you to project a poor image.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov 22) You could find yourself working alone on a mess someone else started. This won't put you in the best frame of mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Thoughtless actions of a friend produce some changes in your plans that aren't what you intended or desired.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A partner or associate could cause a problem for you by piling additional heavy responsibilities on your shoulders.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You will have difficulty today applying yourself to mental work because of unusual and frequent interruptions.

PICES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep romance out of the picture today. Unexpected expenses will pop up to put a damper on your enjoyment.

To Your Good Health

Disc Proaably Neuritis Cause

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you please help me to understand what is wrong with me? An intern at the hospital called it neuritis, and he gave me three shots in the back of my neck for it.

I've had three attacks of it. I could not move my head without holding my neck, the pain was so great. The doctor recommended a brace of foam rubber, and this has really done the trick.

I sleep every night with the brace when I have felt another attack coming on. I'm worried because I don't know how serious this is. — D.C.

Since your pain is in the back of your neck and head, and since it was relieved by the use of the foam rubber brace, one would suspect the cause to be a degeneration of a disc between neck vertebrae. This is often associated with arthritic changes of the vertebrae.

The problem is serious to the extent that it recurs, because it can eventually cause symptoms in your hands and fingers, which are served by nerves originating in this area. A bump can aggravate the problem. I presume an x-ray was taken to give the intern the clue to the problem.

Once relieved by the neck brace, periodic traction by means of a head halter and weights can forestall further trouble. In time, the neck vertebrae may fuse so that neck movement will not cause pain.

If your personal physician is unfamiliar with this type of problem, he might suggest you see an orthopedist. You may have to settle for a brief hospital stay to correct the situation, which would allow the necessary immobilization of the neck.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For the past three years I have been under the care of an allergist (for chronic rhinitis) to no avail. My allergist has recommended an operation to remove nasal tissue. Will this help? — P.A.

Chronic rhinitis (inflammation of the nasal membranes) can indeed be allergy-related, and an obstruction of the nasal passages can contribute to the general problems.

Two types of tissue in the nose can cause such obstruction of the airways. One is a bent (deviated) septum, the "divider" between the two nostrils.

The other is polyp growth. Polyps are often directly related to an allergic condition.

The surgery should help you measurably by reducing the effects of the rhinitis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: If a man loses one testicle, but the remaining testicle is healthy, is he limited in the amount of children he can sire? Also, if a woman loses one ovary, is she limited in the amount of children she may then conceive? — R.P.

Statistically, it would seem that the siring capacity would be cut in half, doesn't it? But this is not necessarily the case.

The testes are continually manufacturing and storing the spermatozoa, and, of course, only one sperm is required to fertilize the female egg. So it seems even a bit wasteful that so many are released in a single ejaculation. But it is in this way that nature keeps the statistical odds well in its own favor.

Thus, with a single healthy testicle, there would still remain a substantial quantity of sperm produced for probable impregnation. And, since only one ovum is required for that impregnation, loss of a single ovary need not limit the prospects.

Drinking Mistakes Exposed

REGINA (CP) — Ralph the Round Buyer, Harry Heavy Hand, Tallulah Topper and Wally What'll It Be are appearing all over Saskatchewan these days.

And they aren't a new musical team.

They are people everyone knows, the alcohol pushers, says Don Leitch, director of AWARE, the Saskatchewan government's advertising campaign for the responsible use of alcohol.

The health department, through its AWARE program and characters such as Ralph and Harry, is attempting to make people more aware of harmful drinking patterns and to reinforce social attitudes that might change those patterns.

And the indication so far is that it's working.

Of the 518 people surveyed by telephone in one month this year, 81 per cent had seen or heard one AWARE ad, 79 per cent favored the program.

Mr. Leitch says the positive reaction to AWARE indicates this type of campaign is perhaps the way to get into the area of preventive health.

Alcoholism follows heart disease and cancer as the major health problem in Saskatchewan. Little can be done to prevent cancer or heart disease, he says, while alcoholism is "self-inflicted."

AWARE is also attempting to reach alcoholics through radio spots of interviews with six recovered alcoholics. The purpose of these ads is to attempt to find the "fine line" between the person who drinks and the alcoholic.

Mr. Leitch says if the AWARE program succeeds, the government will increase the money spent on the advertisements. There is no reason why newspapers, radio and television cannot make as much a profit from advertising against alcohol consumption as for it, he says.

Building Roads

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton faces a road-building program which will cost $509.3 million by 1992, city engineering and transportation department officials estimate. Major roadway projects planned would cost $168.5 million, but a 12-per-cent annual inflation cost pushes the total over $500 million.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Oswald: 'How about some articles on percentage plays involving several suits?"

Jim : "Here's a hand you played with me right after you got back from the Korean war. You took your ace of clubs, drew trumps, led a club to the king, ruffed the last club, led a spade to dummy's ace and the seven spot back to your hand.

"When East played his king you claimed since you would be able to discard one of my diamonds on your queen of spades. It took me an hour before I realized what a good line of play you had taken."

Oswald: "It really was a good line I WAS sure to make my contract if either opponent held king-small of spades, if spades broke 3-3, if I dropped a singleton king, or finally if the spades did not behave I would be able to fall back on the diamond finesse."

Jim : "That's it exactly. You gave yourself the best chance in spades, while managing to retain the diamond finesse in case spades were unfriendly. Furthermore, if East held four spades to the king he might make a mistake and grab his king right away."

Ask the Jacobys

A Massachusetts correspondent asks, "I was vulnerable and held:

♠ x x ♥ A x x ♦ K x x ♣ A Q x x x.

My right hand opponent opened one heart. What should I have bid?"

The answer to his question is that he should have passed. His hand would be a sound one-club opening, but it is a most unsound vulnerable two-club overcall. Overcalls (particularly at the two levels, are based primarily on playing tricks, not high cards. A takeout double with only two spades is inadvisable and a notrump overcall would be absurd.

Evergreens Open with Wins

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Ontario, represented by Kitchener Evergreens, blanked both Quebec Gatineau and St. John, N.B., 5-0 Sunday in the opening day of the Canadian softball championship.

Pitcher Terry Gallamore limited Quebec to two hits while Kitchener managed six hits off loser Henri Boucher before an opening-day crowd of 6,291.

Ontario struck for three first-inning runs on one hit and two Quebec errors.

Les Downing had two singles for the winners and Ab Henshaw, John Hagey, Don Hoffman and Gallamore one each.

Winning pitcher Bob Domik allowed four hits and struck out 10. Kevin Newell, the loser for New Brunswick, gave up eight hits.

In the sixth inning, Ontario scored on three hits and two New Brunswick errors.

Henshaw had two singles and Downing a double for Ontario. Other hits went to John Murdoch, Jim Murdock, Barry Musselman, Hagey and Tim Burkhart.

Dave Fraser had two singles for New Brunswick.

Len Bersford's 250-foot three-run homer highlighted Newfoundland's 8-2 win over the Northwest Territories. Newfoundland struck for 10 hits off three Northwest Territories pitchers.

Winning pitcher Ross Crocker surrendered four hits and two seventh-inning runs.

Bersford also hit a double as did Jim Davis and Jim O'Toole. Alex Skakum doubled for the Northwest Territories.

Meanwhile, Quebec Gatineau managed a 6-0 win over Manitoba St. Vital. Quebec scored runs in the first and third innings and clinched the victory with four runs in the fifth.

Winning pitcher Claude Lafleur allowed four hits and struck out eight. Manitoba had three pitchers with the loss taken by Ken Dilk, who faced only three batters in the opening inning.

Quebec had six hits and was helped by two Manitoba errors.

A record-setting pitching performance by Earl Kronlund carried Alberta to a 2-1 win over Prince Edward Island Sunday in a 16-inning game, the longest in the history of the Canadian softball championship.

Kronlund pitched a one-hitter, striking out 21 batters.

The previous longest game was 13 innings in 1974 and the former strike-out mark was 16 in 1973.

The winning run was scored after a two-out single by Don Carey. Kronlund then walked and Carey was driven home by Myron Fediuk's single to left field.

Losing pitcher Mervin Power allowed nine hits and struck out 10. Nellis led Alberta with three singles and Kronlund had two.

Nova Scotia Dartmouth gained a 12-0 win over Yukon All-Stars on the no-hit pitching of Jack McKinnon. The game was halted after five innings when the 10-run rule came into effect.

McKinnon struck out nine and walked two. Elden Hardy was the loser. He was relieved by Dennis King in the third inning.

Don Ross led the winners with a triple, a double and a single.

British Columbia gained a 6-0 win over Saskatchewan on the three-hit, 15-strikeout pitching of Stan Kern.

Bob Burrows led the Victoria Bates team in hitting with a 250-foot homer and a double. Carl Walker had a double and a single and Pete Sanghurst had two singles.

Kitchener Kieswetters Women's Fastball Champs

CALGARY (CP) — Kitchener Kieswetters returned to the city where they won their first Canadian women's fastball championship and took the 1975 crown Sunday, nipping defending champion Vancouver 2-1 in the double-knockout series final.

The Ontario champions romped through the six-team round-robin Red section of the tournament without a loss.

Kitchener downed Saskatchewan 4-2 Saturday, followed with a 1-0, eight-inning victory over Vancouver, and went on to capture its second championship in five years.

The loss was only Vancouver's second in 33 tournament games during the last four years. They lost their 31st game to Kitchener and beat Saskatchewan Sunday morning before losing the final and the title they have held for the last three years.

Ontario's Diane Warriner survived a shaky second inning and limited the defending champions to four hits while her teammates collected seven off Rosemary Fuller, who lost her second game in succession to the eastern club.

Leadoff batter Norma Wood singled, was sacrificed to second, moved to third on an error and scored on another single by Georgina Reynolds. Reynolds scored on Sue Scherer's double.

Vancouver's run came in the fourth inning when right fielder Ann McLeod pounded a triple and scored on an error.

Vancouver eliminated Regina 8-1 in the only morning game, with Joan Eirkins scattering five hits while her teammates collected seven hits off loser Shirley Kowalski and reliever Irene Wallace.

Luanne Izzard, who tossed a perfect game for Kitchener in the club's 21-0 shellacking of the Northwest Territories, was named to the all-star team along with manager Pat Gilmour.

Fuller also was named to the team and was the top pitcher in the tournament.

Other B.C. players named to the team were Janice Robinson, first base; Diane Materie, left field; and coach Adrian Levigne.

Johanne Michel of Quebec was named all-star catcher; Flo Sonna of Saskatchewan, second base; Darlene Solie, Saskatchewan, shortstop; Bonnie Cumiford, Calgary, third; Van Jensen, Calgary, centre field; and Therese Leger of New Brunswick, right field.

Norma Vidler, third base for Saskatchewan, was voted most valuable player and Cumiford was top batter with a .542 average.

Jones Sisters Named to Pan-Ams

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Sisters Diane and Joanne Jones of Saskatoon were proposed Sunday for Canada's Pan-American Games team.

The team, put together Sunday by the Canadian Track and Field Association after its national championships, still needs the approval of the Pan American Games committee.

Diane, a high school teacher, set a Canadian record in the event Sunday at the championships. She represented Canada at the 1972 Olympics.

Joanne, a novice in international competition, finished fourth in Sunday's competition. Diane was also proposed as a long jumper.

The Pan-American Games take place in Mexico City in October.

The women's team proposed Sunday will be the nucleus of the Canadian team in Friday's international meet here against East Germany.

Barr Is Winner In First Try

RICHMOND, B.C. (CP) — Dave Barr shot a sizzling six-under-par 66 Sunday for first place in the Bristish Columbia open and his first victory in two years as a pro.

But the a 23-year-old native of Kelowna, B.C., who picked up $4,000 and the Peter Jackson Trophy, said it was a bogey on the 15th that helped him do it.

"When you're having a good round like I did today there's always that thought in the back of your mind that you're due for a really bad hole." Barr said.

"That bogey on 15 really did help me because it was then that I quit pressing and decided just to play the last few holes for birdies. I got one and that was enough."

Barr finished the tournament at 211, one stroke ahead of Moe Norman of Guilford, Ont. and Ron Wells of Portland, Ore.

His final round score, which included an eagle, five birdies and the bogey, was just one and the boegy, was just one stroke off the course record. He also missed two birdie putts from less than four feet.

Barr clinched the tournament after a few anxious moments on the 524-yard, par-five 18th when he drove into the trees on the right side of the fairway, then hit a five-iro into the rough about 80 yards short of the green. However, he salvaged the situation with a wedge to the green and a clutch birdie putt from seven feet away.

Wells attempted to send the tournament into extra holes, but just missed a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th after scoring birdies on both the 16th and 17th.

Norman, looking for his 34th tournament victory started the round two under par, but bogeyed the fifth—the same hole Barr eagled by chipping in from just off the green—and finish with 70 for the day.

Dean May, a 22-year-old rookie pro from Dessert, Calif., saw his chance for victory escape on the 15th, when he double-bogeyed after driving into the trees and then three-putted. He finished with a 72 for a tournament total of 213.

Favorites Upset

MONTREAL (CP) — Most pre-race predictions for the $140,000 Prix d'Ete pacing event centred on North America's top three-year-olds—the strapping colt Nero and the filly Silk Stockings.

But neither was in the winner's circle to claim the $70,000 first prize when the one-mile harness event was completed in a steady downpour at Blue Bonnets Raceway Sunday.

Instead, Alberts Star and veteran trainer-driver Keith Waples of Durham, Ont., were on hand, as was the Don Seiling family of Elmira, Ont., to claim the prize for their Seiling Stables.

Alberts Star took the race away from Silk Stockings at the half-way mark to finish one length ahead of the filly. Nero never did get to the post as he was scratched Sunday morning because of an infection in his hooves.

Geiberger Tops

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Al Geiberger defeated Dave Stockton Sunday to win the $250,000 Tournament Players golf championship.

Geiberger nearly bypassed the Fort Worth tournament because of the blazing Texas heat and other considerations.

It was literally a duel in the sun with Geiberger shooting a 69 for a record 270 total and a three-shot victory over Stockton. The win was worth $50,000.

Stockton also shot a closing 69, but his was a 32-37 compared with Geiberger's 36-33.

Stockton was amazed at Geiberger's performance.

"If someone told me I was going to be seven under par on this course and not win . . . ." he said, his voice trailing in bewilderment.

For the record, which erased the 30-year-old mark of 272 by Clayton Hefner, it was 66-68-67-69—270, with a sizzling 63 in Wednesday's pro-am event.

Although largely overlooked, Hubert Green closed with a 69 for third place. His 275, while five shots off the lead, was six shots better than the trio in fourth place—Mason Rudolph, Bob Dickson and Bob Murphy.

Farmers Blaim Davis

TARA, Ont. (CP) — Walter Miller, vice-president of the National Farmers Union, said Sunday that Premier William Davis is misrepresenting his government's guarantee to beef calf producers of 50 cents a pound.

While campaigning Friday in Kemptville, the premier said Ontario already provides a stabilizing factor for beef farmers and the government has offered a 50-cents-per-pound guarantee for calves this fall.

Mr. Miller said in a statement that the program requires farmers to pay a $5 premium on 100 per cent of their cows but farmers can collect only on 85 per cent.

For calves the support level is 50 cents a pound but the farmer ends up with 42.5 cents a pound after the 15 per cent is subtracted.

Mr. Miller said the program does not cover producer costs and allows nothing for labor.

The support level should be at least 70 cents per pound, Mr. Miller added.

Set Chess Record

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Toni Deline, 16, and Pete Wood, 13, set the world chess marathon record Saturday after playing for more than the 122-hour record set last December by Toni, and Pete's brother Ray. They plan to extend the record by more than 48 hours.

Swim Nude

TRURO, Mass. (AP) — More than 1,000 bathers, about 60 per cent of them not wearing a thing, gambolled on the beach Saturday in a demonstration against a ban on nude bathing. The "beach party" was promoted by the Save the Free Beach committee in protest against regulations against nude bathing adopted earlier in the year.

Urges Crime Study

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Consumer champion Ralph Nader and four congressmen Sunday urged Attorney-General Edward Levi to set up a new body to investigate corporate crime, saying that the United States is "in the midst of a corporate crime wave."

Causes High Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Burns, Federal Reserve Board chairman, predicted Sunday that grain sales to the Soviet Union will cause higher food prices than expected by the agriculture department.

Paper Workers Strike

HULL, Que. (CP) — Unionized workers at the E. B. Eddy pulp and paper plants here and in nearby Ottawa voted Sunday to go on strike. A strike date is to be set in two or three weeks, a union spokesman said.

The 1,500 workers are represented by four locals of the Canadian Paper Workers Union and Local 412 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Negotiations in the industry are being conducted on a national level and a country-wide strike is possible if the companies do not change their position in contract talks, a union spokesman said.

The unions are seeking a $2-an-hour wage increase in a one-year contract. The average wage now is $5.30 an hour.

The company has offered an annual three-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract.

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Police Chief Jack Shrubb told the police commission the city needs a bylaw against begging and soliciting on the street.

No Return In Sight On Arctic Oil Scheme

OTTAWA (CP) — With a $66-million stake in Panarctic Oils Ltd., the government apparently still is a long way from realizing returns from its participation in the Arctic exploration joint venture.

"There's been good hope, in that Panarctic started up as a wildcat outfit and has made some good discoveries," an official of the northern affairs department commented recently. "But when there'll be a return is still anybody's guess."

Earlier this month, northern affairs agreed to guarantee a $12-million loan for Panarctic's 1975 exploration program.

A. D. Hunt, assistant deputy minister of northern affairs and a Panarctic director, said the company needed the loan because there is a reduced interest in continuing northern exploration by other companies.

Panarctic has traditionally raised about half its annual exploration budget—about $50 million in each of the last three years—through farm-outs and deals with other companies.

But about mid-1975, the company realized it could not raise the money needed through arrangements it had used previously.

The government did not want to put more money into Panarctic, raising its ownership of the company above the current 45 per cent, which left the only available option a loan guarantee, with funds provided by the Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Montreal.

The five-year loan can be repaid by Panarctic at any time with interest and contains a convertible feature, so the government can accept an equivalent value of shares in Panarctic, Mr. Hunt said.

Panarctic president Charles Hetherington said the company expects to repay the loan, rather than allow the government to increase its interest in the company.

Bus Drivers May Return To Work

MONTREAL (CP) — The union for the city's 3,400 striking bus drivers and subway operators has called a membership meeting for today to vote on a return to work.

But officials of the Brotherhood of Bus Drivers, Metro Operators and Allied Services, said it will be at least Tuesday before commuters, without public transportation since Wednesday, can expect a resumption of services.

Campaign Issues Affect Citizens

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Sept. 18 Ontario election campaign should focus squarely on issues that affect individual citizens, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said Saturday.

This is why the NDP has tried to emphasize particular problems such as asbestos pollution at the Reeves Mine near Timmins and questionable land purchases in the Pickering area, he told a news conference.

"Some have said it is a gamble. We don't see it that way at all.

"You don't spend a campaign lurching from one issue to another, discussing integrity one day, scandal the next, patronage the third, education the fourth, big government the fifth, and God knows what you haul out of the atmosphere on the sixth.

"A campaign should be a consistent exploration of issues and alternatives, and to the best of our ability that's exactly what we'll do."

Mr. Lewis said voters won't allow Progressive Conservative Premier William Davis to get away with this 'leisurely roaming around the province."

At some point, the premier is going to have to deal with his record . . . and the issues."

So far Mr. Davis has raised only two substantial issues—gun control and rent review—the NDP Leader said. But no solution was offered on either.

Police Investigate Quebec Freak Shows

DRUMMONDVILLE, Que. (CP) — Drummondville police say they will investigate weekly "freak shows" at a local nightclub where mentally-retarded people alledgedly perform for Monopoly money and subway tickets before a laughing and jeering audience.

Jean-Marie Precourt, assistant director of Drummondville police, said Friday that the shows will be investigated following a report complete with photographs which appeared in the Montreal newspaper, Le Jour.

The shows, billed as "amateur contests," but known locally as "the mentals' shows," have been held every Wednesday for several weeks in a hotel nightclub here, 60 miles north-east of Montreal.

The report in Le Jour said the mentally retarded perform before an audience whose members laugh, make jokes and cynical comments.

At the end of the evening a "winner" is chosen who gets $100 in Monopoly money.

Egypt and Israel Closer on Middle East Peace Accord

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (Reuter) — Egypt and Israel are almost wholly agreed on an interim Middle East peace accord, a spokesman for President Anwar Sadat said today.

Spokesman Tahsin Bashir told reporters: "We have agreed on 90 per cent of the fundamentals but the remaining 10 per cent are very important."

He said there were still problems in the drafting of the legal language of the agreement which could not be dealt with speedily.

The spokesman said President Sadat expected to learn from U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger tonight whether Israel accepted the outline for agreement, as proposed by Egypt.

Israel's initial reaction to Egypt's proposals was positive, Bashir said.

"There is a measure of optimism but it has to be tested when Dr. Kissinger comes back tonight."

The diplomats reported only one principal issue still unsettled—the number of surveillance stations to be set up in the vicinity of the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes, which Israel will relinquish.

Kissinger flew to Alexandria Monday for a meeting with President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, returned to Jerusalem for a 3½-hour meeting Monday night with Prime Minister Yitzhac Rabin and his negotiating team, and after more talks with the Israelis today was returning to Alexandria this afternoon.

"So far we have not run into any unexpected difficulties or into any one difficulty that presents a deadlock, so matters are still progressing," Kissinger told reporters.

He reported that drafts of the proposed agreement are now being exchanged.

In the United States, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield said he would oppose a key provision of the proposed accord—the use of American civilians to help man at least four electronic surveillance posts around the two mountain passes.

The Montana Democrat recalled the stationing of American advisers in South Vietnam that began the American involvement in that war and commented: "One Vietnam is one Vietnam too many."

President Ford, speaking earlier Monday in Milwaukee, Wisc., said he had not decided yet whether U.S. civilians should be sent to Sinai. But he said they would not be sent unless Congress approved.

The Israelis said agreement had been reached on the distance Egyptian forces will advance after Israel withdraws. Diplomatic sources said they would advance about two miles along the Gulf of Suez, in the south, while in the rest of the territory they would move forward five to 10 miles to take over the present United Nations buffer zone.

The sources said the new UN buffer zone to be set up between the two armies would be as much as 30 miles wide in some places and would include the Gidi and Mitla passes.

Originally, Israel opposed any Egyptian advance. Its concession on this point was the price for maintaining an Israeli-American electronic warning post on the Egyptian side of the Gidi Pass. The post, at Umm Khashiba, will watch Egyptian airfields as far away as Cairo as well as ground movements.

A similar Egyptian-American station is planned for the Israeli side of the pass, with at least two other posts manned by Americans and a number of unmanned "sensor" listening posts.

Meanwhile, advocates and foes of the agreement in Israel made battle plans.

Critics of the pact, who feel it jeopardizes Israel's security and does not gain enough for the Jewish state, planned more anti-Kissinger demonstrations.

On the other side, Rabin's Labor party and the country's three main kibbutz movements backed the accord.

Secret Council Vote Names Corke Mayor

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Ben Corke, a Belleville businessman and city alderman for 12 years, was appointed mayor Monday following a secret city council vote.

The 61-year-old Mr. Corke will serve the remaining 1½ years of the current two-year term of mayor.

The chief magistrate's seat was left vacant last week by the resignation of Robin Jeffrey who quit to devote more time to her campaign as Progressive Conservative candidate for Quinte riding in the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Under the municipal act, council had either to appoint a new leader or call an election. The 10 aldermen chose the first route behind closed doors in the sanctity of their committee room.

And also under the act, council did not have to conduct the actual balloting — or discuss its reason for choosing the appointment method — in open session.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said, during an interview, council came to its decision "in camera" and all proceedings during that time period — which lasted 70 minutes — were unofficial until the results were ratified in open council.

He added council was not required under the act to pass a resolution during the in-camera portion to officially declare the system to be used. It was merely accomplished by tacit agreement.

Mr. Purcell noted a provision in the act which may have forced council to keep the voting secret. He explained there could be no secret ballot in open council, meaning the aldermen would have had to vote by a show of hands.

Mayor Corke told newsmen in camera proceedings will not be made public. He said secrecy was necessary because there might have been some resentment among aldermen during the voting.

"To choose a mayor from 10 aldermen means you have to show who you're voting for," he added.

Although the final ratification in open council for the appointment was unanimous, Mayor Corke revealed, "obviously, there was not unanimity," in the in-camera session.

Onlookers first became aware of the secret balloting when Mr. Purcell and deputy city clerk William Moreton emerged after 40 minutes from the committee room with a ballot box and disappeared into Mr. Purcell's office.

They did this twice more, leaving the impression of three ballots and therefore confirming at least four aldermen had been nominated at first. They were probably the four revealed during an Intelligencer survey of council last week — Mr. Corke, Art Keegan, Paul Russel and Jean Smith.

Newsmen also assumed the order of finish to be Corke, Smith, Russell and Keegan due to apparent symbolic actions during open council.

The actions were apparent when Ald. Keegan seconded Ald. Russell's motion to accept Mrs. Jeffrey's resignation with regret — Ald. Russell assisted Mayor Corke into his robes — and Ald. Smith placed the chain of office around the new mayor's neck.

In addition, due to the brief periods during which Messrs. Moreton and Purcell counted the ballots, it can be assumed there were no tie votes the deputy-clerk would have had to break.

Talks Still Open Black Leader Says

LIVINGSTONE, Zambia (Reuter) — Rhodesia's black nationalist leader, Bishop Abel Muzorewa, said today talks between black and white Rhodesians on the country's political future are not deadlocked and have not broken down.

Muzorewa, president of the African Natonal Council (ANC) which is demanding black majority rule from the white minority regime of Prime Minister Ian Smith, spoke to reporters after talks here with Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda.

He said an ANC statement containing further information would be issued later.

Before the bishop spoke, evidence was growing that the talks were in trouble and that at least the current, opening phase of the bargaining is at an end.

Sources close to the ANC made clear that the two sides had failed to agree, in talks going on far into last night, on terms for later committee sessions to be held inside Rhodesia.

Smith flew back to Salisbury from the conference site, saying the talks had not broken down but the next step was up to the ANC. The special South African railway train, parked on the Victoria Falls Bridge between Zambia and Rhodesia for the talks, was sent back to Pretoria.

Kaunda, who attended Monday's session with South African Premier John Vorster to lend weight to the bid for a settlement, will likely fly back to Lusaka later today. He held separate talks with South African Foreign Minister Hilgard Muller and Rhodesian black nationalist leaders.

Pro-Communist Military Supporters Suspended

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal's military leaders clamped down today on outspoken supporters of pro-Communist Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves within the armed forces but, despite intense speculation, did not remove him from office.

In a communique early today the policy-making Revolutionary Council suspended the activities of the fifth division, the Communist-dominated military information and propaganda machine.

The division was silenced after launching a fierce campaign to convince the country that Gen. Goncalves had triumphed over his opponents.

One man died and at least 12 were wounded when troops opened fire on demonstrators trying to attack the Communist party office in the town of Leiria, 50 miles north of Lisbon. It was the second consecutive night of anti-Communist violence in the town.

In Lisbon, the main air force base went on alert Monday night without the knowledge of its commanding officer while several other military units were said to be in a state of "heightened vigilance."

In Oporto, a crowd demonstrating in support of Gen. Eurico Corvacho, the pro-Goncalves officer dismissed as head of the northern military region, attacked an NBC television crew. The mob carried off the crew's equipment.

An NBC spokesman said West German cameraman Peter Dehmel was treated for a broken finger and bruises.

The council's action against the division was decided at a meeting attended by President Francisco da Costa Gomes, Goncalves, Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, head of the Copcon internal security forces, the heads of the army, navy and air force, and other officers.

The division controlled the state radio and was the official mouthpiece of the Armed Forces Movement. But it was rebuked strongly by Costa Gomes, who disowned its attempts to involve him in its pro-Goncalves campaign.

Grand Jury Subpoenas Witnesses

DETROIT (AP) — Investigators unable to solve Jimmy Hoffa's baffling disappearance, have subpoenaed witnesses to go before a grand jury investigating the Hoffa case and illegal uses of Teamsters Union funds.

Joe Bane, president of Teamsters Local 614 in Pontiac, Mich., said today he was subpoenaed to appear before the federal grand jury Wednesday and again on Sept. 3 and Sept. 4.

Rhodesian Talks End

LIVINGSTONE, Zambia (Reuter) — Rhodesian constitutional talks ended here today with the leader of the black nationalist delegation accusing Prime Minister Ian Smith of wrecking them.

"Mr. Ian Smith had decided to wreck the conference," Bishop Abel Muzorewa, president of the African National Council (ANC), said at a news conference.

"We said that we would want all our people to be covered by immunity and this we put forward to him (Ian Smith)," Bishop Muzorewa said, referring to negotiations over where the talks on a new constitution would continue.

Newfoundland Calls Election

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland's economy arose as the first issue Monday when Premier Frank Moores announced a general election for Sept. 16, the province's third in less than four years.

The premier's announcement ended months of speculation that began last March when the government brought down Newfoundland's first $1-billion budget.

Mr. Moores said his Progressive Conservative government had made large strides since the March 24, 1972, election in implementing policies that would share the province's wealth among all its citizens.

"The main thing to remember today is that this is just a beginning, a beginning that has set the stage for a stable and prosperous future for our province," the premier said.

Former premier Joseph R. Smallwood, leader of the Liberal Reform party founded in July, saw it differently. "Now the people are going to have a chance to pronounce their opinion on the mismanagement of Newfoundland by Mr. Moores," he said.

Liberal leader Ed Roberts had no comment Monday but said he would make a statement today.

Nixon Unwraps Liberal Platform

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Liberal Leader Robert Nixon took the wraps off his party's election platform Monday, four days later than originally promised.

At the start of the campaign two weeks ago, Mr. Nixon promised to release the Liberal policy outline within 10 days.

He used his own nomination meeting—a formality in any case—as a forum to unveil the platform, contained in a 16-page red booklet entitled Priorities.

Most of the policies, covering 14 specific fields, have been brought out before, either earlier in the campaign or in the legislature.

"These priorities in themselves are not earth-shaking," Mr. Nixon admitted. "But they together form a program a new government can implement in this province."

He said the policies, which would form a cornerstone of government options if the Liberals are elected in the Sept. 18 Ontario election, were formed after two years of work by the party.

The policies cover fields from education to environment and from agriculture to measures to aid Northern Ontario.

Questions Olympic Coverage

GENEVA (AP) — A European Broadcasting Union (EBU) representative said he does not share the optimism voiced by International Olympic Committee (IOC) president Lord Killanin on the prospect of worldwide television coverage of the 1976 Montreal Games.

Driver Charged

TRENTON A 28-year-old Toronto man was charged with careless driving Tuesday after he lost control of the vehicle he was driving and struck a telephone pole causing $2,500 damage.

Gary Pennington was not injured in the accident at Dundas Street near Victoria Street, said police.

Damage to the car was estimated at $2,000 and about $500 to the pole.

Road Grants Raised

PICTON — Announcement of supplementary road subsidies for three Prince Edward townships was made Monday from the Queen's Park office of James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

The township of Ameliasburg will receive an additional subsidy of $15,000 raising its total allocation to $67,200 and Hallowell township will get a further $10,000 subsidy increasing its total allocation to $56,500.

Sophiasburg will receive an additional $8,000 bringing its full allocation to $54,700.

Mishap Costly

TRENTON — A two-car accident Monday on Highway 401 just outside of Trenton caused $2,600 damage and resulted in one man being charged with careless driving.

Danny Gollogele, 24, of Kingston was charged after the car he was driving was in collision with the rear end of a vehicle driven by Monica Macauley, 25, of RR 3, Trenton, said police.

There was $1,500 damage to the Macauley vehicle and $1100 damage to the Gollogele vehicle.

There were no injuries, said police.

Think Twice Before Renting Out

Ed. McKinney
Realty Ltd.
J. E. McKinney

The bomb has dropped. Your are told to transfer out of state post-haste. Your first question is — "Shall we sell our home or rent it out?"

On the plus side, you count the money coming in from rent which will help pay off the mortgage plus a little extra on the side for profit. Sounds good, but every coin has two sides.

To keep the house rented, you'll have to pay advertising costs or fees and commissions to a broker. Maintenance costs take a bite out of the rental income. Each time there is a turnover it will have to be cleaned and redecorated A vacancy can result in a loss that will take years to recover. A big apartment house can absorb some unoccupied units, but when your house stands idle, the cost continue with nothing coming in. And, if you are gifted with a non-paying tenant, it may take months to exict him.

Dollar-wise, you are better off selling a single-family home and using the money to move up to a bigger and better home for your family.

MacDonald Gets Liberal Nod for Sept. 18 Race

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Hallowell Township reeve Keith MacDonald Monday night was acclaimed as the Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox riding during a nomination convention here.

Approximately 400 persons filled the auditorium at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute where a piper led the Liberal standard-bearer and convention delegates in a march through the aisles.

"Its hard for me to explain why I want to be your member. I don't fit even my own idea of a politician, the the 48-year-old farmer and businessman told supporters.

"I'm nervous up here and the thought of duelling with the great debators in Toronto, frankly, scares me," he said.

"But sometimes a man has to stand up and be counted and for me this is the time."

Reeve MacDonald spoke against the Davis government stating that "Bill Davis' main direction has been to stay in power at all costs." He emphasized that this hurts Ontario and the province cannot afford another four years of Davis rule.

The candidate also said he feels too large a slice of the tax dollar is being spent on education. He cited education costs in his own municipality and added he does not feel the fault lies with teachers or boards of education.

"First, Bill Davis was minister of education, then he became premier of Ontario. Again, the Davis government has got to go," he stressed.

The candidate also discussed the housing shortage in the riding and proposed that approval of sub-division plans should be at local level, not through the ministry of housing.

He said is housing shortage areas sub-divisions should be approved on a basis of wells and septic tanks where the soil is satisfactory.

"Planning is necessary. But the whole severance procedure must be studied to see if it does the job it's supposed to do. Let's get back our rights to sell land, buy property or build home," he urged.

Reeve MacDonald, who owns and rents about 800 acres of farm land, told supporters he is confident Liberal leader Robert Nixon will have a minister of agriculture who is familiar with farming problems.

He also pledged his efforts to maintain counties and municipalities in the riding as they are if this is the people's choice as opposed to a one-tier government system.

Mounting Debt Woe Of Province: Taylor

PICTON — The Davis government is the architect of inflation and has incurred deficits that run two-to-one over those of the federal government, says Paul Taylor, Liberal MP for the riding of Carleton East.

Mr. Taylor, speaking here Monday night to the Liberal nomination convention which selected Keith MacDonald to represent the Prince Edward-Lennox riding, said since William Davis became premier Ontario has accumulated 5.3 billion in deficits.

In the same period of time the federal government has incurred deficits of $2.3 billion.

Mr. Taylor said economists note the most damaging thing a government can do to fire inflation is to spend tax revenue then go into debt on expected revenue.

"Davis is spending to beat the band. He has given us nothing but deficit financing," noted Mr. Taylor.

The MPP discussed regional government and observed that it has not been introduced by a process of consultation. Instead it has been imposed.

"The people are becoming estranged partners in local government. "We will bring local influence back to local government," said Mr. Taylor.

He said the Conservatives have accused the Liberals of politics of nostalgia but the people have indicated they want a return to things such as basic education.

Paul Taylor, Liberal MLA for Carleton East defeated Ottawa mayor Pierre Benoit in a by-election last November.

He has been prominent in the broadcasting field and in 1973 was the chief for news radio Canada on Parliament Hill in the press gallery there.

Collection Nets $4,235

PICTON — A collection taken among approximately 400 persons attending the Liberal nomination convention for Prince Edward-Lennox riding held here Monday night raised $4,235 to assist Keith MacDonald.

Special cheques had been printed prior to the convention and were distributed among delegates.

On the Trail

Keith MacDonald steps to the podium in Picton Tuesday night after being acclaimed as the Liberal candidate in the Prince Edward-Lennox riding in the Sept. 18 provincial election. Mr. MacDonald stressed provincial spending as a major issue.

Flight Attendant Work Not All Glamor

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Being a stewardess is not alway a glamorous job, said Wendy German, one of 30 women serving as flight attendants for the department of national defence's fleet of five 707 passenger jets.

Miss German can be called upon to work a flight to almost anywhere in the world at any time, serving meals to soldiers travelling overseas to new postings, transporting dependent families to new homes or catering to the prime minister, his wife and official party.

"Maybe it's because we don't serve liquor on our regular flights but I think we have an easier time handling the passengers than commercial stewardesses," Miss German said. "After a long flight during which people have been drinking they may get a bit difficult to control."

Miss German is attached to the 437 Squadron, based at CFB Trenton, which is responsible for the movement of passengers, freight and supply and rotation of Canadian troops all over the world.

"The summer is the busy time of the year for passenger flights and we usually have to work more than the regularly scheduled number of flights," she said.

Miss German said she enjoys working the troop rotation flights moving fresh men into areas such as Cyprus, and taking the returning soldiers home.

She said the flights she dislikes working the most are the dependent flights.

"On these trips it's hard to handle the children who find it difficult to be cooped up for a long flight," said Miss German.

To qualify for the position it is necessary to have obtained a certain level in your occupation in the services, she said

Flight attendants training includes a three-week course followed by a three-week flying training session and if they qualify they begin working the aircraft.

Reptile Farm Worries Residents

ATHOL — Because Athol Township lacks zoning bylaws council cannot take action to prevent location of a reptile breeding centre opposed by a number of community residents says reeve Keith Perry.

A petition protesting the proposed reptile centre recently was signed by approximately 100 persons and forwarded to Athol Township council after a building permit for the project had been granted.

Reeve Perry observed the proposed facility — a cement block building with about 7000 square feet of space — met with all required specification and a permit could not be refused.

He said a special meeting between councillors and concerned ratepayers was held and it was agreed efforts would be made to obtain more information about the project.

The reeve traced the background of the centre to April, 1975, when he said Geoffrey Gaherty of Toronto met with the Prince Edward County planning board to discuss a reptile centre here in conjunction with experimental work at the University of Toronto.

Prince Edward director of ecomomic development William Duggan said this week that he has not been approached regarding the proposal but he recalled a reptile breeding conservation project was presented to the planning board this year by a three-member delegation including Diane Gaherty.

Athol township resident Hilton Wood who lives near the property where the centre is to be built predicted that "70 per cent of the township's residents do not want this reptile place."

It has been suggested, also, that location of a reptile centre would devalue nearby country homes.

Reeve Perry said Monday that Mr. Gaherty will be contacted if possible and asked to attend meeting with Athol residents to discuss their concerns.

Confidence in Economy's Future Helps Spur Consumers to Spend

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

What makes consumers spend?

Everything from necessity to impulse—but confidence in the future of the economy is one of the most significant factors.

It's also a factor that can be measured fairly accurately, think the economic analysts at the Ottawa-based Conference Board in Canada.

The board's latest pulse-taking shows a notable improvement in consumer confidence.

On a scale that assigns a figure of 100 to "normal" 1961, the board's index of consumer attitudes strengthened from 82.1 in March to 95.6 at the latest reading in June.

Among the Canadian consumers surveyed by the Conference Board, about one in four claimed to be better off than six months earlier, expected the family's financial position to improve within the next six months, and thought that the present was the right time to make a major new consumer outlay.

"These positive responses were stronger than at any time since the early stages of the 1974-75 season," the board says.

It found many consumers, however, who are still behaving cautiously, reluctant to decide about major purchases.

"This reticence is likely associated with the prevailing uncertainties regarding the timing and strength of the economic recovery, expectations for future inflation rates and the prospects for recovery in the housing market," notes the board.

Here are the intentions of the average Canadian consumer about major categories of spending:

—Cars. A moderate decline in plans to buy during second-half 1975.

—Houses. A slight decline in buying intentions, despite the 25-per-cent second-quarter pick-up in housing starts.

—Appliances. A moderate decrease in intentions, but with prospects of a strengthening in the second half.

—Furniture and floor coverings. A marked decrease in buying intentions to the lowest level—13 per cent—in four years.

—Vacations. Plans for an away-from-home holiday before mid-1976 are being made by 57 per cent of consumers, highest positive response since a year earlier.

During the past year, retail trade across Canada on average has just been keeping pace with inflation, with little or no volume increase.

Latest figures from Statistics Canada show that seasonally-adjusted retail sales in June were 1.8 per cent higher than in May, 1975, and nine per cent greater than in June, 1974.

One characteristic of a recession is that it leaves consumers reluctant to increase their debt burden and more willing to forego purchases that would have to be financed by borrowings.

Instead, consumers tend to pay down a good part of their debt, and to build up their savings accounts in anticipation of layoffs.

Once the recession is clearly ended and confidence returns, consumers generally have the cash—plus the capacity to increase their borrowing — that can fuel a sharp recovery in retail trade.

Canadian business tends to react slowly to changes in consumer attitudes. When confidence weakened last year, many firms went on producing at their normal rate—only to wind up with bloated inventories.

Now the danger is that business may respond too slowly to a recovery in consumer confidence, and be unable to meet the expected surge in demand.

Ridings on Record

The proposed new federal boundaries are now on record — for better or worse.

George Hees, who now represents Prince Edward-Hastings, says he is happy at the thought of being centered in his home county of Northumberland again, but Jack Ellis, MP for Hastings, takes issue with the idea of his riding losing its geographic and historical identity.

Mr. Ellis would now be obliged to run in the new riding of Prince Edward, which includes Belleville, Thurlow and Tyendinaga townships.

Hastings would become a large rural riding called Hastings-Frontenac, including rural areas surrounding Peterborough, Belleville and Kingston and stretching as far north as Algonquin Park.

So what now? Even though Mr. Ellis for one is dissatisfied with the Boundaries Commission proposals, and says he plans to lodge a formal complaint at the hearing scheduled in Belleville October 21, there could be advantages under the new set-up if implemented.

Less travelling for one thing, a factor which under present circumstances sees Mr. Ellis flying north on occasions in his private plane. The orientation would now be southward, with points across the bay within easy access of Belleville which of course remains a common denominator between present and future in the riding set-up in this area. A largely rural Hastings-Frontenac riding meanwhile could work to the advantage of farmers and rural dwellers generally.

In the nature of things, change does have such an effect. It means loss of contacts and acquaintances. It means having to begin afresh in the unknown country. In the long run though it is usually for the best and wins acceptance.

Queen Bears Strange Tidings

We had a hunch as to the contents even before opening the package. Yes, it was more material from some local left-wing sympathizer.

Readers may recall the stuff about Cuba and North Vietnam, and the Time magazine cover about the tottering Portuguese leadership. All sent in anonymously save for one label which bore the name of a union.

This time the content is a book containing quotations from Chairman Mao Tse-tung, including the famous one about power coming from the barrel of a gun — something the West must remember should it have any misguided thoughts about detente being a long-term commitment.

It's ironic to think it cost the sender of this little red book 24 cents in good Canadian royalist stamps bearing the image of The Queen.

French Gets Big Push

The anomalies of the federal government's bilingualism program are legion, as is the lone, unilingual, posturing of the Quebec government in its bias toward French over English.

Latest in Quebec's move in this direction are proposals which would oblige businesses to make French the dominant language in advertising, food product labels and mail order catalogues. It's a move, incidentally, which has brought charges of "police state" from a member of Premier Bourassa's own party.

But what's going on in Ontario in this regard? Right now a Belleville supermarket has a box display on a notice board just inside the entrance. It is divided into five compartments containing Ministry of Education pamphlets on a variety of subjects. Three of the pamphlets are in French and only one in English. Compounding this possibly bureaucratic error in distribution is the fact that two of the compartments are filled with the same French pamphlet. Hence the three to one line-up in favor of French.

Perhaps it is not a bureaucratic error, but rather deliberate pushing of the French language in an area where it sees little use.

Scottish Divorce Reform Delayed Year After Year

The Sunday Times

Divorce reform for Scotland is again delayed Since 1969, the law in England and Wales, has allowed the irretrievable breakdown of a marriage as a reason for putting a merciful end to it. In the dourer moral climate of Scotland, divorce can still be had only on the grounds of cruelty, adultery or wilful desertion.

The effect has been to make it impossible for the ostensibly "guilty party" — a maltreated wife who walks out, for example, without calling her neighbors to witness — to win freedom from a partner who refuses to grant it. Hundreds of lives are disfigured as a result. (The same problem in Northern Ireland has been obscured only by the Province's more pressing griefs.

Every year since 1970, Scottish Labor MPs have introduced Bills which would bring Scottish law into line with English. Every Bill has foundered. New hopes were raised this month when a Bill promoted by Lord Selkirk passed through the Lords. But it was blocked in the Commons.

The blame does not lie chiefly with the Scottish Conservative MP who has been the busiest opponent of change. It is perfectly reasonable to argue that proper consideration in principle, and ought not therefore to take advantage of the procedure which allows a purely formal Second Reading in the Commons if there are no objectors. The topic needs parliamentary time; and the government itself is at fault in not providing it, to accommodate either a further private member's bill or one of its own. The case for reform is well made out, and widely accepted in Scotland. Both the Church of Scotland and the Scottish legal profession are in favor.

The government should give a clear promise to see that a Scottish divorce reform bill becomes law early in the next session of Parliament.

The 19th amendment to the United States constitution was proclaimed 55 years ago today—in 1920—giving suffrage to women. Women gained the vote in the U.S. after a long-drawn struggle which had seen a number of organizations involved. The initial success came in 1869 when Wyoming, then a territory, gave women the vote. In 1893 the state of Colorado followed and then in turn came Utah, Idaho and Washington.

Is Political Effort Worth Reward?

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — At election times, one wonders why anybody ever wants to be a politician.

The effort hardly seems worth the reward—any reward.

Last week for example, on Tuesday, Premier Davis left his home in Brampton shortly after nine o'clock and headed for Mississauga East, some 20 miles away.

Between then and 10 o'clock that night he was always on the move, making a total of 23 stops.

He visited an elderly citizen's housing project, a home for the elderly and a day-care centre, spending 20 minutes or so in each.

He toured two large shopping plazas, he and his wife going into every store, from boutiques to taverns, and shaking hands.

He main-streeted in three communities, and spent another half hour or so in each of three candidates' campaign headquarters.

Then at night he made a major speech at the nominating convention of party whip Doug Kennedy in Mississauga South.

On Wednesday he had a radio interview in Toronto at 8 a.m. Then he had cabinet all morning and in the afternoon had to prepare himself for the premiers' conference in Newfoundland.

He left his office at 5:30 for the flight to St. John's and landed there at 11 o'clock Newfoundland time.

On Thursday he left St. John's at 3:30 Toronto time and didn't get back to Toronto International until 10:30 (the only flight out was a milk run from St. John's to Halifax).

On Friday he was back in Toronto early canvassing four ridings and then had to rush to make an air charter flight to Ottawa for meetings at night.

Then following a day's campaigning in that area, on Saturday he campaigned by bus back to Toronto via Kingston.

Sunday he had the day off.

All leaders, of course, are following similarly tough election schedules.

But the premier has the toughest one of all, for besides campaigning he also has to run the affairs of the province.

Also the strain on him must be greater for he has everything to lose, while the opposition leaders have everything to gain.

How he does it, how any of the leaders do it, is something to be marvelled at.

One thing certainly called for is a remarkable physique. Somehow all three leaders seem to have it.

Building Inflation Hikes Olympic Costs

Brantford Expositor

While it remains to be seen how much the 1976 Olympics will cost Canadians as a whole, a fairly clear picture is emerging of what it will mean to the taxpayers of the host city.

The information does not, of course, come from the city of Montreal, or its mayor. But a report in Financial Times of Canada (which describes reading Montreal's financial statements as being like taking a magical mystery tour) summarizes the situation.

The two-week sports spectacle is now expected to cost about $700 million for construction and operation. Broadcasting, security and other expenses will bring the true total close to $1 billion.

Revenues are put at $493 million leaving a deficit of at least $280 million — and considerably more if construction costs keep inflating as they have to date. Item: cost of the Velodrome (for bicycle races) was originally estimated at $2 million. It is now estimated at $58 million. Item: a 200-yard overhead pedestrian walkway is costing $12 million.

Even if Quebec City lives up to vague promises to help out, and Ottawa caves in and also comes to the rescue, Montrealers can still expect to be stuck with half the deficit — $140 million.

That would drive the city's debt to more than $1,000 per capita. In Toronto, the per capita debt is something over $500. Montreal residents already pay some of the highest taxes in the country. Even tenants are hit with the so-called "water tax" — roughly equal to an extra month's rent each year.

Reader Sees City Ties With Prince Edward

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I'd like to direct a comment to Jack Ellis in response to his disappointment over the proposed boundary changes in the federal government attempt to improve our representation in parliament.

His reasoning (the historical significance of Hastings as a united area) is not inappropriate but he seems to forget that the county is already withstanding the pressure of two separate ridings within our boundaries (the township of Sidney). Perhaps Mr. Ellis would be better advised to protest the mammoth riding of Hastings-Frontenac as being too large an area to be handled efficiently by one person.

Belleville and the County of Prince Edward have always seemed to have close ties outside of being united in one federal riding and the increase in population in this area would make the proposed changes seem no more than logical.

Hastings will always be Hastings no matter how it's represented or divided. Perhaps if there were more (unobstrusive) industry throughout the county the distribution of population would be more equitable and lesser changes would be needed. If Mr. Ellis is successful in attaining the seat of Prince Edward at the next election he may be able to save some of the taxpayer's money on gas for his mobile office with the smaller riding.

Tub Harping Bugs Her

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I wish to make a few comments regarding Mr. William Hockley's continual harping about Mrs. Jeffrey's participation in the bathtub race at the CNE.

It seems that Mr. Hockley cannot resist injecting a few snide remarks about her activities, be they political or non-political. The constant stream of abuse that has appeared almost daily since the report of the race appeared in The Intelligencer, has shown Mr. Hockley's obvious lack of any kind of humor. After all, Mr. Hockley, politicians are human, too! !

I have no objection to his opinions as published in The Intelligencer (although they do get somewhat repetitious).

PATRICIA L. TYRRELL

'Gang' Spoiled Camping

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Recently we spent our vacation camping at Outlet Beach. Our two weeks included the long weekend in August.

Suddenly our quiet, enjoyable vacation turned into a gang blast, while our area was inundated by about 25 hippie-type children. I refer to them as children because of the way they acted, they were out to spoil the fun of all the families they could, by any means possible, including stealing, slashing tents and being drunk and disorderly. These children are not old enough to be set loose in a public place, they are still badly in need of parental supervision.

Where are the parents? Do they know that they are getting into such serious trouble, or do they care? I would suggest to some of these parents that they accompany their offspring next vacation and perhaps we quiet campers will enjoy our vacation again.

I am all for making the Outlet Park strictly a family camping area.

Higher Hydro Rates Not Keeping with Service

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I question the right of Ontario Hydro to seek higher rates while they continue to export large quantities of power and progressively give the people of Ontario poorer service.

Furthermore, referring to a specific example, the Tweed office of Ontario Hydro refuses on the basis of government policy to provide an inch of service down 350 feet of road right-of-way to service my 75 year-old ailing father's farm house while at the same time Hydro have used this very right-of-way as their only means to service their existing power line to area cottages for about seven years.

Not only do I question the right of Hydro to raise rates but also question their moral responsibility in a situation that appears to be discrimination against century old farms in favor of cottagers. Is this our Ontario Government's justice and equality?

Furthermore, Hydro recently decreased from 385 feet to 290 feet of line they will provide for buildings in out of city areas.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

AUGUST 26, 1955

Two officials of the Moira River Conservation Authority visited Lingham Lake in Grimsthorpe Township last week to inspect a dam on the upper reaches of Black Creek with the intent of using the dam to increase summer flow in the Moira River. Lingham Lake is a man-made body of water three miles squares. The dam was built during the depression and changes to it could raise the water of the lake by at least ten feet. The water then could be used to increase the flow in the Moira.

Craftsmen Revive Skills

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — Any preconceived ideas that a museum has to be a quiet place, are dispelled by a visit to the Bancroft historical museum. A summer series of craft demonstrations in the museum park have really sparked the interest of local residents and tourists alike.

Sponsored by the museum staff and the Bancroft Historical Society, the craft displays in the outside exhibition are all done by local craftsmen.

The crafts presented are chosen to show skills used in the settlement days of North Hastings and up until the advent of electrical power.

Many of the young artisans learned the skills from older area residents but now use them in their day-to-day life.

Anne Pronovitch along with her husband, Ray, raise goats and use those dairy products for making their own milk, cheese and butter.

Joyce Burkholder has converted an old treadle sewing machine into a spinning wheel and spins her own yarn which she later makes into garments and wall hangings.

At 71 years of age, Bancroft resident Henry Taylor is still using an old broad axe of his father's to square timbers and his own vise to make cedar shingles.

How It's Done

At the Bancroft museum craft day, recently, 71-year-old Henry Taylor shows how to square a timber from a rough log using a broad axe.

Province Keeps Close Tabs On First-time Home Buyers

If you think tracing first-time home ownership can't be done — you're wrong. The ministry of revenue, administrators of the province's Ontario Home Buyers Grant Act, has got all the angles figured out.

The grant, which became available April 8 and lasts through to Dec. 31, gives first-time home buyers an immediate $1,000 and $250 for the next two years on the anniversary date of approval of the grant. However, in order to obtain the additional $500 the individual must remain in the house for 24 months after the grant is approved.

One of the key factors in determining the applicants eligibility for the grant rests with the ministry satisfying itself that the applicant or applicants are indeed first-time home buyers.

An information officer with the guaranteed income and tax credit branch of the ministry, Heather Walker, said Thursday that the ministry has several discreet ways of checking an applicant's eligibility.

"For obvious reasons some of these can't be divulged because people may find a way around them," said Mrs. Walker, one of three information officers working on the grant program.

However, Mrs. Walker did outline some of the routine checks they do make in verifying applications. She said the Ontario tax credit return specifies whether the individual is a property owner.

Mrs. Walker also said that local tax and assessment offices are checked for previous credits. An applicant must provide his or her assessment roll number on the application form.

Occupancy must occur during the period of April 8 to Dec. 31 and ministry officials often use telephone books to check on previous addresses of the applicant.

Mrs. Walker pointed out that the applicant must sign a declaration to the effect that the information is correct and in order. A breach of this declaration can result in a $2,000 fine.

The grant can apply to single-family units, duplexes, specified mobile homes and condominium apartments, either existing or proposed.

The grant program was implemented to spur housing growth in the province and Mrs. Walker said the ministry feels the program is having an impact.

Mrs. Walker said some new homeowners are sending in ineligible applications for the grant but most of them are based on misunderstandings.

Grant Program Well Received

The ministry of revenue has received 28,290 applications as of Aug. 20 for the Ontario Home Buyer's Grant which approches the half-way mark of the projected figure of 85,000 by Dec. 31.

A ministry spokesman, Heather Walker, an information officer with the ministry's guaranteed income and tax credit branch, said Thursday that 23,518 of the 28,290 applications received have been approved.

The grant gives first-time home owners $1,000 immediately and then $250 for the next two years on the anniversary of the application approval. The applicant must reside in the home for 24 months to receive the full $1,500. The home must be bought and occupied between April 8 and Dec. 31, 1975.

Minister of revenue Arthur Meen has allocated $55 million to the grant program and ministry officials expect to dole out that much money in the next few years.

Mrs. Walker said the grant program is having a beneficial on effect on the housing industry. The types of housing that qualify for this grant are single-family units, duplexes, some mobile homes and condominiums.

Book Family Affair

Catherine Wilson

Family involvement in the arts has played an important role in the production of the fourth in a series of books published by Simon and Pierre in their collection of Canadian Plays series.

Catherine Wilson, Marian M. Wilson and Joyce Wilson, formerly of Belleville, all helped produce the first book about plays for children.

Catherine Wilson, a graduate of Sheridan College in 1972, designed and illustrated the volume which is geared to children ranging from kindergarten to Grade 13.

She worked previously with her mother Marian M. Wilson, formerly manager of the Orono Youth Theatre Company, desiging and promoting for the book.

Joyce Wilson, her sister, was responsible for the typography.

The plays are available in hardcover for $14.75 or two authors grouped in single softcover editions for $3.75 from Simon and Pierre, Theatrebooks, Longhouse and Britnells book stores.

the who, what, when, why & how of election finances who regulates election finances?

The Commission on Election Contributions and Expenses is a group of people responsible to the Legislature for the supervision and enforcement of the new Election Finances Reform Act. The Act makes provision for the province to pay certain amounts towards the expenses of the candidates. You are therefore, through your taxes, taking part in every election and you should be fully informed. The Commission are the people who will keep you informed.

what are the main objectives of the new legislation?

Firstly, to limit the amount which any person, corporation, or union may contribute to any political party, and so remove the possibility that wealth may influence any government or party in its policies. Secondly, to provide for disclosure to the public of those who contribute and the amount of their contributions.

Furthermore, you may claim a tax benefit for contributions.

when can a contributor give?

A contributor can give at anytime, but is limited in the amount he or she can give. The breakdown is as follows:

In any year, any person, company, or union may contribute up to $2000 to each provincial party. They may also contribute up to $500 to any constituency association, but their total contributions to all constituency associations of the same party may not exceed $2000.

During a campaign period, that is, from the day the election is called to four months after Election Day, individuals, companies and unions are permitted to make extra contributions. They may give up to an additional $2000 to a provincial party, and they may contribute up to $500 to any candidate as long as their total contribution to all candidates of the same party does not exceed $2000.

why is there a new Election Finances Reform Act?

The new Act will limit individual contributions and will make politics more responsive and involve more people in it. By controlling the amounts that can be spent on media advertising, it will help make political contests more even across Ontario.

how does the new Act affect you? Corporations and Unions? Candidates and Parties?

The Election Finances Reform Act will bring the financing of all Ontario campaigns out into the open. You will be able to see how much each candidate received, and how much was spent. If any candidate fails to follow the regulations involved, he or she can be fined or barred from running in the next election, or even have to give up their seat in the Legislative Assembly.

The Commission will publish, in the local papers, a summary of the total amounts each candidate raised and spent. A list of names and addresses of everyone who donated more than $100 to the campaigns will be available to you at the Commission's offices.

Both individuals and corporations can claim a tax benefit that will partially offset the costs of your contribution. This will reduce the amount of Ontario tax which contributors have to pay, and is quite separate from the credits allowed for contributions to federal political parties.

The table below shows the tax credit available to individuals. REMEMBER—this is a tax credit—not just a deduction. You can deduct it from the actual Ontario tax you would have to pay, not just from your taxable income.

Total Contributions	Maximum Credit	Credit Calculations
up to $100	$ 75	75% of contribution
$101 to $550	$300	$75 plus 50% of the amount over $100
more than $550	$500*	$300 plus 33⅓% of the amount over $550

*the maximum credit of $500 is reached when total contributions in the year amount to $1150.

If your total contribution to all registered parties, constituency associations and candidates is less than $100, you can claim a tax credit of 75% of the amount contributed.

This allows you to make fund-raising contributions at a relatively small cost to yourself.

The tax benefit for corporations works somewhat differently. It permits companies to make limited deductions from the Ontario portion of their taxable income.

Remember, no individual or company can claim a tax benefit resulting from their contributions unless they produce an official receipt for the amount contributed. These receipts are supplied by the Commission to candidates and party officials.

Further information is available by writing to the Commission at 151 Bloor Street West,
Toronto M2A 1A2.

CFUW Grant Buys New Library Books

The children's section of the Deseronto Public Library is already a pleasant place, situated by the multi-paned front window, furnished with child-size tables and chairs. And it's going to get even better.

There are more books on their way to make these bookshelves even more appealing and exciting for young readers. The books are being purchased with a $500 grant donated to the library by the Canadian Federation of University Women.

Every year, two such grants are made by the organization's Libraries and Creative Arts Committee, to be used by Canadian libraries where the budget is limited and the need is great. This spring, Deseronto's librarian, Stella Carney, applied for the Reading Stimulation Grant, sending a list of books she wanted to purchase for the children of Deseronto.

To her delight, her application was approved, and Mrs. Carney will soon have new versions of old and worn-out favorites, and a larger number of picture books for very young children.

"I believe that it's terribly important to interest children in books even before they've learned to read," says Mrs. Carney. "If you don't get preschoolers using the library, it'll be much harder later.

"I want to stress the 'fun' aspect of books here."

In keeping with this goal, Mrs. Carney, has instituted Friday morning story hours for four-to-six year olds, since she began her job at the library in January. With the help of their mothers, she reads to the youngsters and involves them in use of library books.

A professional librarian who received her training at the University of Toronto, Mrs. Carney worked in the library at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute before moving to Picton with her husband and three children.

"I hadn't intended to work, but when I saw this job advertised, I applied, and am happy now that I got it," she says. "Although people have no idea just how much time it takes, I like this work very much. I've never been totally in charge before, and it's a real challenge."

Mrs. Carney intends to develop the library in all areas, but her special attention at the moment is devoted to children's literature. She ordered $250 worth of the books on her list as soon as she received notification of winning the award, and some of these are already in circulation. The rest of the list has been ordered, but has not yet arrived.

Mrs. Carney was presented with the cheque two weeks ago by Muriel Gibson, the CFUW elucational representative for eastern Ontario, and member of the Belleville University Women's Club.

The other grant given by the CFUW this year went to the Public Library Service of the Northwest Territories based in Hay River, serving readers scattered over more than a million square miles. In this case the money will also be used for children's books.

THE NO FAD GOOD FOOD $5 A WEEK COOKBOOK

By Caroline Ackerman

Bacon and eggs for breakfast? Juice, toast and jam and coffee? How about lunch? Soup and sandwich, fruit or cookie with coffee? Meat and potatoes and vegetables or salad for supper with dessert and coffee?

Caroline Ackerman, the author of this small book with the long title, says your food is too expnsive, too complicated, too standardized, too refined and too different than the rest of the world. It also makes inefficient use of the earth's resources and you're probably eating too much anyway.

Instead she recommends a diet based on whole grains and selected vegetables, milk and eggs and assorted sweets and flavorings.

All at rock bottom prices.

Included in the book is a small section of "unique" recipes and a number of how-tos.

Because of the nature of the book you'd expect and, will find such information as how to turn skim milk powder into cottage cheese and how to make your own crackers. But you'll also find recipes for the world's cheapest Caesar Salad using cabbage and Fancy Chinese Mixed Vegetables using nothing more exotic than a rutabaga.

In keeping with its premise, the book is inexpensive.

Published by McClelland and Stewart, it costs $2.95.

DIG FOR SURVIVAL

PEKING (Reuter) — Pupils at Peking's Number 35 grammar school decided they should prepare underground classrooms "in case of attack by the social imperialists"—the Russians. So far they have been at work—30 yards under a playground off the city's Main Avenue of Eternal Peace—for one year. Eventually their classrooms will connect with Peking's nuclear-bomb-shelter system.

People and Events

FAMILY REUNION

The Bateman family held its annual reunion recently at Lions Community Park, Campbellford.

Ankla Pritchard, Downsview, was the youngest girl attending the reunion and Samuel Robins, Guelph, was the youngest boy. Eldest persons attending were Percy Bateman, Springbrook, and Annie Thomas, Guelph. Annie and Fred Bateman, Stirling, were the longest married couple and Barbara and Allan Blackburn, Foxboro, had the largest family. Gwen and Albert Franco, Ridgefield, Connecticut, travelled the furthest to attend the reunion.

New officers are David Robin, Guelph, president; Ada Turner, Burlington, vice-president; Barbara Blackburn, Foxboro, secretary-treasurer and Audrey Bateman, Niagara Falls, assistant secretary.

Preserve Summer's Bounty

The market square is crowded three days a week with an abundance of fresh local vegetables and fruits, home gardens are at their peak and everyone has enjoyed the produce in a variety of ways.

But as most homemakers are well aware, you can save the taste of summer by freezing, canning or preserving fresh produce now while prices are lowest.

Here are some tips on home preservation of food from a variety of sources.

The British Columbia Tree Fruits marketing organization reminds home canners that sugar in home canning in not a preservative and has nothing to do with the actual canning process. The secret to successful canning is simply sufficient processing time in sealed air-tight jars, using water instead of sugar syrup. There is no difference in the process. Thus you can save the sugar and the calories. Cherries, apricots, peaches, prune plums and pears and all suitable for canning and although cherries are now past their peak peaches, prune plums and pears will be ready for canning from now until mid-September.

Peaches are in good supply this year so after you've eaten your fill, plan to put some away in different forms to enjoy later. Here's simple recipe for peach jam, tested by food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Mash'n Boil Peach Jam

15 cups peeled, sliced, firm ripe peaches (6 lb.)

¾ cup lemon juice

9 cups sugar

Dip peaches into boiling water, a few at a time. Peel, then slice and measure. In a large heavy saucepan, mash peaches, mix with lemon juice and sugar. Place over medium heat and bring to a boil. Raise heat, boil rapidly and stir often. Remove scum periodically. Continue boiling at high heat for about 25 minutes. Start to check of the jelly stage.* When the jelly stage has been reached, pour the hot jam at once into sterilized jelly glasses, seal with ¼ inch paraffin, apply lid tightly.

Yield: 11 jelly jars.

*Run a metal spoon through the mixture. Raise the spoon, then tilt it to let the contents run back into mixture. At the point when the spoon "sheets" (remains coated) and the last drops "run together," the jelly stage has been reached.

This jam consistently takes a total cooking time of 32 minutes to reach the jelly stage.

Tomatoes are here in full force. No doubt you have already eaten, frozen and canned more than you could have imagined possible. A good way to use up the remaining tomatoes is by making a chili sauce, which is slightly spicy and a treat with most meat dishes. Here's favorite recipe from food specialists at the Ontario food council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Early September Chili Sauce

30 medium ripe tomatoes (about 7½ lb. or 1 (6-quart) basket)

2½ cup chopped green and red pepper (3 green and 2 red)

2½ cups peeled chopped onions (6 medium)

3 cups chopped celery

1½ cups white sugar

4 tbsp. salt

4 cups cider vinegar

1 tbsp whole cloves

2½ tbsp. whole allspice

Blanch, peel and coarsely chop tomatoes. Add to other vegetables in a large heavy saucepan. Add sugar, salt and vinegar. Tie whole spices in several thicknesses of cheesecloth. Add to pot. Bring mixture to a boil and cook uncovered over moderate heat for 2½ to 4 hours, stirring frequently until fairly thick. (The mixture should boil gently throughout.) Remove spce; ladle chili sauce into hot sterilized sealers; seal immediately. Process using hot water bath method.

Yield: 7 pints (16-ounce sealers).

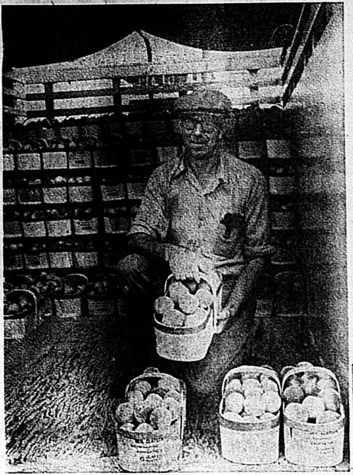
Many consumers wonder if they can use commercial jars such as peanut butter, mayonnaise or coffee jars for home canning purposes. According to food specialists from the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, only mason jars should be used for canning unless you have some old Crown Corona Jewel or Gem jars which are in perfect condition.

Commercial jars must not be used for home canning of fruits and vegetables, but may be used for jams, jellies and some pickles which are not processed.

These jars are not capable of with standing the high temperatures and the changes in temperature that occur in home canning when using a hot water processor, or a pressure canner, and may crack during processing.

Many of the original lids for these jars have little or no sealing compound attached. Therefore a seal cannot be pulled if these jars are used for canning.

The openings of these jars are usually not of standard sizes, making it almost impossible to find lids with a sealing compound that would fit them.



George Clayson brings peaches from Beamsville.

CHEESE STORED

Swiss cheese, in particular recipes, may be wrapped and freezer stored for as long as a couple of months.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Duminie

Duminie — Parks

Jean Audrey Parks became the bride of Raymond Morris Duminie in a double ring ceremony recently in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Belleville, conducted by Right Rev. Monsignor J. Carley.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Parks, R.R. 7, Belleville, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas V. Duminie, Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a bridal gown of sheer over sharkskin accented by a high sheer mandarin neckline. The two-tiered waist-length veil accented by lace trim was caught by a crown headpiece of lace and seed pearls. The bride's bouquet was of yellow sweetheart roses and daisies.

Diana Daniels, sister of the bride, was the matron of honor. Her gown was of silk knit jersey with an empire waistline in apricot. She carried a bouquet of white daisies and baby's breath.

The bridesmaids were Marilyn MacKinnon, sister of the groom, Cheryl Palmer, and Judy Wilcox. They wore gowns of mint green in similar style to the matron of honor.

Douglas M. Duminie, brother of the groom, was the groom's best man, assisted by the ushers, Ross and Keith Parks, brothers of the bride and Bryan MacKinnon.

A dinner reception was held at the Belleville Shrine Club and guests were entertained later at the home of the bride's parents, followed by an evening dance at the club.

After a honeymoon trip in Northern Ontario, the couple are residing in Kingston, Ont.

Ann Landers

Son Should Tell Mother He Knows She Has Lover

Dear Ann Landers: I found this in a newspaper 30 years ago and put it away. It seems to have an uncanny relevance today. I hope you will deem it worthy of your column.

The average life of the world's great civilizations has been 200 years. During this period each has progressed through the following sequence:

1. From bondage to spiritual faith.
2. From spiritual faith to great courage.
3. From courage to liberty.
4. From liberty to abundance.
5. From abundance to selfishness.
6. From selfishness to complacency.
7. From complacency to apathy.
8. From apathy to dependency.
9. From dependency back to bondage.

Since the United States now is celebrating its 200th anniversary, based on a purely mathematical scale it would appear that we might be approaching Stage No. nine. I hope not, but the signs are all around us. What do you think?—Mrs. H. A. J.

Dear Mrs. H. A. J.: I think it's spooky. Thanks for sharing. You've give us plenty of food for thought.

Dear Ann Landers: My question is this: What should an 18-year-old boy do when he learns for a fact (not guessing and not gossip) that his mother has a lover?

His mother does not know he is aware of what is going on. The odd part of all this is that nobody would suspect a thing when his parents are together. They are the happiest-looking couple you've ever seen, married 24 years, and have three well-adjusted children.

This isn't my problem. I am writing for a friend. He is afraid his father will find out and it would kill him. Please advise me so I can be of some help. The guy is worried sick.—His Buddy

Dear Buddy: Your friend should speak to his mother at once. Not in a threatening or judgmental way—but simply as a matter of concern for his father's well-being.

Let's hope this puts an end to the affair. If it doesn't, it will at least serve as a warning to his mother of the catastrophic results which may follow discovery.

Dear Ann Landers: I went all the way through school with the gal next door. We married the same year and our two children were born within weeks of one another. Nora is a swell person. zqtlydeqe vsvqzrqzr qttvsvqanq vsvktkczb bylcyn

Our husbands get along well together, but there's this problem. Nora gets up with the roosters and her house is spic and span by 10:00 a.m. She races around all day doing errands, volunteer work, etc. By evening she is wacked out. Nora has fallen asleep during card games, in movies, plays and concerts. Last night she dozed off at a hockey game and began to snore. It was very embarrassing. Any suggestions?—True Friend ear True: If Nora hasn't had a complete physical, I suggest it. Perhaps she has narcolepsy (an uncontrollable tendency toward attacks of deep sleep). If the doc says she's okay, then accept the fact that she's a diurnal and you're a nocturnal and nothing is going to change.

Native Women Criticize Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — The manpower department is staffing its centres with white personnel who do not understand the cultural differences between native people and non-native people, says that Native Women's Association of Canada.

Resolutions passed Sunday at the close of the association's second annual conference said the department is not adequately meeting the employment needs of native people.

The association suggested that more native people should be employed by manpower centres across the country and if necessary requirements should be lowered to allow them to be hired.

Delegates said that many native people lack the educational qualifications for such jobs and said the department should provide more and better educational programs for them.

They added that many jobs that are available are too far from native centres and transportation is a problem.

Delegates suggested that the department give support to the development of local native industries.

The association also criticized the department for allegedly giving job preference to immigrants over native people.

It also suggested that the human rights commissions of both federal and provincial governments provide more information on the rights of native people. Discrimination exists in housing and employment, the association said, and few native people are aware of the services provided by the commissions.

Pipe Line Firms Make Slow Gains

CALGARY (CP) — Canada's pipeline contracting industry, in a slump last year, may not fully recover for another three years, says G. J. Pollock, president of the Pipe Line Contractors Association of Canada.

There are about 42 pipeline contracting companies in Canada and Mr. Pollock says 75 per cent of them will have equipment sitting idle by the end of the year.

"The next big project will hopefully be the Mackenzie Valley gas line," said Mr. Pollock, president of Monmax-H. G. Services Ltd. of Calgary. "Otherwise it's going to be a depressed situation. Many contractors are looking for foreign work in order to keep their people and equipment busy and their organizations together."

Last year contractors installed about 3,600 miles of oil and gas transmission lines, about $80 million in business. This year new lines are expected to total about 2,300 miles, worth about $150 million in contracts.

But industry spokesmem say activity is expected to drop next year to less than $80 million on no more than 3,000 miles of new facilities and capital investment in industry equipment is estimated to total about $50 million.

Mr. Pollock said in an interview that existing oil and gas pipeline systems now are generally large enough to handle production and demand, and without dramatic developments in changes in Canadian or export requirements for petroleum, construction activity will remain at current levels.

Assuming federal regulatory hurdles are cleared, construction could begin on the Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. proposal from Prudhoe Bay, Alaska and the Mackenzie delta in about two years. The same holds true for the line proposed by Foothills Pipeline Ltd. of Calgary.

Meanwhile, the pipeline industry—especially firms specializing in large diameter lines—must decide whether to bid on large foreign projects and move equipment and personnel overseas, or to remain relatively inactive in Canada while awaiting a go-ahead on the Mackenzie Valley line.

Public Hearing by Canadian Transport Commission on Bell Canada Application for Rate Increases

By an application filed on May 30, 1975, Bell Canada requested the Canadian Transport Commission to approve certain increases in its rates for service, equipment and facilities. Bell Canada also asked that approval of part of the proposed increases be granted on an urgent interim basis in the first phase of hearings on the application.

In July the Canadian Transport Commission approved interim rate increases to the extent of 50 per cent of the interim increases proposed by Bell Canada. The Commission also approved adoption of a new rate grouping system which excludes extension telephones from the count used for determining rate groups.

The Canadian Transport Commission has now directed that a public hearing on the second phase of the application will commence on October 27, 1975. At that hearing, Bell Canada will seek approval of all rate increases originally proposed in the May 30, 1975 application. Such rate increases are set out in schedules 1 and 2 to the application.

A summary of the tariff revisions applied for is shown in the table below, together with a summary of the interim increases which became effective August 9, 1975.

Upgrading of Palmer Apartment Under Way

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

A Belleville electrical contractor and the superintendent of a 114-unit apartment building at 191 Palmer Ave. say they are confident power will not be cut off Sept. 10 by Ontario Hydro.

Superintendent Rex Bridge said Monday "95 per cent" of the work ordered to be done to avoid loss of a temporary hydro permit has been done.

George Durno, of G and E Electric, 73 Station St., said he has been working at the apartment building for "a number of days" to change temporary fixtures in hallways to permanent fixtures.

About a week ago Ontario Hydro ordered Belleville Public Utilities to cut off power to the building within 30 days if the temporary wiring system was not changed.

"We'll have it fixed this week," said Mr. Durno.

The building is to be re-inspected by Ontario Hydro on Sept. 2.

Although Ontario Hydro is "unpredictable", he said: "I think they will get it approved."

Mr. Durno said Ontario Hydro inspectors objected to temporary pig-tail fixtures used in hallways. A number of broken receptacle covering plates also had to be replaced.

Mr. Durno said the owners previously agreed to have the work done.

"They (the owners) had promised to do things up to the fifth floor and hadn't. It's now being done."

He said there was nothing wrong with the temporary wiring and it was not a danger to the tenants.

Permanent fixtures have now been installed earlier but money was not available, he said.

"It's been a money problem from the word go," said Mr. Durno, involved as electrical contractor since construction of the building began.

The only problem yet to be solved, said Mr. Durno, is connecting the fire alarm so it is activated if the sprinkler system begins working. He said he expects to have the problem remedied by Wednesday.

Mr. Bridge said the 42 families in the building were given 30-days notice by Ontario Hydro that power may be cut off.

"The owners are doing everything they can," said Mr. Bridge.

Renewable 120-day permits have been issued by Ontario hydro since owners applied for power to the building begun in 1972.

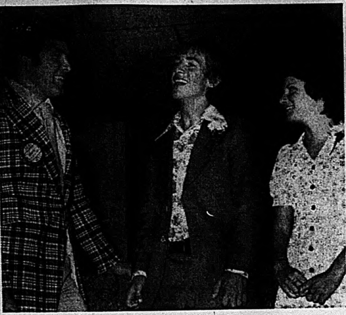
Perc Pickering, Ontario Hydro inspection superintendent, said last week the permits were renewed on the understanding apartments above the fifth floor would not be rented until permanent fixtures were installed.

There are tenants in the building up to the eighth floor.

Mr. Bridge said Monday he has occupancy permits from the Belleville building inspector for all but one occupied apartment.

Rent said Mr. Bridge, has been reduced in the building due to lack of services. The swimming pool is not in operation and there is no carpeting in some hallways.

He said the owner of the building, Marcel Goldhagen of Starmount Investment Ltd., could not be reached for comment Monday. Mr. Bridge said he would be in Belleville sometime this week to inspect the building.



Back from Conference

Belleville students Tom Britton (middle) and Donna McDermott returned Monday from the sixth annual Canadian Junior Achievement Conference held in Saskatoon. They are with Garth Stephanson, executive director of the Belleville grroup. They were in Saskatoon August 18 to 24.

Students Get Early Lesson In World of High Finance

Junior Achievement is beginning to swing into its third year of operation in Belleville.

Garth Stephanson, executive director, said Monday, directors have already met and by the second week of September will be looking for 75 to 100 students participants.

"We teach students the business of business," said Mr. Garth.

With assistance of local companies providing advice, junior achievers form companies in the fall, choose a product or service, sell shares to raise capital, market their commodity and return investors their profit.

Two Belleville students, Tom Britton of Moira Secondary School and Donna McDermott of Belleville Collegiate Institute, returned Monday from the sixth annual Canadian Junior Achiever's conference held in Saskatoon.

Both were at the Belleville Rotary Club Monday meeting. The Club helps sponsor Junior Achievement in Belleville.

The two were chosen to attend the Aug. 18 to 24 conference by 20 adult Junior Achiever advisors.

"It was just great," said Tom.

Over 130 Junior Achievers from across Canada met to participate in workshops and seminars.

Assistant director Brenda Touchie said in a telephone interview there are expected to be about six achiever companies this year with about 15 students in each.

Judge Questions Need For Multiple Charges

Rationality must be used in determining law reform, not emotions, says criminal court Judge John Clendenning.

"Emotions are not constant, they vary from place to place, time to time and case to case," said Judge Clendenning of the provincial court.

The words crime and punishment, he said, are evocative of emotion.

Judge Clendenning asked if crime and violence are actually increasing or "are we becoming unduly alarmed by what may or may not be accurate statistics."

In 1955, he said, there was one police officer for each 1,000 persons. Today in Metro Toronto there is one police officer for each 500 persons.

"To what extent does this factor affect the statistics indicating an increasing incidence of crime?"

Judge Clendenning said reduction in discretionary powers of police officers has resulted in more charges being laid for each single offence.

"I would suggest the success of police departments and their budgetary requirements for the future are in some measure determined on the basis of their clearance rates and the volume of charges laid."

"Recently the Law Reform Commission of Canada suggested incarceration only have application as a final resort."

The rate of recidivision of those in jail is about 60 per cent. A volunteer probation program in Metro Toronto indicated a success rate of between 70 and 90 per cent, he said.

Courts, he said, could hand out sentences that would contribute to an individual's rehabilitation if: unnecessary charges were eliminated from court dockets, there were more probation officers to prepare pre-sentence reports and added probation services to supervise the accused.

Jeffrey Applauded

Ben Corke, Belleville's new mayor, had his first stab at mayoralty diplomacy during his acceptance speech Monday.

Mayor Corke was appointed by city coucil to the top municipal post left vacant by last week's resignation of Robin Jeffrey who quit to concentrate on her campaign as Progressive Conservative candidate for Quinte riding in the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Mayor Corke began to wish Mrs. Jeffrey well in her endeavor and then noted there are about six Liberals on council.

However, he said he had to continue and wished her "good success or at least a good, tight election."

Mayor Corke pointed out he and Mrs. Jeffrey had been at loggerheads at times — "it was not always that we agreed" — but commended her when she "took it on her self to carry out decisions made by this council."

Corke Pledges Continuity

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Mayor Ben Corke pledged to the electorate Monday he will ensure continuity in office by running for re-election in 1976 but added he will not likely run again in 1978.

Mr. Corke, 61, was appointed mayor by city council, assuming the post left vacant by Robin Jeffrey's resignation last week.

"I pledge to run again in 1976," he commented, but noted by 1978, "I think I will have reached retirement age."

Mayor Corke said his nearly 15 years on municipal councils and 40 years in business means he "can bring to this council a good deal of valuable experience."

"I accepted the office knowing I have your full support," he told the aldermen.

Mayor Corke was a Belleville alderman from 1960-65 and 1970-75. He was also a councillor in Geraldton, Ont. from 1951-53.

In Belleville, he has been a past council finance chairman, council committee-of-the-whole chairman, deputy mayor and finance chairman of the Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors.

He was a member of the BGH board as an alderman and now as mayor will retain a membership.

Mayor Corke is the father of two girls and has two grandchildren. He resides at 14 Hastings Dr.

New Mayor Promises More Aid for Aldermen

Belleville's new mayor Ben Corke promised the city aldermen who appointed him Monday more assistance for their work on council.

"I have already suggested to you I want to involve you more in council's decisions," Mayor Corke said in his acceptance speech. "You need assistance which in the past has not been available to you."

He emphasized lack of sufficient assistance is not a reflection on former mayor Robin Jeffrey. He blamed it on workload and lack of a set system.

Mayor Corke elaborated in a later interview such assistance would involve stenography and research. "You've never been too sure whom you're supplosed to go to," he commented.

He explained one of the secretaries (there are three between the mayor's and city manager's offices) would probably be made available to the aldermen one day per week on a set basis to assist them solely in council work.

Frank Seemungal will be one of those aldermen so benefitted. He was appointed by council Monday to fill Mayor Corke's vacant aldermanic seat.

Mayor Corke said he will make a further statement Sept. 8 and told reporters later, "I hope you leave me be for a couple of weeks so I can get involved with all the mayor's duties . . . like the police commission . . ."

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Monday, Aug. 25, 3:50 p.m. — grass fire at rear of Elliott Motors near Bell Blvd., extinguished with five-gallon water can, no damage, cause unknown.

Cutting Up

Robin Jeffrey, Progressive Conservative candidate in Quinte riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election, cuts the ribbon during Monday's official opening of her campaign headquarters at 213 Front St. in Belleville, the former McCoy Pharmacy. She is assisted by Jack Ellis (left), Hastings MP and Dr. Richard Potter, current Quinte MLA and provincial minister of correctional services.

Seemungal Gets Post

Frank Seemungal, first runnerup in the aldermanic race during last year's municipal election, was appointed to city council Monday.

The 44-year-old Mr. Seemungal was apointed by council to fill the seat left vacant by the appointment of former Ald. Ben Corke to the post of mayor.

He said in an interview Monday at his home at 54 Forin St., "when the mayor had resigned, I met an alderman who asked me if I was still interested."

He was also telephoned early Monday by deputy-city clerk William Moreton for confirmation of his interest. He was to be sworn in today at 1:30 p.m. at city hall.

Although he finished 333 votes behind Ald. Wally Dever last December, Mr. Seemungal said he thinks he has public backing.

He noted there are precedents for aldermanic appointments. "It has happened in the past with Ald. George Zegouras," he said.

Mr. Seemungal is a current member of the Belleville Transit Commission, chairman of the board of directors of United Community Services and a past president of the Belleville Theatre Guild.

He said his appointment means he will have to relinquish the transit commission position. "As for the UCS, we'll see how it goes," he remarked.

Mr. Seemungal arrived in Canada from Trinidad in 1950 and attended the University of British Columbia. In 1956, he came to Belleville where he married a city girl, the former Beverley McCabe.

They have four boys from age 12-17 — three at Nicholson Catholic College and one at St. Michael's Academy. Mr. Seemungal is a science and chemistry teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Jeffrey Says Ontario Happy With Conservative Policies

Meet the people will be the theme of Robin Jeffrey's campaign as progressive Conservative candidate for Quinte riding in the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Mrs. Jeffrey told party faithful during Monday's opening of her campaign headquarters in Belleville her campaign will involve "front line contact with the voters."

She said it will involve meeting people at work, on the street and at their home and urged her campaign workers to adopt the same attitude.

The Tory headquarters are located in the former McCoy Pharmacy at 213 Front St. Mrs. Jeffrey was assisted in the ribbon-cutting ceremony by Jack Ellis, Hastings MP and Dr. Richard Potter, current Quinte MLA and provincial minister of correctional services.

Mrs. Jeffrey said she and her husband, Roy, own the property at 152 Dufferin Ave. in Belleville where they reside "and that's the way it will stay after I am elected."

She also promised, "I will be accessible to the people the way I was as a mayor and as an alderman."

Ontario residents are pleased with the policies brought forth by Tory governments for the past 32 years, Mrs. Jeffrey commented and added, "we are proud to be Conservatives."

"We like what we see and we know it," she remarked, saying in the Tory party there is "individual initiative and responsibility."

Mrs. Jeffrey related past achievements by the Tories. "We have the best medical insurance program in the world," she said.

Thieves Hungry

A new type of chicken thief was active in Belleville early Monday — the hungry type.

City Police Deputy Chief Harold Reid said today someone broke into Dixie Lee Fried Chicken Take Out at 211 Coleman St. some time between midnight and 8 a.m. and ate a quantity of chicken.

He said entry was gained by breaking a rear door window. The storage area had been checked over and nothing else was reported missing.

Stonepicker Rental Almost Equals Cost

The Belleville Board of Park Management may have buried its head in the sand early this year when it did not include the purchase price of a stonepicker in its 1975 budget.

The board was told last week it has paid out about $1,100 in rental fees for a stonepicker currently in use for East Zwick's Island Park at a cost of $50 per hour.

It is estimated the stonepicker rent will cost the city about $2,000 this year while the purchase price of $3,500 was kicked out of the budget.

"We've pretty well paid for one in the last two years," noted board chairman Paul Russell.

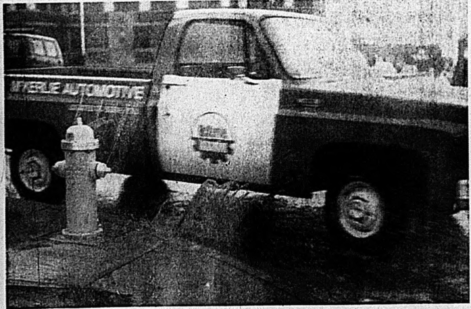
Jerry Brennan of the parks board, acting in the place of the vacationing director, reported extensive use of the rented stonepicker has been made at both East Zwick's and West Riverside Park.

Window Smashed

City police are investigating another act of vandalism which occurred in the city sometime between 12.30 a.m. and 4 a.m. today.

Deputy Chief Harold Reid said officers discovered glass broken out of the front door window of Majestic Dry Cleaners at 112 West College St. after someone had thrown a rock through it.

He said the value of the glass is estimated at $100.



Sailing Anyone?

Traffic in the downtown area of Belleville Monday morning was confronted with an unusual situation — water. The city pump house reports that in the 30 minute downpour, 1.34 inches of rain fell. The total rainfall for Monday was 1.35 inches.

Penny Fortunes

Monday afternoon a penny carnival for Muscular Dystrophy was held on the corner of Victoria Ave. and Haig Road. As part of the displays, 12-year-old Kathy Gilmour reads the fortune of Carl Wedderburn, 8, through her crystal ball. The organizers of the carnival were Valerie Duffey, 11, and Barb Cotter, 12, who earned $22 in the event.

Rain Helps Farmers And Cardinals, Too

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The rains came just in time Monday night to save St. Louis Cardinals, but manager Red Schoendienst wasn't doing any celebrating.

There were two outs in the bottom of the 11th inning and Houston Astros were leading 4-3 when the skies opened over Busch Stadium.

After 134 minutes of trying to get that last batter to the plate, National League umpire Ed Sudol made the rainout official, leaving St. Louis 3½ games behind the East Division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

"'What do you want me to do, turn cartwheels?" said Schoendienst.

SCHOENDIENST
No Cartwheels

The St. Louis contest enters the season records as a 3-3, 10-inning tie, and will be replayed from the start as part of a doubleheader tonight although all performances in the 10 innings Monday will go into the books.

In Monday's other National League games, Pittsburgh blanked Atlanta Braves 4-0, Philadelphia Phillies trimmed Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2, Cincinnati Reds whipped Chicago Cubs 11-4, and New York Mets stopped San Diego Padres 4-0.

The rain wiped out an 11th-inning homer by Houston catcher Cliff Johnson that would have put in the record books as the sixth player in major league history to hit six homers in six games. Dale Long holds the National League record of eight homers in eight games.

"'I've never seen this happen in the 35 years I've been in baseball—a rainout with only one out to go," said Sudol. "We gave it every possible chance.

It was a crucial game. Every game now is a crucial game. These are the dog days and we try to give everyone an equal break."

That's the way it goes," said Johnson, whose homer over the left-field fence was Houston's calm before the storm. "At least the rain will help the farmers."

The Cardinals blew a 2-1 lead and had to fight back for the 3-3 deadlock with a run in the 10th. They had a runner at first when the downpour struck

Jim Rooker limited the Braves to three hits and Willie Stargell hit a pair of run-scoring singles for the Pirates.

Cincinnati shortstop Darrell Chaney had 17 relatives on hand to see him hit a three-run homer at Chicago's Wrigley field.

"I saw them all jumping around after I came around third base," said the native of nearby Hammond, Ind.

More Relief Stints? Not Likely—Rookies

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie pitchers Dennis Eckersley of Cleveland Indians and Jim Umbarger of Texas Rangers don't mind finishing games. The thing is, they'd like a chance to start what they finish.

They completed three-hitters Monday night, Eckersley firing 6 1-3 hitless innings as the Indians beat Chicago White Sox 5-1 while Umbarger was pitching the Rangers to a 1-0 triumph over Detroit Tigers.

Each youngster began the season in his club's bullpen. Eckersley, a righthander, made his first start May 5 and lefty Umbarger had to wait until June 13. Neither has any intention of going back to relief.

In Monday's other American League action, Minnesota Twins downed Milwaukee Brewers 6-3. A game at Kansas City between the Royals and Baltimore Orioles was rained out.

FRANK ROBINSON
Manager Connects

Eckersley allowed four walks before Bill Melton broke up his no-hit bid with one out in the seventh, driving a grounder just past diving shortstop Frank Duffy into centre field. The hit scored Deron Johnson, who walked and went to second on a passed ball.

Manager Frank Robinson and Charlie Spikes hit consecutive home runs for the Indians in the bottom of the eighth off veteran Jim Kaat, Chicago's 18-game winner.

Umbarger retired the first nine Detroit batters before Ron LeFlore singled to start the fourth.

LeFlore was retired in a double play and Umbarger faced the minimum number of batters until he walked LeFlore leading off the seventh. The Tigers' other hits were Leon Roberts' double in the eighth and Gary Sutherland's single in the ninth.

Canadians Frustrated By Young U.S. Pitcher

MONTREAL (CP) — Steve Lane, a 19-year-old from Lexington, Ky., came within an out of pitching a no-hitter Monday night as the United States blanked Canada 6-0 to clinch first place in Group B of the Intercontinental Cup baseball tournament.

Lane, a quick-throwing left-hander, pitched 8 2-3 hitless innings before Brent Hallet nicked him for an infield hit in the bottom of the ninth.

Lane allowed at least one base runner in every inning except the seventh but got help from three double plays. He faced 37 batters, 10 more than the minimum.

The U.S. grabbed three unearned runs in the first as Bert Newman scored on a ground ball and Jerry Mondalto slammed a two-out, two-run double.

A run-scoring single in the second by Glenn Gulliver chased Canadian starter and loser Greg Lindsey, and the U.S. nicked reliever Brad McArthur for a run in the third.

McArthur left with one out and two on in the ninth and Bob Thomerson gave up a run-scoring hit by Molitor.

The win gave the U.S. a 5-0 won-lost record and put them six points ahead of Nicaragua and Italy in Group B of the eight-country, round-robin competition. Canada dropped to 3-2 and is tied with Puerto Rico for second in Group A behind Japan's 4-0 mark.

Games tonight see Nicaragua facing Italy in a showdown for a playoff berth and Japan meeting Colombia.

The top two teams from each group advance to semi-final play.

World Wide TV A Must—IOC

ALGIERS (AP) — The 1976 Olympics must be televised throughout the world, the president of the International Olympic Committee said Monday.

Lord Killanin told a news conference the IOC has stressed this point with the organizing committee of the Montreal Olympics and he was confident an agreement would be reached by the beginning of September

"There are too many persons on vacation now and that is what is holding up announcement of an agreement," Killanin said. "We are quite certain the Games will be televised and we are working on this."

"We have told the organizing committee to reconsider their rejection of the Union of International Television Network's offer. We pointed out the offer amounted to twice as much as the organizing committee in Munich received and the question is not solely a financial one."

Consensus Is New Move Will Benefit All Teams

In a move officials of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association are confident will prove beneficial to operation of house leagues as well as the representative Ontario Minor Hockey Association teams, "select" teams will make their appearance here this season.

Select teams will be staffed by youngsters who do not make OMHA teams when preliminary selections to these representative teams are made. But they may be called up on an exchange basis at any time.

The move will not only take some of the more talented players out of the house league but will make it no longer necessary for OMHA teams to look further than their own particular "select" teams when replacements or exchanges are required.

With the new system in operation, house league teams will no longer be called upon to supply temporary or permanent replacements to the OMHA teams.

And while the select teams may not be called upon for player help, it is hoped these teams will benefit from the opportunity to develop players who are just a step away from all-star competition.

The purpose of the select teams, according to the original proposal as submitted by Jim Robertson, assistant OMHA convener, is to concentrate on player development and extra ice time with the emphasis on a winning team kept to a minimum.

Following this proposal, coaches for the select teams will be chosen and prime requirements will be dedication to the development theme and an awareness that the "must win" syndrome is out. And, of course, there must be a spirit of co-operation with the OMHA teams when player exchanges or replacements are needed.

A special committee formed to study the select team proposal has recommended that the system be used in all age groups except juvenile. And that there be only one team from novice and midget divisions.

One hour practice time is to be provided for each team per week and there will be an extra registration charge as is the case with players making OMHA teams.

Select teams will compete in the house league with the division on age group older but they will not be eligible to qualify as house league champions and will not participate in the playoffs of the group in which they operate.

It is hoped exhibition games will be encouraged and that special tournaments will be arranged for these teams.

A full explanation of the new system will be available when parents register their youngsters for the 1975-76 season.

• • • • •

SLICES — Registration dates for Belleville Minor Hockey Association are September 5-6 and 12-13.

Registrations will be taken at the main entrance to Quinte Mall as well as Memorial Arena. Friday times are 6-9 p.m., and Saturdays, 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

• • • • •

Efforts will be made to arrange a January 1 exhibition game with a touring Swedish juvenile team.

• • • • •

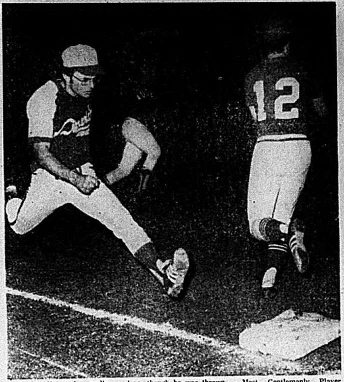
Dates for annual tournaments have been set. Leading off will be the Lions Midget Tournament, November 21-22; next in line is the Yardmen Juvenile Tournament, December 28, and the Shrine Peewee Tournament goes April 2-3-4.

• • • • •

Parents are reminded that the OMHA requires social insurance numbers for registration purposes beginning in the 1975-76 season.

• • • • •

Trenton and Kingston Township will compete in the OMHA AAA league during the regular 1975-76 season but will revert to AA class for playoffs.



Dave Horwood really stretches as he attempts to beat out a sacrifice bunt on Monday night in Quinte Fastball League playoff action. Horwood got the job done, though he was thrown out. Brian Gariepy takes the throw at first base for Auger Men's Wear. Horwood, the Devolin Motor outfielder, was recently awarded the Most Gentlemanly Player award. Devolins took the game 5-2 and the series. They will face Bardons in the finals which open tonight.

Devolin-Bardon Final

Auger's on Sidelines

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

The hitting drought Devolin Motors suffered in Domville in the OASA playoffs suddenly disappeared against Auger Men's Wear on Monday night.

Devolin defeated Auger's 5-2 in Quinte Fastball League playoff action to take their series and move on to the final.

Gary Johnson solved the Devolin hitting problem by smashing a home run over the right field fence to bring in three runs in the first inning.

Don Holoway showed no signs of fatigue during the match, striking out 10 batters en route to the victory. He was touched for four hits and three walks.

Bob Swan just couldn't put it all together for the Trenton entry, as he was racked for six hits before relief help came. Jamie Hunter was able to strike out two batters and hold Devolin to two hits the rest of the way.

Johnson, the big Devolin first sacker, had quite a night at the plate, smashing his homer, and then coming up with a single and a walk.

Rick Rosebush had two singles in the contest while Ralph Plane doubled. Singles came from John Burnside, Rick Watt, Tom MacDonald and Dave Horwood.

All four Auger hits were singles, from Jim Livingstone, Al Ferguson, Brian Gariepy and Ted Cornell.

Devolin Motors and Bardon Supplies now go at it in the finals, and it couldn't be a much closer set up.

Devolin Motors will have to get good pitching from Don Holoway and Larry Griffin, something they haven't lacked so far. Their bats will have to work like last night. If Gary Johnson, Ralph Plane, Rick Rosebush, Jim Horwood, Dave Horwood, John Burnside and Eric Maher hit the way they can, there will be trouble.

Bardon Supplies boast a strong lineup, including pitchers Earl Foster and Ken DeMille. Hitting wise they have Warren Ostrander, Marv Stacey, Ron Weese, DeMille and Foster.

QFL Awards were announced last night. The Cy Barriage Trophy for the Most Valuable Player in the league went to Bob Swan of Auger's. Swan hurled two no hitters, one a perfect game, for the Trenton team over the season and was high in the strikeout totals. Runner up for the award was Rick Rosebush, the league's top hitter and Devolin's, dependable shortstop.

The Bucky Ethier Award for the Most Gentlemanly Player in the league, went to Dave Horwood of Devolin Motors. Runner up for that award was Steve Campbell of the Ellis Juniors.

Muskies Being Taken

The muskies are biting! This was the news from Moira Lake during the past few days.

On Saturday evening, two large specimens were landed. At about dusk, John Paranuik, of Madoc, pulled in a 22-pounder measuring 40" in length while fishing in the lower lake, near Ross' Bar.

He reports that it was only a matter of about 10 minutes from the time the big fellow struck until he had it in the boat.

That same night, a 30-pound muskie was landed after a three-hour battle by Randall Barry, assisted by his son, Jim of Madoc.

At about dusk again on Sunday evening, Richard Matchett of Madoc caught an 11-pounder. This one was also caught in the lower lake. It measured 34".

Brooke Bond Bombed

Ron Andrews watched his teammates pound the ball off Brooke Bond pitchers. He then walked out and threw a no hitter for his Black Diamond team, in the Belleville Industrial Softball League finals.

The final score was 17-0 for Black Diamond, with Brooke Bond making eight errors in the wake.

Andrews struck out seven batters on the way to his no hit victory, the first of the playoffs.

Ross Green and Al Colden suffered through the B and D attack. They struck out one batter.

That gives Black Diamond a commanding 2-0 lead in the BISL final series.

Tim O'Connell smashed two home runs for the winners. Triples came from Ron An-Triples came from Ron Andrews, Jack Francis, Terry Hiddleston and Myles McDonald.

Doug Stewart doubled for the winners while singles came from Ron Bateman and two from Hiddleston.

BYBF Explodes In Sixth Inning

The Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund scored six runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to insure themselves of a victory over Belleville Broadloom in a Belleville and District Ladies Softball Association playoff game.

The final score on Monday night was 10-1, although Yardmen had just 12 hits to Broadloom's 10.

Broadloom just couldn't seem to bring the runners across, while the BYBF hit at the right time.

Shirley Gulliver was the winning hurler for BYBF. She had four strikeouts to her credit.

Sue Fobert absorbed the loss, she walked two and struck out two batters.

Sheila Smith and Nancy Birch both tripled and singled for the winners. Marj Reid smacked a double. Sue Morton reached base twice on safeties.

Norma May led Broadloom with three singles. Chris Fyke and Pam Smith both reached base twice on safeties.

Trudeau Motors Takes Tadpole Championship

Trudeau Motors has captured the city championship in the Belleville Minor Baseball Association tadpole division.

The Trudeau team wrapped up the title with a 20-12 win over Belleville Conductors behind the pitching of Valdy Rossit and Jimmy Wright. Conductors got their pitching from Mike Pynappels and Jimmy Crouchman.

Rossit and Wright were also key men at the plate for the winners. Rossit slammed a home run, double and single while Wright homered and doubled. Tony Nelson supplied a double and two singles.

Brian Christopher and Greg Burnette each belted a double and a single for Conductors and Crouchman connected for three singles.

In peewee playoffs, H and M Variety, Richard Ellis Printing and Cablevue scored wins.

The Variety squad topped Bob's sports 24-4 while the Printer doubled the score on Kinsmen 20-10 and Cablevue stopped Belleville Broadloom 15-4.

Danny Manning and Al Clarington shared the H and M pitching. Hurling for Bob's Sports were Larry Mavety and Steven Hay. Clarington hammered two homers and three singles to pace the winners. Larry Darbout had a double and a single in defeat.

Steve Goulah went all the way to get the Richard Ellis win. Mike Leger and Ross Harvey pitched for Kinsmen. Danny McGrath sparked the winners with a home run, double and two singles. Jim McMullen and Leslie Bradley each checked in with a double and two singles. Harvey homered and singled for Kinsmen and Mike Leger collected four singles.

Winning pitcher for Cablevue was Robert Boomhower. Sharing the pitching for Broadloom were John Ord and Lyle Kelleher. Trevor Powell singled three times for the winners. Adam Weymark doubled for Broadloom.

At the bantam level, Stopette topped Legion 99 7-4 while Kinsmen tripped Mulroney's Sunoco 12-5.

Stopette used Terry Kingsman, Peter Soule and Paul Dent to stop Legion. On the firing line for Legion were Glen McQuaid and Tony Parks.

Grant Bolton supplied a home run and a double in the win. Peter Hay homered and singled. Leading the Legion were Brian Cronkright, David Maikawa and John Dent who supplied two singles each.

Kinsmen pitcher was Dave Bennett. Mulroney's countered with Ian McCutcheon and Louis Scanlon.

John Taylor connected for four singles for the winners. McCutcheon tripled and Scanlon doubled for Mulroney's Exhibition baseball was also on the menu last week. Belleville Alhambra 109 took Trenton 13-9 in a tyke match.

David Shanque got the win. Jimmy McMahon and Gary Jackson worked for the Trenton team.

Shanque walloped two home runs and Brian Christopher had one circuit blast. Glen Maxwell had a double and a single.

Tops for Trenton was McMahon with two homers.

14-inning Contest To Foxboro Merchants

It took 14 innings to finally reach a decision in the South Hastings Baseball League semi-final playoff match between Melrose and Foxboro Merchants on the weekend.

The final score was 8-7 in favor of Foxboro, but not before Melrose gave them quite a fight.

The winning run came in the bottom of the 14th when John Masterson scored from second base on Ted Roster's single.

Ron McTaggart and John Masterson shared the victory, with 11 strikeouts between them.

The loss was absorbed by a trio of hurlers, John Pepper, Terry McTaggart and Ted Abrams.

Masterson had four doubles for the winners, while Ron McTaggart had three singles and a two bagger. Dale Tummon doubled and had two singles. Dale Harrison added to the attack with three one baggers.

For the losers, Glen McMechan had three safeties while singles came from Bruce Pascoe, Randy Pascoe, Ted Abrams, Charles Bates and Scott McClaren.

EVERT WINS

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Evert overwhelmed Virginia Wade 6-0, 6-1 under overcast skies Monday at the Westchester Country Club in the rain-delayed final of a $75,000 women's tennis tournament. She collected $14,000 for the victory and justified her No. 1 seeding for the U.S. Open championships which begin Wednesday at Forest Hills. Miss Wade, Britain's top woman player for the past several years, won $7,000. She is seeded second at Forest Hills.

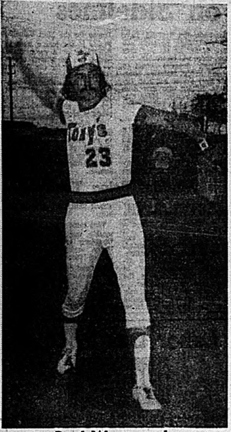
Wannamaker's Perfect Game Marks Tony's Tournament Debut



Paul Wannamaker

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Paul Wannamaker of Oshawa Tony's tossed the first perfect game in Canadian men's senior softball championship play as Oshawa 3-0 Monday.

In other action, Victoria, B.C., Bates recorded two wins, defeating Newfoundland 9-4 and Dartmouth, N.S., 2-1, for three wins in three starts.

Kitchener, Ont., also won its third in three starts, beating Charlottetown 3-0; Gatineau, Que., downed Saint John, N.B., 8-1; Edmonton Paton Royals beat St. Vital, Man., Flocking Geese 1-0 and Saskatchewan defeated Yukon All-Stars 5-1.

Wannamaker, formerly of Trenton, struck out 11 batters and allowed only two balls hit to the outfield as the defending champions got into action for the first time in the week-long series.

The closest the losers came to putting a man on base came in the top of the seventh when lead-off batter Chuck Nesbitt hit a ground ball. Shortstop Daryl Hudgin bobbled but he recovered in time to retire the batter.

Alex Skakum, pitching for the Northwest Territories, appeared to lose his edge in the sixth inning and his mates committed a pair of errors to allow the host team to score three times.

B.C. 9 Newfoundland 4

Victoria Bates scored a run in the first inning, added two in the third and five more in the fourth making it 8-0 after four.

The B.C. team wrapped it up in the fourth inning as Newfoundland pitcher Ross Crocker walked Randy Benn and gave up a double to Dave Ruthowsky and singles to Carl Walker and Ken Bate. Bob Burrow's second home run of the tournament accounted for the other B.C. run.

Len Bersford hit a two-run triple to highlight a four-run fifth inning as Newfoundland, represented by St. John's All-Stars, broke a 13-inning shutout string by B.C. pitchers.

B.C. 2 Nova Scotia 1

A high throw in the seventh inning by centre-fielder Don Ross of Dartmouth, N.S., gave B.C. the win. The throw allowed Randy Benn to score the winning run.

In a game highlighted by a seventh-inning protest, Nova Scotia got a second opportunity to play the inning over again after B.C. had used an ineligible player during a defensive change.

B.C. scored its first run in the second inning when Pete Songhurst singled in Burrows.

Nova Scotia tied the game in the top of the seventh when Ron Clarke singled to score pinch runner Scotty Maxwell, who had earlier stolen second and third base.

Bob Holmes bobbled a blooper in front of Ross and, in an attempt to cut Maxwell off at third, he threw over the screen, allowing Maxwell to score.

Kitchener 3 P.E.I. 0

Kitchener, Ont., Evergreens posted their third shutout in three games, downing Charlottetown on the pitching of Keith Wagler and Bob Domik, who came on in relief in the seventh. After Wagler allowed singles to both Ian and Gary MacDonald, Domik retired the next three Islanders.

Les Downing led the team with two doubles off Charlottetown's Pat King and scored one run.

Two Ontario runs scored in the fourth inning as Downing doubled, sending Ab Henshaw from first to third. Henshaw had walked earlier. John Hagey sacrificed to score Henshaw and Downing advanced to third. He scored on Jim Murdoch's double.

In the fifth, Henshaw singled, stole second, and scored on Downing's double.

Sask. 5 Yukon 1

Saskatchewan evened its record at a win and a loss with a 5-1 victory over the Yukon, handing truck for one run in the second inning as it is and a walk.

Doug Holoien took over pitching duties for Saskatchewan in the third and tossed hitless ball for the next three innings. Rob Guenter hurled hitless ball in the sixth and seventh innings.

Quebec 8 N.B. 1

Quebec Gatineau collected their second win in three outings by handing Saint John, N.B., an 8-1 setback.

Claude Lafleur pitched a five-hitter against the New Brunswick team, which suffered its second straight loss.

Quebec went ahead in the first inning with Marcel Boucher scoring on a sacrifice by Pierre Boivin, added three runs in the third and four in the fourth.

New Brunswick scored its only run in the third inning.

Robert Peterson led Quebec hitters with two doubles and a single. Boivin hit a double and single with other doubles coming from Jean Claude Cyr, Pierre Beauparlant and Gaston Lemieux.

Dave Fraser led New Brunswick hitters with a double and single.

Alberta 1 Manitoba 0

Edmonton Paton Royals, representing Alberta, capitalized on two miscues by St. Vital, Man., Flocking Geese in the fourth inning to score a 1-0 decision.

Lawrence Nellis of Alberta reached second on a two-base error and Tony Roche reached first on a Manitoba miscue. This allowed Nellis to score the only run of the game.

There were five hits in the contest, three to Manitoba and two to Alberta. Nellis and Myron Fediuck had the Alberta hits, while Barry Braun, Ken Harder and Al Gaboriead had singles for Manitoba.

2 Top Seeds Advance

OTTAWA (CP) — Chris Lewis of Aukland, New Zealand, and Leo Palin of Helsinki, Finland, the two top-seeded players in the 18-and-under class at the international junior tennis championships, advanced in first-round play Monday.

Lewis, top seed, had a bye to the second round and moved to the third when Peter Neilson of Toronto defaulted.

Palin, second seed, defeated his Toronto opponent, Hans Muenlh, 6-3, 1-6, 6-1. Today Palin will meet Lucjan Sosnowski, of Johannesburg, South Africa, who eliminated Ian Miller of Ontario, 6-2, 6-2.

In other play, eighth-seeded Fernando Manyetto, officially from Peru but living in Youngstown, Ohio, defeated David Becker of Vancouver 6-4, 6-2 and David Kulhaj of Czechoslovakia dumped Steve Rogul of Toronto 7-5, 7-6. Kulhaj is the top-ranking junior in his country.

Josef Brabenac of Vancouver beat Graeme Hibbard of Toronto, 6-4, 6-2, and John Picken of North Burnaby, B.C., defeated Nick Mohtadi of Calgary 7-5, 6-2 also in first-round action.

In the only girls 18-and-under match, Diana Dimmer of Toronto defeated Joanie Gillis of Halifax 6-1, 6-2.

Kyle Langill of Toronto upset Mike Puc of London, Ont., 0-6, 6-4, 6-3, one of four 16-and-under Canadians who were seeded.

In the same class, second-seeded Shi Puni of Israel defeated Bill Geddes of Vancouver, 6-4, 6-0. Top-seeded Murray Robinson of Philadelphia eliminated Byron Kidd of Vancouver, 6-2, 6-1.

Third-seeded Bill Clark of Cherry Hill, N.J., dumped Steve Vorvis of Guelph, Ont., 6-2, 6-3 and fourth-seeded Jim Broder of Westchester, Pa., ousted Glen Michibata of Toronto, 6-1, 6-2.

First Canadian seed Dan Whittaker of Toronto had a bye into the second round while third-seeded Greg Bell of Lions Bay, B.C., eliminated John Nicolls of Vancouver 6-2, 6-1 and fourth-seeded Colin McAlpin of Deep River, Ont., defeated Alan Racko of Toronto, 3-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Top seeded Wendy Burkhart of Toledo, Ohio, humiliated Susan Gillespie of Toronto, 6-1, 6-0 in their 16-and-under girls match.

Second seed Beth Ruman of Munster, Ind., beat Nina Bland of Victoria, 6-4, 6-4, third seed Wendy Barlow of Vancouver beat Debbie Harit of Montreal, 6-3, 6-3 and fourth seed Claire Lardntr of Toronto downed Jennifer Bland of Victoria, 6-0, 6-3.

Quebecois Lose but Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The chase for playoff berths in the National Lacrosse League produced a cruel twist Monday night.

Montreal Quebecois won while losing and Quebec Caribous won but still have not nailed down a position.

Montreal lost 16-11 to Long Island Tomahawks at Uniondale, N.Y., but were assured of second place in the final standings when Quebec downed Philadelphia Wings 22-12.

The Caribous managed to pull into a fourth-place tie with Boston Bolts and play host to the Bolts tonight in a game that will go far to deciding which club gets the final playoff spot. Maryland Arrows, two points back, are still in contention as well.

Boston has four games left to two for the Caribous, while the Arrows have two to play.

Brian Wilson scored seven goals for Quebec and Murray Cawker and Travis Cook each added three. Jim Wasson scored three goals to lead Philadelphia, in third place two points ahead of Boston and Quebec. The Wings have two games left but cannot catch Montreal and are threatened from behind.

Quebec outshot the Wings 62-58 before 3,425 home-town fans.

Jim Johnston led the Tomahawks attack with three goals and two assists and Dape Wilfong scored three goals and set up one..

Ken Winzoski fired two goals and added three assists for Montreal, while Bruce Arena chipped in with two goals and two assists.

The Tomahawks held a 59-44 edge in shots on goal before 6,-

WEST HAM LEADS

LONDON (Reuter) — West Ham United took over the leadership of the English Football League's first Division, defeating fellow Londoners Tottenham Hotspur 1-0 Monday night. The win gave them seven points from four matches, one ahead of Manchester United, which has played one less match. Keith Robson scored West Ham's winning goal seconds before halftime.

Chiefs Even Series

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Mississagua Chiefs defeated Peterborough Grey-Munros 13-11 Monday in a Ontario Lacrosse Association Junior A series game to tie their best-of-seven final series 1-1.

Mississauga led 5-3 at the end of the first period and 9-6 after two periods.

Dave Legree had three goals for the Chiefs and two each were scored by Rick Halliday, Dave Pirog and John Campbell. Graham Patterson, Rob Gemmell, Al Rizzuto and George Chandler got one each.

Don Wasson ld Peterborough with three goals. Paul Evans got two and Steve Plunkett, Bob Short, Gord Duncan, Randy Bryan, Moe Jodoin and John Martin were single scorers.

Riley Hoping He Has Answer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders will be looking for a share of first place in the Western Football Conference when they tangle here tonight and both will be counting heavily on their fullbacks.

The lack of an inside running game hurt the Bombers in their 20-13 loss to Saskatchewan Roughriders last week and Winnipeg coach Bud Riley hopes the return of Jay Washington will be the answer.

Washington, who gained 582 yards in just eight games last season, wrenched his shoulder in the final, pres-season game and hasn't played since.

Riley says Washington has been running well in practice and with his size and speed "should scare a few people."

But before the Bombers can gain that first-place tie with Saskatchewan or break the second-place deadlock with Calgary and Edmonton Eskimos, they'll have to find a way to stop Willie Burden.

"He's an excellent running back, a tough competitor and he's been doing a great job for the Stamps," said Riley.

Burden has averaged 130-yards in each of Calgary's first five games, and has scored four touchdowns. "Like George Reed, you can't stop Burden with ordinary effort," Riley said. "Your defence has to be disciplined and you have to gang tackle him."

Winnipeg beat Calgary 18-15 in their last meeting, but needed a controversial roughing penalty inside the Stampeders' five-yard line in the final quarter to do it. Both clubs have 3-2 won-lost records and trail Saskatchewan by two points.

The Stampeders have planned no lineup changes for the game but the Bombers will be making two alterations besides putting Washington back into the lineup. Chuck Ealey has been named as starting quarterback and Randy Halsall will be a starting offensive guard.

"Chuck's injury has completely healed now and I think he deserves an opportunity to start," Riley said.

There will be no television coverage of the 8 p.m. game.

Saunders Replaced

TORONTO (CP) — Marg MacGowan of Guelph, Ont., has replaced Yvonne Saunders of Toronto as a 400-metre runner on Canada's proposed Pan-American Games track and field team.

Miss Saunders was included in error on a team list drawn up Sunday by the Canadian Track and Field Association after its national championships in Sudbury, Ont..

However, Miss MacGowan had assured herself of a berth in the 400 metres by winning the event at Sudbury. Joyce Yakubowich of Victoria is the other 400-metre runner.

Miss Saunders remains on the team as an 800-metre runner.

The proposed team still needs the approval of Canada's Pan-American Games committee. The Games are in Mexico City in October.

Tops Pact Given Soccer's Pele

WHA Offer to Orr Is 'Largest Ever'

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Orr has about a month to decide whether to accept a contract offer his agent described Monday as "the largest ever offered a professional athlete."

Neither the agent, Alan Eagleson, nor president Wayne Belisle of Minnesota Fighting Saints spelled out details of the contract offered the Boston Bruin defenceman at a meeting here Monday.

But Eagleson said the contract offered his client by the World Hockey Association club topped the pact given Pele to sign with New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League. Pele received a reported $4.5-million.

The agent said the Bruins have been given until the start of the 1975-76 season to come up with a counter offer, but Orr would like to decide on his future before training camp begins next month.

But Eagleson said the Saints' offer would be impossible for the Bruins to match.

"Boston can't come close to the offer in dollars."

Belisle called the agreement "the best package ever offered an athlete" and said Orr would be looked after for life "as well as his children and his children's children."

Even if Orr signs with the Saints, Boston managing director Harry Sinden says the Bruins will hold him to the final year of his $225,000-a-year contract with the Bruins.

"We want Bobby Orr to play every single game he can as a Boston Bruin," Sinden said of reports he would be released from his contract if he signed with the WHA team.

Eagleson said his client is prepared to honor his obligations to the Bruins even if he signs with the Saints.

The Saints' offer is expected to be discussed at a meeting of WHA trustees here today. There have been reports the other teams in the league will be asked to contribute to a bonus being offered Orr.

Although Winnipeg Jets acquired Bobby Hull under a similar arrangement, there have been reports that several teams have balked at helping the Saints sign Orr.

Calgary Cowboys, Quebec Nordiques, Indianapolis Racers, Edmonton Oilers and New England Whalers have all been mentioned in one or more reports as bing unwilling to contribute.

Bud Poile, director of operations for the WHA, said today's meeting was called three weeks ago and while the offer to Orr had not been on the original agenda it would certainly be discussed.

Before Monday's meeting, Quebec Le Soleil reported that Orr would be offered a package worth $7.5 million, including a $1.5-million signing bonus and $600,000 a year.

We'll Fight to Keep Him — Campbell

BOSTON (AP) — The Herald American says National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell has vowed his league will fight any switch of Boston Bruin defenceman Bobby Orr to the World Hockey Association.

Campbell told the newspaper the NHL has looked into the possibility of backing Orr's salary but not at the multi-million dollar level the WHA is reported to be offering.

"We haven't, for practical purposes, gone deeply into the matter yet," Campbell was quoted as saying from his Montreal office. "But we have explored the legality of this in relation to anti-trust legislation, and our reports were favorable."

Campbell cautioned he was not interfering with negotiations under way between Orr and the Bruins. Orr's present five-year contract expires next June.

NOT REALISTIC

Campbell said player salaries as high as $10 million were unrealistic in the financial structure of hockey.

"I read $700-a-day forever," Campbell said. "That's crazy. Projected over a 200-day period, that's $140,000-$150,000 a year. But over 365 days and into perpetuity, that's unrealistic."

The paper said Campbell called a "very silly story" reports from a WHA news conference that indicate the NHL must "come up with a counter-proposal before the training camps open next month."

CLARENCE CAMPBELL

Alan Eagleson, Orr's attorney from Toronto, said he hopes to resolve Orr's contract—NHL or WHA—by the start of the 1975-76 season.

Training camps in the NHL open Sept. 15 and league play starts in October.

Boston managing director Harry Sinden, when told of Campbell's remarks on some salary figures mentioned for Orr, said he felt NHL-backing of Orr's contract would be "just as ludicrous" as the bids being mentioned.

"Bobby Orr's the No. 1 player and deserves the No. 1 salary. I think everybody agrees on that," he said. "We made our proposal to Eagleson and Bobby in Chicago and that was it.

'He can either accept or reject it, but there isn't anything left. That's our posture. He should be compensated as befits his stature and our offer does that."

Burden Off And Running

TORONTO (CP) — Willie Burden is on a hot streak.

The Calgary Stampeders running back has strung together four 100-yard-plus rushing games to lead Western Football Conference rushers.

Burden started the season with a 70-yard game against Saskatchewan, and has subsequently rushed for 159 and 182 yards against B.C. Lions, 130 against Winnipeg and 103 against Ottawa.

Canadian Football League statistics released Monday show that in five games, Burden has carried 105 times for a net yardage of 644—an average of 6.1 yards per carry. George Reed, the veteran Saskatchewan running back, follows Burden with a 4.6 average on 121 carries for 560 yards.

In the scoring race, place kickers continue to lead in both the Eastern and Western conferences.

Dave Cutler of Edmonton has nine converts, 11 field goals and three singles for 45 points to lead the Western Conference. Saskatchewan receiver Tom Campana follows with five touchdowns for 30 points. Cyril McFall of Calgary is tied with Campana with six field goals, 10 converts and two singles.

In the Eastern Conference, Zenon Andrusyshyn of Toronto Argonauts holds a 10-point lead over place-kicker Gerry Organ of Ottawa.

Andrusyshyn has 16 field goals, four converts and two singles for 54 points while Organ has 10 field goals, 12 converts and two singles for 44.

Peter Dalla Riva of Montreal Alouettes is third with 40 points on six touchdowns and two, two-point conversions.

Running back Doyle Orange of the Argonauts is the leading rusher in the Eastern Conference, carrying 78 times for 408 yards—an average of 5.2 yards per carry, and two touchdowns.

PLAYER INJURED

BUFFALO (AP) Left cornerback Robert James of Buffalo Bills, injured in the first quarter of a National Footbal League exhibition game Saturday night with Los Angeles Rams, will be out of action for the entire football season, a spokesman for the Bills said Sunday. James, who suffered both ligament and cartilage damage to his right knee when he was tackled by Jim Bertelsen, was operated on Sunday morning.

MIAMI (AP) — Loretta Swit, who portrays Hotlips in television's M-A-S-H says that with her acting success has come a desire to protect the things that are hers exclusively—her age, sex life and marital status.

Although she discusses openly her experiences in therapy—"I'm proud of them"—those other things are private, she said on a visit to Miami.

"What would my age tell about me? The only thing that people can do with that kind of knowledge is box you in with it."

Miss Swit is so adamant on the subject she refuses even to let her insurance company in on it.

"I won't even give my age on insurance forms. Just recently, I had to fill out some medical forms that asked my marital status, and I wrote 'none of your concern,' which it's not. There have to be some things that you cling very privately to."

But she shuns the banner of feminism.

"If I have any cause at all, it's in my great sense of injustice of any sort. Because I'm a woman and because I'm Polish, I have more knowledge first-hand about those two areas, about injustice based on sex or ethnic background."

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Country music singer Hank Williams Jr., seriously injured early this month in a fall from a mountain, is out of the hospital.

A family spokesman said Williams, released Monday, would remain in Montana for an indefinite time.

Williams, 26, was injured Aug. 9. He slipped on a snow field at the crest of the Continental Divide near Ajax Lake, about 50 miles southwest of Butte. Physicians said he suffered serious head injuries.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — An infected tooth is one reason singer Elvis Presley is in hospital, the star's physician said Monday.

Dr. George Nichopoulos said Presley, 40, has been suffering since early August from an infected tooth that had to be extracted.

After opening at a Las Vegas hotel Sunday night, Presley cancelled the rest of his two-week engagement Wednesday night.

Presley and Nichopoulos flew to Memphis and the entertainer entered the hospital Thursday evening.

"He decided he did not have the energy to continue for two weeks," Nichopoulos said in a broadcast interview.

"He did not want to do any further shows unless he could give 100 per cent. He had not been able to do that. He was fatigued after the first three or four numbers of each show."

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (Reuter) — British film director Ken Russell announced Monday he plans to make a film biography of Rudolph Valentino, the third film about the silent screen idol to be started this year.

One television movie on Valentino's life is already filming and a second was announced to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the star's death next year.

Russell explained his decision to make a third by saying: "There's enough material in Valentino's life to make fifty films."

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Alice Faye was enjoying a late snack at an East Side pub when someone broke into her chauffeured limousine and carted off two cosmetic cases containing about 20 pieces of jewelry.

Miss Faye, who estimated the loss early Sunday at $25,000, said many of the stolen articles were gifts from her husband, bandleader Phil Harris.

She said she was away from the car with her press agent, Jewel Baxter, and the chauffeur for about 40 minutes.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Elvis Presley, admitted to hospital for what doctors described as fatigue, remained in satisfactory condition Saturday, a hospital spokesman said.

Medical tests to determine any underlying cause for the fatigue, probably will begin early this week, she said.

Presley entered the hospital Thursday night, cutting short a two-week Las Vegas engagement that opened three days earlier.

He is expected to remain in the hospital 10 days.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Wednesday, Aug. 27

AIRES (March 21-April 19) Team up with someone who has the same work objectives. It could prove very profitable for both parties.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You can accomplish a great deal today. Tackle that tough project you've found difficult to complete in the past.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A happy day for the family. You can now solve the problem of how to get along with a loved one who has been a bit testy lately.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Ideas you have for the home today are good ones. Get out and shop. You'll find exactly what you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll hear from a friend today who has an excellent suggestion on how to get something you've wanted. Heed him.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) Some extra effort is all you'll need today to get you over the top in a task that has been giving you fits. Get going.

LIBRA (Sept 23-Oct 23) a change in thought or direction proves fortunate for you. You can gain benefits from your new attitude.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov 22) You're especially attractive today, and stand out among friends. This happy day could alter some ideas you've had about another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The development of a new friendship will help you politically in areas both very important and vital to your personal satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Hard work, plus a little help from Dame Fortune, brings long-sought success in your job or career today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A transformation in behavior on the part of a loved one results in a better understanding and a happier day for you.

PISCES (Feb 20-March 20) Keep yourself busy at home today. Your efforts will bring about a dramatic change welcomed by the family.

Irritated Nerves Produce Spasm

By G C Thosteson MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was told that I have a muscle spasm on the left side of my back between the hip and shoulder blade. Would you tell me what causes this and what is the best remedy? — M.W.J.

The usual cause of muscle spasm is an irritation of nerves in the area that causes the muscle to tighten. There are many underlying causes — a back sprain, or a herniated or ruptured disc, for example. X-rays would reveal a disc problem.

The commonest cause, though, is much simpler — a defect in your posture, especially when lifting. You ask me about the best remedy. If it is a muscle spasm, then wet heat (a whirlpool bath is fine) or a gentle massage might relieve the pain when it occurs.

Medication such as pain killers and muscle-relaxants are common treatments in this.

The muscle spasm problem is often found in tense individuals. However, if your trouble persists and if conservative treatment such as I've suggested doesn't help, then you should have an orthopedist look you over carefully to determine whether the pain is a symptom of a spinal defect.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I wondered if you have any view on yogurt and its use.

If you feel that it controls a person's cholesterol, would you consider yogurt or yogurt tablets the best form to take? — Mrs. W.J.W.

Yogurt has no magic properties. Its fat content (saturated or unsaturated) depends on its source — whether whole milk (higher) or skim milk (lower).

The control of cholesterol is a complex matter involving diet, medication and exercise. The essentials in a diet to control cholesterol are low saturated fats and low total calories.

An item such as yogurt is not a magic factor in the cholesterol problem. I am not belittling yogurt, which contains most nutrients, and I didn't mean to slight it. Eat it if you like it — solid or in tablet form.

1st add Thosteson — 030 ..

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please tell me the cause of strep throat. — Mrs. C.A.B.

It is usually a streptococcus germ, although a virus infection may mimic it. The differentiation must be made by a culture to determine the presence of the strep germ. Strep throat is highly contagious, but it usually responds to adequate doses of penicillin.

A recurrence of infection may be due to chronically infected tonsils or by contact with a carrier, who may or may not have symptoms.

Treatment with antibiotic must be prompt to avoid complications.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can nerves prolong the time between periods? I have been under a great amount of stress over the past few months and my periods have been two months apart. Before this, they were fairly regular. I am 20-years-old. — Miss D. S.

Yes, "nerves" can alter the menses. Current tension, a change in environment or pressures from work are common causes. When the source of tension leaves, periods return to normal.

Maoris Insist On Own MPs

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)— Almost anywhere else separate electoral rolls and separate representation of races in Parliament are taken as a sign of racism. In New Zealand the system survives at the emphatic wish of the minority race—New Zealand's brown-skinned Maoris.

There are 87 members in New Zealand's House of Representatives, the single-chamber Parliament. Of these, 83 represent "general" electorats and the other four represent the Maoris.

At a time when nearly every other legal distinction between the races has been abolished, many people see the survival of the dual system in Parliament as outdated and divisive—a form of apartheid.

But a majority of the Maoris insist that the race still needs its own representatives in Parliament to safeguard its special needs. It has generally been accepted by the major parties that a change cannot be made until sought by the Maoris themselves.

Most people feel that the change will not be practicable until Maoris are regularly elected for "general" seats, giving the race confidence that it will still have spokesmen in parliament without the need for a separate representation system.

Maoris are permitted to run for "general" seats and in fact one notable Maori held a non-Maori seat for many years. But for a long time now this situation has not occurred.

Most eager for a change of system is the opposition National Party, because for a long time now all four Maori MPs have represented Labor.

For the past three years Labor has been in office and two of the four Maori MPs have been in cabinet.

The widely held view is that National could encourage a change by nominating several Maoris for safe National seats. Quite a number have run in marginal seats in recent years, but without success. For the election due late this year National has nominated three Maoris for "general" seats, and at least two are thought to have a reasonable chance.

Meanwhile, however, Parliament has adopted a new basis of calculation of the number of Maori seats which might well prolong the present system.

Under the new arrangement, the number of Maori seats at subsequent elections will be calculated on the total Maori population as is the case for the white population, instead of keeping the number fixed at the traditional four Maori seats.

Some population projections suggest that the number of Maori seats might consequently be increased to seven. And on recent voting patterns, all seven would probably go to Labor. Such a strong voting bloc would make Labor reluctant to abandon the system.

However, some analysts maintain that Maoris spread through the "general" seats would exert an equally strong influence, and convert numerous marginal National seats into Labor strongholds.

Under any system of calculation, however, the separate representation arrangement is becoming increasingly an anachronism and is bound to come under heavier criticism the longer it survives.

Five diamonds is a better contract than three notrump, but expert South was in three notrump. He ducked one spade. Sometimes defenders shift suits, but a second spade was led.

He needed a successful club finesse to collect 10 tricks, but, South saw there was a slight extra chance. East just might hold the singleton king of diamonds.

Anyway, South wasn't vulnerable and decided it was worthwhile to play the diamond ace to see what would happen.

He did and East dropped the king. Now South relaxed. He led a second diamond to dummy's 10. East discarded a spade!

West asked, "No diamonds partner?" After a repeated question East produced the jack. It won the trick and since East had exposed a spade he had to lead it South went one down and to make matters really bad the club finesse was on all the time.

Ask the Jacobys

A Toronto reader asks, "What do you think of the Canadian Acol bidding system?"

We haven't space to describe it in full, but it is a sound, freewheeling system that is slightly inferior to standard American. Although our Canadian friends who use it will be likely to disagree.

One interesting feature is the suit two-bid. Two clubs is a forcing catch-all; other two-bids are one-round forces and show strong distributional hands without an inordinate number of high cards. Thus: ♠AKQJ543 ♥AQ32 ♦2 ♣2 would be opened two spades in Canadian Acol. So would many slightly weaker hands.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Vietnamese Finding Toronto Cold Place

TORONTO (CP) — For many Vietnamese refugees coming here, Toronto is a cold and empty place to live.

There is an emptiness of material and spiritual possessions for some of the refugees adjusting to their new life.

"I have lost my ideology," said Tho Nguyen, a refugee living in the city. "I feel a great vacancy within me."

He is among approximately 5,500 Vietnamese who have arrived in Canada. The government has agreed to accept up to 14,000 refugees sponsored by Canadian family members, and up to 3,000 unsponsored ones. About 500 refugees now are in Ontario. More than 4,000 are in Quebec, where most Vietnamese can speak French.

Refugees arrive in Toronto three times a week; Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

After arrival the process of adjustment begins. The rebuilding starts with learning English, learning the details of day-to-day Canadian life and finding work—any work.

At this time last year, Tho Nguyen was a former librarian and retired army lieutenant-colonel. Today he is a $2.50-an-hour security guard working 12-hour, all-night shifts.

The federal government gives Nguyen and his wife $115 a month for rent and $27 a week for food. He said he is looking for more fulfilling work. Other formerly rich Vietnamese also are struggling to survive.

Van Ky Cuong Nguyen owned a private school in Saigon and taught mathematics at the university there. When he applied for a job as a short-order cook in Toronto, he was rejected.

He, his wife and son and daughter sleep on mattresses on the floor of a small, drab apartment. Nguyen said he wants to stop taking money from the government and support his family.

John Munro Asked to Intervene In Atomic Energy Plant Strike

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Striking nuclear engineers at Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) have asked federal Labor Minister John Munro to declare as illegal an AECL lockout scheduled to begin today.

Mr. Munro was asked Sunday in a telegram from the Society of Professional Engineers and Associates (SPEA) to "direct AECL to abide by the labor legislation of Canada."

A copy of the telegram was sent to Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, minister responsible for AECL.

The telegram asks that he and Mr. Munro meet immediately with the SPEA to "restore confidence in collective bargaining and labor legislation" and warns that Canada's nuclear engineering team is in danger of breaking up because of an AECL decision to lock out employees.

An SPEA spokesman said AECL has said the lockout will continue until a settlement is reached.

All SPEA engineers walked out Monday in response to the AECL statement.

The telegram also said that six formal complaints lodged by SPEA against AECL have received "no action."

NDP Says Cornwall PC Candidate Violated Election Finance Law

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a Roman Catholic priest who is the Progressive Conservative candidate in Cornwall riding is the first person to be investigated for allegedly violating Ontario's new election finances law.

It says an official written complaint has been filed with the commission of election contributions and expenses that Rev. Randolph Villeneuve unfairly used newspaper advertisements to his advantage before they are allowed under the new law.

The newspaper quotes Sharon MacCrae, campaign manager for George Samis, NDP candidate who won the riding in a byelection last year, as saying she has filed a written request for an investigation into newspaper advertisements by the PC candidate on Aug. 19 and 20.

The newspaper says the advertisements said "Volunteer for Villeneuve," and in smaller letters, "Help ensure a better future for Cornwall riding."

Under the new law, a candidate or party may not advertise in the news media or on outdoor billboards until the last three weeks of an election campaign.

Those found guilty can be fined, barred from running in the next election or required to give up their seats in the legislature.

Bell's Reduction of Services Leaves Buyers Without Phones

MONTREAL (CP) — A reduction of services by Bell Canada in the region has left some new home buyers here facing delays of at least three months before telephones are installed.

One family which recently moved into a new development on Ile Bizard, north of Montreal, was told it may have to wait until February for service.

A company spokesman said the reductions being made because Bell has not sufficient capital to invest in new equipment.

Last month the Canadian Transport Commission (CTC) granted Bell only half the $2 million in rate increases the company requested.

Dethroned Emperor Dies at 83

ADDIS ABABA (Reuter) — Former emperor Haile Selassie, 83, died in his sleep during the night, Radio Ethiopia announced today.

The announcement said the emperor died of an illness affecting his prostate gland.

The brief radio statement said Selassie, dethroned on Sept. 12, 1974, after a military coup, was found dead by his attendants this morning.

Once praised as Africa's elder statesman, the deposed emperor underwent a prostate operation here two months ago.

Medical reports issued after the operation said he had made a normal recovery but unofficial reports said that in recent months his condition was failing.

The emperor's removal followed a carefully orchestrated campaign aimed at discrediting him as indifferent to the dismal living conditions of most Ethiopians.

He was finally accused in public of having salted away millions of illegally acquired dollars in foreign banks and of having sent abroad tons of gold mined by slave labor.

Crowned emperor on Nov. 2, 1930, Selassie first became internationally prominent after the Italians invaded Ethiopia.

In 1936, after going into exile, he made an impassioned but vain appeal to the League of Nations for help against the Italian occupation of his country.

For the next five years, he was a lonely, embittered figure, living in Bath, England.

In 1940, he rallied Ethiopian partisans and organized their co-operation with British forces fighting the Italians in East Africa. In January, 1941, he returned to Ethiopia, entering Addis Ababa in triumph four months later after the defeat of the Italians.

The first reaction of Ethiopians to Selassie's death was unemotional.

Small knots of mainly older people gathered in the streets to discuss the news but there was no sign of the public mourning which would have marked the event less than a year ago.

Young people, who for years looked forward to his death or overthrow, professed to find today's news scarcely worth talking about.

Rebels Occupy Forces

LISBON (AP) — Portuguese commandos occupied the armed forces' pro-Communist propaganda branch at dawn today on orders of Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, commander of the internal security force.

At the same time, anti-Communists in the northern town of Leiria attacked the offices of three extreme leftist parties and sacked and set fire to the law offices of two Communist sympathizers. No casualties were reported.

The internal security force, known as Copcon, said it occupied the propaganda branch to stop a rebellion. The branch is the army's 5th Division.

The division, closely identified with embattled Premier Vasco Goncalves, was ordered closed Monday night by the all-military Revolutionary Council. This was an apparent gesture of conciliation to military opponents of Goncalves who are reported plotting a coup against him.

Middle East Accord

Peace Now Possible

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger says only "nuances" remain to be resolved in a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement providing for another Israeli pullback in the Sinai Desert.

Kissinger reported "remarkable progress" in the negotiations after his arrival from Jerusalem late Tuesday afternoon to confer with President Anwar Sadat.

Israeli officials said the accord might be signed before the end of the week.

Sadat said after greeting Kissinger that the agreement "is not only good for Egypt and for the Arab world, but it is for the sake of peace . . . for the Arabs and the Israelis."

Sadat repeatedly stressed the importance of peace. He said that under the agreement Egypt would be "regaining our territory, but what we are after is peace."

However, a cautionary note came from Tahsen Bashir, a spokesman for Sadat, who said 10 per cent of the agreement was still to be worked out, and this should not be "lightly dismissed."

Diplomatic sources said the major problem still unresolved was the wording of the clauses covering Egyptian guarantees to limit economic and propaganda warfare against Israel, and the possible linking of the agreement to a similar agreement between Israel and Syria.

The sources added, however, that the pact would be of unlimited duration and would not depend on future Israeli concessions to Syria or Jordan.

Under the agreement, Israel will pull back to the eastern foothills of the strategic Mitla and Gidi passes and will return the Abu Rudeis oilfields.

The passes will be in the new United Nations buffer zone, but Israel and the United States will man a surveillance post on the Egyptian side of the Gidi pass; Israel and Egypt will staff one on the Israeli side, and American personnel will operate four other electronic observation centres to give advance warning of any attack.

Kissinger said he believs the Ford administration can get the approval of Congress to the stationing of about 200 American technicians at electronic surveillance posts in territory to be relinquished by Israel.

"We will consult very carefully with the Congress and our impression is that we can get it through after some serious debate," he said.

Egypt and Israel will pledge not to resort to "the use or threat of force" for a period of more than three years, and Egypt will curb economic, political and propaganda warfare against Israel.

Egypt will allow Israeli cargoes to pass through the Suez canal, and the U.S. will guarantee economic and military aid for Israel.

Leaders at Conference

Leader Tells Smith ANC to Retaliate

SALISBURY (AP) — A black leader warned today that Prime Minister Ian Smith cannot bring peace to Rhodesia by negotiating a political agreement with "the chiefs and a few sellouts."

Bishop Abel Muzorewa, head of the African National Council, delivered his warning in Livingstone, Zambia, after Smith announced collapse of constitutional talks with the ANC.

Smith said he would turn to tribal chiefs and other less militant blacks who would settle for a promise of black majority rule sometime in the future rather than demand black power now.

"If he's going to go to the chiefs and other African groups, we say good luck," said Muzorewa. "We feel that whatever agreement he reaches with the chiefs and a few sellouts will be completely wiped out by the ANC movement because of its causes and strength."

Smith and ANC leaders met most of Monday on the Zambian-Rhodesian border in what was supposed to be the preliminary to negotiations for a new constitution to end the guerrilla war in Rhodesia.

The talks broke down over Smith's demand that further negotiations be held inside Rhodesia and the ANC's demand for immunity from arrest for such exiled militant leaders as Rev. Ndabaningi Sithole.

Argentine Army Alerted To Possible Military Coup

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — All army units were put on full alert early today as a dispute over military participation in the government brought demands from top generals for the resignation of the army chief.

Some navy and air force units and the federal police in Buenos Aires also were alerted for trouble amid rumors of an impending military coup. But the professed goal of the critics of army chief Gen. Alberto Numa Laplane, was to keep the army out of the government, not to take it over.

Feuding Peronist politicians and labor leaders and the leading opposition party closed ranks behind President Isabel Peron in a show of support for "the constitutional process."

It was a surprising boost for the 44-year-old president who only a month ago appeared to be on her way out. But fears of military intervention appeared to have created a facade of unity, for the time being, at least.

Laplane submitted his resignation Tuesday night, but Mrs. Peron rejected it, the government announced.

The army chief called a meeting of his generals this morning in an attempt to patch up their differences, but there were reports that most of the top-ranking commanders refused to attend.

There were no unusual military movements in Buenos Aires, and no reports of any in the interior. The Buenos Aires police reported fire bombs gutted Dodge and Mercedes Benz showrooms in a Buenos Aires suburb, but this presumably was the work of terrorists.

The movement to oust Laplane arose from his continued support of Interior Minister Vicente Damasco, a colonel and the only military man in the cabinet Mrs. Peron named Aug. 11.

Spain Imposes New Law

MADRID (AP) — A new anti-terrorist law went into effect in Spain today imposing an automatic death penalty for those convicted of killing members of the security forces.

The death penalty will also be passed in kidnap cases where the victim is killed or mutilated.

The decree will remain in force for an initial period of two years. It will allow police to conduct searches without warrant and hold suspected terrorists beyond the 72 hours allowed under Spain's bill of rights.

The decree was put into effect starting today and those arrested earlier will not be tried under it.

Bridge Traffic Stopped

By RON HUISER
Staff Reporter

Traffic was slowed crossing the bay bridge Tuesday night, when the power to the bridge was cut off. This forced the bridge to be closed by a hand crank.

A failure in the tranformer was the cause of the inconvience said Neil Britton, spokesman for the Belleville Public Utilities.

Mr. Britton said the customer owned transformer failed as a result of a burned out lead.

Mr. Britton said the power was off for a period about two hours after the call was received.

"One can only speculate if the failure was due to the storm on Monday. It could have been normal wear," said Mr. Britton.

Why Not?

Leslie Musselwhite, a 22-year-old University of Calgary psychology graduate, applied for a job with the city's personnel department, but a bureaucratic blunder placed her application with the fire department, which accepted it. Why not, said Leslie, and she almost became Calgary's first firewoman but for failing the physical requirement to haul a pulley up a three-storey building. (CP Photo)

Boycott May Soon Be Over

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House official says a breakthrough may be near on a key issue in the labor boycott of Soviet grain shipments.

At the same time, AFL-CIO President George Meany and Ford administration officials say they will continue negotiations to resolve the controversy.

The White House official said there may be an announcement in the next few days on a settlement between the Soviets and the United States government that would result in more U.S. ships being used to carry the grain.

That in turn would produce more jobs for American seamen—one of the conditions cited by organized labor that would lead to an end of the boycott.

President Ford met Meany and other labor leaders for 90 minutes Tuesday but failed to reach a settlement in the dispute. Meany and White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen later said they expected further talks but none were scheduled.

Meanwhile, U.S. District Judge Owen Cox in Corpus Christi, Tex., said he will rule today on a shipping group's request for an injunction against the International Longshoremen's Association that would bar the longshoremen from refusing to load Soviet-bound grain.

Dockworkers have been loading grain after a temporary restraining order last week ended a brief work stoppage.

Refugees Escape Colony

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuter) — A freighter jammed with up to 800 evacuees from embattled Portuguese Timor steamed for the northern Australian port of Darwin tonight after officials in Lisbon announced that all remaining Portuguese refugees had been evacuated from Dili, the colony's capital.

Timor's Gov. Lemos Pires left the colony with the refugees.

Some of the refugees on the Panamanian-registered MacDili had been seriously wounded in the savage civil war betwen rival nationalist groups on the island.

Radio reports from the MacDili, which is expected to reach Darwin Friday, said Dili was under heavy fire which had killed refugee children, an Australian foreign affairs spokesman in Canberra said.

U.S. Will Supply Escorts

BOSTON (AP) — The Globe says the United States would use its warships to protect tankers loaded with oil for Israel should that Mideast country get caught in an oil embargo again.

The newspaper reported today that U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger has assured Israeli leaders during his current shuttle diplomacy that the U.S. also stands ready to use its own oil stocks to make up the deficit should Israel be the target of any oil embargo.

The Globe quoted sources as saying the pledge to use armed escorts in the event any country tried to interfere with shipments by U.S. oil tankers had precedent during the large-scale U.S. airlift of weapons and ammunition in the October, 1973, Mideast war.

Lockheed Kickbacks Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand, at the request of Transport Minister Jean Marchand asked the RCMP today whether they are investigating possible kickbacks to Canadians by Lockheed Aircraft Corp.

The RCMP said Tuesday it has not launched an investigation as a result of testimony in Washington Monday by Lockheed Chairman D. J. Haughton during a U.S. senate committee hearing.

Mr. Haughton refused to confirm or deny that Air Canada was among the recipients of $22 million in bribes since 1970 to buy Lockheed planes.

Air Canada in late 1971 ordered 10 Lockheed L-1011 jetliners at $18.1 million each and took an option, which expires at the end of this year, on nine more.

Work Nears Final Stage For Marmora Fall Fair

MARMORA — The members of Marmora Agricultural Society are busy this week getting the fairgrounds ready for the Fall Fair here on Labor Day, Sept. 1.

The grandstand show gets underway at approximately one o'clock with the warden of Hastings County, William McCrae, officially opening the fair. He will be joined on the platform by Hastings MP Jack Ellis, Hastings MPP, Clarke Rollins, Reeve Jack Reynolds of Marmora Village and Reeve Ritchie Wells of Marmora and Lake Townships and by Hastings' County Dairy Princess Diane Jarrell. After the opening ceremonies there will be a continuous show on the grandstand with everything from a pie-eating contest for the kids to an old-timers fiddling contest.

The newly roofed arena will house the flower display, baking, fancy work, fruit and vegetables and field crop exhibits, as well as the school section which has had several new categories added.

A special prize is being offered this year by the Marmora Horticultural Society in memory of one of its members, Mrs. Mae Madgett. The prize is an electric clock and will go to the owner of the best begonia at the fair. The entries may be of either tuberous or fibrous varity. A special class has been set up for these entries and there is no entrance fee charge. The contest is open to local residents only.

Outside the arena there will be light horses, heavy horses and ponies performing in their various classes. There will also be cattle exhibits and the Marmora 4H Calf Club will be showing their calves.

Hugh O'Neil cut ribbon [illegible] manger Lyn [illegible] to open Trenton Liberal election headquarters Tuesday.

O'Neil Says Voters Ready for Change

TRENTON Hugh O'Neil, Liberal candidate for Quinte — riding, officially opened up his campaign headquarters for the upcoming provincial election here, Tuesday, with a group of supporters clustered inside the centre at 69 Dundas West.

After the short afternoon ceremony, attended by his Trenton campaign organizer, Gary Birt, and his over-all manager, Lyn Harrington, he met with his advisors to plan his schedule for the coming weeks.

"We have a very difficult fight ahead but this riding deserves top representation," said Mr. O'Neil.

When asked what he believes the main differences are between himself and his strongest opponent Robin Jeffrey the Progressive Conservative candidate, Mr. O'Neil said he could bring a new approach to the riding because he is not structured by years of government service.

"First, I am not really a politician, even though I have been involved in politics and secondly the people are looking for someone new, someone they can talk with."

Six Vie For Title

PICTON — Entries closed Tuesday for the Miss Gold Cup contest to be sponsored Friday night at the Elk's Hall by members of the Picton Kinette Club.

A convenor for the beauty pageant, Kinette Babbs Hards and six Prince Edward County girls have entered the competition to vie for a $100 cash award from Molson's Brewery and numerous other prizes offered by local merchants.

The contestants are Cindy Gorsline, Debbie Crowe, Sharon Clegg, Beverley Brough, Susan Fremr and Bonnie Johnston.

The Miss Gold Cup pageant, scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. Friday during a dance at the Elk's Hall, requires each girl to model an outfit of her choice, a swim suit and an evening gown. She also will be asked to answer a question by contest judges.

This year's judges' panel includes Sue Fraser, Gary Campbell, Mrs. Jon Hand and Picton mayor Donald King. Master of ceremonies for the pageant will be Picton reeve Larry Richardson.

Jeffrey Says Confident Of Success in Trenton

TRENTON — Robin Jeffrey, Progressive Conservative candidate for the Quinte riding invaded the opposition stronghold Tuesday opening her Trenton campaign headquarters and saying she felt no uneasiness about being in her rivals declared home town.

The former Belleville mayor, accompanied by her campaign manager Douglas Whitley arrived for the opening ceremonies at her headquarters at 30 King Street, after three hours of touring Trenton streets meeting townspeople.

"I received a very warm reception form the people encountered, said Mrs. Jeffrey. "The citizens of Trenton know me and my work and know I will represent them well after I am elected."

When questioned about some Trentonians fear and dislike about the idea of uniting with Belleville to form a single city she said she understands their feelings.

"I have no intention of tieing Trenton into a situation with Belleville," she said. "The two cities have different needs and I recognize this."

Mrs. Jeffrey will campaign in Trenton on Tuesdays and Fridays.

Picton Council Could Take Harbor Control

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Town council is investigating the feasibility of assuming control of Picton Harbor says town clerk Andrew Jarvis.

Mr. Jarvis said Tuesday that the ministry of natural resources has been consulted and has indicated its willingness to transfer harbor control to the town.

Before this change can be made the town must prepare a sketch of the area slated for its supervision and a policy statement outlining proposals for harbor control.

Mr. Jarvis said control would be granted to the town but all action would remain subject to approval by the ministry of natural resources.

He added that council is interested in learning the extent of control that may be transferred and wishes to c-operate with Prince Edward Yacht Club in future planning.

The clerk said licences of occupation already obtained for water lots in the harbor cannot be revoked but in areas where there is no licensing unauthorized occupants may be asked to move.

Mr. Jarvis said town council's public works committee expects to meet with representatives of the ministry of natural resources and Prince Edward Yacht Club to discuss harbor control.

The issue was drawn to council's attention in August when commodore of the Prince Edward Cruising Club Harry Smith requested council's approval of his proposal to lease additional water lots in Picton Harbor.

A delegation from Prince Edward Yacht Club told councillors if the request were granted it would create a hazard to navigation in the harbor.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson suggested a study of possible harbor improvements should be studied by council.

Medical Centre Delayed

TRENTON — Construction of a three-storey medical arts centre at King and Elgin streets has been delayed indefinintely, said spokesmen for the project, after the major tenant, Shoppers Drug Mart backed out of the development. No reason was given for the withdrawal.

A search is being conducted for a suitable replacement for the chain store which would have occupied the ground level in the building which would have 10 suites for medical staff, a bio-chemical laboratory and facilties for x-ray equipment.

The project is sheduled to be completed in six months when construction begins but there is no definite date for the start.

Milford Fair Sept. 10

MILFORD — Milford fair, Prince Edward County's only remaining township fair will be held Wednesday, September 10, highlighted by a baby show, flower and vegetable exhibits and a grand opening parade.

Strategy Session

Robin Jeffrey, Progressive Conservative candidate for Quinte riding, discusses campaign plans for the Trenton operation with Paul Tripp after the opening of her headquarters Tuesday. Mrs. Jeffrey will be in attendence in Trenton on Tuesdays and Fridays for the remainder of the campaign.

MacDonald Stays On

PICTON — Hallowell reeve Keith MacDonald who was acclaimed this week as the Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox riding will not step down from municipal politics during his campaign.

Campaign manager Roy Wight said Tuesday that reeve MacDonald would resign from township council only when elected to Queen's Park.

He added that the reeve's duties in his township do not conflict with his campaign activities and there is no need for him to resign the reeveship.

Energy Crisis Will Remain Source of Future Canada-U.S. Friction

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

We haven't heard the last by far about the energy crisis as the major source of present and future friction in United States-Canada relations.

And the hand-shaking and dam opening conducted jointly by the Canadian minister of energy, Donald Macdonald and President Ford at the Libby Dam in Montana is an event recalling both the conflicts of the past over energy policy and efforts to forestall these in the future.

The Libby Dam was part of the intensely controversial U.S.-Canada energy deal which was the head-piece of the former Social Credit administration of free enterpriser W. A. C. Bennett. That deal included U.S. payments to Canada for building three major dams and half the surplus power generated.

The dam resulted in the creation of a 90-mile long lake, 42 miles of which extend back into Canada with resultant shift in the ecology, destruction of wild life, hassles over land compensation.

In all these contexts the opening of Libby, (boycotted by present B.C. cabinet ministers), hearkened back a decade when rising nationalist feeling in Canada claimed we were being sucked into the growing American need for hydro power.

Well, the Canadian energy minister at the Libby Dam opening said there would be no continental energy policy, Canada sharing her energy resources with the U.S. in what the minister called "a comprehensive resource trade package."

This was an about-turn on the past and on the 60s when expansionists like British Columbia's Bennett would have leapt at the prospect of a continental deal, regardless of the possibility of dwindling resources as a result.

On the other hand, Mr. Macdonald did come up with a new proposal in a time when conciliation with the U.S. and its ever-growing needs for energy and no confrontation should be our policy.

The innovative Mr. Macdonald proposed an energy swap with the Americans without categorizing which energy resources or how it would work. In his speech at Libby, he called it a ". . . co-operative, beneficial approach," a better concept than ". . . if the two countries had each gone their separate way."

All these reciprocal public statements notwithstanding, (including President Ford's acceptance of the Canadian view of enlightened self-interest), a major senior diplomatic shuffle by Washington will send a tough economist and oil specialist to Canada as the new U.S. ambassador.

The man is Thomas Enders, at present assistant secretary of state for economic affairs and the state department's author of the tough American oil policy for the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, applicable if OPEC continues to hike world oil prices.

Mr. Enders' appointment, yet to be made by the White House, will be done in tandem with the moving of William Porter, present U.S. ambassador, from Ottawa to Ryadh, capital of Saudi Arabia and the removal of ambassador James Akins from Saudi Arabia and a well-known Arabist back to Washington and an unannounced new post.

All this means the Ford government and presumably Secretary of State Henry Kissinger who likes tough-minded ambassadors in places of crisis for the U.S., will be sending a head of mission to Canada for the express purpose of being tough with the Canadians on energy when and if that is necessary.

Pumper's Plight

The usual source of protests about soaring gasoline prices comes from the consumer, the guy that finds those Sunday drives getting to be more of a luxury than they were a few years ago.

Now some voices of concern closer to the source are being heard.

Take Mr. X. He's a Belleville gas station proprietor. Make that past tense.

He WAS a service station owner until he gave up his franchise last week after seven years in the gas pumping game. He refuses to give his name, he says, because the oil firm from whom he leased his service station still owes him some money.

But he felt so strongly about his predicament — and that of other gas station owners in similar straits — that he paid for an advertisement in this newspaper to show the public how he could lose money while gas prices were skyrocketing.

In 1968, he explains, station lessees paid parent oil firms about 21 cents a gallon before provincial taxes for gasoline in their pumps .This year they are paying about 40 cents, while making — by his estimate — about half a cent less for each gallon sold than seven years ago.

Chief culprit in the plot, says Mr. X, is the self-serve concept in gas selling. Other city service station operators agree. The salary of a single attendant can erase a day's profits, they say.

One says gasoline sales "hardly pay taxes and hydro" at his station. The repair shop end of most service stations is the only bread-and-butter aspect of the business.

Unfortunately for Mr. X and his colleagues, the motorists they serve are only interested in how cheaply they can purchase their gasoline. Many don't worry any longer about having their oil checked or their windshield cleaned.

Surely the big oil companies could foresee the change to self-serve gas bars. Did they not owe it to their lessees to help them either make the transition or suggest they change occupations?

It all points to a fact we have suspected all during the so-called energy crisis: it isn't only Arab oil barons that are squeezing the wells — and the consumers — dry.

You Can't Win!

Pity the poor lottery winner!

His windfall—however large — is expected to transform him into a big tipper or buyer of rounds.

And he is also often the victim of unwanted publicity that can cause him no end of grief.

Take the Belleville man whose name was recently published as one of three local $1,000 Wintario winners.

The day after his name appeared in print, he phoned to complain of the aggravation he had been unwittingly caused.

There were taxis and pizzas and submarine sandwiches showing up at his doorstep all night that he hadn't ordered.

Even winners sometimes just can't win!

The Least We Can Do

The very least this country can do is see that its senior citizens get special privileges when taking advantage of government services.

The paltry fixed income that pensioners find themselves forced to survive on makes just about everything but food and shelter a luxury.

So we all welcome the announcement made in Picton by Community and Social Services Minister Rene Brunelle that special privilege cards will soon be issued by the provincial government to Ontario's senior citizens.

Mr. Brunelle, who revealed the plan at the official opening of the H. J. McFarland Senior Citizens Home, indicated the new cards would provide admission to bearers — either free or at reduced rates — to sundry cultural, historic, and recreational facilities under provincial auspices.

If there is anything unfortunate about Mr. Brunelle's announcement, it is that it had to wait a month before a provincial election to be made.

Liberals Called 'Nixon Party'

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Election notes: Liberals.

It isn't the Liberals, it's the "Nixon party," at least with Premier Davis.

The premier never refers to the Liberals by name, it is always the "Nixon party."

This, of course, is part of the premier's election strategy, in which a major feature is to downgrade the Liberal leader.

The party fell down on its big hope, a strong roster of name candidates.

In the end a great many of its hopefuls, such as former federal ministers Herb Gray and Bob Stanbury, and mayors such as Vic Copps of Hamilton and Philip Cosgrove of Scarborough backed off.

The last opinion polls which showed a severe drop in public support might have been the killing factor.

It has come up with some good candidates, such as Des Newman in Durham West, and some strong and active younger men and women, but it is generally agreed that the PCs have outdone it in enticing flag bearers.

Party prospects in the big-city vote are dubious.

Windsor is the one centre in which it is strong, with some hope in Ottawa. In Toronto and Hamilton it has been showing only spotty strength.

Bob Nixon has been trying to adopt more of a big-city image, but he can't seem to shed the rural aura.

And the party hasn't come across with any policies that will grab big-city folk. Success in the big centres, it appears, will rest with individual candidates.

In the regional and suburban areas the party is in better shape.

A good many farmers aren't happy these days, and Nixon knows how to talk to them.

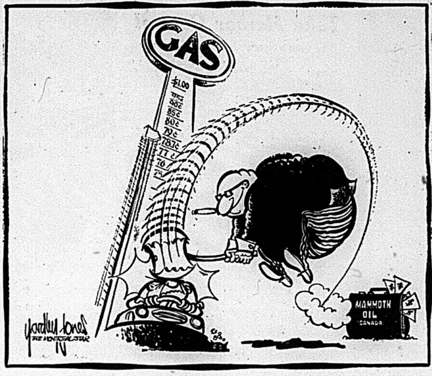
And a good many suburbanites are in areas which have recently been switched to regional government. There is a good deal of resentment against this and Nixon is doing his best to capitalize on it.

Although he has been the one publicly seeking debates, the Liberal leader is considered likely to come off third best in the series of confrontations that the CTV network has scheduled.

Although he has grown more forceful and eloquent, Nixon simply isn't as good a debater as Lewis and Davis, particularly Lewis.

Most notably, he lacks the wit of the other two, again particularly Lewis.

He certainly won't disgrace himself or the party, and may even make some marks, but not the marks the other two probably will.



Bringing Home the Bacon Gets Expensive

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

"Bringing home the bacon" is becoming costlier by the week, with prices rising to new highs every few days.

That makes the latest Food Prices Review Board report all the more timely.

Beryle Plumptre and her researchers have been studying the bacon market in Canada, and their report cites these facts among others:

—Canadians consume more bacon than probably any other nationality (8.3 pounds per capita last year).

—Food retailers put an average (1971-75) mark-up of 25.1 cents on each pound of bacon, although retailing expense is relatively little.

—Retail bacon prices are determined largely by the price and supply of live hogs.

—All bacon is processed identically, and careful consumers can save money by familiarizing themselves with the various specifications used by different processors.

—Many advertised weekly bacon "specials" feature No. 2 bacon. Its wholesale price is normally four to 11 cents less than the wholesale price on No. 1 bacon.

Five major meat-packing companies process bacon on a national basis. About four out of every five pounds are sold under the label of the processor, the rest under retail chains' private brands.

Retail prices have been in an upward trend since 1971, reaching successive new highs at this season in 1973;1974 and currently. Seasonal influences apparently bring about price reductions in October and November.

Hog slaughter in Canada produces an annual domestic supply of nearly 200 million pounds of bacon, compared with last year's consumption of 187 million pounds.

Imports and exports are comparatively minor, although shipments of pork bellies to the United States (mainly) increased to 12.4 million pounds last year from 2.6 million in 1969.

Hog carcasses processed in federally - inspected packing plants are graded, but there are no "official" grades of bacon.

However, says the board report, "No. 1 bacon of the major processing firms does show some degree of uniformity."

There's not much uniformity in retail pricing across Canada, however, the board found in a comparison of weekly price movements during January-June, 1975, at several cities.

Retailers' mark-up averaged 16.4 per cent in Montreal, and more than twice as much—35.2 per cent—in Vancouver. In between were Toronto, averaging 22.4 per cent, and Winnipeg, averaging 25.4 per cent.

The Food Prices Review Board offers this comment on retailers' bacon prices:

"In comparison with the processor's costs, the retailer is involved in relatively little expense, his major costs being those of display and store overhead.

"This situation is in contrast with that for beef, where the majority of the marketing services are provided at the retail level. . . .

"Clearly, at the present time, when retail bacon prices are at record high levels, the retailer should re-assess the mark-up policy on bacon."

Foreign Capital Vital for Expansion

The Financial Post

"It is difficult to imagine a legitimate business venture which would be impeded by the Foreign Investment Review Act's Phase 2, and the whole thrust of the Energy Board's gas report is to stimulate investment in exploration, drilling and a pipeline to Arctic oil and gas fields."

No, it's not an excerpt from a federal government press release. The statement is from an editorial commentary in last week's issue of Barron's, the influential U.S. financial weekly.

The view may of course be seized upon by some of Ottawa's critics as evidence of the fact that the government's policies don't go far enough in protecting Canadian sovereignty. In other words, if the Americans can live with a policy, it must be mad

But for those who recognize that choking off all foreign capital is not in the best interests of this country, it is worth noting the tone of the Barron's commentary. Especially so when considered in light of a November, 1974 editorial in the same paper which reflected that "if it weren't for U.S. enterprise and capital, it's a pretty good bet that Canada would still be a nation of trappers and dirt farmers rather than one which enjoys the second-highest standard of living in the world."

An on-the-spot probe of the present mood of Canadians and the policies of their governments by a Barron's writer has led to a reassesment of what Barron's now calls the "snappish" view expressed last year.

FIRA will restrict somewhat the free flow of investment capital, Barron's says, but Ottawa's guidelines on what type of foreign investment is acceptable give the impression "that the only U.S. business which wouldn't be cordially welcomed to Canada is Murder Inc."

The rules are, in fact, somewhat stiffer than that, but the intent has never been to dry up foreign investment. What is significant about the Barron's commentary is its recognition of this fact

Barron's present view is a refreshing change from some of the ill-informed and slighly paranoid reaction in the U.S. to the federal government's foreign investment policies.

She Supports Highway 2

Editor
The Intelligencer:

I wish to concur with and support Mr. Peter Wilson's objections to the Trenton, Kingston section of Highway No. 2 being bypassed by Ontario's Heritage Highway (page 13, The Intelligencer, 21 August 1975).

I agree that Highway No 33 is more scenic — but what has scenery got to do with our heritage?

Highway No. 2 passes through many historic areas between Trenton and Kingston — and my children can verify that as we have stopped and checked them all out! Highway No. 2 is more scenic than 401 and more direct than No. 33.

Add to that the number of tourists who actually digress to see—or even stop to read—the historic markers along the highway and you finish with a score for No. 33 in the minus column anyway!

Angola Nearing Climax

By KEVIN DOYLE

WASHINGTON (CP)—Overshadowed by a volatile series of events in riot-torn Portugal, the civil war in the West African colony of Angola now seems to be driving towards a bloody climax.

Three rival nationalist movements, struggling to control Angola after it is given its independence by Portugal Nov. 11, have completed their build-up of arms, informed observers say, and an all-out push by at least one of the groups to seize power appears imminent.

U.S. state department officials say the civil war has already reached unprecedented magnitude for the African continent and the possibility of the United Nations playing any effective role in controlling the struggle, as happened in the Congo in the early 1960s, still seems remote.

Both the Soviet Union and China are deeply involved, each providing huge back-up support for two of the rival movements, and neighboring Zaire, formerly the Congo, is virtually part of the struggle, providing a secure base for one of the nationalist states, such as Zambia, are acting as transit points for arms shipments.

State department officials insist there has been no direct U.S. support for any of the groups but some American military equipment supplied to Zaire may have been passed on to one of the groups.

They also declined comment on published reports that South Africa has sent forces into Angola from Southwest Africa, with the pretext of protecting a dam under construction near the border.

As a preliminary step to gaining full control of the oil-rich colony, observers say, the three nationalist groups now are consolidating their grips over three regions of the colony.

In the north, the National Front for the Liberation of Angola, with a secure base in Zaire and strong backing from China, appears to have established a virtually independent government, forcing many of the remaining Portuguese troops out of the area.

The capital, Luanda, is under control of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola and in the south, the weaker, more moderate National Union for the Total Independence of Angola is trying to cement its grip on the colony's second largest city, Nova Lisboa.

Scanty reports from the area indicate the National Front is moving Chinese-built, long-range cannon from Zaire into northern Angola and that Chinese medium-weight tanks are also being moved to the war fronts.

Meanwhile, the Popular Movement has sent some of its members to Eastern Europe for training in the operation of Soviet-made jet fighters and it is this movement, most observers believe, that is likely to move first in the bid for total control.

Adding to the turmoil is the setting up of a secessionist movement in the tiny enclave of Cabinda, traditionally part of Angola but separated from the rest of the colony by the Zaire River.

A group known as the Cabinda Front appears intent on snatching its independence from Luanda as quickly as possible.

This could turn into one of the most dramatic of the struggles now going on in Angola since it is in Cabinda that most of the colony's oil wealth has been found.

The Gulf Oil Co. produces roughly 150,000 barrels of oil a day from offshore wells in Cabinda, bringing the colony more than $400 million in revenue each year.

Price Board Blames Meat Packers For High Consumer Meat Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal food prices review board says Canadian consumers are paying more for their meat because the country has more processing facilities than it can use.

In a report on the meat processing industry, the board said a national average of only 65.1 per cent of the cattle-processing capacity and 53.6 per cent of the hog-processing capacity was used during the 18 months to the end of June.

As a result, the report states that the per-unit cost of meat is so that the per-unit cost of meat is higher because a processing plant's overhead mjust be absorbed by fewer animals.

The report acknowledged that plants must retain some excess capacity, but that on the average facilities did not operate at full capacity even during peak periods.

Ontario was the only area achieving "reasonable levels of capacity utilization" with a level of 76.7 per cent at beef facilities and 80.8 per cent at hog processing facilities.

The worst levels were reported in the West, where British Columbia used only 43.7 per cent of its cattle capacity and 24.6 of its hog potential. Saskatchewan used 43.1 per cent of cattle facilities and Manitoba used 31.9 per cent of its hog capacity.

Other regional utilization figures given by the report on a percentage basis: Atlantic provinces, cattle 51.8 per cent, hogs 49 per cent; Quebec, cattle 65.7, hogs 66.3; Manitoba, cattle 56.3; Saskatchewan hogs 52.3; Alberta, cattle 67.2, hogs 41.9 per cent.

The report was based on a survey of 154 of the 157 meat processing plants subject to federal or provincial, inspection during the period from January, 1974 to June, 1975.

Davis Wants Strict Adherance to Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis called Tuesday for strict enforcement of federal capital punishment laws, but refused to criticize federal commutation practices or say whether he believes in hanging.

"The law is there," he told reporters after addressing the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs. "It should either be enforced or it should be altered."

The speech gave the premier a chance to elaborate on law and order, an issue he calls one of the most important of the Sept. 18 Ontario election campaign.

But he made no direct reference to the controversial capital punishment issue. The police chiefs' association has long favored the death penalty.

Pressed afterward, he refused to go farther than saying that the law should be applied or changed.

The Criminal Code demands the death penalty for killers of on-duty policemen and prison guards, but no one has been hanged since 1962. All death sentences since have been commuted by the federal cabinet.

Anti-Airport Group Claims Marchand Broke His Pledge

TORONTO (CP) — The People or Planes anti-airport group says federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand has broken his pledge that construction work on the Pickering airport site would not start until mid-September.

Isobel Thompson, a spokesman for the group, said earth-moving equipment operated cleared a base at the east end of the 18,000-acre site Tuesday for two trailer offices to house construction personnel.

Transport spokesman Paul Roach said: "This has nothing to do with construction. We're just providing facilities for our federal people."

Mrs. Thompson said: "The government is playing with words—they're removing topsoil as part of the plan to build an airport.

"Marchand has broken his word. He hasn't been able to control his bureaucrats."

Nixon Attacks Integrity

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal Leader Robert Nixon was to bring his campaign back to the Toronto area today, after touring the Niagara Peninsula on Tuesday.

The Liberal leader revived his attacks on the integrity of Premier William Davis's Conservative government Tuesday.

He dwelt at some length on the integrity issue early in the campaign, then dropped it in favor of other topics, including education, government spending and regional government.

But he took it up again Tuesday, saying he was prompted by NDP Leader Stephen Lewis's recent statement that integrity is not an issue in the campaign for the Sept. 18 Ontario election.

'For the life of me I can't see why Stephen Lewis is so worried about this as an issue," Mr. Nixon said. In his effort to make himself appear as sort of a grand old man of Ontario politics, he wants to be a friend of everyone.

Happy days in the kitchen!

Gourmet Macaroni and Cheese

2 cups uncooked macaroni
½ pound Canadian Cheddar cheese, grated
¼ cup butter
¾ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 cup dairy sour cream

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until just tender, about 10 minutes. Drain. In buttered 1½ quart size casserole place one-third of macaroni and one-third of cheese. Dot with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add one-third of sour cream. Repeat until all ingredients are used ending with sour cream. Cover and bake in oven at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

MRS H. R. WEIR
99 Southview Ave.

Sweet and Sour

2¼ cups chicken, ham, or turkey
⅜ cup white vinegar
2 tbsps. light brown sugar
½ cup ketchup
¼ cup water
1 tbsp. cornstarch
½ cup (drained) crushed pineapple
½ tsp. salt

Combine all sauce ingredients in small pot, until well blended: and cook stirring until thick.

Arrange a thick layer of meat or fowl in casserole, and pour sauce over being sure it flows to the bottom of casserole. Bake covered with lid, or foil covering, at 325 degrees, for about 1½ hours.

MAGARET BLAIND
245 West Bridge St

Apple Tart

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
2 tbsp. white sugar
½ cup butter or margarine
1 tbsp. white vinegar
1 cup white sugar
2 tbsps. flour
½ tsp. cinnamon
3 cups coarsely-grated apples

Heat oven to 400 degrees

Combine one cup flour, salt and two tbsps. sugar lightly with a fork. Cut in butter and then blend with a fork until mixture looks like a shortbread dough. Stir in vinegar with a fork.

Put mixture in a layer cake tin and press slightly up the sides with your fingers and pat rest of dough evenly over the bottom of the pan.

Combine one cup sugar, two tbsps. flour, cinnamon and apples and spread evenly over the dough.

Bake one hour. Remove from oven and serve either hot or cold.

MRS. KATHLEEN JONES
99 Lemoine Street

Sally Lunn

¾ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
3 eggs
1 cup milk
2 cups flour
4 tsp. baking powder
¾ tsp. salt

Cream butter and sugar well. Add beaten eggs, and milk alternately with the flour sifted with baking powder and salt. Bake in a greased shallow pan or in muffin tins in hot oven at 425 degrees for 20 minutes.

DOROTHY KELLAR
RR1 Wellington

Scottish Clootie (Cloth Dumpling)

Linen cloth
1½ lbs. cake and pastry flour
8 oz. shredded beef suet
6 oz. currants
6 oz. raisins
6 oz. sultanas
4 oz. sugar
2 tbsps. molasses
½ pint skim milk
2 oz. mixed spice or allspice

Ingredients can be varied by adding a grated carrot and-or apple.

Mix all ingredients in bowl by hand. Wet linen cloth or pillow case in cold water, squeezing out excess water. Flour cloth well, wrapping ingredients into shape of a ball, tie tight. Flouring of cloth is important to give formation of outer skin.

Place in pot of boiling water, enough to cover dumpling, with plate at bottom of pot to prevent sticking. Slow boil for three hours, checking water level. Serve hot with custard, cold as a snack or fried with breakfast.

MRS. G. OSBORNE
Colonial Rd., RR3, Belleville

Hot Cross Buns

4 cups milk
1 cup water
3 pkg. dry yeast
2 tbsps. salt
1½ cups sugar
1 cup shortening
4 eggs
3 cups raisins
grated peel from 2 oranges or ½ cup mixed peel
1 tbsp. cinnamon
14 - 15 cups bread flour

Scald milk, add sugar, salt and raisins. Sprinkle yeast over luke warm water into which tsps. sugar have been dissolved. Let stand 10 min. Add beaten eggs, shortening and yeast to milk mixture which is now lukewarm. Add about 6 cups of flour with cinnamon sifted into it. Turn out on floured board, let dough "rest" for 10 minutes. Knead until smooth. Let rise until double in bulk, about 1½ to 2 hours. Shape into balls, flatten on greased pan. Make a cross on top with scissors or very sharp knife. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk, 1 to 1½ hours. Bake about 15 to 20 minutes in moderately hot oven, 375 to 400 degrees, until golden brown. While still warm, frost the cross with an icing made of confectioner's sugar mixed with water and a little vanilla. These buns freeze well.

MRS. FRED FARRELL
RR1, Marysville

Casserole

1½ lbs. thick round steak
1 large onion
1 large green pepper
2 cups cubed celery
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 tin Chinese noodles
3 cups cooked rice
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 tbsp soya sauce
1 cup grated cheese

Cube round steak, add diced onion and green pepper and brown in butter in frypan. Combine with soups, celery, seasonings, rice and one-half the noodles. Place in large shallow casserole, sprinkle with cheese and the remaining noodles. Bake one hour in 350 degree oven.

MRS. CLARA HOSKIN
612 Sidney St.

Mexican Steak and Potatoes

1 round steak
2 large onions
salt and pepper to taste
3 cups water
28 oz. can tomatoes
flour for paste

Place steak in a roast pan. Sprinkle with salt and pepper; then slice onion all over the top. Add two or three cups water and a 28 oz. can tomatoes. Bake at 350 degrees for ½ to 1 hour or until done. The make a paste with flour and water to thicken gravy.

Serve over boiled potatoes.

GAIL LASHER
RR1, Corbyville

Strawberry Chiffon Freeze

1 cup sugar
2 or 3 egg whites
1 cup crushed strawberries
Graham cracker crumbs

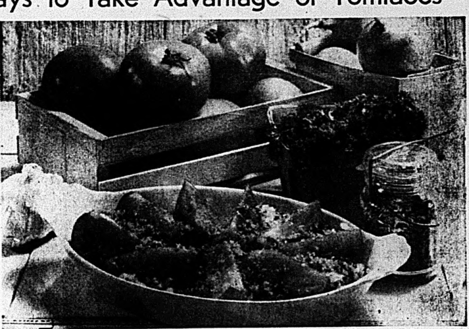
Tasty Ways to Take Advantage of Tomtaoes



Tomato Wedges Provencal — fresh tomatoes sprinkled with savory herbs and baked until tender

Fresh fruits and vegetables are low in calories but high in nutrition. A good example is the tomato. There are only 35 calories in a medium size tomato yet it provides over ¾ of the recommended dietary allowance of Vitamin C for an adult a day, and more than a fourth of the vitamin A.

Here are four basic ways to judge quality in a fresh tomato: color or general appearance; firmness and weight of the fruit in relation to its size; internal appearance of the sliced fruit; and flavor. A tomato can be of good quality whether large or small — size is a mere matter of preference.

Tomato Wedges Provencal

two tbsps. fine dry bread crumbs
¼ cup finely chopped fresh onion
¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
½ clove garlic, minced
two tbsp. butter or margarine, softened
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. dried leaf basil
four tomatoes

In small bowl mix together bread rumbs, onion, parsley, garlic, butter, salt pepper and basil. Cut each tomato into eight wedges. Place in greased shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with herb mixture. Bake in 425 degree oven five to eight minutes or just until tomatoes are tender. Serves four.

Spiced Scalloped Fresh Tomatoes

¼ cup butter or margarine divided
¼ cup chopped fresh onion three cups fresh bread cubes three tbsp. dark brown sugar
one tsp. salt
¼ plus ⅛ tsp. ground cloves, divided
¼ tsp. cinnamon
four tomatoes peled and sliced

In large skillet melt three tbsp. butter add onion and cook until tender, about 5 minutes. Add bread and toast to a light brown color. Stir in brown sugar salt ¼ tsp. cloves and cinnamon. In a greased one-quart casserole place half of bread cube mixture, then a layer of tomatoes repeat with remaining bread cubes and tomatoes. Dot with remaining one tsp. butter and sprinkle with remaining ⅛ tsp. cloves. Bake in 350 degree oven, 30 minutes. Serves four.

Tomatoes Stuffed with Russian Salad six large, firm, ripe tomatoes salt

one can (10-oz.) peas, drained (or mixed peas and carrots)
½ cup diced mild cheddar cheese
¼ cup diced dill pickle
two or three tbsp. mayonnaise black pepper
salad greens
Crisp garlic croutons (optional)

Cut tops from tomatoes. Scoop out and reserve pulp. Sprinkle the inside of the tomato shells with salt, and invert to drain.

Dice and slightly drain the tomato pulp. Combine with the peas, cheese and pickle, and mix gently with mayonnaise to taste. Season with pepper, and with additional salt if needed. Fill the tomato shells and chill. Serve on greens, sprinkling with garlic croutons if desired. Serves 6.

Quick Herbed Tomatoes

two tbsp. regular margarine or butter
¼ cup finely chopped onion four cups peeled tomatoes
one tbsp. brown sugar
¾ tsp. salt
1½ cups herb seasoned croutons

Melt margarine in large saucepan over low heat. Add onion; cook, stirring frequently, until onion is tender but not browned.

Stir in tomatoes, sugar and salt, cutting tomatoes into pieces with a spoon. Cook over medium heat about 10 minutes or until thoroughly heated, stirring occasionally.

Pour hot tomato mixture into individual vegetable dishes. Sprinkle croutons over tomatoes. Serve immediately.

Italian Tomato Meat Sauce

two pounds hamburger or ground chuck
¼ cup butter
two cans (10 oz. each) sliced mushrooms (reserve liquid)
one green pepper, finely chopped 1½ cups chopped onions
two cloves garlic, crushed
7 cups peeled tomatoes two ans (5½ oz. each) tomato paste one tbsp. salt
one tbsp. sugar
2 tsp. dried oregano
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. chili powder
two tsp. dried parsley
one bay leaf
1¼ tsp. basil
one-third cup grated Parmesan cheese
two cans (7½-oz. each) tomato sauce

Saute meat in butter, add mushrooms (drained), green pepper, onion and garlic. Cook until tender. Drain well and discard fat. Add remaining ingredients (including reserved mushroom liquid); simmer uncovered for 1½ hours or until most of the moisture has evaporated. Remove bay leaf before serving.

Makes 13 cups.

May be frozen in portions suitable for one meal for your family.

Gourmet Wild Rice Casserole

* one cup wild rice
¼ tsp. salt
three cups boiling water
½ lb. mushrooms
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup butter
one cup grated old cheddar cheese two and a half cups peeled tomatoes
one tsp. salt
one cup hot water

* Wash one cup wild rice, soak in water overnight and wash again. When ready to use, stir rice into three times the amount of boiling water. Cover and boil 5 minutes. Discard water.

Cook rice in boiling salted water until nearly tender, 30 minutes. Drain rice if necessary. Saute mushrooms and onion in butter. Toss rice with all ingredients. Place in buttered casserole, cover and bake 1 hour at 350 degrees.

NOTE: This may be prepared the day before and baked just before serving. Serve as a vegetable. Makes 6½ cups or 6 to 8 servings.

Piquant Pork

five pound pork butt or 4 to 6 pound shoulder roast or 4 pound boneless loin of pork one tbsp. oil
one package (4 oz.) pepperettes, sliced or 4 oz. pepperoni three medium onions, chopped
two cloves garlic, minced
2½ cups peeled tomatoes
three medium green peppers, cut in thin strips one beef bouillon cube
one tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
two tbsp. flour
¼ cup cold water
½ pint sour cream

Brown roast uncovered on all sides in hot oil in Dutch oven or heavy skillet with cover). Remove roast and set aside. Saute pepperoni, onion and garlic until onion is transparent. Add next five ingredients. Return meat to this mixture and bring mixture to boil. Cover tightly and reduce heat to simmer. Turn meat halfway through cooking.

Remove meat and keep warm. Skim fat off sauce.

Blend flour with ¼ cup cold water until smooth. Add to sauce, stirring constantly until thickened. Add ¾ cup hot sauce to sour cream and mix thoroughly; add to remaining hot sauce. Heat only until sauce is hot (if mixture is boiled sour cream will curdle.) Carve roast and serve accompanied by sauce.

Makes 6 servings roast and 5½ cups sauce.

NOTE: If electric frypan is used, reduce cooking time by 15 minutes.

Egg and Tomato Bake

½ cup chopped onion three tbsp. butter
three tbsp. flour
two tsp. sugar
¾ tsp. salt
dash pepper
three and one half cups peeled tomatoes one small bay leaf
six hard-cooked eggs
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing one tsp. prepared mustard
⅛ tsp. salt
dash pepper
¾ cup fine dry bread crumbs
two tbsp. butter, melted

In a skillet cook onion in butter until tender. Blend in flour, sugar, salt and pepper. Cook roux slowly for one minute. Add tomatoes and bay leaf. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove bay leaf. Pour into 11 x 7½ inch baking dish. To prepare deviled eggs: halve eggs lengthwise, remove yolks and mash. Mix with mayonnaise, mustard, salt and pepper; refill egg whites. Put in dish. Combine crumbs and butter; sprinkle atop. Bake at 425 degrees for 10 minutes or until hot.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Tomato-Macaroni and Cheese

two cups (8 oz.) elbow macaroni one tbsp. grated onion
3 tbsp. butter
¼ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. dry mustard
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup milk
three and a half cups peeled tomatoes
½ pound (2 cups) grated old cheddar cheese
½ to one cup bread crumbs
two tbsp. butter, melted.

Cook macaroni in boiling salted water until tender (8 to 10 minutes). Drain well. Saute onion in butter until transparent. Blend in flour and spices. Cook roux one minute. Remove from heat, gradually add milk, stir. Add tomatoes; cook, stirring until thickened. Stir in grated cheese. Combine with macaroni; place in buttered two quart casserole. Top with crumbs mixed with butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Restaurant Rents Out to Women

RICHMOND, England (CP) — Rent a restaurant by the day, just as you would a car. You run it yourself, provide the food, turn it in at the end of the day for a nominal rental fee and take the profits home with you.

This is the idea behind a new venture in this Surrey town, where Dorothy Collie has organized six young housewives to rent her restaurant one day each week. She calls the restaurant Mrs. Beeton in the 21st Century.

Mrs. Collie owns an attractive craft and gift shop at 58 Hill Rise here where she had a large unused room. With the help of her architect son, she converted the space into a restaurant seating 24 persons.

But Mrs. Collie has no time to run the restaurant herself, so she rents it out, completely furnished and equipped with adjoining kitchen, china and cutlery.

The restaurant is rented to different housewives who operate it as their own business one day a week. Each makes up her own menu, shops, cooks and then serves the food and cleans up afterward.

Mother of two young children, Jean Bradshaw from Teddington, Middlesex, was one of the housewives who launched the restaurant at the end of May.

"I cook at home the day before and do only the last minute things at the restaurant," Mrs. Bradshaw explained.

"I always like to cook and find doing some of our favourite home recipes for other people quite exciting. It's fun to get away from the house for a day and I make some extra money for my work."

Each restaurateur puts her own prices on her food, but tea and coffee are always the same price. The restaurant is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Morning coffee, luncheon and afternoon tea are served.

DOROTHY COLLIE

All this home-cooked food, which varies each day, attracts all the customers the women can handle. The restaurant is fitted out with old church pews which are cushioned in chintz. The small tables are also of old oak. Miscellaneous items for sale from the craft shop, such as original water colors, decorate the walls adding more charm to the unique little dining room. Table mats are handmade in gay colors.

Mrs. Collie thinks her Rent-a-Restaurant project could be copied by groups of housewives in other places. Big advantage is that the overhead is low. Mothers with young children can usually make some arrangements to be away from them for one day a week, so they have a chance for a change which is supposed to be as good as a rest. It is ideal for women who cannot be spared from home to work for longer periods.

Careful Habits Insure Safe Holidays

OTTWA (CP) — Vacations can often be spoiled by mishaps, but a pamphlet put out by the Canada Safety Council suggests how to avoid many common problems.

If you're planning to travel by car, the council advises you to have your vehicle checked and worn parts replaced before they break down and lead to time-consuming, costly repairs that could spoil your trip.

Make sure your spare tire is in good shape and carry a flashlight, flares, first-aid kit, fire extinguisher and tow chain or strap where they are easily reached in case of an emergency.

When loading your car, the council says, distribute the weight evenly to reduce swaying. Take loose objects off the rear window shelf; they may become flying missiles if you stop suddenly.

Also remember that when your car is heavily loaded or towing a trailer you will need more space road to stop or pass.

On long trips take regular rest stops and, if you have been on the road for some time, stop early. The council says most accidents happen between 6 and 9 p.m.

If you stop for refreshment make it coffee, tea or a soft drink. Drinking and driving never mix, the council warns.

When you arrive at your vacation site take it easy with sunbathing. Start with five minutes on each side of your body and work up from there. Remember, you can burn as badly on hazy days as on bright sunny ones.

Use common sense when swimming and never swim alone, or when overtired, overheated or right after eating, the safety council warns. Be aware of water temperature, currents, hidden rocks and other possible dangers.

Children should be watched constantly, the council adds, because water makes them reckless.

If boating is on your holiday agenda, make sure non-swimmers and children always wear lifejackets. Never overload a boat and keep the weight balanced. If the weather looks bad don't go out. Storms and rough water go hand in hand, the council says.

If camping is more to your taste, be careful with fires. Use prepared campfire sites when available; otherwise, dig a shallow pit. Never use gasoline to start or freshen a fire.

The council says it is a good idea to wear long sleeves and pants but, if your skin is exposed to poisonous plants or bushes, wash the exposed area carefully with soap.

Bites from bees, wasps, hornets and other insects can be painful and even fatal for some people. Ice on the bite relieves the pain, but if the swelling is large and persists, get to a doctor.

Avoid hilltops, isolated trees and metal fences during thunderstorms.

If you are caught on open water you should head for shelter immediately.

Moving House Bit by Bit

ELORA, Ont. (CP) — Ray and Betty Smith are literally moving house—board by board.

The Smiths, a young couple living in a rented house just outside this community, are rebuilding a house they bought and took down piece by piece.

Mrs. Smith and her husband were looking for an older home to buy and first spotted the house while on a Saturday afternoon drive last year.

Mr. Smith entered the abandoned house in spite of a keep-out sign posted on a tree.

"It was too good to pass up giving it a look," said Mr. Smith.

A decision to buy the house, estimated to be 130 years old, was made on the spot.

The owner was reluctant to sell but by September the Smiths had their new home—70 miles from where they wanted it.

The couple then started to take down the house and bring it home in a half-ton truck.

In 50 trips, 1,500 pieces were transported and stored in the Smiths' living room and on their porch.

Just about everything came except the kitchen sink.

"There were no tubs, no sinks, no toilets, and no evidence there ever were any," Mrs. Smith said.

Each piece of wood, each door, and each window was tagged with a number and the number recorded on a plan as the house was taken down.

Reconstructing the house will begin soon.

Asked whether he thought he would have any trouble rebuilding the house, Mr. Smith said: "We feel perfectly confident—it's just like a prefab."

Although neither of the Smiths has had any previous experience in house building, they have received advice from an architect and will hire subcontractors to do electrical, plumbing and heating work.

Asked why they had gone to all the trouble of taking down a house, moving it, then rebuilding it, the Smiths said they did it because they had been looking for two years for an old house with character.

"We wanted to live in an old house that had style," Mr. Smith said.

Ann Landers

Naming Child Starts Family Feud

Dear Ann Landers: My cousin Ruth has been trying to get pregnant for five years. Last week she and her husband had an opportunity to adopt a baby boy and were thrilled. They decided to name the child Gerald Ford after our president.

My sister Mary is furious. She is seven months pregnant and has the same last name as this cousin. Mary planned to name HER baby Gerald Ford—or Geraldine, if it's a girl. Cousin Ruth stole the idea from Mary and she admits it.

This has created a terrible family fight like you wouldn't believe. Mary says if cousin Ruth doesn't choose another name she will never allow her to set foot in her house again. Who is right?—Bystander

Dear By: You can't get a trademark on a child's name. Your sister should name her child something else, like maybe Nelson—or Nellie if it's a girl.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to warn your readers against putting too much faith in palm readers, fortune tellers and the like. Such confidence inadvertently caused the death of one of my good friends. He was only 30.

Mr. R. was told by a "professional" soothsayer that he would live to be 72 years old. He believed it and lived dangerously. This young man drove a motorcycle without a helmet at frightening speeds, did mountain climbing without the proper equipment, etc.

He was a good swimmer but did some reckless things—like going out too far in the Pacific Ocean. I warned him a few times but he always said, "I'm going to live to be 72—remember?"

Last week he took one chance too many and was drowned in the Pacific.

This 30-year-old, handsome, bright, vital young man left no will because he thought he had another 42 years left.

I hope you will print this letter as a warning to others.—Sad Friend

Dear Friend: He may have been handsome and vital—but bright he wasn't.

Thanks for the warning. I hope my readers who have been similarly "assured" will take heed.

THE WEIGHTING GAME

Millhaven Inmates Remain in Cells

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The majority of the 300 prisoners in Millhaven institution remained in their cells Tuesday in protest against the segregation of three prisoners, prison officials say.

The prisoners at the maximum-security institution near Kingston began refusing to work last Wednesday in support of three prisoners who took part in an earlier protest.

Twenty-eight persons reported for work Tuesday and 20 reported Monday. Last Thursday and Friday about 10 prisoners reported for work.

Between 150 and 170 prisoners are supposed to work daily in prison shops or at housecleaning and food-serving duties.

A prison spokesman said charges will likely be laid against striking prisoners after they return to work. He said they may be liable for charges of not working and disturbing the order of the prison.

The Whig-Standard quotes a prison source as saying tension between working and non-working prisoners is high and that many prisoners want to work.

High Wage Demands Hurt Canada's Competitiveness

TORONTO (CP) — High wage demands can kill Canada's competitiveness on world markets and with it the country's prosperity, federal Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said Tuesday.

In a speech to directors of the Canadian National Exhibition he urged Canadian labor leaders "to come out four-square" for settlements that would allow Canadian goods to be competitive with those in other countries and use Labor Day "to tell it how it is."

The trade minister said imposition by Canadian unions of a higher cost structure on their firms is comparable to a theoretical placement by other countries of a surcharge on Canadian goods.

The action is "just as disastrous . . . such actions can export Canadian jobs to other countries."

Mr. Gillespie urged Canadian unions to display "the kind of responsibility" that unions in the United States, Germany and Japan have shown.

Unions in those countries which lead the industrial world are aware that their position can be maintained only through a cost structure that is internationally competitive, he said.

"These unions have shown restraint . . . they have shown responsibility. Above all, they have shown a remarkable degree of self-discipline."

Lie Detectors Used by Police For Crime Work

TORONTO (CP) — Lie detectors are being used more by police as an investigation tool, the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police was told Tuesday by an RCMP officer.

Sgt. Larry Proke of Vancouver, one of nine polygraphists on the federal police force, recommended, however, that use of the instrument be confined to investigations until it becomes more reliable.

He told the police chiefs' annual conference that the main weakness of the polygraph or lie detector is that its accuracy depends entirely on the competence of the operator.

A lie detector measures stress by keeping track of the subject's heartbeat, breathing rate and skin moisture, "so all kinds of emotion look the same on a polygraph chart." Unless the polygraphist is trained well, it is easy to misinterpret the machine's readings.

Rollins Promises Action On Burttdale Complaints

BELLEVILLE — Members of a homeowners committee of the Burttdale Heights subdivision in Trenton and officials of Rollins Construction Co. emerged from a two-hour meeting, Tuesday night, satisfied with the arrangements made to complete warranty repairs on home in the development.

Assuming responsibility for the "gross misunderstanding" that created the problem, Maurice Rollins, president of the company, repeated his July commitment to make almost 95 per cent of repairs requested by the homeowners. The additional complaints are open to inspection and resolution of the problem will be based on agreement of the two parties.

"We planned to make all the one-year inspections and warranty repairs together so we would not have to repeatedly send workmen to the subdivision but they were not all up at the same time," Mr. Rollins said, following the meeting.

"I guess it would have been better if we had notified the homeowners of our intentions by mail and this might have eased the situation," Mr. Rollins said.

Most of the repairs included in the 18-page petition presented to the company came under the warranty, Rollins officials said, and they intended to fix them all along even though there had been the delay.

Mr. Rollins said he was satisfied all the charges of structural faults in the houses were disproved and that all the problems were relatively minor in scope.

Work in the 75-unit Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) development had recently been criticised by NDP provincial leader Stephen Lewis when he visited the subdivision last week at the request of homeowners.

Residents of the community, who said they could not get any response from the builder to repair the problems, stated they were satisfied, for the time being, with arrangements made.

Mr. Rollins will tour the development and inspect the contentious problems with members of the committee and the individual homeowners.

The company has agreed to fix almost all of the complaints .except those dealing with cracks in basement floors, retaining walls and sump pumps.

It was agreed by both parties these repairs would depend on the severity of the condition and the responsibility of the construction company as defined by the builders code and Ontario Housing Corp., sponsors of the HOME program.

After the repairs are completed an inspection is scheduled to be made by OHC officials to ensure the buildings are up to standards set by the agency.

Tax Reduction

Carson McLaughlan (left) Quinte NDP candidate, discusses campaign strategy with Albert Van Reewyk, president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club. Mr. McLaughlan told the club an NDP government would support small businesses by reducing their taxes.

Small Business Tax Breaks NDP Promise

The talents of small business should be encouraged, not stifled, Carson McLauchlan, Quinte NDP candidate said Tuesday.

"Men and women in small businesses aren't in the habit of supporting the NDP. On the whole this has been our fault. We have often been too sweeping in our criticism of business," said Mr. Carson, speaking at a meeting of the Belleville Kiwanis Club.

Most people in small business, he said, think an NDP government would raise their taxes.

An Ontario NDP government, said Mr. Carson, would follow the British Columbia NDP government example of raising taxes to large corporations and reducing tax levies against small business.

He said his party is still interested in government-controlled auto insurance in Ontario but it won't be a major platform this election: "We haven't the money to fight the insurance industry in Ontario."

No one, he said, wants to continue on this "crazy binge of inflation."

"We'll have to bring out a program to restrain prices and wage demands."

Mr. McLauchlan said a guaranteed annual income for those now receiving government also subsidies would be an NDP aim.

"We have our elderly citizens living on a fixed income which is threatened every day by inflation."

Two Held in Stove Theft

SALMON POINT — Two Toronto-area men have been charged with break, enter and theft following the removal of an antique wood stove from a vacant house near here.

Charged are: James Postma, 23, of Weston, and Gerald Postma, 17, of Rexdale.

The stove was reported missing Tuesday from a home owned by Ralph Quaiff of RR 1, Cherry Valley.

A suspect vehicle later was apprehended at the Murray Canal Bridge by Constable Roy O'Neil of the Brighton detachment of the OPP and the stove was recovered.

Value of the stove was estimated at $30.

New Manager Begins Rebuilding Program

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

Some changes are planned by new management at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

The major change will be in the image of the Inn said Henry Goodman, president of the company.

Along with the "up-grading of the physical appearence," a general manager has been hired, Edward Zemits, formerly of the Mount Soudan Hotel in Toronto.

Born in Latvia, 51 years ago, Mr. Zemits has been working the hotel field for over 25 years starting his training in Germany.

Coming to Canada in the early 1950s, Mr. Zemits managed several hotels and later taught at the British Columbia University of Technology in Port Alberni, B.C. for three years.

This is not the first experience Mr. Zemits has had with Belleville. He was once manager of the Hotel Quinte during the 1960s, responsible for the Tropicania Room, when it was a dining room.

Most recently, Mr. Zemits was the general manager of the Mount Soudan Apartment Hotel in Toronto.

During that time one of Mr. Zemits' guest was the Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife, Margaret.

"He was a very fine gentleman," said Mr. Zemits.

"I asked Mrs. Trudeau if she would mind giving me her autograph, and she replied politely, 'My husband does the autographs,'" said the new manager.

One of the tasks at the Sun Valley Motor Inn will be greeting of guests in the dining area.

The basic menu for the Inn will not change but the Inn image will, said Mr. Goodman.

"Everything will be based upon Sun Valley hospitality, which is our new motto," said Mr. Goodman.

Starting as soon as possible, Mr. Zemits said he will conduct a training program for the Inn's employees, for the new image changes.

"The existing staff is loyal and I hope will continue to be so," said Mr. Goodman.

"Now is the toughest part, to settle the hotel. It will take three to six months before this is really under control," said Mr. Zemits.

The president of the company Mr. Goodman said the main objective is "provide the best service possible to travellers and to the Belleville people."

The Sun Valley Motor Inn has 110 rooms and about 76 employees.

"We're not planning any expansion as yet. It depends on the trend of the market. We will expand if we feel there is a need," said Mr. Goodman.

Sun Valley Has New Owner

A former advertising executive with Kert Advertising in Toronto, Henry Goodman is the new owner and president of the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

As president, the first thing Mr. Goodman said he did was to hire general manager Edward Zemits to handle the Inn.

For over six years with the advertising firm, Mr. Goodman was assistant to the vice-president, in charge of account supervising.

The 31-year-old businessman was born in Kingston and received his education in Toronto.

"I see a great challenge at the hotel. It is in a prime location and has possible growth," said Mr. Goodman.

Mr. Goodman said he wants to change the image of the Inn through three different phases.

"We're phase one right now with the up-grading of the physical appearance."

Phase two will be the renovation of the hotel, with a later phase the remodeling and training of the staff members, said Mr. Goodman.

An artist and professional potter, Mr. Goodman is married and has two children.

The new owner said he is not planning to move to Belleville but will be in the area frequently once the new head office is located in the city,

Agreement at Last

John Rittwage, chairman of the Burttdale Heights subdivision homeowners committee shakes hands with Maurice Rollins, builder of the development following the completion of a two-hour meeting. Agreement was reached on the resolution of 95 per cent of the homeowners complaints at the subdivision with the rest of the problems to be discussed on the site with Mr. Rollins and the individual tenants.

Budget Cuts Hurt Bell Class

Jim Phillips, Administrator of Bell Canada's Training school here, says recent cuts in the company's budget, will mean a reduction of enrollment at the school held at the Four Seasons Hotel.

"There will be less students attending, probably less than last year," said Mr. Phillips.

As yet Mr. Phillips said he knows of no cut in the number of instructors.

The teachers will be working on updating courses, said the administrator. "It is hard to say if the reduction will effect any new development."

Student reduction will be made by the field supervisor. It will be his decision who will need the training immediately, and who can afford to wait, said Mr. Phillips.

The no hire policy will be effecting the entire company, and employees of the company retiring will not be replaced, said the administrator.

The local school, the largest training centre for Bell, said it does not know exactly how the curtailment of funds will effect them.

"We'll have more information in a couple of weeks," said Mr. Phillips.

Mr. Phillips said he has not received any comment from the Four Seasons about the situation but added the hotel has done," an excellent job filling the rooms we're not using."

Liberal Advertisement Draws Complaints from NDP Official

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The New Democratic Party in Quinte riding has started action today which might put the Quinte Liberals in legal hot water.

Ian Reilly, NDP chief financial officer, said Tuesday a registered letter was sent to the provincial Election Expenses Commission early today asking "for leave to prosecute Hugh O'Neil, the Liberal candidate in Quinte, for violation of the advertising provisions of the new Election Expenses Act."

Mr. Reilly said the NDP charge O'Neil contravened the act in an advertisement in today's edition of The Advertiser, a weekly Belleville advertising publication.

He pointed out the advertisement says the Liberals will assist the electorate with proxy votes, enumeration and voter information but adds that a phrase reading "or if you want to help us" is a violation of the act.

The act says neither a candidate nor a political party can be promoted prior to a 21-day period which begins 22 days before polling day.

The 21-day period begins today but Mr. Reilly said copies of The Advertiser were distributed around Belleville Tuesday.

"The point is, it's already distributed to the public today," he said. "We've got at least three copies here (headquarters)."

Mr. O'Neil said Tuesday he is "not a bit" worried about the NDP action. "He (Reilly) will just have to file his complaint," he remarked.

Mr. O'Neil said the advertisement is a sample sent to all Liberal candidates by provincial headquarters. He said, "we've checked it out very carefully" with party legal experts and they have assured him there should be no problem.

Mr. O'Neil commented, "we'd just as soon he (Reilly) fought us at the polls and not make excuses."

If found guilty, violators of the act can be prevented from running in the next election or if elected, can lose their seats.

Book Sheds Light On Pioneer Life

Kingston historian Dr. H.C. Burleigh has compiled a book "belonging to yesterday."

Samuel Sherwood's Account Book 1785-1810, now available at Hastings County Museum, traces the life of an early settler who lived in Sandhurst and later was one of Belleville's pioneers.

Dr. Burleigh said the original on which his book is based is probably the oldest known Canadian account.

Dr. Burleigh made a copy of Sherwood's original account when he borrowed it from a friend many years ago. The friend had borrowed it from a Brighton family.

Last summer he went to Brighton to find the owner to enquire about getting the book published. Neither the owner nor the account could be found.

"I decided the book was yesterday and belong to the public."

The account made by Sherwood begins in 1795 when he opened business at Sandhurst about six miles west of Bath.

Sherwood, a Loyalist soldier, had left Connecticut after the Revolutionary War. He was sixth generation American.

He was probably the first merchant on the Upper Bay of Quinte.

"He soon became involved in almost all mercantile possibilities available to him," said Dr. Burleigh.

In 1791 Sherwood moved to Belleville to start another business. Dr. Burleigh said he had a parcel of land in the east section of the city near where Hastings County Museum is today.

While in Belleville he was captain of the militia and a justic of the Peace. He died in 1824.

"It (the book) gives you an idea of how the people in those days survived," said Dr. Burleigh.

"Those people certainly didn't have any pleasure trying to live."

He said although historians have to do a lot of "reading between the lines and a lot of assuming" persons can get knowledge from the account about how Belleville began and how the area was settled.

Dr. Burleigh graduated as a doctor of medicine from Queen's University in 1926. He said he has been interested in history since he was a boy.

Four Hurt in Crash

ROSSMORE — Four persons were admitted to Belleville General Hospital Tuesday night following a two-car collision at the intersection of Highway 14 and Rossmore Road.

James Jeffery, 23, of Barrie, received a broken wrist and his passenger, Robert Quinn, 25, of Belleville, was treated for a broken arm.

In hospital with undetermined injuries are Conrad Thompson, 23, and his passenger, Katherine Campoli, 18, both of Belleville.

Constable Don Watt community services officer for Picton OPP, said the collision occurred when the Thompson vehicle turned left onto the Highway and was in collision with the Jeffery car which was southbound.

Damage to the Jeffery vehicle was estimated at $2,000 and damage to the Thompson car at $1,000.

Car Clips Fence

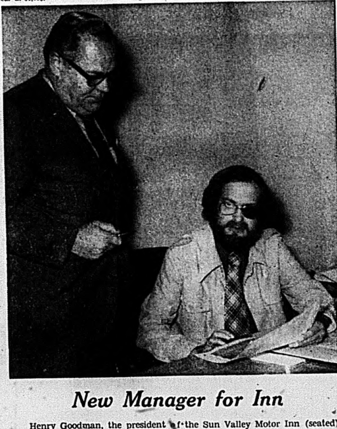
DOXSEE'S CORNERS — A Belleville woman escaped serious injury Tuesday when her car left County Road 4 near here and struck a fence.

Helen Watkin, 25, was treated for cuts and bruises at the accident scene. No estimate of damage is available. Doxsee's Corners is about four miles north of Picton.

Driver Injured

PICTON — A Prince Edward County motorist received cuts and bruises Tuesday night when his car left County Road 4 near Talbot Street, causing an estimated $1,000 damage.

Geoffrey Struthers 16, of RR 4, Picton, was northbound when his car left the road and entered the ditch, striking a tree.



New Manager for Inn

Henry Goodman, the president of the Sun Valley Motor Inn (seated) welcomes Edward Zemits to the position of general manager. Mr. Zemits has been in the hotel busness since 1950 and has worked as a teacher in British Columbia, and most recently as general manager at the Mount Soudan Hotel in Toronto, where he has received such notable guests as Prime Minister Trudeau.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: We want to take our children on a nice, relaxing trip in New York State and maybe do some camping and fishing. Could you suggest a suitable route for us? — Mr. J. D., Belleville, Ont.

ANSWER: Take Highway 401 to Ivy Lea Bridge, Interstate 81 to Watertown, N.Y., Highway 3 east, which winds through the vast Adirondack mountains to Tupper Lake where you can stop and swim, fish, rent boats and camp on Big Tupper Lake. Turn south at Tupper Lake and take Highway 30 for 35 miles to Long Lake and Blue Mountain Lake. A few miles south of here is the Adirondack Museum, open June 15-October 15, depicting man's life in the fabled mountains. Then continue 40 miles on route 30 to Speculator, where there are many good campsites, fishing and boating. South on route 30 you come to Sacandaga on Great Sacandaga Lake. This is a lovely unspoiled area and not too crowded by tourists. From here turn east on route 4 and 9N to Lake George, a beautiful jewel of a lake surrounded by mountains and one of New York state's more popular resorts. Take a cruise on Lake George. The Lake George Steamboat Co., offers daily trips at 10.30 a.m. round fare $5.50. Gaslight Village is half a mile south, on route 9. It features an exciting gay nineties entertainment. Storytown U.S.A. is on route 9, four miles south of Lake George, and offers more than 30 storybook settings with live characters and animals. Fantasy ride section has 18 exciting rides for children.

Ghost-town recreates a mining town highlighted by stage shows. Take route 9N north from Lake George to Ticonderoga. This scenic drive extends through lovely scenery along the shore of Lake George for 40 miles. Here is Fort Ticonderoga, a great fortress and military museum with an extensive display of firearms of every description used during the French and Indian Revolutionary wars. This should appeal to the men in the family.

There are good campsites here where you can rent boats and fish. From here we continue north to Keene and Upper Jay. Here we have the Land of Make Believe — a colorful child-scale village of fairytale houses and an early western town.

Whiteface Mountain is about 10 miles north on route 86. There they have chair lifts to carry tourists to the summit of Whiteface Mountain, a height of 4,867 feet, where you can get a tremendous panoramic view of mountains and lakes for 100 miles. Santa's Workshop is a few miles west on 431 at the North Pole. Here we can see Santa and his helpers at work.

Ausable Chasm east of there on 9N and 373 has interesting scenery along a beautiful gorge pouring with waterfalls. Its rock walls rise almost vertically to a height of 200 feet. A pathway leading through the gorge is protected by iron railings and offers a pleasant walk, but the best way to see the downstream section is by boat. For part of the trip, the current is swift and the boat passes through rapids, occasionally striking rocks which are not dangerous but give passengers a mild thrill.

On the way home follow route 86 to Lake Placid and Saranac Lake, both famous all-year resorts with lovely campgrounds. From there take route 3 west to Watertown, N.Y. by-passing it on 342, then Interstate 81 to Ivy Lea Bridge and 401 and home.

If you are a member of the Ontario Motor League you may obtain free maps, motel and camping books free of charge at our offices, 162 Front Street, Belleville.

We're out to get you...

...on the Ontario list of voters.

Who are we? We're the Ontario Returning Officers and our job is to make it as easy as possible, for everyone who is qualified, to vote. By now you should have been enumerated and have in your possession your proof of enumeration, Form 103. If not, and you are qualified or will be at the time of voting, you still have time to get on the list of voters. A qualified voter is a Canadian citizen or British subject, 18 years of age or over, who has lived in Ontario for twelve months preceding Election Day, September 18.

So if you live in an urban area and haven't been enumerated, simply fill in the coupon in this ad or give us a call at your Electoral District number shown and we'll make arrangements to get you on the list.

Remember, a new list is compiled for each election, so even if you have voted before, you must be included on the new list of voters in order to vote in the forthcoming Ontario Election. Deadline for changes or additions to the list is Wednesday, September 10 at 9.00 p.m. EDT.

If you are a qualified urban voter and haven't been enumerated, please fill in and mail the coupon or give us a call at the appropriate number and we'll make arrangements to get you on the list of voters.

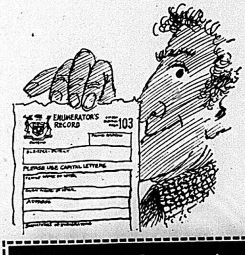
Rural Residents

If you live in a rural area, and are qualified to vote, it's much easier if your name is on the list of voters. And there's still time to get on that list. However, qualified rural voters, not on the list by Election Day, may still vote by having a friend or neighbour on the same list "vouch" for them on oath.



Proxy Voting

If you are a qualified voter, and enumerated, but will be absent from your polling subdivision and unable to vote at the regular or advance polls because:
a) you are employed in long distance transportation;
b) you are a member of the Canadian forces on active duty;
c) you are away attending an educational institution;
or, you are physically handicapped and unable to attend a polling place, you may vote by proxy in your Electoral District.
If you wish to vote by proxy, contact your Returning Officer whose number is on your proof of enumeration, Form 103.

FAST
SEAT BELTS

Please mail this form to arrive well before the deadline, September 10.

If you have not contacted our office by phone, please complete this form and mail it to the address shown for your Electoral District.

I want to get on the list of voters. I am, or will be at the time of voting, 18 years of age or over, a Canadian citizen or other British subject, and a resident in Ontario for the past 12 months.

Radar Spots Insects

Dr. Glen Schaefer, formerly of Kitchener, Ont., can spot an insect two miles away and can tell whether it's male or female. He manages his insect spotting with the use of radar and by measuring the speed of the wingbeat, tells the difference between a male and a female. Dr. Schaefer (right) checks a tree with his father, Willard, in the family's backyard in Kitchener. (CP Photo)

From Two Miles Away He Tells Insect's Sex

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Glen Schaefer can spot an insect two miles away and can even tell its sex.

Dr. Schaefer, who established an international reputation as a nuclear scientist before he was 30, manages his insect spotting with the use of radar.

His research now is establishing him in a second career and has brought an entirely different perspective to projects involving pests that range from the African locusts to the spruce budworm in New Brunswick forests.

Dr. Schaefer's work is providing new clues as to why persistent and expensive annual pesticide attacks have failed to bring the spruce budworm under control. Part of the answer is that the insects travel much faster and farther than biologists had thought.

Dr. Schaefer pinpointed their range by radar-tracking equipment and he thinks the insects should be attacked in flight rather than on the ground.

He calculated the pesticide could be laid down, much like a fish net, in the path of the horde of insects. The idea was tried this year in New Brunswick but full results are not yet known.

Dr. Schaefer's practical research with insects is the result of his curiosity to find out how birds managed to migrate the 2,000 miles across the Mediterranean Sea.

His radar approach to tracing the migration of birds proved so successful that within a few months he was offered a number of research projects.

By the early 1960s he was travelling to international scientific conferences to discuss birds instead of the mathematical equations he developed and which today form the basis for the development of many nuclear reactors.

Locusts were the first of the insects he tackled beginning in 1968.

Dr. Schaefer learned they can travel up to 400 miles a night, riding the strong push of a jetstream at high altitudes. Before his research, scientists thought locusts travelled only short distances into the wind.

More important, Dr. Schaefer found that high-altitude winds tended to converge and sweep locusts into a mass, often as long as 100 miles in a front that would be one mile deep and one mile wide.

His radar-tracking research could spot a locust as far as two miles away, and by measuring the speed of the wing beat he could tell the difference between a male and a female.

Dr. Schaefer, a native of Kitchener, now works out of the Cranfield Institute of Technology in Cranfield, England. He talked about his work during an interview while visiting his home town.

He and his team of eight scientists tried flying their radar sets in planes this year, aiming the equipment groundward to follow the flight of moths. Dr. Schaefer said the experiment appears to have worked well.

As part of their project, the team has developed new and more sensitive radar sets which put their equipment into the forefront of radar research.

Within five years, Dr. Schaefer said he may leave his insect research and plunge into metaphysics—another hobby which has taken hold of his curiosity.

CAN DIRECT DIAL

LONDON (CP) — Britain's 20 million telephone subscribers now can dial more than 220 million numbers in 24 countries. Seven out of every 10 international calls from the United Kingdom now are dialled by the caller. The post office says in its annual report that equipment installed last year for Britain's international telecommunications increased the country's capacity for handling overseas calls by 60 per cent.

FRANKFURT (AP) — West German car production dropped 42.3 per cent in July compared with June, an industry federation reported Tuesday.

Reports Net Income

MONTREAL (CP) — The Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Ltd. said Tuesday its net income for the year ended June 30 was $1,375,994 or $1.43 a share compared with $1,463,179 or $1.52 a share for the previous fiscal year.

Motion Repealed

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP) — A motion that was passed unanimously by Orillia city council Monday prohibiting the publication of the council agenda until the commencement of the council meeting, was repealed by council later the same evening.

Close In Protest

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — St. Regis Mohawk Band Council closed its office on Cornwall Island Tuesday in protest over what the council called gross interference from the federal department of Indian affairs.

Energy Hearings Begin

OTTAWA (CP) — National Energy Board hearings began Tuesday on a rate increase application from TransCanada Pipelines Ltd. seeking raises averaging 90 cents per thousand cubic feet in the wholesale price of natural gas delivered to Ontario and Quebec.

Mother Sues City

NEW YORK (AP) — The city is being sued for $2 million by the mother of a 14-year-old Bronx youth who was shot and killed by a transit policeman last week after a dispute in a subway station. Robert Garvin was shot in the incident, during which police said he pulled a knife.

Will Smash Blockade

THE HAGUE (Reuter) — The Dutch government said Tuesday that police and the navy will smash a blockade by protesting barge skippers if they do not end it voluntarily.

Man Hits Jackpot

LAS VEGAS, Nevada (Reuter) — The world's largest slot machine payoff—$152,683—has gone to a 25-year-old Las Vegas man who collected the record jackpot from a slot machine in the MGM Grand Hotel.

Lungs Checked

TORONTO (CP) — Families of 550 asbestos workers at the Canadian Johns-Manville plant in West Hill, Ont., will take part in a three-month study by the Ontario ministry of health on asbestos-related diseases, including cancer. Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said last month that 69 workers at the plant have developed asbestosis, a lung disease.

Body Parlors Limited

TORONTO (CP) — A law to limit to 25 the number of body-rub parlors in Toronto was approved Tuesday by city council. The law will also require $3,000 licence fees for owners of the parlors and imposes fines ranging from $50 to $1,000 for violations.

Grand Jury Will Hear 70 Witnesses Into Hoffa Case

DETROIT (AP) — A federal grand jury will hear from 70 witnesses beginning next Tuesday as prosecutors step up efforts to learn the fate of former Teamsters union president Jimmy Hoffa.

Among the early witnesses will be Hoffa's foster son, Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien, a union organizer whom sources describe as a key figure in the probe of Hoffa's mysterious disappearance July 30.

United States Attorney Ralph Guy said Tuesday his office has no information about Hoffa not already gathered by the FBI during a three-week nationwide hunt for the 62-year-old former union boss.

Hoffa vanished without a trace after leaving his home for a reported meeting at a fashionable suburban restaurant with Detroit Mafia figure Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone.

Robert Ozer, who heads the U.S. Attorney's organized crime strike force here, would not disclose the names of others the government will call, but said no members of Hoffa's immediate family have been subpoenaed.

Sources say Giacalone is among those subpoenaed. Giacalone has denied he arranged to meet Hoffa on the day Hoffa vanished.

Labor Outlook Bleak in North

THUNDER BAY (CP) — The labor outlook in the northwestern Ontario pulp and paper industry is bleak. Conciliation attempts have broken down at all mills where contract negotiations have not been completed.

At this point, only 500 of more than 5,000 paper workers in the area have settled.

Another 400 have an interim agreement; 930 already are on strike with 300 laid off as a result; 1,300 are in a legal position to strike Aug. 27 and another 1,800 are awaiting a "no board" report which will allow them to go on strike 16 days after it is released.

A "no board" report puts the official stamp of failure on a conciliation attempt.

The only mill with a settled contract is American Can at Marathon, where 500 members of the United Paperworkers International Union reached agreement last April.

Another 400 UPIU members at the Kimberly-Clark mill in Terrace Bay signed an interim agreement which will keep them on the job until a final contract is worked out.

The Canadian Paperworkers Union closed down three Abitibi Paper Co. mills, with 930 members in Thunder Bay, in the second week of July. The strike brought layoffs to 300 UPIU members.

Lewis Challenges Davis on Land

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Ontario NDP Leader Stephen Lewis challenged Premier William Davis on Tuesday to save more than 2,000 acres of prime agricultural land from development.

Mr. Lewis, campaigning for the Sept. 18 Ontario election, said he expected a decision from the Ontario government within the next 10 days on whether the regional government of Niagara will be allowed to set aside more than 2,200 acres of prime farmland around St. Catharines for future population growth.

Mr. Lewis produced figures which he said show it is a waste to set aside that much land for future growth in the region before 1991 and that only a maximum of 317 acres actually is needed.

The NDP leader has said that if his party is elected, it would build 116,000 new housing units a year for the next 10 years without touching prime farmland.

He said that since a provincial study in 1966 urging the preservation of farmland in the Niagara area, more than 32,000 acres of prime agricultural land have gone out of production. He has said earlier that, across the province, farmland is going out of production at the rate of 26 acres per hour.

Mr. Lewis said that by reducing density and by using proper population projections, the Niagara regional government could build adequate housing without using valuable farmland.'

Alberta Issues $75 Million In Energy Company Shares

CALGARY (CP)—Alberta Energy Co. (AEC) plans to issue up to $75 million in shares to the public "some time this fall," says AEC president David Mitchell.

Mr. Mitchell said Albertans will be given preference to own equity in the company which is currently government-owned, but not a crown corporation.

AEC was established by the province in 1973 to provide Albertans and other Canadians an opportunity to invest in energy and related development, primarily in Alberta.

Quebec Labor Dispute Ends, Workers Take Premier's Offer

MONTREAL (CP) — About 700 production workers at Pratt and Whitney of Canada Ltd. voted Tuesday by a three-to-one margin to accept proposals by Premier Robert Bourassa and return to work, bringing to an end one of Quebec's most bitter labor disputes.

Company officials and members of Local 510, United Auto Workers (UAW), were scheduled to sign a collective agreement today. The workers have been off the job since Jan. 7, 1974.

Under the terms of the agreement, the company will rehire 60 workers next Tuesday and an average of 40 more a week for another 11 weeks.

Another 200 workers are scheduled to be rehired by February, 1976.

The workers will also receive a 34-per-cent wage increase over the next three years. An original union demand that the company institute mandatory dues checkoffs for workers not in the union has been dropped.

But UAW Quebec Director Robert Dean said he expects the government will deliver promised legislation that will amend the labor code to make checkoffs mandatory for all workers employed at unionized firms.

Sound Repels Sharks

SYDNEY (CP) — A 40-year-old Australian marine researcher has come up with a device he claims repells five species of man-eating sharks.

Theo Brown says his device, working on the simple principle of transmitting sound frequencies which sharks find incompatible, can drive the man-eaters away from areas attractive to them. It can even force them from areas where they usually live.

Though the general concept of using sonic transmissions to repel or attract marine life has been used in many parts of the world for some time, the effect has always been temporary because of the ability of sharks and fish to become conditioned to specific sound.

Now, after 14 years of research and several dangerous sharks, Brown has overcome this last remaining obstacle.

In January, he solved the problem by carefully modifying the sonic signal patterns in such a way that it became impossible for marine life to become conditioned to them.

Brown is confident that he can establish a "sonic barrier" along a beach or harbor inlet which will keep sharks away permanently. He said the device had successfully repelled common whaler, tiger, hammerhead, bronze whaler and grey nurse sharks.

He is continuing experiments to assess the effectiveness of the device against eight other reputed or known man-eaters.

Brown said that during short-term tests, sharks had been driven from areas deliberately made attractive by sonic transmission, smells or chopped meat and fish.

Though he had perfected basic sonic devices to attract or repel marine life by 1968, he had been plagued by the problem of conditioning.

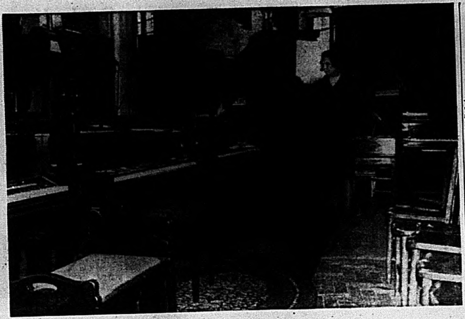
"After repeated experiments in the same locality with the same sharks, there was always a breakdown in the response when the sharks started to become conditioned to the sonic transmissions," Brown said.

It had been possible to clear beach waters of sharks within 30 minutes using a sonic repellent, but the effect was never permanent. It was impossible to create a sonic barrier because sharks would swim through when they became conditioned to the signals.

Brown, who has no academic qualifications or formal training, has been working on marine sonics since 1960 when he saw a 13-year-old friend killed by a shark in Middle Harbor, Sydney. He concluded from this attack that sharks were stimulated by splash noises which resemble fish in distress.

He felt there was no reason why sound signals could not be reversed to drive off sharks. His device, using this principle, is made up of high sonic transmissions which transmit sounds through underwater loudspeakers.

Brown is a marine research associate of the Institute of Medical Research of French Polynesia and the World Life Research Institute of Colton, Calif. He is also a consultant of the South Pacific Commission.



Piano Museum

An old church in outer London is the bizarre home of the British Piano Museum, a collection of 200 unusual instruments. Visitors to the museum are usually met by founder and curator, Frank Holland, wearing a tasselled black smoking cap. A Wurlitzer organ is the largest exhibit in the museum and the star attraction for the majority of visitors.

Last Ontario Liberal Premier Was Present Leader's Father

TORONTO (CP) — The last time a Liberal government ruled Ontario, Robert Nixon was 15 years old and his father was premier.

Harry Nixon's three months in office ended in August, 1943, when George Drew led the Progressive Conservatives to the first of nine consecutive election victories that have kept them in power ever since.

Robert Nixon entered the legislature in 1962, winning the Brant constituency in a byelection following his father's death. Elected Liberal leader five years later, he is making his third bid to capture the remainder of his inheritance in the Sept. 18 Ontario election.

His first campaign was promising. In 1967, the Liberals won 27 of the 117 seats in the legislature, the most they had held in the 24 years since his father's defeat.

Four years later, in Premier William Davis's inaugural campaign, they were cut down to 20, one more than the number held by the New Democratic Party.

Since then, a series of byelection victories has boosted Liberal strength to 23 and the NDP has moved up to 20. The four-seat loss left the Conservatives with 74 at dissolution.

A lanky, blonde 47-year-old farmer, who was a high school biology teacher before he entered public life, Mr. Nixon has been both praised and criticized for his low-key, reasonable approach to public debate.

Apparently reacting to the criticism, he opened the current campaign with a declaration that integrity in government is a key issue, sparking a series of vigorous exchanges with the premier.

He also accused Mr. Davis of waging a "phoney war" against the federal government's energy and anti-inflation policies, saying that it is the Conservatives in Toronto rather than the Liberals in Ottawa whose wasteful spending is driving up the cost of living.

Another Nixon campaign plank is his advocacy of a return to strong local government. He has accused the Conservatives of attempting to centralize power at Queen's Park by setting up regional administrations to take over many of the traditional functions of municipalities.

While over-all provincial planning is necessary, he contends, locally - elected officials are better equipped than remote Queen's Park bureaucrats to make decisions on matters affecting their own communities.

For this election, Mr. Nixon's old Brant constituency has become Brant-Oxford-Norfolk, picking up rural territory from the adjacent Brantford riding and nibbling corners off the Oxford constituency to the west.

Church Houses Piano Museum

BRENTFORD, England (CP) — An obscure, dilapidated little church which stands in the shadow of a gasworks in Brentford, a Thameside suburb of London, is temporary home for the British Piano Museum.

This charitable trust houses a rare collection of 200 musical instruments, mainly mechanical, and 20,000 music rolls.

Visitors are met by the founder and curator, Frank Holland, who gives fascinating, musically illustrated lectures lasting some two hours.

Anecdotes, jokes and case histories sprinkle the wealth of technical detail he imparts on the manufacture and workings of the instruments and if some of his audience appear to be losing interest and concentrating on their frozen feet in the less-than-well-heated church, he soon has them on their toes by throwing questions at them, challenging their musical knowledge.

It all started 20 years ago when Holland, then an electrical engineer, bought a Steinway Duo-Art upright reproducing piano in the United States and brought it and 16 cases of music rolls to England.

By chasing up instruments in palaces, private homes, public houses, amusement arcades and fairgrounds, he kept adding to his collection.

At first it was dispersed in garages, halls and vicarages all over the country until Holland was able to get it all together under one roof in an unoccupied church.

And although there is insufficient room to display all the instruments to advantage, the collection has a highly individual charm.

A visitor never knows what will be found hidden between one large instrument and the next, for apart from the major pieces the collection comprises a number of small exhibits—disc boxes, barrel organs and phonographs.

One-armed Man of 72 Polices Quebec Town

NORTH HATLEY, Que. (CP) — Police chief Stanley Meigs stood outside Earl's Grocery Store and challenged three young girls to a tennis match.

He was serious—just as serious as when he hauled them over and scolded them for riding two on a bicycle. That's the way Mr. Meigs operates. He makes sure you realize what you were doing wrong and then starts a conversation as if nothing had happened.

People know Mr. Meigs is the only policeman in this community of 800, a population that triples during the summer. They know he has only one arm and at 72 is past the age when most men retire.

They don't care.

During the past decade he has built a reputation as a dedicated policeman, a tireless worker, and a man who knows when to be forceful and when to show leniency.

Ten years ago, when he started policing the town, 80 miles east of Montreal on Lake Massawippi, there had been dozens of break-ins. There was trouble from beer drinkers in the park.

So far this year there has been only one break-in and rowdy youths are quickly told to move on.

Mr. Meigs works 15 or 16 hours a day, seven days a week, and is on call the rest of the time. During the fall and winter he walks 15 to 20 miles a night through the snow without a flashlight to make certain that none of the more than 250 cottages in his territory has been broken into.

While he is on his nightly rounds, his wife Ethel answers the telephone and listens to police radio. Rarely do they get more than four or five hours of sleep a day.

Mr. Meigs had his right arm amputated when he was nine. Blood poisoning set in after he was pushed through a window during a scuffle at Stanstead College.

But even with his one arm he was a better-than-average hockey and tennis player. When he was 16, he swam the length of Lake Massawippi, more than nine miles.

Mr. Meigs doesn't like talking about himself, and gives the community credit.

"It isn't like the big city here," he says. "As soon as someone sees something suspicious they give me a call."

"Just last week there was a bunch of men from out of town sitting in the park drinking beer and making a lot of noise."

"I went over and told them to stop but a couple of them got up and started towards me, yelling they were going to throw me in the lake.

"Well, some of the young men in town heard the noise and . . . came running. The men who were ready to jump me changed their minds. Maybe I could have handled it myself, but it's nice to know that townfolk are ready to help."

Help hasn't always been there when it was needed. Two years ago he was going into his office when he received a blow on the back of the neck. He was in a coma for a week.

Another time he surprised some youths breaking into a house, only to be smashed over the head with a log.

He rarely carries a gun, but is seldom without his hunting knife.

His knowledge of nature has often helped him. Once he was called to a local hotel because of a rash of thefts from cars.

"I got there and saw these two boys take off. I chased them through the woods in the darkness for two hours before I finally caught them," he said. "I never take a flashlight because thieves would see me coming."

Mr. Meigs, who knows everyone in the community by first names, says trouble usually comes from out-of-town people.

"Some people talk about how bad the teen-agers are. I don't agree. Kids today have all the qualities we ever had and they know a lot more about things."

Mr. Meigs plans to remain police chief "until they want to replace me."

North Hatley Mayor Georges St. Pierre, however, says: "We could never replace him. It would take at least two men to do the job he is doing."

Ethel Meigs, who married Stanley 39 years ago, would like to see her husband quit.

"Night after night there is no sleep for me," she said. "I'm always afraid something is going to happen to him.

"I would like to see him resign but I know he won't."

Jew Who Became Catholic Stresses Primacy of Love

Written for CP
By Peggy Tracy

Karl Stern's new book of essays, Love and Success, must be one of the few literary works of our time without a foreword, a preface or even an introduction. Following the table of contents, divided into five parts, but with no theme headings, the book starts with an essay on literature and psychiatry and ends with one on St. Therese of Lisieux.

Some of the selections are identified as having been given as addresses or appearing as articles as far back as 1952, but on the whole the reader is left to wonder about the basic organization of the book.

Many of the essays have a distinctly religious approach—the author is an Austrian Jew converted to Roman Catholicism. Some deal with psychological subjects—he is also a Freudian psychiatrist. Some deal with music, which seems to be one of his major interests. The title essay, Love and Success, holds that "there is in the very being of God a mysterious antithesis between love on one hand and the polarity of success and failure on the other."

Twin villains of the collective piece seem to be Jansenism and Puritanism, the former bein the Roman Catholic equivalent of the latter; while the hero is the primacy of love. Readers would do well to arm themselves with Latin, German and French dictionaries.

Dr. Stern, who is professor of psychiatry at University of Ottawa and psychiatrist-in-chief at St. Mary's Hospital, Montreal, is also author of The Flight From Women, a study of the feminine principle.

Love and Success, by Karl Stern; 294 pages; $9.95; Doubleday.

Land Expropriated To Extend Swamp

TORONTO (CP)—There is good news for conservationsists in a recent property expropriation. The plans are to annex a swamp and make it a bigger and better one.

Rattray Marsh, near Lake Ontario in suburban Clarkson, just west of Toronto, was taken over by the Credit Valley Conservation Authority which will develop it for wildlife.

It is good news because conservationists have long watched the disappearance of wetlands in southern Ontario.

The wetlands—marshes, swamps, sloughs, bogs, swales, potholes—are the natural breeding grounds of grouse, deer, woodcock, waterfowl, ducks, geese, songbirds, beaver, frogs, fish and a host of other wildlife.

Three years ago 25 acres of Rattray Marsh was established as a wildlife home, but this year a plan was submitted to build a housing development and marina in the area.

Harry Watson, manager of the conservation authority, said that citizen groups, biologists and others did not want the property developed.

"Now we'll put a fairly rigid control on the area to make sure it stays unspoiled," he said.

The newly-acquired land will bring the protected area to 85 acres.

Wildlife in other marshes are not so lucky as those at Rattray. For instance, Second Marsh, 75 acres on the east side of Oshawa, is under threat of absorption into a harbor development.

Throughout the province other wetlands are being drained or filled in for industry, housing, hydro and highway construction.

Al Wainio, a district biologist for the ministry of natural resources at Maple, Ont., is worried that the public is oblivious to the threat to wildlife and their own way of life because marshes can provide insurance against downstream flooding as well.

"If we could maintain more swamps, or marshes, they would hold run-off in the spring or in heavy storms," he said.

Mr. Wainio, with help from wildlife and naturalist groups, continues to lobby for the preservation of wetlands.

Library Corner

A WORD CHILD — By Iris Murdoch

Iris Murdoch's new novel is set in the middle sections of the Civil Service, where a sad bachelor is haunted by an early failure. It opens with such brilliant sparkle, is so full of humor and strangeness and beautiful descriptions of the London Landscape, that the sense of bafflement by the last page is readily forgiven.

THE MONEYCHANGERS — By Arthur Hailey.

How Mr. Hailey can tell a story: The Moneychangers is about an American bank, not, one would think, the most entertaining of subjects. But by a skilful mixing of plot and technicalities he has made a story of riveting interest. The brutalities of the short prison and torture scenes are far from pleasant. However, the workings of credit cards, safe deposits, counter transactions and the machinations of big business which cause a stampede on the bank's cash reserves are all woven together with much professionalism. And, of course, there are the rivalries and love affairs to add to the general scene.

THE EBONY TOWER — By John Fowles

Although the stories in The Ebony Tower are mainly of our own time and place, there is a bloom of true romance about them. The author's sensitive use of language, his imaginative interweaving of place and climate and mood, bring a dream-like quality to his permissive girls, the lewd old artist and his group of Trendies picnicking beside a French river. Mr. Fowles uses words beautifully.

KNIGHT'S ACRE — By Norah Lofts

Knight's Acre mixes realism and romance. Sir Geoffrey Tallboys is a professional knight, an honourable but impoverished gentleman earning a living at tournaments and mercenary wars. Leaving his wife in their extravagant, newly built house, he goes off to a small war in Arabic Spain. He is captured and enslaved. The characters in this book are real and endearing.

BERTIE — By Tyler Whittle

This is a gentle novel about Edward VII when he was Prince of Wales. Inevitably Grandmama looms larger than anyone else, but nevertheless the young, rather badly treated boy, who grew into the stout, bearded figure we recognize at once, comes very much to life. So do the rest of his family; perhaps most of all his beautiful wife Alexandra.

THE FAITHFUL SERVANTS — By Margery Sharp

The Faithful Servants is not really a suspense novel, although there are one or two rogues in it. It is a series of incidents in the life of a charitable concern set up in 1860 to assist deserving domestic servants fallen on hard times. Into the offices of its trustees over 100 years comes a procession of such ladies, sad, cheerful, honest or less so, pretty or otherwise. Their stories, together with those of the trustees who sometimes get more involved with them than was intended, make a charming series of vignettes of changing social as well as human relationships.

Canadian French Terms Are Defined

Written for CP
By PEGGY TRACEY

Most French-Canadians speak a language somewhat removed from international French, but until recently this language, a Canadian slang or "joual," was virtually inaccessible to English-Canadians. The word "joual" is a corruption of the French word for horse, "cheval."

Now, thanks to two French professors of Carleton University of Ottawa, a series of books by prominent French-Canadians will have dictionaries to explain the distinctly Canadian terms found in the books.

The series, called Aspects du Quebec, is published by Centre Educatifet Culturel Inc. of Montreal and so far involves only one book—Pleure pas Germaine, written by Claude Jasmin in 1965.

Sinclair Robinson and Donald Smith, the professors tackling the joual-to-English translation, say the book is a perfect beginning for the series because it is a symbolic journey of French-Canadians back to their origins.

It is especially important, they say, because the trip from Montreal to the Gaspe, where people still live a simple life and speak the language of 17th-century France, ends in armed revolution.

Both professors believe a great deal of the book's color would be missed by English-Canadian readers without the five-page English-joual dictionary at the back.

They're negotiating with the publisher of Jacques Godbout's Salut Galarneau, which they hope to make the second book in the series.

This is the story of a young man who owns a hotdog stand just inside the Quebec border and shows his attempts to rationalize many of the issues of contemporary Quebec.

Mr. Robinson and Mr. Smith have also published a handbook of French-Canadian words, giving their English and international equivalents.

Their publisher, Macmillan, recently told them the book is a best-seller in its college division and has sold about 10,000 copies since publication in 1973.

However, there are opponents to the use of joual in print.

"They are divided into two categories," said Donald Smith. "The first are those over 35 who were raised in an aristocratic milieu a la francaise. The others are a certain breed of nationalist who object to any English influence."

Hubert Aquin, a French-Canadian writer who is also a professor at Carleton, says he does not use joual in writing his books because it is a dying language.

"I'd just as soon write in Latin," he says.

Offer Different Advice

PEKING (Reuter) — Two popular sex manuals on sale in Peking offer rather different advice. One, for married couples, gives sophisticated guidance on birth control methods and comes out strongly in favor of male vasectomies. The other, aimed at teen-agers, says masturbation is a bad habit which reduces the revolutionary spirit and can "over-excite" the entire brain.

Stan Smith – On Comeback Trail

Meets New Zealand's Paran

Smith Gets Chance In U.S. Open Event

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Stan Smith, the United States international tennis star in the lae 1960s and early 70s, will attempt a comeback in the U.S. Open championships tonight when he takes on Onny Parun of New Zealand.

It will mark the first under-the-lights match in the 94-year history of the tournament.

Smih, 28, winner at Forest Hills in 1969 and 1971, will probably welcome the illumination in the 15,500-seat stadium at the West Side Tennis Club. In 1973, he lost a semi-finals heartbreaker to Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia as daylight faded into dusk.

Smith reached the quarter-finals last year before being knocked out in four sets by Roscoe Tanner, the rising 22-year-old left-hander from Tennessee, but despite his past successes, he isn't even seeded this year.

Seedings are based on computer readouts of the year's performances. Smith's is far below par.

He was ranked No. 1 in the United States four times since 1969—last year sharing the honor with Jimmy Connors—and currently is No. 2. But while Connors fury cut a wide swath of victories around the globe, Smith was frustrated in the calm.

Since Wimbledon, however, Connors also has been frustrated—by a gimpy leg he claimed to have injured before he lost the All-England crown to Arthur Ashe.

But the new clay-like surface at Forest Hills, plus a strong international field of 128 men and the prestige of the title make Connors an overwhelming favorite to take the $25,000 winner's share of the $309,430 purse for the second straight year.

Sharing the lights with Smith and Parun tonight will be Tom Okker, the No. 6 seed from The Netherlands who will meet Jurgen Fassbender of West Germany in the second match.

Ilie Nastase of Romania, the No. 8 seed, was supposed to open the night portion of the day-night doubleheader, but he had a rain-postponed final against Bob Hewitt of South Africa at South Orange Tuesday night and was given a chance to rest today.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, seeded second behind Connors for the Open, and Bjorn Borg, the No. 5 seed from Sweden, also had to finish up in the final of the $100,000 U.S. Professional tennis championship in Brookline, Mass., before moving into the West Side Tennis Club.

Their 1975 U.S. Open debuts will be Thursday, the same day as the women begin eliminations in their 64-player bracket.

Top-seeded Chris Evert, who has won 75 straight matches on clay, is seeking the only major title to elude her. If her performance on the same clay-like surface at Westchester, N.Y., on Monday is any indication, she will have little trouble going the route. Miss Evert made a rout of the final against Virginia Wade of England, who is seeded second for the Open.

The Open runs through Sept. 7, with day-night doubleheaders scheduled for the first eight days.

Cards Get Up Off the Floor

REGGIE SMITH

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A funny thing happened to St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday night . . . for the second night in a row.

Monday night the Cards trailed Houston Astros by a run with two out in the bottom of the 11th but salvaged a tie when the skies opened and rained the game out.

It was rescheduled as part of a twi-nighter Tuesday. St. Louis trailed the Astros 8-1 after 6½ innings in the opener but rallied with six runs in the seventh and pulled it out 10-9 on Reggie Smith's run-scoring single in the 12th.

The nightcap was a more-or-less routine 2-1 triumph for the Redbirds and the sweep lifted them into second place in the National League's east division, three games behind Pittsburgh Pirates, who whipped Atlanta Braves 8-2, and one game ahead of Philadelphia Phillies, who bowed to Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1.

Elsewhere, New York Mets downed San Diego Padres 7-2, Cincinnati Reds edged Chicago Cubs 6-5 an dSan Francisco Giants nipped Montreal Expos 4-3.

20 HITS

Houston raked four St. Louis pitchers for 20 hits in hte opener—one of them a home run by Cliff Johnson—but the Cards bounced back in the seventh, sparked by Hector Cruz' bases-loaded triple. Mike Tyson's two-out single in the eighth sent the contest i'go overtime and Smith's single won it in the 12th after Bake McBride's single, a sacrifice and an intentional walk to Ted Simmons.

"It looked like everybody had given up on the game," Smith said. "This one's the kind of win that gets you going and makes you feel like you can really go on to win. After we tied the score I said there's no way we're going to lose this ballgame."

Ron Fairly's homer and Harry Rasmussen's RBI single and five-hit pitching paced St. Louis in the nightcap.

Duffy Dyer's two-run single capped a six-run first inning in which the first eight Pittsburgh batters hit safely against Jamie Easterly and Ray Sadecki as the Pirates stopped Atlanta.

Ron Cey hit a three-run homer and Doug Rau hurled a three-hitter as the Dodgers knocked the Phillies into third place.

Rusty Staub's tie-breaking single triggered a three-run rally in the fifth inning and rookie Mike Vail added three hits for the Mets to support the nine-hit pitching of Randy Tate as New York beat San Diego.

Home runs by Jerry Morales and Andy Thornton staked the Cubs to a 4-0 lead but the Rdes chipped away and won on Joe Morgan's two-run single with two out in the ninth, their 10th victory in 11 games against Chicago. Johnny Bench homered for Cincinnati to pace the Reds' win over Chicago.

Tiant Misses 'One for Dad'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They stood together, father and son, on the pitcher's mound at Fenway Park. The older man, beaming, acknowledged the cheers of the crowd as he had in his playing days nearly 30 years ago.

Then Luis Tiant Sr. took off his coat and handed it to his boy, went into his windup and delivered a low fastball across history to Boston Red Sox catcher Tim Blackwell.

Not satisfied with the form that may have lost something over the years, Tiant, Sr., called for the ball again and fluttered a knuckleball across the plate as 32,086 voices roared. It was Luis Tiant of New York Cubans, circa 1927-48, all over again.

He reclaimed his coat, whispered something in his son's ear, and left. Luis Tiant, Jr., of the Red Sox, took the mound.

"He just told me, 'Go get 'em. Don't worry about me being here,'" the younger Tiant recalled.

It may not have been nerves or the fact his father hadn't seen his son since 1961, when Luis Jr. left Havana, Cuba to seek his fortune in the major leagues. But Luis Jr., lost his game Tuesday night, 8-2 to California Angels.

"I wanted to win it for him. He told me it was a big thrill for him. But when you're going bad, everything seems to go wrong."

So Luis Tiant, Sr. went home a proud but somewhat disappointed man. But the Red Sox still lead the AL east by seven games, and the future still seems rosy.

Elsewhere, New York Yankees humbled Oakland A's 7-1; Kansas City Royals trimmed Baltimore Orioles 4-3 before losing 3-2 in the nightcap of their twi-night doubleheader; Minnesota Twins shaded Milwaukee Brewers 2-1, Texas Rangers nipepd Detroit Tigers 3-2 and the Chicago-Cleveland game was rained out.

LUIS TIANT

Etchebarren tied the score 2-2 in the fifth inning with his second home run of the year, then untied it with a bases-loaded seventh-inning single to start Tiant towards his 13th loss against 15 victories.

Fred Lynn and Jim Rice had the RBIs for Boston.

New York's Catfish Hunter continued his mastery over his former Oakland team-mates, allowing seven hits in beating the world champion A's for the fourth time in as many meetings.

Mark Belanger's second home run of the season broke a tie in the fifth inning and led the Orioles over the Royals in the second game. George Brett's tie-breaking double in the sixth inning gave Kansas City the opener and foiled Jim Palmer's bid to become the seasons' first 20-game winner.

Steve Braun's single in the sixth drove in the run that backed Dave Goltz's seven-hitter and helped Minnesota hand reeling Milwaukee its 10th defeat in 11 games and 16th in the last 21.

Dave Moates cracked a 10th inning single with the bases loaded to lift Texas over Detroit.

Ealey Runs Calgary Ragged

WINNIPEG (CP) — Chuck Ealey found his running legs in the second half Tuesday and carried Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a 25-22 triumph over Calgary Stampeders and a share of first place in the Western Football Conference.

The Stampeders, behind the powerful running performance of Willie Burden, dominated the first half. But they failed to take full advantage of their scoring opportunities and came away with only a 14-9 lead.

A blocked punt by John Helton and a 12-yard touchdown pass reception by Rick Galbos made it 21-9 in the opening minute of the third quarter before Ealey began running the Stampeders ragged.

The veteran quarterback, given the starting assignment after missing almost two complete games with an injured toe, scrambled for 76 of his 82 yards in the second half, most of it outside. With the Calgary defence then forced to loosen up, running backs Jay Washington and Richard Crump found enough room to pick up 84 and 71 yards, respectively.

CHUCK EALEY

With that balanced running attack, the Bombers stormed back for two second-half touchdowns and the game-winning field goal by Bernie Ruoff.

The win gave Winnipeg eight points, the same as Saskatchewan Roughriders. Calgary, with six points, remains tied for third spot with Edmonton Eskimos. The Eskimos meet B.C. Lions tonight in Edmonton.

"The bootlegging by Ealey had us running around in circles and made their inside game work," Calgary coach Jim Wood said after the Stampeders' second straight loss to the Bombers.

Winnipeg coach Bud Riley said Ealey's outside running "had them scared to death . . . and there's no way they can cover both the inside and outside."

First-down runs by Ealey led to both Winnipeg touchdowns in the third quarter. He carried four times for 38 yards in the two drives that ended with an eight-yard touchdown pass to Bob Larose at 6:51 and Crump's seven-yard run at 14:10.

Joe Pisarcik completed just 10 of 25 pass attempts and threw two key interceptions that led to valuable Winnipeg points. Brian Herosian picked off one pass at the Calgary 19-yard line and two plays later Crump went over to give Winnipeg a 22-21 lead at the end of three quarters.

With the score tied in the final quarter, Pisarcik threw right into the hands of Bob Toogood at Calgary's 37-yard-line with less than three minutes remaining. Three plays later Ruoff booted the winning 33-yard field goal at 14:12.

Jay Washington got Winnipeg's other touchdown in the final minute of the opening half on a three-yard run after Ealey had completed his first pass of the game, a 72-yard strike to Mark McDonald.

Ruoff added a convert and a second-quarter field goal.

Burden scored one touchdown for Calgary and Rick Galbos got the other. Cyril McFall added two singles, two converts and a pair of field goals.

Calgary was impressive offensively and defensively in the first half, piling up 203 yards net offense while limiting Winnipeg to just 96, with 72 of that on the one pass play.

Burden, the leading rusher in Canadian football this season, carried 18 times for 98 yards. He finished with 30 carries for 171 yards.

Winnipeg finished with 336 yards total offense, 237 yards passing and 17 first downs. Calgary had 313 yards total offense.200 yards rushing and 18 first downs.

Burden was easily the top individual gaining more than 100 yards rushing for the fifth consecutive game.

B.C. Quarterback? Keys Undecided

DON MOORHEAD

EDMONTON (CP) — Coach Eagle Keys of British Columbia Lions said Tuesday night he will start his number-one quarterback, Don Moorhead, in tonight's Western Football Conference game against Edmonton Eskimos, but left room to change his mind.

"'Peter Liske has been working out three or four days," he said.

The concern over British Columbia's quarterbacks began a few weeks ago when all three—Liske, Moorhead and Canadian Eric Guthrie—came down with injuries.

Guthrie almost pulled off a surprise victory when he went all the way in Edmonton's 27-24 triumph in their previous encounter, but he probably will be restricted to a punting role tonight because he has worked even less than Liske recently.

Apart from the injuries, times are tough for the Lions, who have won only one of five games and are alone in the WFC basement. But Edmonton coach Ray Jauch is aware that B.C.'s only victory came against Saskatchewan Roughriders in Regina when the Riders were undefeated.

The Eskimos make it clear they have something to prove. Players and coaches all realize they were inept and fortunate to win at Vancouver a few weeks ago, in B.C.'s last game.

A 13-day layoff has helped the Lions get their walking wounded back in shape for the contest, to be televised on the CBC western network.
changs from its prvious

While B.C. will have several changes from its previous lineup, Jauch said Edmonton might have none and certainly no more than one. He said Stu Lang's aching ribs might keep from starting as a wide receiver, which means the job will go to John Konihowski, who proved he can handle the job last week against Toronto Argonauts.

Konihowski caught his first two touchdown passes as a professional after Lang was injured.

Quarterback Tom Wilkinson, who aggravated his ailing ribs against Toronto, says he will be ready, "but they'll be tender for a while."

Tight end Tyrone Walls and fullback Calvin Harrell will be available for full-time duty.

B.C. also is worried over the condition of Jim Young's ankle. If he c--'t oerate, Ross Clarkson could be put to work. Jackson and Barry Houlihan were Canadians added to the club this week.

The game is a big one for the Eskimos, who could tie Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan for first place with a victory.

Rae Will Start At the Controls

MIKE RAE

MONTREAL (CP) — Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes will have one common denominator when they meet here in tonight's lone Eastern Football Conference game—neither club has as yet designated its No. 1 quarterback.

While the matter of selecting a first-string signal-caller appeared important to Russ Jackson, Argos' rookie coach, it seemed of little significance to head coach Marv Levy of the Alouettes.

But Levy has enjoyed almost equal performance from veteran Sonny Wade and third-year man Jimmy Jones this season to help him postpone his selection, while Jackson has had little opportunity to assess the relative talents of veteran Mike Rae and rookie Bill Byum.

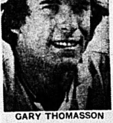
Jackson said that Rae will start against the Alouettes in a game that will be televised on the eastern nework of he CBC beginning a 8 p.m. EDT.

Levy seldom names his starting quarterback until the day of the game, but since Jones finished strongly in the Als defeat of Hamilton Tiger-Cats nine days ago, it appeared likely he would get the starting call.

Jackson labelled earlier reports that Rae had lost the No. 1 job to Byum as premature. The rookie had started the last four games afer Rae was injured in the season opener.

"We've seen Mike in only one game so far and we want to see what we can do before it's too late," Jackson said. "We want to name a No. 1 quarterback for the last half of the schedule."

Montreal Expos Scuttled Again



GARY THOMASSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gary Thomasson's eight-inning home run broke a tie and provided San Francisco Giants with a 4-3 victory over Montreal Expos in a National League baseball game Tuesday night.

The blast, Thomasson's fourth of the year, came off the Expos', Dan Warthen, 6-5.

The Expos had tied the game 3-3 in the sixth. Pete Mackanin and Gary Carter opened with singles and Mackanin took third on Jose Morales' force grounder.

Mackanin scored when shortstop Chris Speier dropped pitcher Pete Falcone's throw for an error at second on a potential double-play grounder.

San Francisco had jumped on Warthen for two runs in the first inning. Derrel Thomas led off with a walk, Mike Sadek tripled and Gary Matthews singled.

Morales' leadoff single, Pepe Mangual's force grounder and Barry Foote's seventh homer of the season created a 2-2 tie off Falcone in the top of the second.

Bruce Miller's one-out double and walks to Steve Ontiveros and Falcone loaded the bases in the bottom of the second before Thomas' single gave the Giants a 3-2 lead.

Fergie Our Man: Harold Ballard

JOHN FERGUSON

TORONTO (CP) — John Ferguson, former National Hockey League forward, may be the one Toronto Maple Leaf president Harold Ballard has in mind to become the Leafs assistant coach.

Ballard said Tuesday he hopes negotiations, already under way, will secure the ex-Montreal Canadien for this season. He would back up head coach Red Kelly.

"Fergie is the type of guy we need here," said Ballard. "Red isn't forceful enough and is easy going. Fergie won't take flak from anyone. He'd punch them right in the face."

Ferguson's only exposure to coaching was as Harry Sinden's assistant in the 1972 Team-Canada Russia series. Of late he has been involved with the National Lacrosse League Montreal Quebecois, both as a coach and general manager. He recently resigned both posts.

Should Ferguson and Ballard reach an agreement, the Leafs would be the second NHL club with an assistant coach. Philadelphia Flyers' head coach Fred Shero employs Mike Nykoluk in that capacity.

Playoff Commitments For Elliott Tyke Squad

In case you had forgotten about them, be assured that the Belleville Minor Baseball Association representative team, the Elliott Motors Tykes, are very much alive in Ontario Baseball Association playoffs.

It's been some time since this great little team saw serious action but the time has come. And it's this weekend.

Elliotts are in the OBA quarter-finals. Sudbury will be at Parkdale Saturday for a 3 p.m. match to open the set.

Complete details on how the series will be run are not official but the guessing is, there will be a flip of the coin to decide things.

That is, if Belleville should win the flip, Game 2 would be played here Sunday at 1 p.m.

If the luck of the flip favors Sudbury, the second and third games would be played there the following weekend.

With things barely winding up on the minor baseball scene, officials of the BMBA are already looking to 1976. With that in mind, the general meeting and election of officers is scheduled for Parkdale Community Hall, September 11 at 8.45 p.m.

Proposed changes to the BMBA constitution must be in the hands of the secretary, at least 10 days before the meeting.

BMBAs annual closing day festivities are set for Parkdale, September 14 at 1 p.m. Efforts to have the CJBQ-CJNH team play an exhibition contest as part of proceedings, are under way.

SLICES There's not much to choose between the teams in the Eastern Ontario Premier Soccer League.

According to the most recent statistics released, Peterborough Vi-Mars lead the point stands with nine points; Kingston Italo-Canadians have — eight Belleville Olympics seven; Toronto Ferma, five; Kingston Portuguese, four, and Quinte Hellenic, three.

All teams have open dates this weekend.

Plans have been finalized for the Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association to hold their training camp in Ornskoldsvik Orns-ko-vik) Sweden, from September 4-30.

"We're going to take advantage of the Swedes excellent training facilities and their knowledgeable physical training personnel to help get our players the fittest they have ever been going into a season," commented coach Bobby Baun.

The club will also play a series of nine exhibition games with Swedish and Finnish first division clubs.

Promised Baun "There's been a lot of talk about one big vacation over there but I'll tell you, anybody who thinks this club won't report back to Toronto in fantastic shape, October 1, is in for a genuine shock."

From the better late than never department comes word that an eight-man team from ANAF Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201, Belleville, has won the all-Ontario ANAF golf championship.

Playing at the St. Mary's Golf Club near Stratford, Bill Mitchell, who shot a 74 to win low gross honors, was the top individual performer in the day-long tournament.

The Belleville team, competing against ANAF teams from all over the province, came in with the best low gross score and tied for low net when handicaps were calculated.

Memebers of the Dukes, who collected a trunkful of trophies and prizes are Bill Mitchell, Bob Brooks, Carl Wood, Glen Denike, Rusty Garvin, Jack Asseltine, Dick Thomson and Charlie Doyle.

In a karate report in The Intelligencer last week, it was reported that Belleville Kenzo Dozono had won the Canadian Open Championship at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Kenzo corrects that report. He was the winner of the National Karate Association title.

Stephen Licence Champion

Stephen Licence took the championship of the peewee division of the Belleville Minor Soccer Association, blanking Thurlow Branch 99 2-0 in the title match.

In the semi-final play, the Thurlow team got by Fitzgibbon's 5-4 in extra time while Stephen Licence defeated Ontario Provincial Police, 5-1.

A successful try from the penalty spot in the second half wrapped up the championship for Stephen Licence in the defeat of Thurlow, Stephen Parr gave the winners the insurance marker after Bob Meehan had opened the scoring with the only goal of the first half.

Kevin Abbott chalked up the shutout.

Members of Dr. W. Hayes' championship team are, John Clark, Dale Clark, Bob Meehan, Alan Woodley, Tony Jackson, Andy Fletcher, Bruce Fletcher, Terry Towns, Danny Hazelwood, Kevin Parr, Stephen Parr, Andy Devries and Kevin Abbott.

Ameliasburg And Bayview In the Final

The Ameliasburg A's earned a place in the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League finals by defeating Consecon 8-4 on Monday night.

Gary Eardley, Murray Maracle and Harold Werkhoven combined for the victory. The three hurlers allowed just four hits while striking out four batters.

Art Keller went all the way in the loss, allowing six hits and three walks. He struck out two.

Mike Flieger had two safeties for the winners, while Gary Thompson, Doug Findley, Murray Maracle and Brian Montgomery reached base once.

Home runs from Steve Tripp and Bob MacLeod weren't enough for the losing Consecon team.

Ameliasburg will meet Bayview Orchards in the finals this Wednesday, game time is 7.30 p.m.

ANNOUNCE GOLF PURSE

LAUDERHILL, Fla. (AP) — The PGA Tournament Players Championship, to be held in conjunction with the Jackie Gleason-Inverrary golf tournament, will offer a total purse of $300,000 in 1976, officials said Tuesday. The winner's share will be $60,000, Gleason said. The tournament is scheduled over the Inverrary Country Club here for Feb. 23-25, 1976.

Quebec air pilot Guy Serafinoff of Trenton likes to limber up with a daily 36 holes of golf while overseas. Recently, he shot his second hold in one while playing the Castletroy Course in Limerick City, Ireland. Thirteen year old Neal McGill was partnered with Guy when the Trenton golfer fired his ace.

Champions Crowned In Minor Lacrosse

In the finals of the Tyke-Novice division of the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association Quinte Mall was victorious twice over the Dairy Queen, 3-2 and 8-3.

In the first game Mike Phillips scored twice and Paul Brannigan once to take Quinte Mall to a 3-2 win. Karl Wedderburn and Rob Brooks each scored once.

Mike Phillips socred eight times in the next game to lead the winners while Louis Labelle was playing excellent goal behind him.

Trophies were presented to the Quinte Mall, Tyke-Novice champs, and their coach Jeff Runciman. The "High Scorer" Trophy went to Don Dafoe, while the Most Valuable Player award went to Louis Labelle of Quinte Mall.

In Peewee the Police Association also swept their final series, defeating Ponderosa 6-3 and 6-2.

In the first match Steve Molaski scored five times to lead the way, the Police taking the win.

The final game for the Peewees saw Molaski score five times in a 6-2 victory.

The Police Association received the winners' due, accepted by coaches Steve Boulton and Richard Bone.

Peewee "High Scorer" was Steve Molaski, the MVP award went to Brian Slaughter for his fine goaltending.

In the Bantam finals Cornerstone defeated Ken-Yen-Geh 8-1 and 7-3.

Steve Riddell scored four times for the winners in the first game, Paul Chapman added two goals.

Cornerstone won the second game on two goals from Tim Kalnay and Steven Riddell.

The Bantam trophy went to Cornerstone and their coach Owen Riddell.

Bantam high scorer was Steve Riddell, the MVP was Paul Chapman.

"Coach of the Year" went to John Maracle of Ken-Yen-Geh Bantams.

The Midget-Juvenile high scorer was Chris Rutledge. The MVP in that division was Wally Inwood.

Cobourg Squares Series

Bardon Supplies met a much improved Cobourg team on Sunday and lost a close one 2-1 in Ontario Amateur Softball Association Intermediate "B" play.

Earl Foster must have been muttering to himself after the game, as he had six strikeouts in the contest and gave up only five hits. He also came up with three singles in the game but still couldn't win.

Alan Fenton blew 13 third strikes by Bardon hitters to win the game for Cobourg.

Hits for the winners came from Paul Guteridge, Carl Stacey, Barry Daw and Fenton.

For the losers Denis Neron and Ron Weese added singles to Foster's trio.

The series is now tied at 1-1, next game is in Grafton on Saturday, beginning at 8 p.m.

Bardon Takes Opener

Devolin Nipped in 13

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

Anyone who felt that the Quinte Fastball League final series between Devolin Motors and Bardon Supplies wouldn't be close was rudely awakened to the talents of both teams on Tuesday night.

The two clubs battled it out at the Alemite for 13 innings before Bardon won it 5-4.

"I don't think I've seen a better game here all year," said league president George Rutledge.

Although he was the losing pitcher, Don Holoway couldn't be faulted on his performance. In the last three days Holoway has pitched 38 innings for Devolin. He struck out 15 Bardon batters on Tuesday night while walking just four.

The win went to Wayne McConnell, in relief of both Ken DeMille and Earl Foster. Combined the trio struck out 12 batters and allowed just eight hits in 13 innings.

Devolin opened the game with a 2-0 lead, but Bardon battled back to make it 2-1 after just one inning of play. Devolin scored again in the f[illegible] while Bardon came [illegible] with three runs to take the lead.

[illegible] eighth, John Burnside [illegible] and moved to third on a sacrifice. Dave Horwood's c[illegible]h single scored him and [illegible] the game into extra innings.

Both teams had runners on in the following innings, but no one could score.

Finally, in the 13th Ron Weese singled and moved to second on a passed ball. A attempt to pick-off Weese trying to steal third resulted in the winnig run when he barrelled past Rick Rosebush trying to catch the throw, Bardon Supplies made six errors in the field, yet Devolin couldn't capitalize on them. Earl Foster was injured during the game. He pulled a muscle in the shoulder of his throwing arm and his future in the playoffs is questionable.

The big hitter for Bardon was Denis Neron, with four clutch singles in the contest.

"That's the first time I've had four hits in a game all year," Neron exclaimed.

Warren Ostrander singled three times in the Bardon victory while Marv Stacey was on twice with base hits. Ron Weese, Ken DeMille, Doug Noble and Keith Stacey also singled in the contest.

For Devolin Jim Horwood doubled and singled, right fielder Dave singled three times. Rosebush, John Burnside and Eric Maber singled.

Tempers flared in the first game of the series. The following matches should be just as hotly contested.

Shutouts by Landers and Timbers

Tony's Score Two More Wins

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — No-hit pitching by Newfoundland's Pat Kelly led St. John's All-Stars to a 3-0 shutout Tuesday over Saskatchewan in a Canadian softball championship game.

In other action, British Columbia blanked Northwest Territories 3-0, Oshawa Tonys, the host team, knocked off Yukon All-Stars 8-0 and Nova Scotia 1-0.

New Brunswick beat Prince Edward Island 7-6, Quebec edged Alberta 3-1 and New Brunswick beat Manitoba 6-1.

Oshawa and B.C., both undefeated, will meet today. B.C. has four wins and Oshawa three.

The St. John's-Saskatchewan game was delayed one hour after two complete innings because of high winds and rain.

Len Beresford smacked a homer in the fourth inning to put Newfoundland on the scoreboard. St. John's added another pair in the sixth when Jim O'Toole blasted a drive over the centre field fence with Kelly on base.

Kelly fanned three Saskatchewan batters en route to the victory. Robin Guenter suffered the loss, striking out five Newfoundland batters.

Oshawa 8 Yukon 0

Pete Landers made his first start of the championships for Oshawa Tonys and he appeared on his way to emulating teammate Paul Wannamaker's no-hit performance as he held the Yukon hitless through the first five innings.

Frank King looped a single into a centre field to open the sixth for the Yukon. It was the only hit off Landers who walked one man and struck out 12.

Oshawa scored three times in the first inning with a double by Hal Kemp, the big hit.

Oshawa added another run in the second and four in the fourth, Roy Graham delivering a three-run homer as a pinch-hitter.

Landers led Oshawa at the plate collecting a double and two singles and driving in two runs.

Oshawa 1 N.S. 0

A wild pitch in the final inning scored Ed Neudorf to give the Tonys a 1-0 win over Nova Scotia Dartmouth. Nova Scotia pitcher Doug Webster entered the game in the final inning relieving starter Bob Putnam.

Neudorf was on base with a double at the time. The bases were then loaded on an intentional walk and an error. Webster's first pitch to Oshawa's Bob Smith bounced past the catcher and Neudorf scored.

Bob Young had a triple and single for Oshawa, Neudorf a double and Jack Sneddon a single.

Winning pitcher Barry Timbers allowed two hits, singles by Albert Slaunewhite and Denny Clyke. He struck out eight.

The loss gives Nova Scotia one win and two losses.

Dukes, Globals In OFL Split

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — London Dukes and Toronto Waxman Globals split an Ontario Fastball League doubleheader Tuesday as the Dukes took the first game 8-4 and the Globals won the second 1-0.

In the first game, Toronto opened the scoring with four unearned runs in the second inning off winning pitcher Metro Szeryk.

London came back with single runs in the second and third inning off starter John Young. Young was relieved in the seventh inning by loser Reg Martin.

In the seventh inning, Bob Roggach capped a six-run rally for London with a grand slam home run. Harry Bartley batted in a run with a single and Jim Brown hit a one-run double to round out the scoring.

Martin held London to three hits in the second game and picked up the victory.

Toronto scored its only run in the third inning when Mart Tweyman hit a double and scored on Lee Gould's single.

Don Dominas took the loss for London.

Leeds United Shut Out 3-0

LONDON (Reuter) — Leeds United were defeated at home 3-0 by Liverpool in an English League First Division soccer match Tuesday.

Leeds, which had dropped only one point in the first three matches of the new season, trailed at halftime and Ian Callaghan, veteran English international, scored two goals in the final five minutes before a crowd of more than 36,000.

Queen's Park Rangers lost an opportunity to take over the championship lead from their London neighbors, West Ham, when they drew 2-2 at Wolverhampton. All four goals came in the opening half.

A third London team, Arsenal, recalled recent England captain Alan Ball to their lineup and his penalty goal set them on the path to a 2-1 victory over Norwich, newly-promoted from the Second Division.

Grand Prix Definitely Out

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Grand Prix, the outstanding event on this year's Candian auto racing scene, has been officially abandoned.

Harvey Hudes, president of Mosport Park 70 miles northeast of Toronto, made the announcment at a news conference Tuesday.

The action follows efforts by Hudes and officials at Mosport to have members of the Formula I Constructors' Association to reconsider the association's decision three weeks ago to pass up the Canadian race scheduled for Sept. 21.

However, Hudes said they intended to carry on the previously planned Grand Prix weekend with programs Sept. 19-21 with races for Formula 1000, 2½-litre sedans and other competitive cars as well as a draw for a European racing car.

But instead of charging up to $25 for a weekend entrance to the track, Hudes said they have decided to promote the weekend as the Grand Free—opening the gates to all motor racing fans.

In announcing the cancellation, Hudes said the organization's efforts to communicate with the Formula I teams to round out a world-class race met with only limited success.

'Losing the Grand Prix race will cost us prestige wise," he admitted.

Standardized Testing For Colleges Debated

TORONTO (CP) — Can students be accurately measured by standardized tests in judging qualifications to enter university?

This question has been debated within the Canadian and United States educational systems to determine whether one test can successfully gauge a student's ability in reading, mathematics and other skills.

At a recent conference at York University here, the question of standardized testing was raised again. Standard tests for college entrance were abolished in 1973 by the Ontario department of education in favor of province-wide examinations of Grade 13 students.

The SACU tests (Service for Admission to Colleges and Universities) were devised in the late 1960s by the department of education. Some education administrators have complained that no single system exists to test high school students entering university.

"Students who should be out of universities get in," said William Kent, admissions director at University of Toronto, speaking at the conference. "Some who should be in, are out. How can we tell?"

Mr. Kent said the Ontario Council of Admissions is currently studying ways to investigate changing entrance standards to universities.

"Since the abolition of exams, we have no evidence that standards have dropped, advanced or stayed the same," said Douglas Penny, chairman of the ministry of education.

Colin Dungey, principal of William Lyon Mackenzie Collegiate Institute, Toronto, disagreed. He said he had "gut" feelings that standards have fallen.

The institution of tests itself has undergone criticism.

A major fault of the standardized tests, Dr. Alan Purves of University of Illinois said, is that groups used as a reference point may be dissimilar from the students being tested. Standardized multiple-choice or other objective tests, he said, measure only a limited part of the subject being taught.

The American Psychological Association (APA), in co-operation with the National Council on Measurement in Education and the American Educational Research Association in the United States, has set up a study group to investigate ways standardized tests are being used or misused.

"We do not recommend reporting of test results in terms of grade equivalency," said Willo White of the APA. "We are losing sight of the purpose of standardized tests. They have limited value in measuring one's ability to read."

Standardized tests do no always prove fair, Dr. Thomas Newkirk of University of Texas said.

Hoarded Art

Edmonton glass-blower Merrill Lund demonstrates the craft which he says is still a "hoarded art" with techniques passed on from generation to generation. The 23-year-old self-taught craftsman learned the basics in laboratory procedures course at the Northern Alberta Institute of Technology. It took tw years of practice before he produced anything worthwhile. (CP Photo)

Mechanic Becomes Adept Glass-blower

EDMONTON (CP) — Merrill Lund of Edmonton had decided to become a mechanic when he accidentally became "sort of a fanatic" about glass-blowing.

Now one of three known ornamental glass-blowers in Western Canada, the 23-year-old self-taught craftsman says he spent thousands of hours at the age-old craft before being able to make a living at it.

"I've been doing it for 2½ years now and I'm still learning and expanding," the long-haired artisan said in an interview.

Glass ships, unicorns, wishing wells, bird baths, trees and charms, ranging in price from $1.95 to $40, are a few of the items produced in Mr. Lund's garage.

"I try to get a beautiful piece of glass sculpture on the market for a reasonable price," says Mr. Lund, who will also do custom work.

He says that in his travels he has run across glass-blowers who charge "unreal prices," but his aim is to get things into the houses of people who couldn't normally afford it.

"In doing so, I increase my sales market so I really come out ahead too."

Glass is at once the most difficult and the most free substance to work with, said Mr. Lund, whose primary income comes from weekly sales at University of Alberta and monthly appearances at shopping malls.

"Glass is theoretically just a really cool liquid, so you don't weld pieces together; they just melt right into each other."

However, he said the "real knack" of glass-blowing is in the ability to work with a ball of molten glass of the exact size and temperature required.

The process involves deftly twisting and drawing out glass on the end of a Pyrex rod, keeping the torch flame on the cooler part and maintaining a hot supply of glass on the end.

Learning the best technique for each design may take up to 20 tries, "so you're not going back and melting a part that you've already finished."

Once a glass-blower perfects his technique it becomes a carefully-guarded secret.

"Glass-blowing has traditionally been a hoarded art, with techhiques handed down from generation to generation. A lot of glass-blowers will stop working if they know another glass-blower is watching, because there are many secret techniques."

"That is why I am self-taught," said Mr. Lund, who credits a glass-blower at the Walt Disney studio with giving him initial inspiration.

Although the traditional substance is soft glass, which usually contains lead, the Edmonton artist uses harder, lead-free Pyrex, which is stronger and cools without cracking.

"However, as this glass is worked at a temperature from 1,500 to 2,000 fahrenheit, some care must be taken that it cools slowly and evenly," he said.

A former factory worker in Wetaskiwin, Alta., Mr. Lund stumbled across a laboratory procedures course at Northern Alberta Institute of Technology while waiting for a mechanics course to begin.

"There isn't a basic ornamental course in glass-blowing, but this got me interested, and I set out to teach myself."

Veteran Pilot

B.C. Aviation Executive Second World War Vet

VANCOUVER (CP) — A large chunk of Capt. Emerson (Wally) Wallace's life has been spent flying just about anything with a propeller.

After 70 Second World War combat missions as a fighter-bomber pilot, he flew on the prairies, in the Arctic and over coastal British Columbia for charter companies, commercial carriers, mining and timber outfits, prior to joining MacMillan Bloedel's air West Coast Transport.

Based at Vancouver International Airport, the West Coast air fleet Capt. Wallace manages includes a modern twin-turbine Beech Kingair, and two immaculately-maintained Grumman G-21s that were built in the 1920s.

"I don't think anybody has ever figured out which is right—Grumman Geese or Grumman Gooses," laughed the veteran pilot. "I know the plural for the birds is geese but I usually call the airplanes Gooses."

Capt. Wallace lives just two minutes' drive away from his hangar at the airport. His wife and sister-in-law are both licensed pilots and his eldest son flies an executive jet for a department-store chain.

In addition to flying, Capt. Emerson oversees the day-to-day operation of a corporate aviation operation involving 13 full-time employees, including four pilots and four co-pilots, maintenance and office staff.

His safety standards and maintenance procedures are among the most stringent in the aviation industry which accounts for the comment, "We haven't scratched a single passenger in 15 years flying."

The twin-engine Gooses are a familiar sight in coastal communities such as Nanaimo, Powell River Port Alberni, Campbell River and Port Hardy.

Painted two shades of green, both aircraft look and fly as though they had just rolled off the Grumman assembly line—probably better since Capt. Wallace has had them modified and adjusted to meet the specialized conditions of West Coast flying.

He can put down a Grumman Goose on a lake so remote it hasn't even a name, or into the ocean in some coastal fjord. Or, he may find himself in the long-range Kingair stacked over a major international airport such as Vancouver, Sea-Tac at Seattle or San Francisco, awaiting landing instructions among jumbos and jetliners.

"The Grumman Goose is a good, rugged aircraft, and with proper maintenance it'll fly forever," said Capt. Wallace. "The Goose has been an ideal aircraft for the marine environment we have on the British Columbia coast."

Capt. Wallace is a native of Cardale, Man., near Brandon.

"One day in 1939," he said, "I threw my books out the schoolhouse window and joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, much to the consternation of my grand old school principal who thought I was nuts — and I probably was."

After serving overseas, he took his discharge in 1945 and returned to Manitoba "with ideas of becoming a big-time farmer, except I made the mistake of joining the local flying club."

He piloted bush planes around Manitoba, but decided that at a salary of $130 a month that wasn't such a lucrative business, so "I packed my bags and I've been in B.C. ever since."

TAKEN DOWN A PEG

LONDON (CP) — A soccer team found they had been left with their pants down after they finished their evening game. When they dashed into the locker room, their underwear had vanished and hanging on the pegs instead were new frilly panties in delicate shades of pink, purple and red each stamped with a saucy motif. Strung out on the team's bus on a length of clothes-line were their underpants—all newly washed. The culprit was the woman member of the club's management committee who was teaching the team a lesson in cleanliness.

Glorious Days Over For Catering Service

NEW YORK (AP) — "The glorious days are over. The days when money flowed like water are gone," sighed the head of a chic New York catering service. "The days of parties for which we sent bills of $60,000 are no more."

And worse, lamented Isabell Mayer of Charles Wilson Ltd., even the more modest bills for catering are not getting paid these days.

"I can almost tell whose money I'll have to wait for. You wouldn't believe the names of those who have kept me waiting for months and months," Mrs. Mayer said, nodding knowingly. "They put up such big fronts with their big cars and chauffeurs but never pay their bills."

Mrs. Mayer has been delivering such delicacies as clams oregano and Grand Marnier souffle to the homes of the very rich for almost 40 years. There used to be up to 450 parties a year thrown in a big way by names like Wanamaker and Du Pont, who clamor for her services. Her specialty was debutante parties.

"And they're almost extinct now. Instead of inviting 200 guests to a country estate, now people only invite 30 or 40," said Mrs. Mayer who flutters at the thought.

Mrs. Mayer expressed her nervous shock at the memory of weddings where nothing more than dainty little sandwiches were ordered. And that Rockefeller party where only half of the guests invited for cocktails received dinner invitations. And then the menu was—can you believe it?—chicken a la king.

Fortunately, Mrs. Mayer said, the business once boomed by lavish parents of debutantes has been supplanted by big corporations who use caterers for luncheon meetings. But there are still those unpaid bills.

All over town, jewellers, department stores, florists complain about delinquent bills.

The treasurer of an exclusive Fifth Avenue department store said some of thel clients pay their bills only once a year—when that trust payment comss through.

"Once you get used to it, it doesn't hurt so much," he said and asked not to be named.

History of Rural Mail Described in Pamphlet

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A redesigned edition of the History of Rural Mail in Canada by George Wilcox has been published by the public affairs branch of the post office. It is expected to go on sale this fall at the National Postal Museum in Ottawa.

Described as "the generalissimo of the RMD (rural mail delivery) campaign," Wilcox wrote the original edition in 1918, 10 years after his almost single-handed effort to establish rural delivery in this country.

The new edition comprises 84 pages about eight by 10 inches. The book is a mixture of narrative and history related through copious letters by Wilcox to the editors of Ontario newspapers in Woodstock, Hamilton, London, Tillsonburg and Ingersoll.

With an evident flare for the dramatic, he drew attention to the need for rural delivery by referring to his own situation on his farm at Springford, Ont.: "In order to get my mail daily for a year . . . I must travel 800 miles and I am not three or four miles from the post office . . . but one and a quarter."

Initial proposals for rural delivery in the early 1900s were rejected by both the Liberal government under Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Conservative Opposition under Robert Borden. Nevertheless, the first rural mail delivery wagon left the post office at Hamilton for Ancaster, Ont., Oct. 10, 1908, thanks mainly to Wilcox's persistent campaign.

Hiawatha Ferry Boat Nearly 80

TORONTO (CP) — The Royal Canadian Yacht Club ferry Hiawatha is the oldest vessel listed in Lloyd's Register of Shipping. She celebrated her 80th birthday this year and still provides a ferry service between the Toronto waterfront and Centre Island in Lake Ontario.

Built by Bertram Engine Works of Toronto in 1895, the Hiawatha was destined to carry the city's aristocracy in the days before the Second World War.

The ferry has travelled to the island with at least one empire builder, Timothy Eaton; with the popular Prince of Wales before he became King Edward VIII; and Col. R. S. McLaughlin, pioneer Canadian auto builder.

In the ferry's years before the Second World War, her passengers were the epitome of fashion and culture. After she docked at Centre Island, men dashed to change for sailing and women retired to the club house for card games, English-style tea and talk.

Until the Second World War, women were not allowed at the yacht club's section of the island after 6 p.m. But the rule was broken for special occasions.

A debutante ball, a wedding reception, a political bash or an event given in honor of a prominent visitor would see the Hiawatha return after sunset with the women dressed in all their finery.

On Aug. 25, 1919, the ferry carried the Prince of Wales to the island for the placing of the cornerstone of the new club house. Later he was given a gala reception before Hiawatha returned him to the mainland.

Essentially, Hiawatha has always provided a ferry service, but she had other duties. The ferry acted as a committee boat for many club-sponsored races.

And until the end of the war, Hiawatha was used for volunteer work and toured the harbor with patients from the Hospital for Sick Children and the Hospital for Veterans.

TRADITION LINGERS

In those days, anyone stepping on board Hiawatha was required to dress in street or evening clothes and this tradition lingers. Men wore suits and ties and women wore ankle-length dresses.

When the war restricted the club's operations, the fashionable women and men became ghosts belonging to the past and the Hiawatha changed as well. She received a new gas engine to replace her original steam engine, and dramatic social changes brought her new passengers.

Preserving the Past

Belleville artist Alan Rosenplot spent Sunday morning sketching a home on Victoria St. as part of his regular exercise in drawing old buildings for future oil or watercolor paintings. The porch on this particular home is being taken down.

Earthquake Film Moving Experience

When you combine a tried and true love story with a national disaster and throw in tingling realistic sound effects the result is a collosal production called Earthquake.

Now showing at the Park Theatre, Front St., Earthquake, the latest disaster film, slowly builds up to the inevitable crushing death of a city, Los Angeles, and it's people.

Measured by scientists to rate seven on a seismolgraph the quake tears through the city reducing to to dust in a matter of hours.

But the characters aren't exposed only to the earthquake. There's also poisonous gas, fires and finally a flood sweeping through the lower half of the city.

Equipped with sound effect equipment termed "Sensurround" by Universal Movies 18 huge speakers were placed strategically by four men Friday before the first performance. The speakers emit powerful vibrations of low frequency causing the viewer to atually feel the rumblings as they occur on the screen.

The only complaint of the powerful vibrations to management were from a young boy when went home with a headache.

Charleton Heston in a familliar role as the hero is torn between his duty as a husband to wife played by Ava Gardner and her father portrayed by Lorne Green and his newfound love Genevieve Bujold.

The dilemma between Heston and his ladies is neatly wrapped up with his death and the death of his wife as he struggles to save her from drowning.

Earthquake Take 2

Shows nightly at 7:10 and 9:10. Admission is $3 adults; children under 13 $1.

Flood Proceeds Disaster

Park Threatre experienced it's own disaster this week before the screening of the film Earthquake a flood.

Ushers attempted for four hours to pump out the six inches of water, a result of a storm, from the front of the theatre but were finally aided in their efforts by Acme Plumbing and Heating.

Manageress Ilene Lummiss said she was not sure what caused the leak but that there was no extensive damage.

QUALITY IMPORTANT

Eggs of high quality are important when fried because inferior quality eggs spread more easily over the pan, disturbing the yolks.

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Actor John Wayne was reported resting comfortably Saturday at Hoag Memorial Hospital where he was admitted some days ago for tests.

Wayne, 67, won a battle with cancer 10 years ago, but lost the lower half of a lung. He was reported to be nursing a cough.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer-composer John Denver is suing Pepsi Cola Co., charging a soft drink advertising campaign using his name has damaged his career and future earnings.

Denver said in the federal court suit Friday the campaign for Mountain Dew had cost him as much as $1.5 million in future earnings.

The action stems from a television program sponsored by Pepsi Cola in which Denver appeared in the fall of 1972. Pepsi's promotion offered $1 off on Denver albums purchased at a record store chain.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Thursday, Aug. 28

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Another day when you can reap a rich harvest. The key to a bigger bank account is found in being practical in all your dealings.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The outcome of this day depends solely upon you. The quality of your efforts will determine the value of your rewards.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your thinking is deep and pensive on this peaceful, quiet day. Put your serene mood to use. You'll benefit.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Friends are reliable today. If you need their help, just ask. They'll make a concerted effort to give it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll probably feel you're in a rut today because the impetus needed to give your career that upward surge is lacking.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Plan your actions well now. Build a good foundation, then put each small brick in place.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be firm and patient in any financial deals today. Don't let others hurry you beyond your chosen comfortable pace.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The spotlight is on your mate or partner today. Don't let it bother you. You're still a key part of the team.

SAGITARRIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you have in mind to start a diet or exercise program, this is a good time. You'll stick to what you begin now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a good manager of those under your care today. If you make a point with a young person, the lesson will be long-remembered.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll get as big a kick out of entertaining today as will those you entertain. Even extra guests won't upset you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Mental gymnastics won't faze you today. You're good at weighing facts, figures and propositions.

To Your Good Health

Low Threshold Is Not Serious

By G. C. Thosteson MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a low renal threshold and pass sugar in my urine after most meals. I found out during an examination for a life insurance policy that I have this. I wonder whether I should adjust my diet for nutritional purposes.

I have never remembered to ask my doctor. — H.H.

A low renal (kidney) threshold for sugar is a physiologic quirk in which sugar appears in the urine with a relatively low blood sugar level.

This is accomplished by the kidney filtering system's response to specific levels in the blood as it passes through. In some cases, as in yours, the permeability (ability to pass through) is abnormally low and more sugar than normal is allowed to pass in urine. Normally, it would be retained and recirculated throughout the body to deliver its nutrient qualities.

The confusing aspect of low threshold is that the finding of sugar in the urine raises the question of diabetes mallitus. Hence, it is essential that your blood sugar levels be determined from time to time to be sure your system is adapted to the threshold quirk.

A low threshold does not imply the presence of diabetes. But that doesn't mean a person with low threshold cannot develop it.

There is no treatment for a low renal threshold, and a special diet is not necessary.

It would be difficult to diagnose low threshold definitely from a single test — simple urinalysis, for example. A sugar tolerance test is essential to establish the diagnosis of a low kidney threshold for sugar.

I assume you have the means of testing your urine after meals, since you mention it is heavy then. With a low threshold condition, this would be normal.

It is not in itself serious, but it is something that should be checked routinely from time to time, just to keep track of it.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it safe to use a mixture of iodine and baby oil to get a sun tan? — M.H.

There's nothing harmful in it, but it seems unnecessarily messy to me. I know many of the youngsters have adopted this method.

Why not use the best method of all—gradually increasing exposures to the sun? Except for the color produced by the iodine, I know of no effect (lasting effect) it would have. Some commercial preparations are blended with chemicals that will allow tanning to occur in a more effective manner. Chemicals such as benzophenone and para-aminobenzoic acid are effective sun screens that may allow tanning to occur more slowly and thus more safely.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have cerebral palsy, a very mild case. I was wondering if I could donate blood for a friend who is in the hospital. I am in excellent health.—L.A.

I know of no reason you could not, unless it would be your general health. That is, are you well enough to do this? The blood bank physician, or your own physician would have to exercise discretion with regard to this.

You should call a local blood bank or hospital and ask if you are eligible And you should report your condition when appearing for any donation.

Wild Sunflowers Seen as Useful

OTTAWA (CP) — What's sweeter than a sugar beet, can produce more alcohol than corn, is chock full of protein for both humans and animals and has a coarse enough fibre to make a building board?

Would you believe the Jerusalem artichoke, a wild sunflower native to Manitoba?

Crop specialists at the Agriculture Canada research station in Morden, Man., about 50 miles southwest of Winnipeg, have been studying the plant and have high hopes for it.

The Jerusalem artichoke grows on marginal lands where traditional grain and vegetable crops do not do well. It produces heavy vegetation above ground and a small potato-like tuber underground.

Although the plant takes 10 days to mature, it has a good tolerance for frost that extends its growing season beyond that of conventional crops, the department says.

The heavy top growth produces a large yield for silage and it has a protein content of more than 10 per cent. Cattle like it, the department says.

The potato-like tubers of the plant are high in a substance which makes fructose, or fruit sugar. This is 1.5 times sweeter than ordinary sugar and, since average yields of the crop are 20 tons of fresh tubers to the acre, the agriculture department feels the Jerusalem artichoke could outproduce sugar beets for sugar.

As an added bonus, this sugar is less fattening then ordinary sugar.

The sugar-making substance may also be fermented for alcohol, theoretically producing 500 gallons an acre, or about twice the alcohol production of corn, the department says.

"The potential for the plant seems unlimited," an agriculture spokesman said. "The possibility exists that we can even process the tops into fibre board."

Opening lead — J ♥

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Here is a hand that decided an important team match some years ago. The contract was six spades at both tables and a heart was led to East's ace.

At one table a heart was led back. South discarded his seven of diamonds and proceeded to run off six trumps.

At some stage West dropped the 10 of diamonds to wind up with all four of his clubs. Then when South came down to a two-card ending, he tried the diamond finesse and went down two.

At the other table East returned a diamond.

South was a mathematician and knew that a finesse represented a 50 per cent chance while a 3-3 club break occured only 36 per cent of the time.

Nevertheless, he went up with the ace of diamonds, played a couple of trumps, discarded his seven of diamonds on dummy's good heart and ran the rest of the trumps. The four-card ending squeezed West who had to let his king of diamonds go to keep four clubs and the slam made.

South explained that the squeeze possibility added to the chance that clubs might break 3-3 came to well over 50 per cent but he had an extra reason for the play. He explained that East just hated to lead from kings.

Ask the Jacobys

An Oregon reader wants to know the correct opening bid in standard American with: ♠AKQJ105 ♥AKQ ♦32 ♣32.

The answer is two spades. You don't have a sure game, but you sure want to be there if partner holds a king. Incidentally, in our version of standard American, if partner responds two notrump we rebid to three spades and he is allowed to pass with a worthless hand.

Saskatchewan 'Hired Hand' Lives in Different World

REGINA (CP) — The "hired hand" on a Saskatchewan farm lives in a world entirely separate from the rest of the provincial labor force.

Unlike other workers, he has no legal right to a minimum wage, overtime pay or a limit on the number of hours worked.

Working arrangements are almost entirely up to the farmer, as is pay.

Although the average pay for farm labor increased to $412 a month last year, plus room and board, from $247 and room and board in 1970, farmers are finding it increasingly difficult to get farm workers.

A lot of farmers don't know how to treat help," says Carmen Cooke, chairman of the Saskatchewan federal-provincial agriculture manpower committee.

He objects to some informal methods of payment, like giving farm workers eggs, a garden plot, a side of beef and use of the truck.

The farm laborer, he says, should get "a decent wage, then buy all this stuff."

Some farmers resent increasing government concern with the matter.

Hank Zimmerman, farm labor pool manager in Moose Jaw, once had his secretary survey some farmers on how many hours they expect their employees to work each day. One of the first fatmers interviewed replied indignantly that it was none of her business.

As the supply of farm workers becomes tighter, many farmers are seeking to bring in immigrants but have generally been blocked by federal Manpower officials who want Canadians to have first crack at the jobs.

Barry Gusnowsky, manager of Barrich Farms Ltd., near Outlook, complained in an interview about not being allowed to bring in Mexican workers for his potato farm.

With most available Canadians, he said, "all you do is get the scruff of the crop."

"They're here for about two or three weeks and then they're gone."

He adds, however, that after his attempt to bring in Mexicans was blocked, he hired some help from British Columbia this year and "for once, it worked out."

CAN'T BE SURE

A farmer's wife near Chaplin, said that when you hire a worker and send him out into the field with machinery, "you don't know whether he's going to knock a power pole down or kill himself."

"You can't afford to allow a guy to be killed even if they are covered by insurance."

Mr. Zimmerman said he believes imported farm labor is needed, particularly if the labor-intensive dairy industry expands.

The domestic work force, he said, is becoming "more and more selective."

Two farm workers near Chaplin, who started work last spring, intend to leave, each for a different reason.

In interviews where they asked that their names not be used to prevent hostile reactions by their employers, the first said he will become a highways worker for more money and the second said he wants to have his own farm.

"I enjoy the farm work—it's just the pay," said the first.

"I want my own farm because I'll be more independent," said the second.

A typical working day for the two, who are on different but nearby farms, begins at 7 a.m. or earlier and ends anywhere from 6 to, 9 p.m. Rain usually means a day off.

On Right Track

TORONTO (CP) — When Pierre Berton, author of The Last Spike, had his book launched at a party two years ago, radio announcer Jack Dennett mused that it would be nice to give Berton a piece of the CPR's original track. A piece was found, plated with gold and mounted on a marble base, and given to the author by Dennett and a group of friends recently.

Smugglers Get Strangers To Carry Their Parcels

BOMBAY (CP) — The well-dressed young man approached the grey-haired professor at Bombay railway station as the train was about to leave for Ahmedabad, capital of neighboring Gujarat state.

"Could you please hand over this package to my brother in Ahmedabad? It contains medicines," the young man said.

The kindly professor agreed. But he was surprised when two policemen entered his coach the next morning at Ahmebabad. They said they were from the prohibition squad.

The package contained two [illegible] professor had become an unwitting carrier of liquor into Ahmedabad, a strict prohibition area.

Police have warned travellers not to accept packages from strangers without first seeing what they contain. They say that perfectly law-abiding citizens are being used by criminal gangs to smuggle liquor, narcotics, French perfume, Swiss watches and Japanese textiles.

Under a new Indian government regulation, luxury articles made abroad can be owned only when there is a proper customs certificate to show they had been brought into the country legally.

Following stricter police measures to check smuggling, criminal gangs are adopting novel methods to get forbidden goods across state borders.

At the Maharashtra state border police make surprise checks of fisherwomen's baskets to find out if luxury articles unloaded from Arab dhows are being smuggled in via Gujarat state.

The Gujarat police stop ox-carts from Maharashtra to see if Japanese television sets are hidden below the mounds of fresh, sweet-smelling hay.

Several thousand dollars worth of smuggled goods are confiscated by the police every month.

Said a police official: "With the noose tightening, the gangs are becoming more and more clever. But we are also getting more and more knowledgeable."

A police official found two young men carrying big brass drums in a wedding procession in Bulsar, Gujarat state.

"Sherbet (fruit juice) for the women guests," they explained.

The drums were found to contain bewda, a fiery brew smuggled across the Maharashtra-Gujarat border.

Miss Teen Canada Is No Longer Shy

SASKATOON (CP) — Katherine Eckel used to feel shy when she had to talk to a crowd.

Now the 17-year-old Regina girl with shoulder-length, dark-brown hair is Miss Teen Canada, has a university scholarship, a new wardrobe, has taken a trip to the Bahamas and is on a cross-country tour. The tour began in Burlington, Ont., in June and will take her to every major city in Canada.

"It's great to have the scholarships to start me at University of Saskatchewan, but if I hadn't won the contest I'd have made the money by working this summer," said Kathy, with no trace of shyness.

"But it probably would have been years before I'd have travelled to all these places in Canada."

Kathy, who does some modelling, talks to people and signs autographs at her various stops, said elimination rounds in the Miss Teen Canada contest were largely academic.

Contestants had to write an exam containing questions about Canadian society, geographical features, the metric system and politics. For a short essay on My Favorite Canadian, Kathy chose John Diefenbaker as her subject "because I consider him to be the most politically important man of our time."

Kathy doesn't intend to wear her new wardrobe too often at university. "I'll be wearing jeans and T-shirts like everybody else."

She graduated this summer from an all-girls school in Regina where her father is a teacher. Her ultimate goal in university is dentistry, but it is subject to change.

Kathy sums up her reasons for entering the Miss Teen Canada pageant:

"I wouldn't be able to do anything that would get me a grant, so I took a chance on entering this competition to get the tuition money I needed.

"Some people work at one thing, some at another . . . whatever they're best at. I'm doing it my way, and loving every minute of it."

What if your pay cheque was late?

Your Intelligencer carrier is a young, independent businessman; he doesn't receive a pay cheque. His profit is the difference between the wholesale cost of his newspapers and the amount collected from his customers.
Most subscribers pay their carriers on the first call. But some people say "come back later" . . . and the carrier's profit is put off. It's like asking you to come back two or three times for your pay cheque.

Indians Require Choice of Future

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — The aim of any native education program must be to give Indian people a choice of futures, says Leroy Little Bear, newly-appointed co-ordinator of native American studies at the University of Lethbridge.

Mr. Little Bear says the newly-established Lethbridge program strives to provide relevance in native education to prepare native students either to return to their own people or to take up life in the white man's society.

At one time native students had to give up their way of life to fit into the white man's educational system.

"The result of this was that they couldn't go back to their old life . . . they didn't fit . . . they were strangers to their own people."

A recent reversal in this trend was the tendency of native education programs to teach native students only the kind of skills useful in a reserve situation.

Mr. Little Bear said the Lethbridge program will not take either extreme.

Instead, the four-year degree program will attempt to create an atmosphere where native students may learn without losing their heritage, while at the same time obtaining the option of learning skills useful in the larger society outside the reserve.

The co-ordinator said he feels the strength of the Lethbridge program lies in its strong ties to native people.

The initial idea for the program came from the Indian community of southern Alberta. Indian leaders and university administrators jointly planned the format and native leaders will continue to act as a steering committee for the program.

Courses offered will include classes in Indian culture, the native American in urban society, native American literature, aboriginal rights and contemporary Indian cultures.

Roy Cunningham, program counsellor and recruitment officer, said applications and inquiries have come from across Canada and an estimated 35 native people are expected to enrol in the program this fall.

"We also expect that a large number of our students will be non-native.

Salt Shortages Now In Ontario Stores

Salt hoarding and spotty shortages on supermarket shelves are appearing throughout Ontario in the wake of two prolonged strikes in the industry.

Miners and plant workers at the Canadian Salt Co. Ltd. in Windsor walked off the job April 28 to back contract demands. A month later workers at the Domtar-Sifto evaporator plant in Goderich left their jobs for the same reason. Both companies are still strike-bound.

Among those feeling the pinch are consumers searching for coarse pickling salt to put down summer produce.

Some retailers, uncertain that orders will be filled, have turned to the United States for supplies and are limiting customer purchases for household salt.

In Cambridge some boarding has been noticed and in Sarnia panic buying has resulted in an upsurge in sales by distributors.

Dave Harrack, grocery manager of Miracle Food Mart in Sarnia, said Tuesday many customers have purchased as much as eight pounds of table salt.

Spokesmen for canning firms in the Windsor area termed the situation "serious" saying they were forced to turn to U.S. and Maritime suppliers and face higher prices due to freight rates.

In Chatham canning factories reported no problem with salt shortages, saying they had enough to last through the processing season.

Ask Paper Workers To Deldy Strike

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — The management of Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co. Ltd. and Kimberly-Clarke of Canada Ltd. has asked paperworkers and electrical workers not to strike Thursday.

The 1,400 members of Locals 89 and 256, Canadian Paperworkers Union, and Local 1149, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, voted last week in favor of a strike.

In a joint statement, the companies said a strike would have a serious impact on all workers as well as the community, located about 80 miles northwest of Timmins.

The workers will be in a legal strike position Thursday after a no-board report was issued Aug. 15. Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co. Ltd. might institute a lock-out Thursday.

In a letter to employees, the companies stated that workers at a number of pulp and paper mills in Canada now are on strike and up to 24,000 workers are expected to be out by Sept. 15.

W. C. Findlay, Spruce Falls president, said in a letter that those involved in the various strikes would have to return to the bargaining table and try to reach a settlement that likely will become a pattern for others in the industry.

He said the Kapuskasing operations are not considered large enough to determine the pattern of a wage settlement for the entire paper indusry. Thus, a strike at Spruce Falls that migt last many months would not likely be settled until a clear pattern emerges elsewhere in the industry.

PC Candidate Claims No Fraud Intended

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — Rev. Randolph Villeneuve, a Roman Catholic priest and Conservative candidate for Cornwall in the Ontario general election, and his campaign manager, Jim Bredin, said Tuesday there was no intention to contravene the new election finance laws by placing a newspaper adveritsement last week.

Father Villeneuve's organization had placed an advertisement saying "Volunteers for Villeneuve" and "Help ensure a better future for the Cornwall riding."

Under the new law, a candidate or party may not advertise in the news media or on outdoor billboards until the last three weeks of an election campaign except to announce public meetings, announce headquarter locations or the services the constituency association will provide with regard to enumeration and revision of the voters' list.

Work for Young Created by Davis

VARNEY, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis announced Wednesday 1,000 new government jobs for Ontario's young people and called on provincial businessmen to follow his example.

He said, as he campaigned for the Sept. 18 Ontario election, that the jobs will be created without increasing the size of the public service.

The government announced earlier this year it hoped, through attrition, to hold civil service growth to zero during 1975.

If the government can create 1,000 jobs within these limitations, the Ontario business community can do far better, Mr. Davis said.

There is an urgent need to create employment in the under-24 age bracket, he said. The jobless total in this group had risen to 160,000 in Ontario, more than one-third of all persons under 24 who are looking for work in Canada.

Mr. Davis also announced that the province's summer student employment program, currently providing 7,500 summer jobs, will be expanded into a year-round program. But he did not indicate how many full-time jobs would be created.

PLAN STEPS

Other steps to ease the problems facing young people are also planned, he announced.

He said the Ontario Youth Secretariat, established in 1972, will be asked to work out a program with the ministry of colleges and universities to help graduating students fit into the work force.

The premier also said the government will establish a commission on productivity similar to an existing Ottawa agency.

It would include business, government and labor officials and would try to promote increased productivity in the economy.

The premier unveiled his job-creating plans at a morning meeting with Ontario Chamber of Commerce officials in Toronto. Details were added later in a written statement distributed to reporters covering his campaign.

After speaking to chamber officials, he left for a three-day southwestern Ontario tour that took him first to Bolton.

He delivered a stock campaign speech to a few dozen supporters at the Bolton Community Centre, shook hands with residents on the town's main street, moved on to Caledon East, Orangeville, Shelburne and then to this community, about 30 miles south of Owen Sound, where he stayed overnight.

In a series of short addresses, the premier attacked Liberal leader Robert Nixon, criticized federal attitudes toward Ontario, said his government has a good record and told voters that the Conservatives are the best party to form a new government.

The premier was given a generally friendly reception at all stops, but he was also given some advice.

"Don't be complacent," he was told by Isabel Armour in Bolton.

"Some Conservatives say they are goin'g to vote for the Liberals to reduce the Davis majority," she said.

Mr. Davis told reporters later that complacency is a recurring Conservative fear, but added his campaign schedule this time is as rigorous as always.

Peronist General Resigns

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Generals opposed to military participation in President Isabel Peron's government forced her Wednesday to accept the resignation of the army chief.

After 24 hours of tension, rumors of an impending military coup and intensive negotiations, Mrs. Peron accepted the resignation of Gen. Alberto Numa Laplane Wednesday night and named Gen. Jorge Rafael Videla, head of the joint chiefs of staff, to replace him.

Videla, 50, was one of the generals who forced Laplane to quit. He also is reported to have initiated the investigation that linked Mrs. Peron's former chief adviser, Jose Lopez Rega, to the right-wing assassination squads that have been active in recent months.

Political Crisis End Possible

LISBON (AP) — Portugal's ruling triumvirate conferred here today with the heads of the army, navy and air force and a presidential spokesman said the formation of a new government to overcome the long politcal crisis is possible.

Asked whether the triumvirate was discussing a new government, the spokesman said: "Probably, since that is a way of solving the current crisis."

The triumvirate includes President Francisco Costa Gomes, Prime Minister Vasco Goncalves and Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho.

Wednesday, the Communists brought out a crowd of 35,000 here to demonstrate in support of Goncalves, but the Socialists mustered 50,000 against him in the northern city of Oporto.

Davis Plans Area Visit Wednesday

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

Ontario Premier William Davis will visit Belleville next Wednesday for a reception at the Four Seasons Motor Hotel.

The premier's visit was announced Wednesday by James Taylor, Prince Edward-Lennox MPP and the Progressive Conservative candidate in that riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Fred Deacon, campaign manager for Tory candidate Robin Jeffrey in Quinte riding, said Conservative officials were to arrive in Belleville today to secure accommodation and devise an itinerary.

He said Mr. Davis will stay overnight and leave for Prince Edward-Lennox next Thursday.

Mr. Taylor said Premier Davis will arrive in Napanee next Thursday where he will visit the Tory committee rooms. Both men will then engage in some mainstreeting.

Later is the election campaign, provincial treasurer D'arcy McKeough will stop in Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

Only 50 per cent Attend Church

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

God's not the only one who may have been keeping an eye on you this summer.

BOB BAILEY

Bob Bailey, a Belleville bible college student, spent the past summer trying to find out how many persons go to church, which church and why.

To do his survey, Mr. Bailey and other students from Elim Bible Institute in New York State, visited over 1,500 Belleville homes.

"People were quite honest with me. There's quite a few people who don't go (to church) at all," said Mr. Bailey.

Figures indicate about 50 per cent of those interviewed go to church reqularly. About 25 to 30 per cent go to church once or twice a year. About 20 per cent of the persons surveyed do not go at all.

"I expected more people to be church goers than I thought. Some people were rather embarrassed when they told me."

The survey was sponsored by Quinte Christian Charitable Assoication, an inter-denominational group.

Association secretary Ted Milliken said Mr. Bailey chose a survey area that would be representative of a cross-section of persons.

Mr. Bailey said the type of person who never goes to church is not related to age or income.

One question in the survey asked persons if they would like to be visited by a minister of their denomination.

The largest percentage of persons requesting visits did not request a specific denomination. A lot of elderly people said they wanted someone to visit them."

Mr. Bailey said results of the survey make him even more determined to succeed in bible college.

Israeli-Egyptian Accord May Be Signed Sunday

JERUSALEM (AP) — Most of the new Israeli-Egyptian agreement is settled, a senior United States official said Wednesday, and the pact may be initialed by the two governments Sunday or Monday.

U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger flew here from Alexandria Wednesday night for more talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the rest of the Israeli negotiating team. The U.S. official said a few clauses "of at least symbolic significance" remained.

Kissinger will fly back to Egypt today with latest Israeli reaction to the draft agreement.

"We are continuing to move forward," Kissinger told reporters after a two-hour meeting with the Israelis Wednesday night. "The number of issues that remain are relatively small. There are problems of details of some significance."

U.S. sources said one point still to be settled is the number of U.S.-manned electronic surveillance posts to be stationed around the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes to give warning of military operations once Israel has pulled back to a new defence line.

Israel originally sought about six posts, but now has limited its demand to two or three. In addition, Israel and the U.S. would operate a post on the Egyptian side of the Gidi pass while Egypt and the U.S. would man one on the Israeli side.

Israel is insisting on the presence of the U.S. to avert a recurrence of Egypt's expulsion of the United Nations buffer force in the Sinai Desert just before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Under the new agreement, the U.S. staff would be removed only if both Israel and Egypt approved.

Subject to congressional approval, the posts would be manned by a total of about 100 U.S. technicians armed with sidearms, U.S. sources said. They would be recruited from private industry and from former employees of the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency, the sources said.

Portuguese Mission Seeks Peace Talks

DARWIN, Australia (CP) — Members of a Portuguese peace mission who flew today to the island of Atauro, 30 miles off war-torn Portuguese Timor, were hopeful that leaders of the rival factions would meet with them there.

The colonial government fled to Atauro Wednesday as fighting intensified in Dili, the capital of the island territory 525 miles northwest of here.

Consul-General Jose Mellow-Gouveia, the spokesman for the peace mission, was asked whether the group might go to Timor. He said it would depend on safety conditions.

Hundreds of persons have been reported killed in more than two weeks of fighting between the Timorese Democratic Union (UDT) and the Revolutionary Front for Independent East Timor (Fretilin). They are battling to take over the territory, which the Portuguese government had promised independence in two years.

Mellow-Gouveia said his government has been unable to establish contact with the rival factions and has no indication whether their leaders will go to Atauro to meet the mission.

Meanwhile, the Portuguese government in Lisbon reported that warships from Indonesia, which controls the western part of Timor, were close to Dili.

Indonesia offered to help in an evacuation of refugees but the offer was considered unnecessary by the governor, Col. Lemos Pires.

A small evacuation ship, the MacDill, was on its way here with 750 refugees.

The ship's captain said six refugees were seriously wounded and several children were killed on the docks in Dili while scrambling aboard.

Terrorists Wound 33 People

LONDON (AP) — Police here are searching for terrorists who bombed a crowded discotheque bar Wednesday night in the nearby garrison town of Caterham, wounding 33 persons.

Sources close to the Irish Republican Army (IRA) denied that the group was involved. But there was widespread speculation it was a protest by the IRA Provisionals' British Brigade against a statement by Britain's minister for Northern Ireland, Merlyn Rees, that Britain will not abandon the province.

It was the first bombing on the British mainland since the Provisionals declared a ceasefire Feb. 10.

Lawyer Questions Dog Scents

DETROIT (AP) — A lawyer for James Hoffa's foster son, Charles O'Brien, says a report that police dogs uncovered the scent of the missing ex-Teamsters boss in a car O'Brien used the day Hoffa disappeared is not a "meaningful development."

"I find it difficult to believe it's of any real significance," said James Burdick. "How reliable can dogs be?"

The Free Press reports in a copyright story that tests by experts using trained dogs have led federal officials to believe that Hoffa had recently been in the back seat and trunk of a car owned by Joseph Giacalone, 20, son of reputed Mafia figure Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone.

Medical Care Costs Will Be Shared: Lang

SASKATOON (CP) Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang says Ottawa has no intention of getting out of cost-sharing arrangements with the provinces to finance hospital and medical care programs.

Mr. Lang told a Liberal Party policy meeting Wednesday night that the only way the federal government could get provincial officials to discuss ways to limit growing hospital costs was to threaten to withdraw from the hospital cost-sharing agreement.

Ottawa was concerned with growing costs and wanted too negotiate ways to limit the increases, he said.

The federal government anounced it was terminating the agreement in its June 23 budget. Since then, provincial representatives across Canada have said this means Ottawa is planning to get out of the cost-shared programs and place the entire financial burden on the provinces.

"The provinces know, although you wouldn't know it to hear them talk, that we have no intention of stopping to share in hospital costs," Mr. Lang told a questioner.

Six Injured

Cleveland, Ohio, police said six persons were injured, none seriously, when a section of a Cleveland street collapsed Tuesday after heavy rains swept across southeastern Ohio. The six were city workers attempting to repair a broken water main. There was no immediate explanation as to the nature of the trench below the pavement. (CP Photo)

New Shopping Complex Started

A new $1,000,000 shopping and office complex has been started on North Front St. At present most of the excavation has been completed at the site which will have a floor area of 30,000 square feet. To be called Belleville Centre, it will house medical offices in the basement, commercial stores on the main floor and more offices in the second storey. Lawrence Mizne, spokesman for the developer, Nedlar Development Corp. of Toronto, said space is still available in the centre which is expected to be completed by February next year.

Labor Pool Takes Aim At Farm Worker Shortage

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

The Canada Farm Labor Pool (CFLP) is an attempt by the federal government to assist farmers in need of workers.

The program is designed to unite farmers with laborers, not only during the peak picking seasons but whenever there is a shortage of agriculture workers.

"We want to encourage the local workers to seek jobs in agriculture," said Leo McDonald, manager of the farm labor pool for Durham and Northumberland Counties.

"These farmers need workers and there are people in the area who might make good employees and don't realize the good money they can earn as pickers," he said.

The agency is designed to organize the agricultural labor market and provide more stability to seasonal occupations.

"The farmers need experienced help", said Arthur Cornish farm labor representative for the local office in Brighton.

"'It's important for them to have workers able to pick properly to protect their investment because the workers are paid at least the minimum wage of $2.50 an hour whether they pick four bushels or one bushel of apples," Mr. Cornish said.

The program has a provision whereby the government will reimburse farmers for "up to four days worker orientation pay" when they hire inexperienced employees during peak periods.

Many of the area farmers import workers from the Caribbean through a Manpower and Immigration "'off-shore" program which has supplied more than 4,000 workers for Ontario so far this year.

The CFLP is operated by local residents under contract with the minister of manpower and is responsible for planning a program to meet the needs of the area.

The program also can arrange with local Canada Manpower Centres for more intensive training for workers, such as courses in dairy farm techniques and the operation and maintenance of farm equipment.

The labor pool provides financial assistance to help pay room and board for workers for periods up to three days when they can't work because of inclement weather or because they have arrived to work on a farm and the employer is not ready to provide accommodation.

Driver Charged

ROSSMORE — A Belleville man was charged with careless driving early today by the Picton Detachment of the provincial police following a one-car mishap on County Road 28 at Rossmore.

Charged is Ernest Clarke, 19 Police said a car was westbound on County Road 3 when it failed to negotiate an intersection at County Road 28, skidded and struck a mail box.

A passenger in the car James Miller, 18 of Belleville was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with a concussion.

Damage to the Clarke vehicle was estimated by police at $700.

Trenton Domtar Won't Close

TRENTON — The recent closing of a Domtar plant in Cornwall will have no effect on the company's operations in Trenton, said Frank MacKenzie, local manager.

"The announced closing of the plant in Cornwall not only doesn't effect our particular operation but it is no way an indication of our future plans," he said, Wednesday afternoon.

In January, 1975 the Domtar plant here which manufactures cardboard for cartons, reduced its operating week from a full seven days to the current five-day schedule.

"We hope to return to the seven-day week when business warrants the conversion, but we will continue to work this schedule unit we have the orders requiring the switchback," Mr. MacKenzie said.

Taylor Praises Youth For Campaign Role

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Committee rooms for James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox, Progressive Conservative candidate in the Sept. 18 provincial election were opened here Wednesday in a brief ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The ribbon was snipped by Jean Ostrander of the Progressive Conservatives Women's Association assited by Sherry Wight of the Prince Edward Young Progressive Conservatives.

After the committee rooms were opened Martha Blower, president of the young progressive Conservatives presented Dwight Reynolds chief financial officer for the Tories here with a cheque for $100. The money was raised by the youth group through car washes, bake sales and other fund-raising projects.

"Its more than a cheque, its the backing that you give," observed James Taylor in thanking the young Progressive Conservatives.

He said the group typify young persons thinking in terms of their community and the type of government he subscribes to.

"'You have a tremendous role to play in this campaign," he told the student group.

In brief remarks to persons attending the committee room opening Mr. Taylor pledged "not just a victory but a resounding victory to demonstrate forcefully the type of backing we have."

"'I am committed to this riding and to seeing that we stand out as an important and vital part of Ontario and are listened to where decisions are made," he said.

Streamer Snipped

A Tory streamer of blue and gold was snipped at the Picton committee rooms of James Taylor MLA Prince Edward-Lennox Wednesday night by Jean Ostrander of the Progressive Conservatives Women's Association. She was assisted by Sherry Wight of the Young Progressive Conservatives.

Harvesting the Labor Crop

Arthur Cornish, farm labor representative for the Brighton Labor Pool is spending many hours trying to match the labor force with local farmers worker needs. The Canada Farm Labor Pool, of which he is an employee, was created to allow direct contact between farmers and prospective employees for the peak picking season.

Proposed Snake Farm Issue To Go Before Athol Council

ATHOL — Athol Township council will meet on Labor Day with a group of community residents concerned with the location of a reptile conservation centre near Cherry Valley.

Township reeve Keith Perry said this week council can take no action to prevent the centre from locating as Athol lacks zoning bylaws.

Already a building permit has been granted for a 7,000 square foot cement block building to house facilities for the project proposed by Toronto resident Geoffery Gaberty.

Prince Edward County planner Riazuddin Ahmed said Wednesday if Athol did have a zoning bylaw it could not be generally restrictive against reptiles.

If the township were zoned, however, the reptile centre could have been restricted from residential areas.

Mr. Ahmed said the township could be marked out in permanent residential and farm residential areas.

He added that all Prince Edward Townships have been advised by the county planning board to use the preliminary drafts for zoning bylaws that have been forwarded to them.

The planner said that it would take time, however, for the townships to study these drafts.

Mr. Ahmed said he is available at all times to advise the townships and the planning board could assist them in preparing zoning bylaws at a minimum cost.

He noted that none of Prince Edward's townships has a zoning bylaw but Ameliasburg does have a draft prepared.

The planner said the planning board asked specific questions when approached by the group interested in a reptile centre.

Most of the snakes would be non-poisonous and some would be sold to zoos, he observed.

Horse Draw New Event

PICTON — The Prince Edward County Fall Fair will be officially opened Friday night, Sept. 5, by Mrs. Ronald Hamilton of RR2, Trenton president of the women's section of the Ontario Association of Agricultural Societies.

It will be the first time in the fair's 130-year history that a woman has officially presided at the opening.

A special program has been planned in front of the grandstand on opening night beginning with a team drawing contest. It will be the first time team drawing competition has been held here.

Prize monies totalling $350 are offerred for classes divided into middle-and-heavy-weights.

The middleweight division is open to horses under 3,300 lbs. and the heavy weight division to animals weighing over 3,300 lbs.

Length of the draw of a loaded stone boat will be 15 feet with the load increasing with each pull until a winning team is declared.

Three chances will be given to each team to complete the draw.

Drivers may urge their teams by voice but regulations prohibit cursing, swinging of lines and beating of horses with ends of lines while they are being hitched or while they are drawing.

Three minutes will be allowed to hitch teams. The teamster must stand behind the whiffletrees and cannot push or slap the horses with his hands.

The midway, this year, will be provided by Happyland Shows.

The first Prince Edward County fair was held in 1831 and since 1953, the fairs have been rated Class B.

Pigeons and Tourists Only August Signs of Life on Parliament Hill

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — It happens every year, the dead-stop August silence on Parliament Hill.

If it was not for the tourists and the pigeons, the great sandstone and marble Centre Block would make a spendid mausoleum.

Makes you wonder every year if Parliament, after all, is dispensable . . . or indispensable.

Things happen and then nothing happens as a result.

Things important to the public interest, but there's no reaction.

Prime Minister Trudeau proclaimed the "stark reality" of the Canadian economy teetering on the brink of breakdown.

And then he vanished into the Gatineau Hills, the Laurentians and the wilderness of the canoe country.

Finance Minister Turner disappeared into the sun of the Caribbean.

The rest of the cabinet dropped from sight and sound into holiday haunts, with only Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey and Science Minister Bud Drury breaking the cover of privacy . . . and even they avoided the phone.

And if anybody bothers to look, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield was not in sight. Not that it made that much difference.

But still things happened . . . and then nothing happened.

Like former Master of the Royal Canadian Mint, Gordon Hunter, as good as saying — even making it pretty clear in writing — that Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer had nagged him into the desperation of premature retirement.

Gordon Hunter just happened to be one of the federal bureaucracy's best brains — he had to be, since in his day he had been financial adviser to the late, great C.D. Howe, former Prime Minister Mackenzie King's "minister of everything."

Gordon Hunter took for 36 years whatever a succession of cabinet bosses through Prime Ministers King, St. Laurent, Diefenbaker, Pearson, and for a time, Trudeau, could dish out.

But he could not take Jean-Pierre Goyer.

For Goyer, although he had to know less about the Mint than Hunter, insisted on staffing and equipping it.

He pushed bilingualism in the new Winnipeg Mint to the point where he pushed out the Master.

And Goyer got away with it.

Just like he got away with saying, when he was Solicitor General, that rehabilitation of the criminal was more important than protection of society.

Then Jean-Pierre Goyer, for encores, proclaimed that the government's cheque clearing centre — it processes 130 million federal cheques annually — would be uprooted from Ottawa and transplanted in Matane, in the remote Gaspe.

The Ottawa operation is bilingual.

In Matane it will be unilingual French.

A staff of 230 is involved.

Jean-Pierre says the 230 can move to Matane or new government jobs will be found for them in Ottawa — with, of course, a tick entered against them in their personnel file indicating "resistance to transfer" with all that means to future promotion.

But with everybody in Parliament taking August out, Jean-Pierre gets away with it. Again.

And then, all in a matter of a few days came that controversial Senate appointment for Prime Minister Trudeau's storm-centered chief of staff, Jack Austin.

Any other time but August with Parliament not merely on holiday, but in a very real sense completely copped out, there would have been a royal Canadian uproar.

There have been charges — in Parliament and out — that Jack Austin, a West Coast mining promoter and former federal deputy energy minister, had used the Prime Minister's office, phones and letterhead in fighting a personal tax dispute.

He denied any conflict of interest, claiming with candor that the government couldn't recruit "virgins with experience" for business-related top bureaucratic jobs.

In a word, Jack Austin, saying he was no "virgin," clearly couldn't remain as Trudeau's chief of staff.

So the Prime Minister put him beyond reach, safe in the Senate, insulated from political reproach, cozy on a fat public-paid salary for 32 easy years and then the final reward of a fine pension.

But nobody said boo for there wasn't anyone around to say anything.

Jeffrey Qualifies

Robin Jeffrey, Hugh O'Neil, and Carson McLauchlan are all good candidates for the Quinte riding seat vacated by Dr. Richard Potter to be filled in the Sept. 18 provincial election.

The reason Robin Jeffrey appears to be the most qualified of these three candidates is that she already knows how to do much of the work that is required of a member of the legislature.

In eight years of municipal government experience, nearly three as mayor of Belleville, Mrs. Jeffrey acquired a great deal of knowledge about the workings of provincial government. Her awareness of the process of applying for city grants for everything from sewers to recreational parks gave Mrs. Jeffrey invaluable contacts with nearly every ministry at Queen's Park.

The channels of communication that she has opened between Toronto and Belleville as mayor would benefit her as a member of the legislature representing this area.

It is significant that, on her final day as Belleville mayor, Mrs. Jeffrey led a city delegation to seek funds for the Quinte Sports Centre that was favorably received by representatives of two provincial agencies involved.

Her attendance at various municipal conferences also has given Mrs. Jeffrey insight into the problems faced by communities of all sizes, from rural hamlets like Frankford to urban centres like Trenton and Belleville.

In connection with the latter two municipalities, it is interesting to note that Mrs. Jeffrey thinks in terms of a Quinte community, rather than a geographical area in which everything gravitates towards Belleville.

Both overt and oblique references have been made, first during her campaign for the Progressive Conservative riding nomination, and now for the legislative position itself, that Trenton would somehow benefit having a "native son" at Queen's Park.

But Mrs. Jeffrey is steadfast in her conviction that what is good for Trenton is good for Belleville, and vice versa. She knows Trenton's problems. Her participation in the Quinte Planning Board is just one way in which Mrs. Jeffrey has been able to acquaint herself with Trenton as it relates to the rest of the area.

In short, Mrs. Jeffrey already possesses something which neither of her two opponents could acquire before Sept. 18 — practical political experience.

Products Lack Pre-Testing

Last April a 13-year-old Don Mills boy sniffed Pam, a cooking oil spray.

He died.

Monday a Toronto pathologist told an inquest the boy's lung lining had been destroyed. Tests showed that the combination of the ingredients in Pam produced a mist much more deadly than any one ingredient alone.

Now there are lessons for us here, which go far beyond the isolated death of one boy who grossly misused a product which, we do not doubt is highly efficient for producing the results for which it was designed.

One of the first facts which emerges from the testimony of the pathologist, Dr. D. C. Fagan, is that the combination of relatively safe ingredients can combine to make a deadly product. There is nothing new about this. Every high school chemistry student knows this. But it needs to be remembered, particularly when we are dealing with substances in forms which do not occur in nature.

Secondly, dangers can be under-estimated, even when they are discovered. A new Pam, without one of its former ingredients, has now been put on the market, but Dr. Fagan says he believes it would be just as toxic as the old version, although he cannot categorically state this to be true.

Thirdly, with every new product there arise questions to which no quick answers are possible. Dr. Fagan is reported to have said that, while the greatest danger is from inhaling the spray mist, there may exist a chronic health hazard in prolonged normal use because of other substances in the spray cans.

Of course, there have been other alarms about aerosol cans and the freon which is the propellant they use.

Alarms about this and that threat to health are heard almost constantly. Many of them are nine-day wonders, rightly or wrongly soon forgotten and ignored.

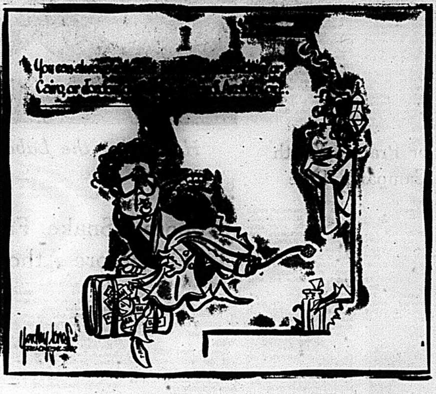
How many people are still using those lead-poisoning electric kettles? How many people really believe that the Indians in the James Bay area will permanently cease eating fish naturally permeated with mercury, a food on which they have depended, apparently without harmful effects, for many generations?

But surely there is ample reason to require that, where man's genius produces any substance not found in nature, its sale to the public should require a licence and a licence should only be issued after adequate government testing, the cost of which testing, of course, should be defrayed by the would-be manufacturer of the new product?

Get a Horse!

Ottawa Journal

"It has been calculated," writes Peter King in Transport magazine, Canada, "that if one were to sum up the total time that driving consumes, which includes the time taken to get licences, time watching television advertisements to buy cars, time for service station calls, time for insurance and accidents, and one divides that total time by the total distance travelled, the average speed the North American driver achieves is 2½ m.p.h., a speed slower than the average man walking." As they used to say, get a horse.



Lawyer Critical of Colleagues

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

A lawyer actually criticizing his own profession?

It sounds like a man-bites-dog story, but it happened the other day at the Canadian Bar Association's annual meeting in Quebec City.

Lawyer Robert Cooper of Montreal blamed his colleagues for the fact that many Canadians seldom think of consulting a lawyer about a legal problem.

Mr. Cooper is "ombudsman" on a CBC-TV program that attracts more than 1,000 complaints a month from people who are apparently reluctant to take their problems to a lawyer of their own.

One out of every four complaints reaching the CBC's ombudsman concerns unemployment insurance or workmen's compensation. Mr. Cooper maintains that lawyers are not meeting the need to inform the public of their rights in such areas.

Yet that should be the first responsibility of the legal profession, declared the Provincial Bank of Canada's monthly newsletter in a thoughtful essay on the law and the courts:

"Above all, the role of the lawyer or notary is to provide information—helping people to know the nature and the extent of their rights and obligations, before accepting the mandate to defend those rights by legal procedures or in court."

If you need legal advice and don't know a lawyer, you could begin by asking relatives, friends or neighbors to recommend a lawyer with whom they have dealt.

(The trouble with that method is that your cousin may highly recommend a lawyer who handled an impaired-driving charge competently but may not be experienced in the field that concerns you at the moment).

In some provinces, the legal profession maintains a service that will provide you with names of local lawyers experienced in the aspect of the law that deals with your problem.

In Ontario, for instance, the Law Society of Upper Canada's lawyer referral service is available by telephone at Toronto, London and Ottawa. Participating lawyers charge no more than $10 for the first half-hour interview, which gives both client and lawyer a good chance to assess what can be done about the case.

Or you can simply walk into a law office, tell the receptionist the nature of your legal problem, and be directed to a specialist.

If you choose this method, the first thing you may realize—from the furnishings and the thick carpeting—is that legal expertise is not likely to come cheap.

Maintaining a dignified relationship with a client is important to any professional—which rules out haggling about fees.

On the other hand, you have a right to know what you are getting into, and should not allow your questions about costs to be put off with vague dismissals.

Ascertain the basis on which your lawyer's fee is calculated. If it's on a flat hourly rate, how much is it? (It will depend partly upon the seniority of the lawyer). What is the lawyer's fee for court appearances?

Pay special attention to the cost of non - court services, where the lawyer has much greater latitude in setting a fee.

As your case progresses, your lawyer should keep you informed of developments. Don't call your lawyer unnecessarily—you will be billed—but don't stew in silence for an unreasonable length of time.

You will pay for everything the lawyer does on your behalf. That in itself is a good reason not to enter into legal proceedings lightly.

Remember, however, that it's false economy to dispense with a lawyer when one is clearly needed. And fees for some legal services—discharging a mortgage, for instance—can be surprisingly modest.

When you turn your case over to a lawyer, turn over your worries as well, and try to turn off your emotional involvement. That's the way to get full value for your legal fees.

Getting Sinclair Smart NDP Move

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The NDP gets credit for the first really smart move in the campaign.

They got Gordon Sinclair to interview Stephen Lewis for the party's free-time telecasts over the CBC provincial network.

This almost automatically ensures them the biggest audiences these free-time shows have ever had.

Sinclair is a big draw and assurance of a good show.

Also his incisive and often abrasive style of questioning does get out answers.

And the answers are most often to questions that are on the public mind.

Lewis is probably the only one of the three leaders who could handle well shows such as this.

The premier would probably be able to provide answers, but they likely would be partial and indecisive and he would risk the probability of coming across as both coy and evasive.

Bob Nixon, from what we know of him, would perhaps lose his temper within a few minutes. And if he didn't, he might have such a job controlling it that he could register as fumbling.

But Lewis with his quick mind and wit, and his new relaxed attitude, should score well.

He won't win on every point by any means.

You just don't do that with Sinclair.

But over-all he will get across his mental ability, which is his greatest strength.

And he has the knack of speaking in a tone of confidence he may be able to do a good selling job on his party.

They should be good shows. There are four of them in all, of 15 minutes each. The first one is next Tuesday.

A Toronto columnist did a piece last week in which he said that Bob Nixon was "on the defensive."

The piece was put together before the writer had really seen Nixon in action, and after doing so he probably had second thoughts.

Rather than being on the defensive, the Liberal leader is very much on the offensive.

In the very early days of the campaign he was on the defensive on the integrity issue. But since then he has been almost entirely aggressive.

A big Nixon problem is that he is a poor speech reader. When he is winging it off the cuff, he registers. But when he switches to a prepared text he stiffens up.

Amazing Goncalves Clinging To Power

By KEVIN DOYLE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The amazing tenacity of Portuguese Premier Vasco Goncalves in clinging to office far longer than most observers anticipated seems to be a direct result of the ominous divisions which split his angry opponents.

And to most experts, the depths of these schisms and the intense bitterness they have generated appear far more threatening for the future of embattled Portugal than does the eventual fate of Goncalves.

The confusing array of anti-Goncalves forces are united in knowing what they don't want—his brand of authoritarian communism based on Eastern European models—but seem to have no clear idea whatever of what they can agree on as a replacement.

The political ideologies now motivating the various rioting factions in Portugal range in bewildering numbers from the far right to the far left and even within each extreme there seem to be serious conflicts.

Many of the groups existed underground prior to the April, 1974, military coup which overthrew the former dictator, Marcello Caetano, and have since emerged in strength to begin consolidating their grip on various parts of the society.

The most significant of these are Marxist-oriented pro-Peking groups who present themselves as alternatives to the more traditional Communist and Socialist parties and seem to be gaining strength among soldiers, workers and peasants.

Basically, they want an immediate transfer of power to the workers without the formation of any parties.

The Communist party, which managed to gain only 12.5 per cent of the popular vote in April elections for a powerless constitutional assembly, is modelled along Soviet lines but it has been trying to move in step with more moderate elements and appears less intent on a quick switch to workers' control.

The extreme right is represented in the Social Democratic Centre and includes elements from the old Caetano regime. It is reported to be maintaining close links with highly-conservative groups in other Western countries and is an avid supporter of continuing Portugal's membership in the NATO alliance.

Somewhere in the middle of the ideological spectrum are the Socialist and Popular Democrat parties which are stridently opposed to the revolutionaries, the Communists and the right-wing bloc.

These divisions are serious enough in themselves but they are given dramatic added importance by the fact they are reflected in the 240-man Armed Forces Movement charged with setting over-all government policy.

The vacillation of President Francisco da Costa Gomes in dealing with the Goncalves problem during the last week, observers believe, has been a direct reflection of his fear that a hasty move in almost any direction now runs the risk of sparking a coup by one of the military factions.

But the most serious issue is that this fear has created a kind of paralysis in all fields of policy, adding to the pressures on the fragile and battered social structure and casting even more gloom over predictions for the future of Portugal.

Cooling Off

Portugal's Communists and Socialists Bid for Biggest Crowd in Demonstration

LISBON (AP) — The Communists brought out a crowd of 35,000 here to demonstrate in support of Premier Vasco Goncalves, but the Socialists mustered 50,000 against him in the northern city of Oporto.

"This is a critical moment," Goncalves told supporters Wednesday night at the presidential palace here. "The central problem is power. There is an acute struggle for power."

President Francisco da Costa Gomes, who has the authority to dismiss Goncalves, also spoke at the rally, but he failed to give the premier his explicit backing.

Instead, Costa Gomes said the country's development requires participation "of all political forces."

The crowd, waving hammer-and-sickle banners, responded with catcalls, boos and whistling.

The Socialists, Portugal's largest party, resigned from the government last month and are opposed strongly to Gen. Goncalves and his supporters.

Meanwhile, anti-Communist violence continued in the countryside. Two Communist party members were wounded in an attack on their headquarters in Esmoriz. A mob burned a party headquarters in Leiria. Farmers in Rio Maior trapped a caravan of cars filled with armed Communists and turned them over to the national guard.

A Lisbon newspaper reported that army officers on Madeira, the Portuguese island 600 miles southwest of here, have advised Costa Gomes the population there is likely to declare independence if the "minority unpopular central government continues in office."

A similar independence movement is already strong in the Azores, Portugal's other Atlantic islands.

Want Planned Group To Join United Ways

TORONTO (CP) — A committee of trustees of the Toronto board of education recommended Wednesday that the board ask the United Way to admit Planned Parenthood of Toronto as a member for the 1975 fund-raising campaign.

The personnel and organization committee also voted to reaffirm the board's support for the 1975 campaign regardless of whether Planned Parenthood is admitted this year.

Barry Rose, president of the United Community Fund which operates the United Way, told trustees that Planned Parenthood was persuaded to withdraw its 1975 application after Roman Catholic community leaders privately objected.

He said the Catholic leaders presented "documenattion" supporting their objecitons to the abortion counselling services of Planned Parenthood.

After discussions with the Catholic leaders, "we were certainly aware we might not receive the volunteer and financial support we have received in the past," Mr. Rose said.

Abductor Ordered To Seek Help

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A man who abducted a radio station receptionist at knifepoint June 30 was ordered Wednesday to seek psychiatric help under the supervision of a probation officer.

Theo Soucie, formerly of Rodney, Ont., received a two-year suspended sentence from Judge Glenn Marshman after pleading guilty to a charge of abduction in provincial court.

Judge Marshman said the psychiatric assistance was recommended in a report from the St. Thomas Psychiatric Hospital where Soucie had undergone assessment prior his court appearance.

Soucie was remanded to the hospital July 2 after medical testimony showed he had been emotionally upset for several weeks and had sought help before the incident.

Soucie was taken into custody by city police about 6:30 p.m. June 30, 3½ hours after a man wielding a hunting knife confronted receptionist Bruna Ingrassia in the offices of CFPL Radio.

He was later overpowered by police.

Opinions Vary On Commonwealth Worth

REGINA (CP)—Members of parliaments and legislatures in the Commonwealth expressed varied reasons Tuesday for their belief in the benefits of meetings of the Commonwealth Parliamentary Association.

At a meeting of the association's Canadian branch, Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney said such meetings help national unity at a time when "the regional pulls, the pulls away from the centre, are stronger than they've been in decades."

But Robert Burns of the Parti Quebecois likes the sessions because other legislators find the Parti Quebecois members can be talked with reasonably and that the dialogue will lessen the rancor involved in any separation of Quebec from the rest of the country.

Nova Scotia Premier Gerald Regan said the association is the "strongest single force keeping the Commonwealth together."

Donald Stewart, deputy speaker of the council of the Northwest Territories, said contact with other legislators will help territorial politicians design a government if the territories attain provincial status.

British Labor MP Jack Dormand, one of the few participants from outside Canada, said the reputation of the British House of Commons had been lowered by scandals but recent experiments with radio broadcast of Commons proceedings appeared to be one remedy.

"I am quite convinced . . . that it is a good thing and that the prestige of politics and politicians has been increased."

The gathering winds up today.

Labor Board Not Bound By Union Constitutions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Labor Relations Boardhas ruled in a recent decision that it will not be bound by the provisions of union constitutions in determining membership of collective bargaining units.

The decision concerned denied the International Union of Operating Engineers (IUOE) certification rights to a group of heavy equipment operators working on the Dempster Highway project in the Yukon.

The union application excluded a substantial minority of non-operating support staff on the project such as truck drivers, cooks and others.

Kent Plaintiffs Appeal Decision

CLEVELAND (AP) — Plaintiffs are expected to appeal a federal grand jury's decision which found Ohio Gov. James Rhodes and 28 other persons not responsible for the Kent State Univeristy shootings of 1970.

The wounded and the survivors of four students killed in the shootings were seeking $46 million in damages.

"The last day of the Kent trial has not occurred," lawyer Joseph Kelner said Wednesday after the jury absolved Rhodes and 28 other current and former state officials and Ohio National Guardsmen of liability in the shootings.

Kelner predicted that the jury's verdict, announced on the fifth day of deliberations following 15 weeks of testimony, will be reversed by a higher court.

U.S. District Judge Don Young and lawyers for the 29 defendants, as well as some of the defendants themselves, acknowledged that the case probably has not been finally resolved.

Rights of Witnesses Questioned

QUEBEC (CP) — Trial witnesses need protection from involuntarily incriminating themselves, a workshop at the Canadian Bar Association (CBA) was told Wednesday.

Participants in the criminal justice section panel voiced concern that the rights of witnesses are being subordinated to those of the accused.

They agreed that lawyers and jurists should attempt to define the rights of witnesses but differed substantially on how these rights could be adequately safeguarded.

Victoria lawyer Cecil Barnston said witnesses should have access to counsel while testifying.

"The witness should have someone who will stand up and advise him not to answer a question," he said.

Mr. Barnston said this was necessary because no statutes specify that witnesses must be protected.

As a result, many judges and prosecutors do not advise witnesses of their rights, he said.

Dr. Allan Mewett, a professor at the University of Toronto law school, said drastic changes were not needed.

Jury Wants Sprinklers Installed

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury recommended Wednesday that sprinkler systems should be installed in all Ontario hotels and commercial establishments.

The jury also said there should be a minimum number of heat and smoke detectors installed if sprinklers prove to be impractical.

The inquest was held into the deaths of Audrey Birch, 61, and John Whittaker, 34, in a $1-million blaze at the Wellington Hotel July 7.

The recommendation for sprinklers was suggested by Don Reeds, an investigator for the Ontario fire marshal's office, who said the fire smouldered and spread in a false ceiling and an elevator shaft for at least an hour.

Five Airborne Policemen Make Ontario Roads Safer

TORONTO (CP) — Part of John Moore's job is to make hawk-like circles in the sky until he spots a victim and swoops down for the kill.

But in Mr. Moore's case, the swooping he does often prevents a kill.

He is an airborne traffic policeman with Ontario Provincial Police (OPP). Statistics show that when Mr. Moore or one of the five other airborne policemen in the province watch a highway from 2,500 feet, travellers have a 50-per-cent smaller chance of being involved in an accident.

The OPP has used small aircraft in traffic enforcement for 10 years and the system works so well police forces around the world have visited Toronto to learn the method for their own countries, T. H. Craig, head of the force's traffic division said.

"I'm sure the public thinks we have hundreds of planes out there because they think every time they see a small plane near a highway it's us," Mr. Craig said.

"That's great," he said. "It's as good as having hundreds of planes because the result is that people drive more sensibly."

In fact the aircraft coevr only 1,800 of the 10,000 miles of provincial highways in Ontario.

The planes survey highways showing above-average accident rates. Working with two cruisers sitting two miles apart on a highway, an aircraft averages a traffic violation charge every nine minutes, he said.

"There are days we can line up five or six cars on the shoulder waiting for tickets," said Mr. Moore, a spotter in the aircraft flying out of Toronto. The other five fly from Sudbury, Ottawa, Barrie, Hamilton and London.

The OPP uses signs along the highway to warn travellers that they may be watched from the sky. It's a courtesy, not a requirement, Mr. Craig said.

Many drivers notice the white T-shaped marks painted on the edge of the pavement a quarter of a mile apart. The number of seconds it takes a vehicle to move between the marks tells the spotter how fast the car is travelling.

Mr. Moore said the kind of car pulled over most often is a brown station wagon.

"I don't know what the reason is.

Moose in Alberta Are Wearing Ties

SWAN HILLS, Alta. (CP)— The last time you saw a moose wearing a tie may have been in the old Bullwinkle cartoons.

In a 100-square-mile area around Roche Lake in north-western Alberta a lot of moose are wearing ties — bright yellow and red ones.

The ties actually are six-inch-wide collars made of leather belting. They could mean better hunting in the future by helping wildlife workers achieve better species management.

The collars have small transmitters built into them and send out a steady beep, allowing wildlife officers with receivers to pinpoint the location of the animal. As large as they are, moose normally can move through bush without being spotted by man.

Keeping track of moose movement is part of wildlife biologist Gerry Lynch's study of the animal. He is trying find the best approach to managing the beasts.

The project started in 1970 to determine the impact of hunting on moose population. This idea gave way to a broader field — management of the species.

Mr. Lynch is trying to find what environmental factors cause moose movement, if moose move from poor feeding grounds to good ones, how far they go to winter range, and a whole series of like questions.

If answers are found, better hunting may be the result. For example, Mr. Lynch has found that if moose will move to a better range, it might be possible to increase the number of animals by range management.

If it is found moose move from an area of high population to an area of low population, it may be possible to set out sanctuaries where large populations can be built up, with animals spilling out into the surrounding countryside.

To Mr. Lynch, moose management simply means making animals available for people's reaction without over-exploiting them.

"Moose are valuable not only as fauna but as a source of meat for a lot of people. If you want a high population so they can be enjoyed and used, you've got to know more about them."

Once an optimum number is reached, Mr. Lynch said, the surplus which can be harvested is the difference between the numbers born and the numbers dying each year. But without adequate knowledge managers were not able to determine an optimum number.

ALL IN THE FAMILY/by Isabel Huggan

We Imagine Our Death, And Leave 'Jaws' Happy

Like every other city in North America this summer, Belleville has been at the mercy of the great white shark.

How one large fish has been able to devour so much of the public's time and money is a good question. Matinee psychologists all over the country have come up with a variety of explanations for its popularity.

But if you've been to see the movie "Jaws" — with more than 40,000 others in the past 10 weeks in Belleville — you probably have your own point of view.

Perhaps you'd agree that one major reason for the movie's spellbinding attraction is that we love to be paralyzed with fright. This is a theory supported by the recent successes of movies that document disasters: earthquakes, burning buildings, damaged airliners, shipwrecks.

"Jaws," however, is very different from these other films. And I think that difference is why many people are going back two and three times to see the man-eating shark.

In the big catastrophe movies, everybody is in the same boat (or plane or building!) together. There's a group experience of danger. And the audience knows that, sooner or later, one or two people in the group are going to find a way out of the danger.

They may not totally avert the disaster, but they will be able to save at least some deserving souls. In this kind of movie man can ply his wits, his strength and courage, and all his heroic qualities to increase his likelihood of survival. In other words, there's always hope.

But when a shark attacks you in the water, you're all alone. That's it. No person, no advice, no tactical manouevres can help you against those ripping teeth.

And that's why the nightmare vision with which "Jaws" opens — of an unsuspecting swimmer being attacked and eaten by the enormous shark — makes visual a deep and dreadful fear common to us all. At some time or other, and always alone, we have to face extinction.

We are vulnerable, mortal, ordinary . . . just like the extremely ordinary people who get dragged under by those merciless jaws in the movie.

Alone in the water, you can't reason with a shark. You can't band together with your comrades. Nobody can pull you from those inevitably fatal teeth. You must eventually succumb to the shark's mindless hunger.

All of us who have seen "Jaws", I think, leave feeling that it's just the same outside the cinema. We all have to succumb eventually to the equally mindless end of our own lives — whether it be by car accident, heart attack or old age. There's no reasoning with that, either.

However, what makes the shark movie so popular is that although we come away from it exhausted, we are also, somehow, quite mentally cleansed. We have been allowed to vicariously experience the worst possible death imaginable, and we know that nothing in our own life could be as terrifying as that.

We also know that most of the problems or crises that will face us throughout our lives will be ones we can fight, or challenge, or escape from . . . or at least deal with, and survive.

Compared to the jaws of a 25-foot shark, we tell ourselves as we leave the theatre, nothing looks too bad!

Thomson — Roblin

Hope Lutheran Church, Mackenzie, British Columbia, was the scene of the August 2 wedding of Elinor Roblin and James Thomson.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Roblin, Belleville; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomson, Belleville.

Pastor Remple officiated at the evening candlelight ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line embossed organza over satin gown with empire waist and round neckline. Her fingertip veil was of silk illusion and she carried a cascade of red roses. The bride also wore her grandmother's three strand pearl necklace.

Peggy Thul, the maid of honor, wore a yellow crepe gown with white picture hat. She carried yellow daisies and white baby's breath.

Bridesmaid Carol Lloyd wore a mint green gown and white picture hat and carried yellow daisies and white baby's breath.

Pter Langevin Belleville, was best man assisted by ushen Keith Lloyd.

A dinner and dance was held at Alexander MacKenzie Hotel.

The couple will reside in Mackenzie, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. James Burr

Burr — Joyce

Emmanuel Baptist Church was the setting for the August 9 wedding of Marie Elizabeth Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Joyce, and James William Gordon Burr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Burr.

Rev. Fred Knutson officiated at the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin with a sweetheart neckline and long petal-point sleeves, accented with a long chapel train and lace trim. A juliet cap trimmed with an ivory satin rose and baby's breath held a double-tier finger-tup veil, worn over a long, detachable train. She carried a single cascade of silk red roses with baby's breath.

Matron of honor was the groom's sister Keltie Ferris of Louisville, Kentucky. She wore a gown of pink dotted swiss with an empire bodice and matching jacket. A pink wide-brimmed hat completed the ensemble, and she carried a nosegay of silk flowers, made up of pink roses, white daisies and blue forget-me-nots.

Serving as his brother's best man was Robert Tennant Burr, and acting as ushers were David Joyce and Fred Ferris, brother-in-law of the groom.

A buffet dinner and dance was held at the Belleville Club following the marriage service.

Mr. and Mrs. Burr now live in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gerrard Paquet

Paquet — Grier

Cynthia Ann Grier and Paul Gerrard Paquet were united in marriage in St. Michael's Church recently in an afternoon ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of William and Leona Grier, the groom is the son of Edgar and Beverley Paquet.

Father J. Granger, Frankford, officiated at the folk mass where Christine Paquet, Ron Brazeau, Rick Vane and David Flesch played guitars and sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a nylon sheer over sharkskin gown with mandarin neckline. Her two-tier lace edged veil was caught in a crown headpiece of lace and seed pearls.

Kathy Sagriff, Ottawa, was maid of honor in a long yellow gown. She carried yellow mums with velvet ribbons.

Cathy Paquet, the groom's sister, and Jeanette Grier, the bride's sister, were bridesmaids.

Brian Allore, Belleville, was groomsman at the ceremony assisted by Peter Smith, and Edward Paquet, the groom's brother.

A wedding reception was held at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Belleville. A wedding trip to Kitchener and Niagara Falls followed.

The couple will reside in Ottawa.

Happy Holiday!

The staff at Wrays' Home Furnishers would like to wish everyone a happy, end-of-summer, holiday weekend. Knowing the traffic snarls that can occur on holiday weekends, they would also like to urge you to drive carefully and have a safe and pleasant time with friends and family. When the holidays are over and the children have sctarted back to school, your mind will perhaps get back to the needs of your home. You'll be pleased to know that starting next week, Tuesday, Sept. 2, that Wrays' Home Furnishers, 306 Front St., will be starting their gigantic fall furniture show and sale. You'll find the newest, most exciting designs and prices that can't be beaten. Stop in and see them.

Rings For Her Fingers

W. Wonnacott and Son Jewellers, 247 Front St., have just received a new shipment of Linde Star sapphire rings. You'll be familiar with the quiet beauty of the blue sapphire, however you'll be most interested in seeing the green and rose star sapphires. The blue stones are usually mounted in white gold while the green and rose are often in yellow gold. You'll find a style to suit every taste, from dainty settings for the young miss to more elaborate settings for the mature woman. There are prices to suit every pocket book. These are very good stones of which you'll be proud to own. W. Wonnacotts will be pleased to have you come and see them. They'll be happy to answer any questions for you.

Cushions in Coordinating Colors

Decor Studios in the Belleville Plaza have decorator cushions galore. You will find them big or small in corduroys, velvets, cottons, satins, needle point and even leather. Something for every household. One of the hottest items this year on the decorating scene are playmate cushions. These are two, large, floor-type cushions that zip together and make both seating area and back rest. Really a great thing in roms that are furnished modern or for the student who has little money to spend on furniture. Decor Studios also carry chair pads, rocking chair pads and basket chair covers. Now here's a great deal! If you take this ad into the store anytime before Sept. 6, you'll receive 10% discount on any item mentioned in the ad.

Great Buys At Gibbs

Gibbs and Son Vacuum Specialists have some very good specials on this week. If you're in the market for a new vacuum, you'll find great value in the Volta upright priced at $184.50 and with it you will get absolutely free a hose and accessory kit, regularly priced at $31.50. If you wish, they will give you a free home demonstration. Also on special this week is a turbo-nozzle, power brush reg. $36.50 on sale for $30.50. This attachment will fit any model of vacuum and is excellent for doing carpets. If you have shag carpeting in your home, you'll be able to buy a Hoover rake for just $8.95 and it will fit any vacuum. Visit 37 Albion St. for these great buys.

Decorate With Crystal

Crystal lighting fixtures are the height of elegance in your home. Most people think of crystal for use in just the dining room. At Ruddy Electric Consumer Division you will not only be able to buy beautiful dining room chandeliers in unusual shapes and sizes, but you will be able to buy gorgeous crystal fixtures for most rooms through-out your home. There has been much improvement in the decor of the bathroom in recent years ,so that if you have gone to the trouble and expense of color coordinating your bathroom and giving it a touch of elegance, complete the picture with a single drop crystal fixture that will give you a room of distinction. See the wide selection of Strass crystal at 291 Coleman St.

Dine At Dusk

When the heat of the summer is over and the evenings are lengthening and becoming cooler, take a drive out to the Inn on the Bay Tavern in Picton and enjoy a cosy dinner for two. You'll enjoy the early evening drive through picturesque country side. You'll delight to the intimacy of the century old dining room where you'll relish an exquisite meal. They serve such taste temping delights as Shrimps a la Maison and delicious Schnitzels. Top off your meal with a piece of melt-in-your-mouth Black Forest cake. Phone 1-476-3114 and make your reservations for a quiet table for two. Don't wait for a special occasion. Do it now!

The Home Comfort People

Moira-Schuster Fuels are truly "Home Comfort People." They like to know your furnace is clean and in good working condition. And if you have trouble paying some of your higher heating bills during the colder months, why not join their Budget Plan? Taking into consideration the amount of oil you used last year, they will figure out a monthly payment for you of equal payments to be spread over ten or twelve months. And, there are no interest charges. Moira-Schuster are also the Belleville dealers for Aquafine. They condition your water so that even bad smells or tastes are removed. Aquafine water leaves no spots on glasses and is marvellous to wash in. Call 962-4504 for more information.

Come See Our New Exterior

The friendly staff at Trenton Optical, 54 Bridge St. E., would like to thank you for your perserverance during the present renovations. The remodelling is pretty well completed now and everything will be back to normal soon. By next week they are hoping that their sign will be back in place. However, if you aren't sure where their shop is located, it's right across from The Intelligencer building. With school just around the corner, it would be a good idea to visit Trenton Optical and arrange to have your child's eyes examined. They'll be pleased to make arrangements for you and should your child need a prescription, it will be filled by professional, competent opticians.

Take Time For A Good Lunch

The Terrace Dining Room in the Four Seasons Hotel is a great spot to have a leisurely luncheon with friends, however if you are in business and have a limited time in which to eat, the Terrace Dining Room can also be ideal. You will be served relatively quickly and you will be pleasantly surprised to find you can have a full lunch for less than four dollars. Some taste tempters on the menu are Dieters Delight, Quiche Lorraine and Executive Salad. They also have delectable specialty sandwiches. Come out often and try something different each time.

A Car For The Student

Within another couple of weeks the College and University students will be headed back for another semester with the books. If they have to travel great distances, you are perhaps considering buying them a small economy car to facilitate travel back and forth. Right now at Vader's Car Sales, 21 College St. W., you can buy a new Datsun B210 and save on the 5% new car tax rebate. The sturdy B210 is the most economical of all the economical Datsuns. Should you be looking for a used car, they have some late model, extremely economical Datsun 1200 models on their lot. Look around. You'll find the ideal car for your student — or even for you!

ServiceMaster To Serve You

ServiceMaster have a great number of services which are helpful in cleaning home or office. They will come in and do a housewide cleaning which includes flors, walls, ceilings and windows, or you can have them do any one of the above or any combination of cleaning chores. In the fall they will come in and static proof your home or office so that you aren't continually getting jolted with static electricity when the humidity drops during the winter months. They professionally clean carpet and furniture either in your home or in their factory. And don't forget the wide range of excelelnt cleaning products they have for sale. Call 967-1672 today and inquire about your cleaning needs.

Ann Landers

Counselling May Rescue Girl Headed for Trouble

Dear Ann Landers: We are having terrible problems with our 16-year-old daughter. She respects your judgment and might listen to you. Here's the situation:

Within the last six months we received several phone calls. Here are some examples.

From the school principal: "Please come and get your daughter. She has been drinking and I have her here in my office."

From the mother of a boy in her class: "I found some filthy notes to my son written by your daughter. It is obvious that they have been having sexual relations. I thought you ought to know so you can speak to her."

From a department store manager: "Your daughter has been picked up for shoplifting. Please come down and let's have a talk. I don't want to call the police."

Each time we did a great deal of talking and there were promises to "do better." We feel the girl should have counselling but she is against the idea. She says nobody can tell her anything she doesn't already know.

I just can't see sitting around waiting for another phone call. It would probably be the police. Please advise us.—Mom

Dear Mom: You say your daughter might listen to me. I hope so. The following remarks are for her.

Dear Friend: Each of the three incidents cited by your mother are symptoms of deeper problems. There are specific reasons for the behavior that resulted in those phone calls.

Although you are against counselling on grounds that nobody can tell you anything you don't already know, please trust me when I say you need to TALK to somebody—not just listen.

I urge you at least to give counselling a try. You're on a collision course of self-destruction and only you can save yourself.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 11 years old and I read your column all the time. I notice sometimes you print letters from people who aren't asking for advice—they just want to tell you how they feel about something. So here is another one of those letters. Like I said, it's not really a problem but I hate it.

When you watch TV, all of a sudden you see a commercial that says if you put a certain kind of baby powder on a baby's behind he will love you.

Then, a few minutes later another commercial says if you add a certain something to the gravy your husband will love you. The worst one is that commercial for chicken soup: "If you buy brand X your children will love you."

Why doesn't somebody tell the fools who write those things that there's more to love than talcum powder, gravy and chicken soup? Sign me—Had My Say

Dear Had: I guess a great many TV commercials are geared to the mentality of eight-year-olds because you, at 11, aren't going for it.

Thanks for writing. I hope somebody on Madison Avenue takes the hint.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently a woman wrote to ask what to do about excessive perspiration. She said it was ruining her life. She claimed the perspiration virtually poured from under her arms and ruined her clothing.

[redacted]

Even the rubberized shields didn't help. The poor thing had tried every anti-perspirant on the market without success.

You told her she might have hyperhydrosis and urged her to go to a dermatologist who had the patience and know-how to stick with her until he found a formula that worked.

Why didn't you mention the possibility of surgery? A friend of mine had the same problem and solved it by having the gangtion nerves removed. How about it?—Wanting To Help

Dear Wanting: Surgery should be the very last resort. Too many unnecessary operations are performed in this country as it is.

I'm not about to add to the number by suggesting surgery for excessive perspiration. My advice is—get the opinions of three dermatologists. If two of the three deem your case extremely severe—and can find no chemical solution—let THEM suggest surgery.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll bet you received a ton of mail from people who were mad at that man who wrote to say he didn't dislike cats or dogs—it was children he couldn't stand. He then went on to say that most parents are scared to death of their kids, that the little monsters run the households and American children are the most spoiled, obnoxious brats on the face of the earth.

That idiot missed the central point. It's not the kids who are to blame, it's the parents. Children aren't born obnoxious. They get that way because Mom and Dad don't have gumption enough to set limits and say "NO" It's up to the parents to see that their children conduct themselves in an acceptable manner. So why didn't you set the record straight?—Just Asking

Dear Just: I DID say it—for the umpteenth time. But I'll say it again. I know of nothing more pathetic than a hostile, obnoxious child. He is shunned and unwelcome.

Important Job for Father In Lamaze Labor Method

EDMONTON (CP) — For the husband instructed in the Lamaze method of childbirth, there's more important work to do than pacing the floor of the waiting room.

"There's an important role for husbands and there are many vital things they can do," says Lesalie Ingledew, president of the Childbirth Education Association of Edmonton.

"A lot of men are under the impression that there isn't anything for them in the birth of their child. It's been passed on in our culture that birth is a woman's job.

"But the husband as a labor coach is totally invaluable."

The Lamaze technique was developed by Russian scientists during the Second World War in an attempt to reduce the discomfort of childbirth and encourage women to have more babies.

Mrs. Ingledew, who refers to Lamaze as controlled childbirth, says wives are taught how to prepare for labor. The women are told what to expect and how to use relaxation and different levels of breathing to cope with contractions.

"There's less fear among Lamaze-trained mothers," says Gail Smith, a registered nurse who teaches an eight-session pre-natal class. "They know what changes are going on in their bodies."

Husbands help their wives with exercises and labor drills designed to prepare the woman for delivery and play an integral role in the labor and delivery rooms.

Vancouver Rape Relief Centre Helps Victims Through Crisis

VANCOUVER (CP) — To whom can a rape victim turn?

Penny Fuller, a counsellor for Vancouver's Rape Relief, says hospital staff and doctors rarely show much sympathy toward a woman who has been raped.

"The medical profession's attitude is very cold. I've had victims the doctors never spoke a word to—they spoke over her, around her and through her, to the nurse, the police, or me."

Miss Fuller does have some cautious praise for Vancouver city police. Or, about half of them, she said.

"Since I've been working at Rape Relief I've been really impressed by how gentle some policemen can be. They take a lot of time with the victim, explain why they must ask certain questions—are really open."

Then there is the other 50 per cent who are harsh and treat a woman as though she were a pathological liar.

"We've had people put through the wringer just by phoning the police to report a rape. The woman who answers the phone asks such questions as 'Are you drunk?' "

And that's where Rape Relief comes in. The six full-time counsellors are available on a 24-hour basis to help women whether or not they want to report the attack to the police. If the rape is reported a counsellor will accompany the woman to the police, hospital and through court proceedings.

Last year Rape Relief helped 158 victims. Workers get referrals from police, city prosecutors, hospitals and crisis centres which have had initial contact with the victim.

"That's what we deal with most at Rape Relief," said Miss Fuller. "After the crisis is over we have to help victims cope with their guilt feelings of 'What did I do to invite this?' or 'What kind of person does he think I am?' "

Victims range from small children to 84-year-old women. About 80 per cent of the victims have had some previous contact, however casual, with their assailant.

But not every rape case is reported. Police conservatively estimate one out of 10 cases is reported to authorities.

Miss Fuller said that accompanying the woman through the "whole hospital, court, police procedure is the most vital thing we do." But Rape Relief also gets calls from women who were raped "maybe 20 years ago, and never got a chance to talk it out."

Cut Urged In Japan's Growth Rate

PARIS (AP) — The Japanese government should take an active role in lowering the country's annual production growth from 10 per cent to as low as five per cent, the Organization for Economic Co-operation said recently.

The organization, which includes most industrial powers, said in its annual review of the Japanese economy: "The oil crisis and the current deep recession have brought to light some of the frailties and inadequacies inherent in the explosive growth of the Japanese economy over the last 20 years."

It said Japan has brought inflation under control and achieved equilibrium in its balance of payments but at the expense of its strongest recession since the Second World War.

"There are indications that a broad consensus has developed in favor of a change in the pattern of growth toward greater emphasis on collective needs, social welfare and protection of natural resources and the environment," the organization said.

It cited Japan's scarcity of natural resources in suggesting the lowered growth rate.

"The change in the rate and pattern of growth is unlikely to come about by the free play of market forces," the organization said. "Active policies

Shakespeare's Life History Not Completely Established

LONDON (CP) — The life history of William Shakespeare has not been completely established.

In Shakespeare's day, during Queen Elizabeth's reign, it was considered pretentious and even presumptuous to publish literature and certainly to keep personal material for a biography.

For this reason, facts about Shakespeare have had to be pieced together from sources around the world. Ben Johnson, Shakespeare's contemporary, is said to have limited his reputation in the eyes of Elizabethan Londoners when he published his collected works.

An American university professor, Samuel Schoenbaum, has pieced some documents together to form a clearer semblance of the playwright's life. He has found some previously unknown facts published in his book, William Shakespeare: A Documentary Life.

In the 200 documents found by Schoenbaum, Shakespeare's birth date remains unproved. An extract from a parish register shows Shakespeare was christened April 26, 1564, in Stratford, perhaps the three customary days after a birth.

Other documents found show Shakespeare's marriage bond to Anne Hathaway, who had his two daughters and one son. The first document to connect Shakespeare with a company of actors in 1596 is included with a grant of a coat-of-arms, the transfer of his home purchase in 1602 and other records. The extract from the Stratford parish register records Shakespeare's burial on April 25, 1616.

When Shakespeare went to London he first acted and then wrote plays. After becoming one of the most popular playwrights, with Queen Elizabeth's support, Shakespeare also bought shares in his theatrical company.

The playwright's fortunes were rewarded by his work and records show he invested in property and a house in his native Stratford. The will records Shakespeare bequeathing his wife his "second-best bed" and a generous share of his wealth to neighbors and friends. No one knows the meaning of the bed but it is presumed the "best" bed went to guests of the house.

No proof has been found about the dedications on Shakespeare's sonnets. The names, To the Dark Lady, and the Fair Youth still remain a mystery.

Documents on Shakespeare exist in the Public Records Office in London, parish registers, bills of sale, engravings, old books and other sources.

Since the new documents found record facts but not the personality of William Shakespeare, his plays and poems remain the best place to answer questions as to what kind of man he was.

Rids the Lumps

JERUSALEM (AP) — Scientists at Hebrew University have discovered that if a lumpy orange is sprayed with growth retardant while it's on the tree it will develop a smooth peel attractive to consumers.

University Enrolment Has Unexpected Rise

By MARY CLARE HVEY

The Canadian Press

University officials report an expected increase of five to 10 per cent in enrolment over last year on campuses this fall.

B. L. Hansen, director of research, Council of Ontario Universities, estimates a general increase of five per cent in graduate and undergraduate enrolment, including part-time students in Ontario's 15 universities.

The Ontario ministry of collegs and universities reports that 238,715 full-and part-time students were enrolled in undergraduate courses in the 1974-75 year while graduate enrolment, including part-time students, was 25,259.

Mr. Hansen also said a large part of an increase of five to 10 per cent in first-year enrolment in the coming term will be from students who waited a couple of years before starting university.

At University of Winnipeg, first-year enrolment is expected to increase by 10 per cent, bringing a projected total enrolment to 5,400 from 5,100 last year.

A spokesman for University of British Columbia in Vancouver said first-year enrolment is 3,000, with the estimated total student population expected to be 23,200, up from 21,743 last year.

Simon Fraser University in Burnaby, B.C., is preparing for an estimated enrolment of 7,750 students, compared with 7,012 in 1974-75.

In Alberta, University of Lethbridge had 693 registered at July 21, compared with 515 on the same date last year. Total admissions last year were 1,300. A university spokesman said a continuing upward trend is indicated.

At University of Calgary, 7,300 undergraduates had registered compared with 8,782 last December. At University of Alberta, 10,278 had registered by mid-summer compared with a full-time registration last year of 19,555.

Alberta authorities said figures were not entirely reliable because many prospective students have not taken advantage of advance registration.

Figures from University of Regina indicate that enrolment has reached a plateau, with more part-time students accounting for a slight increase.

Enrolment for full-time students will likely drop to 3,500, compared with 3,599 last year while part-time students are expected to rise to 3,050 from 2,833.

At Universite de Quebec in Montreal, 3,500 new students are expected and will bring the total to 12,500, up from 12,200 in 1974-75.

University of Montreal will accommodate 1,300 more students, making the total student population 24,414.

Universities in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island report moderate increases but still remain below their peak enrolment of the early 1970s.

A spokesman for University of Prince Edward Island in Charlottetown said estimated enrolment this year is likely to be 1,700, compared with 1,397 last year but slightly below the 1,771 in the record year of 1971-72.

Dr. A. J. Kingsley, registrar at Dalhousie University in Halifax, said applications are up about eight per cent in arts and science courses this year.

Last year's student registration was 8,210 in all faculties, excluding affiliated University of King's College.

Enrolment in medicine, dentistry, law and engineering is fixed and will remain the same as last year.

At University of New Brunswick in Fredericton, the recent addition of the teacher's college in that city to the university is expected to increase the first-year population by 1,680.

Universite de Moncton is planning for a record year since the collapse of College de Bathurst will bring first-year enrolment to 1,300, up by 150 students from last year.

Memorial University in St. full-time students will reach about 5,525, compared with 5,596 last year.

The university also expects another 1,450 part-time students and an additional 1,800 persons taking credit and non-credit courses through taped lectures.

Big Houses Of Britain Face Taxes

LONDON (Reuter) — The great houses of Britain, homes of the aristocracy down the centuries and now among the country's leading tourist attractions, face a new threat—the labor government's proposed wealth taxes.

Owners of the nation's stately homes are even gloomily forecasting that many of these treasure houses will soon be left to crumble into ruins.

The buildings, many open to the public and crammed with paintings, sculptures and antiques, are regarded by many Britons as among the country's most priceless artistic assets.

To try to offset rising costs, which have soared because of inflation, many lordly owners have long since opened their homes to thousands of fee-paying summer tourists. They see the government's proposed wealth taxes as the final blow.

Many of their great art collections will have to be sold, they say, and many stately homes will probably go the way of hundreds of castles and mansions which have already fallen into disuse.

A spokesman for the National Trust, the independently-financed body which looks after hundreds of the country's ancient buildings, said: "Unless the government modifies its plans, there is no question that the greatest contribution that this country has made to European civilization will disappear."

But supporters of the new taxes, now being discussed by Parliament, do not see it that way. Labor members now argue that the taxes are necessary to smooth down enormous inequalities of wealth in Britain.

And the government has said it intends to ensure that the national heritage is preserved. It has already exempted historic houses open to the public from its tax on transfers of wealth by owners at death.

Nevertheless, preservationists are as worried as ever. They want the government to make exemptions for historic buildings in its proposed direct tax on wealth.

This tax will apply to those whose belongings are worth more than £$10,000—$230,000 — approximately the richest one per cent of the population, which is said to own some 25 per cent of the nation's wealth.

An individual's wealth will be measured by his total salable assets, from houses and stocks to racehorses and jewelry.

Riches in excess of £100,000 will be taxed at a rate of one per cent or more—the greater the wealth the higher the rate. Stately homes would be worth far more than this amount.

The government is determined not to let holders of great wealth evade the tax, and has said that works of art will be included in any assessment of riches, although works on show may be assessed leniently.

The preservationists not only want stately homes open to the public to be exempted from the assessment, but also the exemption of a large capital sum for the house's upkeep.

Both moves are essential to save the buildings, the National Trust spokesman said.

"The situation is extremely serious," he added. "The elegant houses and their gardens will simply be abandoned by owners who can't afford to run them. The wonderful collections of antiques put together during tours of Europe by generations of owners will be dispersed."

Common Problems Share Election Spotlight

TORONTO (CP) — Food prices, unemployment and housing shared the spotlight Wednesday as the Ontario election campaign moved within three weeks of its Sept. 18 climax.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon emerged from a tour of restaurants and grocery stores in Toronto's Greek quarter to tell the Progressive Conservative government that its Ontario Food Council is doing an inadequate job of keeping prices down.

Premier William Davis, noting that unemployment takes a disproportionate toll of the province's younger residents, announced plans to deal with the problem and called for the co-operation of employers.

And Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democratic Party, described the government's projects to provide low-cost housing as "travesties."

Mr. Nixon said the food council, a branch of the ministry of agriculture and food, should be doing a better job of rating comparative qualities and should take a tougher stand in attacking "expensive packaging that simply pushes up the cost."

He pledged that a Liberal government would upgrade its functions and make it "the agency through which consumers are given an assurance of food quality."

The premier, also campaigning in the Toronto area, said the civil service will provide 1,000 new jobs for young people.

The 116,000 unemployed Ontario residents under 24 years of age represent one-third of the Canadian total in their age group, he said, and "it is obvious that the government must do more."

Calling for increased interest in the problem from private industry, Mr. Davis proposed a conference of government officials and business leaders to discuss the subject.

He also proposed that representatives of the business community and youth confer with government representatives to discuss ways of easing the transition of students to the work force.

The premier said the government's summer-student employment program will become a year-round project and that he will establish a provincial commission on work productivity.

Mr. Lewis returned to his attack on government housing policy, saying its Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) plan has not provided a single housing unit this year geared to incomes less than $14,500 a year.

The NDP leader said a second low-cost project, the Ontario Housing Action Plan (OHAP), had set a target of 28,000 units for this year but housing ministry figures indicate that only a maximum of 3,828 units will be built.

Mr. Lewis said public and private sources combined will provide about 59,000 housing units this year, although a 1973 government report had said the province needs 110,000 units a year for the next decade to meet its needs.

Mr. Lewis, who had pledged earlier that an NDP government would build at least 116,000 units a year, said it would set aside whatever money is needed to ensure an adequate housing supply.

Holidays Hamper Advance Poll Dates

Three advance polls and the problem of both enumerating and finding workers during a vacation period are two factors concerning Quinte riding returning officer Gerry Joyce for the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Mr. Joyce remarked about the three polls Wednesday, "I've never seen this before. It's not covered under the act."

An extra advance poll on Friday, Sept. 12 became necessary when it was discovered the two regularly-scheduled advance polls conflicted with two Jewish calendar dates — the Jewish Sabbath on Saturday, Sept. 13 and Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement) on Monday, Sept. 15.

Mr. Joyce announced that the current number of eligible voters stands at 41,030, an increase of 1,937 over 1971 in an identical jurisdiction.

But he boted, "that 41,030 is growing by the hour . . . . as people are returning home from vacations." He said special enumerators are taking care of the returning vacationers and predicted there should be between 300-500 more eligible voters enumerated.

Mr. Joyce said polling stations for all three advance polls will be located at both Belleville fire halls, the Trenton fire hall, the Frankford fire hall and the residence of A. C. Vout of RR 3, Belleville on Highway 2 halfway between Belleville and Trenton.

They are Sept. 12 from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sept. 13 and 15, both days from 12 noon to 9 p.m.

Plant Bans Campaigning On Company Property

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The New Democratic Party in Quinte riding has reacted strongly to a Deloro Stellite policy which prohibits electioneering on company property.

NDP candidate Carson McLauchlan said Wednesday he and his co-workers were ordered to stop campaigning on company grounds earlier in the day.

He said they were advised by John Thompson, personnel manager, that no political parties are allowed to campaign at the plant at 471 East Dundas St. in Belleville.

Mr. McLauchlan, who said it was his first visit at the plant, noted it is NDP tradition "to campaign at plants and companies throughout the province."

"The views held by the management of this organization are very narrow and archaic," he commented.

He said he feels the company's policy is peculiar in view of the fact that even provincial government outlets allow political parties to canvass civil servants on their properties during an election.

Mr. McLauchlan said he will inform the provincial NDP office about the incident.

Len Shacklock, general manager of Deloro Stellite which is part of the Canadian Oxygen group, said it is a standard group policy across Canada to prohibit any type of canvassing or soliciting on the property of any group company.

He said the policy has been in effect nationally for at least 20 years and probably came into effect five years ago at Deloro Stellite when the Belleville plant was purchased by the group.

Mr. Thompson added that letters have been sent to all Quinte riding candidates advising them of the policy. "If they wish to do it (campaign), they can do it along the road," he said.

Mr. Thompson said the NDP were not the only party confronted. Liberal candidate Hugh O'Neil and his co-workers were also informed of the policy at the plant Tuesday morning.

Seemungal Sworn In

Frank Seemungal's entrance into municipal politics was highlighted this week by a formal ceremony in Mayor Ben Corke's city hall office. Mr. Seemungal, appointed to council by city aldermen to assume Mr. Corke's seat, was sworn in by deputy city clerk William Moreton before his wife Beverley and their four sons, Mayor Corke, city manager Wilbur Purcell and several council members. "This is an important day in Frank's life," Mayor Corke said.

Quinte Needs First Promises McLauchlan

Egotism, power trips and prestige have no place in an elected government, says Carson McLauchlan, New Democratic Party candidate in Quinte riding for the Sept. 18 provincial election.

During an address to riding party faithful at his campaign headquarters recently, Mr. McLauchlan commented, "we don't need a politicing politician bent on self-interest, power and the prestige of government posts."

"I will give the people of this area a member who will put their needs first, their problems first and their demands first," he said. "It is my belief that the people of Quinte need a member who will look after Quinte First."

"We need a full-time member at Queen's Park devoted to helping Quinte."

"Our campaign will be a people's campaign," he remarked.

The Good Old Days

Who can forget the good old days when soft drinks sold for a nickel apiece? The Quinte Liberals have symbolized their stand against inflation with such a sales pitch at their information mart on Front St. in Belleville. Brian Grier (left) buys a drink from mart attendant Cindy Cameron (right) while two other Grit workers, Evelyn Goyer and Laura Fulton, watch.

Business Brisk

Reta Carr of the Black Hawk Motor Inn on Front St. points to a "No Vacancy" sign she has had to display occasionally this summer. Most motel operators say they have noted more Canadian tourists this year.

Liberals Open Information Mart

The Quinte Liberals have shown one method of bringing their Sept. 18 provincial election campaign to the people — a branch of their campaign headquarters on Front St. in Belleville.

Candidate Hugh O'Neil says the Liberals have erected an information mart in the heart of the city's downtown to meet the shopping public.

I operates six days a week (barring inclement weather) from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day and party workers are on hand to answer questions from the electorate, dispense campaign literature and buttons and sell soft drinks for a nickel apiece.

"We're getting away from all this inflation," Mr. O'Nil remarks of the latter service.

He says the mart will operate until Sept. 16 — the final day allowed for active campaigning — and might at times feature special events such as music. He adds he will also attempt to make appearances.

Mr. O'Neil explains the mart was not established because headquarters are so far away — at 257 North Front St. — but that the mart is just a means of taking the campaign to the people.

Mart attendant Cindy Cameron says about 800 people stop per day. She says she and her co-workers attempt to answer all questions.

"If we can't answer them, we refer them to our committee rooms," she comments. "We'll find somebody who will."

Cindy says the mart has provided an insight into the Quinte riding election. She says both diehard Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats stop to argue politics.

Canadians Now Bulk of Tourists

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

Higher prices have become a fact of life but inflation hasn't deterred people from taking that annual vacation.

Belleville area motels, inns, and garages report they haven't noticed any lack of business. Most say they display a No Vacancy sign on their roadside billboards every night.

The only noticeable change is in the tourists themselves. Belleville is attracting more Canadians than Americans and more people have taken to car travel as a way to see the sights, most operators agree.

Reta Carr, desk clerk at the Black Hawk Motor Inn said business is good but there are not as many people being turned away.

"'Last year we might turn down some 30 or 40 people after all the rooms are filled." She said the commercial aspect, business men stopping over for a few days, is good but there are not as many tourists this year.

The Four Seasons Motor Hotel also has high occupancy rates, said manager Christopher Davies. He has also said he noticed more Canadians touring and fewer American visitors.

Lee Jeffery said her business was down because of limited facilities for large families but Paul's Motel and Cabin's are attracting more commercial and industry people.

The cabins contain housekeeping facilities. However, Mrs. Jeffery noticed a definite lack of American visitors. She estimated they were down 75 per cent from last year.

Ed's Esso, located at 112 Station St., said they are enjoying a busy season, especially in car repairs. Manager Mark Fields said he noticed a lot of out-of-town licence plates, many from Alberta.

And manager of Vader's Garage Service Ltd., Dale Vader agreed.

"There are more Canadians on the road this year than ever before," he said.

Authority Stresses More Facilities Needed For Hearing Impared

Dr. John Darbyshire, audiological supervisor of Sir James Whitney School, Belleville, told the second national congress of Canadian Educators of the Hearing Impaired in Montreal recently services for the education of preschool children is seriously deficient and no one knows just how many children there are and what facilities are needed.

Dr. Darbyshire, also a faculty member of Queen's University, Kingston, and the University of Ottawa, estimated one child in one hundred has some loss of hearing and the cost of making adequate provision for them at the preschool stage would be nearly $30,000,000 in the first year.

This figure includes transportation, staff and facilities that would be needed to reach these children.

Dr. Darbyshire told the congress geography in Canada provides many obstacles for reaching the impaired. He said it is also unfortunate the hearing impaired child of preschool age doesn't fall under the jurisdiction of any one level of government, or any group of government, ministries or departments.

"In the short term what is necessary is that, at the local level a least, provincial and other jurisdictions ensure there is close collaboration with other authorities and between the many disciplines that need to be involved in appropriate management of any handicapped child," he said.

"To deliver adequate services to meet the needs of hearing impaired preschool children in Canada, it will be necessary to provide personnel and commodities to an extent which is hard to envisage being obtained in the present era of restraint and constraint," Dr. Darbyshire said.

Teachers, speech pathologists, social workers, psychologists, play therapists and medical professionals are some of the personnel Dr. Darbyshire said are necessary. In addition, teaching material, hearing aids and facilities would also need to be established.

McLauchlan First Again

Carson McLauchlan, New Democratic Party candidate in Quinte riding, is probably hoping his current string of first will extend right through the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Ian Reilly, campaign manager, said today the Quinte NDP have learned Mr. McLauchlan is the first provincial NDP to be officially nominated with the provincial government.

Mr. Reilly said all candidates, to be officially nominated, must secure the signatures of 100 eligible voters and turn them over to the riding returning officer.

He said the NDP handed their list to Quinte returning officer Gerry Joyce late Wednesday who informed Toronto and discovered Mr. McLauchlan was the first New Democrat to do so.

Mr. Reilly said Mr. McLaughlan was the first Quinte riding candidate nominated, the first to open committee rooms, "and hopefully, on Sept. 18, he'll be first."

Ex-inmate Producing Warkworth Play

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

An ex-inmate is back in Warkworth Institution producing the penetentiary's first play.

Don Bailey, of Peterborough, has been working with about 75 prisoners, on the play, Carny, which the prisoners wrote themselves.

"If it's a success there may be a drama option in the prison in future."

Mr. Bailey and play director Milo Ringham have been at the prison about 2½ months. Warkworth, housing about 300 prisoners, is about 25 miles northwest of Belleville.

Production of the play, to be shown to the public Sept. 12 and 13 is a pilot project of penitentiary service of the solicitor-general's department.

They started out by forming two workshops for writing and acting.

Mr. Bailey said the play takes part in a carnival setting and deals with the breakdown in tradition by tracing three generations of men.

"It will really startle. It's very comic and contains an element of tragedy," said Mr. Bailey.

The play was written by about 20 prisoners.

"There was such an array of ideas the guys wanted to explore."

At first, said Mr. Bailey, they wanted to write a play about prison life.

"The really exciting thing is that when we first started the guys most interested were called by the administration as the bottom-of-the-barrel. It's amazing how they've changed."

The prisoners now are more sensitive to each other, said Mr. Bailey.

Although Mr. Bailey, a free lance writer who works for CBC, did the "final polishing" on the script, he said the inmates are highly creative and talented.

"I've worked on television plays where the quality was not as high."

There are 12 actors in the play. Some of them, said Mr. Bailey, could make a career of acting.

Tickets for the two performances will be on sale at Roluf's Travel Centre, McKnights' Variety Store, and Shopette Stores.

Insurance Centre Based on Open-design Plan

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

The new CIAG Insurance building on North Front St. will be using a concept of shared facilities in the open design, said John LaLonde, district manager of CIAG Insurance, once completed, in October.

"It will be an integrated type of system, more along the line of the philosophy of the working together," said Mr. LaLonde.

Mr. LaLonde said the main reason why the company decided to build a new office was to provide not only better service but because the firm "wasn't pleased with the upstairs location of its current location."

"We also needed the space for the growth of the company," said the manager.

Since 1950, when the company was formed, growth has been phenominal, said Mr. LaLonde. "We now are one of the leading insurance companies for auto, fire, life and commercial insurance."

The one-floor structure will house the insurance company, the Belleville Community Credit Union and the Federation of Agriculture, which is "part of our co-operative philosophy," said the manager.

The new building is just one of 60 offices providing the full service system to the customers.

"We'll be having our own people doing all the adjusting and performing the work," said Mr. LaLonde.

Now employing nine people in their offices, Mr. LaLonde said he expects the company to be hiring two or three more people once the operation grows.

Mr. LaLonde said he expects a new building for the company will be located in Trenton maybe as soon as 1976.

The building will have 5,000 square feet of floor space, of which 125 square feet will be the vault, and constructed at a cost of $250,000.

Vault Area Weighs 125 Tons

With over a year in the planning and about $250,000 of total investments the new CIAG Insurance building is well on the way of being completed.

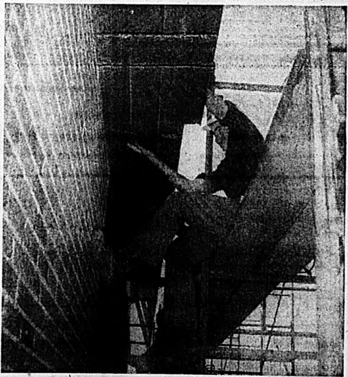
"We expect to have the building finished by mid-October," said Bill White, the president of Bel-Con Contruction, contractors for the building.

The main architectural feature will be the vault which is located on the south-west corner of the building.

Combining the weight of the steel and concrete, there is over 125 tons in the vault section alone said Mr. White.

The building is electrically heated and air-conditioned, with 5,000 square feet of space and parking facilities for 25 cars, said the contractor.

Work started on the site in June and will house the CIAG Insurance Company; Belleville Community Credit Union, and the Federation of Agriculture, once completed.



Almost Complete

Lee Price, a carpenter for Bel-Con Construction, is installing siding on the new CIAG Insurance building on North Front Street. The new building, started in June, will house the CIAG Insurance Company, the Belleville Community Credit Union, and the Federation of Agriculture, once it is completed in October. Total cost of the building is $250,000.

Seaver – One More for 20

Tom's Terrific — Again

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver is once again bordering on the terrific.

Seaver became the National League's first 19-game winner and edged within five strikeouts of a major league mark while riding homers by Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub as New York Mets shut out San Diego Padres 7-0.

Seaver, who hurled a six-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory, struck out 10 batters and needs just five more to become the first major leaguer ever to fan 200 or more batters eight seasons in a row. With the victory, the fourth-place Mets edged within five games of the frontrunning Pirates in the East.

In the rest of the National League, San Francisco Giants beat Montreal Expos 9-1, Atlanta Braves beat Pittsburgh Pirates 6-2, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Philadelphia Phillies 10-0, Houston Astros defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-1 and Cincinnati Reds edged Chicago Cubs 6-5.

Atlanta, held hitless by John Candelaria for 6 2-3 innings, broke through for a pair of unearned runs in the seventh inning before Ralph Garr's tie-breaking single in a four-run ninth beat the Pirates.

Burt Hooton chalked up his seventh consecutive victory with a three-hitter and highlighted a seven-run sixth inning with a two-run single to lead the Dodgers past Philadelphia. Ron Cey chipped in with his 18th homer to hand the Phils their fourth loss in the last five games.

St. Louis' four-game winning streak stumbled to an end as the Cards committed five errors—two of them by rookie third baseman Hector Cruz—to give Houston three of its runs. Jim York and Jose Sosa made them stand up with ease, scattering nine hits.

Ken Griffey had four hits and two runs batted in and Tony Perez added two RBI in the Reds' triumph over Chicago. Pedro Borbon pitched five innings of four-hit relief for the victory.

Bruins Sold

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League and the Boston Garden have been sold to a corporation headed by three Buffalo, N.Y., brothers, it was announced today.

The Storer Broadcasting Co., which purchased the Garden and the Bruins two years ago, has sold the arena and the team to Sportsystems, Corp., an international firm founded as Emprise, Corp., by the Jacobs brothers' father, Louis, who died in 1968. It operates concessions at seven major league baseball parks and owns the Cincinnati Gardens, bowling alleys and theatres. The corporation also has holdings in Canada, England and Puerto Rico.

One of the first decisions the new owners of the five-time Stanley Cup-winning Bruins will have to make will concern the contract demands of superstar Bobby Orr, threatening to jump to Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

Something to Crow About

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "I finally did it—something better than anyone in the National League," enthused San Francisco Giants rookie John Montefusco.

The young pitcher, never the bashful type, had plenty to crow about Wednesday after striking out the more Montreal Expo batters in one game than any other pitcher—14—as the Giants' routed the Expos 9-1 Wednesday.

Bobby Murcer' returned to the starting lineup with a two-run single, after being out 12 days because of injury, and Bruce Miller drove in four runs to help Montefusco win his first game in a month. The pitcher didn't allow an earned run while improving his record to 11-7 and lowering his earned run average to 2.99.

"There's a lot of competition among us young pithers," Montefusco pointed out. "Ed Halicki got his no-hitter Sunday and then Pete Falcone struck out 12 Tuesday night, so I had to do something.

"Halicki has been getting the ink lately, and I want some more. He's my roomy, so I guess we'll be getting a penthouse on the road."

By striking out more Expos than any pitcher since Montreal entered the league, Montefusco raised his season total to 166. John D'Acquisto set a San Franciso record for a rookie last year with 167. "Let's see," said Montefusco, " with seven more starts, I think I have a chance. Really, I'm shooting for 200. I'd also be satisfied with 15 wins, but that's going to be tough."

JOHN MONTEFUSCO

"Halicki, Falcone and Montefusep all have struck us out pretty heavily," noted Expos manager Gene Mauch. "Montefusco is a little bit ahead because he can throw the ball down the middle and survive.

"He's the best young pither I've seen in this league in some time," concluded Mauch, whose Expos fanned 91 times in 12 games against San Francisco this season.

Woody Fryman, 8-10, struck out 10 Giants on Wednesday.

Winner in 11 Innings

Blyleven Does His Thing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bert Blyleven took his 11-inning, 13-strikeout performance in stride. "I felt pretty good," said the Minnesota Twins' ace.

"I thought if I kept them from scoring, we'd win eventually."

He did and they did.

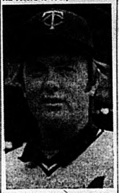
The right-hander walked only one batter Wednesday night, got all the support he needed from Tony Oliva's pinch-single in the 11th, and could have pitched a few more innings if he'd needed to in beating Milwaukee Brewers 1-0.

"I wasn't getting tired," he said after the six-hit masterpiece. "I just kept mixing fastballs and curves in order to stay in there until we got around to scoring a run."

Elsewhere in the American League, Boston topped California 6-2; Baltimore trimmed Kansas City 4-2; Oakland nipped New York 3-2; Texas trounced Detroit 8-2; and in a twi-night doubleheader, Chicago beat Cleveland 2-0, then lost the nightcap 5-0.

Roger Moret allowed eight hits and walked seven but raised his record to 11-2 as Boston whipped California before 34,239 at Fenway Park.

"I was up a little high with my pitches all day, but I had pretty good stuff," said the left-hander, who raised his lifetime AL record to 38-17.



BERT BLYLEVEN

Six extra-base hits, including a key two-run double by Ken Singleton in the fourth inning, lifted Baltimore past Kansas City.

Thurman Munson's ninth-inning error, his 19th error of the year, allowed pinch-runner Matt Alexander to reach third and score on Gene Tenace's sacrifice fly for Oakland's winning run in the ninth inning.

Ferguson Jenkins and Steve Foucault combined on a nine-hitter and Jim Spencer paced a 12-hit Texas attack to lift the Rangers over the Tigers.

Check the Registrations For Minor Hockey Leagues

SLACES — Word is, there will be a showdown series or sudden death game played this year between the Prince Edward North Shore Softball League playoff champion and its counterpart in the Belleville Industrial Softball League.

Bayview Orchards and Ameliasburg A's are hooked up in the PENSSL final and in the BISL, it's Black Diamond and Brooke Bond.

• • • • •

Speaking of PENSSL and BISL, the sports department has its own lingo when referring to league and associations.

Try these on for size. They're spelled the way they sound and no affront to anyone.

There are:

Bumse: Belleville Minor Softball Association, or soccer, if you will.

Bumba: Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

Quiffle: Quinte Fastball League.

Awful (no pun intended, obviously): Ontario Fastball League.

Bissel: Belleville Industrial Softball League.

Bedissel: Belleville and District Ladies Softball League.

Bumla: Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association.

'Nuff said?

• • • • •

Hold the phone on times and places for Belleville Minor Hockey Association registrations.

Because of renovations being carried out at Memorial Arena, registrations will not be taken there.

Here's the new dope.

September 5 from 6-9 p.m., at the Recreation Centre and the main entrance to Quinte Mall. September 6 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon at the Recreation Centre and at Quinte Mall, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Repeat those times and places, September 12 and 13.

Monday through Friday, September 8-12, registrations will be taken from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Recreation Centre.

Players not registered by September 13, 3 p.m., will be placed on a waiting list.

Registration fee is $15 this season and don't forget your birth certificate. Social Insurance Numbers are also necessary for Ontario Minor Hockey Association and Select team play.

Residents outside the city limits are reminded their township lot and concession number are necessary.

That's a big mouthful but it's nothing compared to what will come from the parents, and in some cases, coaches and managers over the long haul from October to April, give or take a month or two.

Remember. Take your boy to the arena and then beat it . . . unless you can keep your trap shut. Most of your comments are far from constructive. Let's help the young people enjoy their hockey. They will, you know. All it takes is some common sense from many of the so-called grownups.

Although I promised myself I'd never again allow myself to become involved with figure skating, here I go again. Once bit, twice shy, they say. Perhaps this time around, we'll see an absence of bickering, jealousy and the rest that goes with it from those in charge of the sport(?)

Anyway, thanks to Mrs. C. Furze, secretary of the Quinte Figure Skating Club, we are informed of an amateur coaching clinic for figure skaters being hosted by Quinte Figure Skating Club.

All members of Quinte, Tweed, Campbellford, Trenton, Picton and Frankford clubs are invited to participate.

Dick Ellis Arena in Belleville is the place. September 14, 9.30 a.m. to 4 p.m. is the time.

To be eligible, participants must be 12 years old and passed their first figure.

The clinic will be directed by Doug Lamb who is the amateur coaching director of the Canadian Figure Skating Association. Registration fee is $2.

Avoid disappointment. Contact Mrs. Furze at 968-9828.

Purpose of the club, says Mrs. Furze, is to supply each club with qualified junior instructors for the benefit of all members.

A win in their Bay of Quinte Soccer Association match with Cobourg Tony's tonight at Sir James Whitney School will clinch first place for Belleville's Olympics.

With 12 of their 16 games played, Olympics have a perfect record and 24 points. Cobourg, pennant winner last year, has played 14 games and owns 21 points.

Of course, the strong Cobourg team has not given up hope of repeating as the top team. A collapse by Olympics and successes in Tony's remaining games would do the trick.

Kickoff at Sir James Whitney is 6.30 p.m.

Opener to Bayview

Bayview Orchards took a 1-0 lead in the Prince Edward North Shore League final series in a close 5-3 decision, Wednesday.

Bayview scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to get the edge over the Ameliasburg A's, another strong club.

Don Bonter hurled a five hitter for the winners. Four walks were given up and he struck out four batters.

The loss was shared by Harold Werkhoven and Gary Eardley, the pair gave up six hits and six walks. They struck out two batters.

Gary Mason and Bonter both collected run scoring doubles for the winners in the hook up. Rob Roblin, John Allison, George Foote and Doug Mason also collected base hits for the winners.

Ken Burkholder did his share at the plate for the losers with three base hits. Bill Cannons and Werkhoven had the other safeties for the losers.

Nancy Birch, Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund second baseman is waiting for Broadloom's Margie Scanlon to get down to first base. Scanlon did so in fine style as she ran out a sacrifice bunt and was safe at first. Her efforts were to no avail though, as BYBF eliminated the Broadloom squad from the playoffs with a 7-1 win. The Benefit Fund will now meet the Purinaettes in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League finals.

10-Race Card Friday

Features Highlight QER

As the harness racing season comes to the final stretch features are becoming more and more frequent.

On Friday, the Gerald Vance Memorial race will be run, with a purse of $800 and a trophy. Also, a cooler will be presented to the winning horse.

Some of the best local horses will be running in the feature ninth, including Mr. Chick, driven by Jim Mayo Jr., and Charity Chick, with Pat Hunt doing the driving.

Western D. Wann is also entered, with Rejean Boily doing the handling, Lucky Homedale will be driven by Harry Burkitt and is also well known to racing enthusiasts.

In the 10th a Dixie Lee cooler (blanket) will be presented. Helen G. Vonian, driven by Walt DeMille, and Royal Eclipse, with Larry Zebedee at the reins, are two of the possibilities.

It's a special night for coolers, as the Cy Roberts cooler will be presented in the fifth race.

Starting things off right in the first race, a Rall-E-Stable cooler will be presented to the winner.

As the season comes close to its close all of the drivers will be going all out to pass leader Guy LaRush and go for the driver championship. LaRush has 17 wins and next in line is Pat Hunt with 14.

Two on the Road Tonight

One More Home Game

The Belleville McDonald's have three games to play before they can say it's all over for their first Ontario Fastball League season.

Two games will be played in Newmarket tonight with the East division leading Rays. On Friday at home the Macs finish their season with a final contest against the Hamilton Waxman Scrappers.

It was felt on Sunday night that the incomplete game with the Scrappers would be forgotten about, as it had no bearing on the standings. Well, the teams learned not to second guess the Ontario Fastball League executive. Both will be on the field once more to finish that contest.

It should be quite a game too, Hamilton wasn't exactly pleased when they lost an extra inning contest to Belleville the same night.

Late in that game one of the Hamilton players made a rather uncomplimentary statement concerning the Belleville McDonald's.

A quick reply from coach Harold Reid and the remainder of the Belleville bench at least showed they aren't pussycats. The Macs are tired, it seems, of being patsies for clubs trying to make the playoffs, and they're ready to do something about it.

In Newmarket it won't be easy to adjust for the outfielders, but they'll have to. The outfield fence in Newmarket is so short that outfielders practically lose their usefulness. Someone like Glenn Carleton, who normally can outrun many balls will have to be prepared to jump a fence as well.

With both teams pitching staffs knowing what to expect, it's very possible drop balls will be the predominant pitch thrown.

Hamilton wing their way in on Friday night in one of their "custom built buses", complete with a TV set and stereo. Plush carpeting lined the floors and couches replaced seats.

All of that comfort didn't help when they went on the field though, and owner Chester Waxman may be getting a little hot under the collar.

At least Bill McNellis gave Belleville a compliment, after watching Scott Reid pitch he said:

"That boy's a good pitcher".

McNellis, a United States citizen seemed to lose some of his cool when a couple of Hamilton plays didn't quite come off.

Jones Gets Als Rolling Over Argos

MONTREAL (CP) — For the second consecutive week, Marv Levy brought in Jimmy Jones to relieve starting quarterback Sonny Wade and for the second straight time Jones helped to engineer a come-from-behind win for Montreal Alouettes.

"Sonny wasn't playing that badly," Levy said after the Alouettes posted their fourth win in six outings Wednesday night, downing Toronto Argonauts 33-17 in an Eastern Football Conference clash.

"Like our game last week, we didn't have the good field position when Sonny was in there.

"We had a plan going into the game to bring in Jimmy. Sonny wasn't playing badly. We just put Jimmy in to change the tempo of the game."

Jones completed 10 of 19 passes for 108 yards and also had four carries for a net gain of 35 yards.

"At first we tried to establish the running game," said Jones, who replaced Wade midway through the second quarter with Toronto leading 10-5.

"I wanted to make sure we were confident of our running game before we started passing. I wanted to mix it up with some outside stuff and some draws."

Jones ran 32 yards to set up a two-yard run by Johnny Rodgers with 21 seconds remaining in the first half for Montreal's first touchdown and rolled right to complete a 16-yard game-winning TD pass to Skip Eaman with less than two minutes left in the third quarter to put Montreal ahead 20-17.

Defensive end Mike Raines, playing his second game in an Alouettes uniform, picked off a pass from Argos quarterback Mike Rae and ran 11 yards for a TD with 46 seconds gone in the final quarter to break the game open. Don Sweet kicked three field goals, three converts and a single and Wade booted two singles to complete Montreal's scoring.

Rae, making his first start since Toronto's opening game July 24, tossed touchdown passes to Eric Allen in the second quarter and Doyle Orange in the third. Zenon Andrusyshyn kicked a field goal and two converts.

Rae moved the Argonauts well in the first half and completed his first 17 passes. But what coach Russ Jackson thought of Rae's efforts was anybody's guess.

"We scored a couple of touchdowns and he looked good in the first half," said Jackson, displeased with Toronto's fourth loss in six games. "We didn't look good in the second half. We'll have to take a look at the films."

"I thought he did a credible job," said Levy. "He hasn't played in a long while and when a man comes in and completes 17 passes against you, he has to be playing well. He deserves a lot of credit. We put a lot of pressure on him."

The game was watched by 27,117 fans who made it to the stadium despite a walkout by city transit workers. It was the largest crowd of the year and the fourth biggest in Alouettes history.

CFL Scoring Leaders

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Western Conference

Dave Cutler booted 16 points in Edmonton Eskimos' 34-10 Western Football Conference victory over British Columbia Lions Wednesday night to move far in front in the west's individual scoring race.

Cutler's output Wednesday of four field goals, three converts and a single boosted his point total to 61 in five games. His closest rival is Cyril McFall of Calgary Stampeders who has 40 points in five games.

John Wintermeyer, placekicker for the Lions, moved up a notch in the statistics by kicking a field goal and a convert to increase his total to 28 points.

Don Sweet picked up 13 points Wednesday night in Montreal Alouettes' 33-17 victory over Toronto Argonauts to close in on the leaders in the Eastern Football Conference scoring race.

Sweet booted three field goals, converted three Montreal touchdowns and kicked a 44-yard single to increase his season point total to 39, one less than team-mate Peter Dalla Riva, who holds down third place in the scoring race.

Zenon Andrusyshyn, who kicked a field goal and two converts in Wednesday's game, continues to lead the conference with 59 points.

Gerry Organ of Ottawa follows Andrusyhyn with 44 points.

Smith's Fortunes Still at Low Ebb

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Three years ago Stan Smith was the king of tennis. Today he is in exile.

"The game isn't as much fun, not when you're losing," said Smith. "The excitement of playing is there. I know I can play well. It's a combination of things."

Onny Parun of New Zealand shed more light on Smith's plight after beating him in the first round of the U.S. Open tennis championships Wednesday 6-4, 6-2.

Smith, 28, won the Open in 1971 and Wimbledon in 1972. He was rated the No. 1 player in the United States and the world in 1973. Last year he shared the No. 1 billing in the United States with Jimmy Connors and this year is ranked No. 2.

But he has been at such an ebb that he couldn't get past the first round of Wimbledon this year, losing to Byron Bertram of South Africa in consecutive sets.

He hasn't won a tournament in 13 months and for the first time since he can remember he wasn't seeded for this year's Open, even though he reached the quarter-finals last year.

Although Smith failed to get past the first round, his compatriot, No. 4 Arthur Ashe, and four other seeded players advanced.

Ashe, the Wimbledon champion, beat Victor Amaya, a University of Michigan senior, 6-3, 7-6. Amaya, a substitute for Harald Elschenbroich of West Germany who failed to show, had only 15 minutes notice for his centre court match, the first of the 1975 Open on the new clay-like surface which replaces grass.

In other matches, Roscoe Tanner of the U.S., defeated Dave Schneider of South Africa, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1; Harold Solomon, seeded 13th, eliminated Victor Pecci of Paraguay 5-7, 6-2, 6-2 and Vitas Gerulaitis, the No. 14 seed, advanced with a 5-7, 6-3, 6-2 triumph over Joaquin Rasgado of Brazil.

Jan Kodes, the No. 15 seed from Czechoslovakia, blitzed Graham Stillwell of Great Britain 6-3, 6-1 and Tom Okker, the No. 8 seed from the Netherlands, closed out the day with a 6-4, 6-2 triumph over Jurgen Fassbender of West Germany.

Coventry Forward Spoils a Record

LONDON (Reuter) — Young Coventry forward Alan Green spoiled the only unblemished record in the English League First Division soccer race with a 70th-minute goal Wednesday against Manchester United.

The goal salvaged a 1-1 draw for Coventry, which has never lost at Manchester's Old Trafford ground, and United dropped its first point of the season.

But the United squad leads the standing with seven points from four matches and a slightly superior goal average to West Ham United.

Stuart Pearson scored United's goal with a 20-yard shot in the 23rd minute.

Derby County scored its first win of the season after Newcastle United was reduced to 10 men in the first half when Micky Burns was sent off for protesting a penalty.

Derby trailed 1-0 at halftime but scored three times in 20 minutes—Tommy Craig (own goal), Kevin Hector and Francis Lee getting the goals—to win 3-2. England centre-forward Malcolm Macdonald kept up his record of scoring in every league game this season with a late goal for Newcastle.

CONNORS INCLUDED

NEW YORK (AP) — The champion Pittsburgh Triangles of World Team Tennis traded the rights to Jimmy Connors to Cleveland as part of a multi-player transaction, the league announced Wednesday.

B.C. Lions Are Haunted By Three Former Mates

EDMONTON (CP) — Three former members of British Columbia Lions collaborated Wednesday to help Edmonton Eskimos batter their former mates 34-10 and gain a share of first place in the Western Football Conference.

Don Warrington was an offensive standout and Wayne Matherne and Wayne Estay led the defence in the one-sided victory before a crowd of 24,843.

It was Edmonton's fourth win in five games and tied the Eskimos with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders, who have played six games each. B.C. is buried in the conference basement with one win and five losses.

Working with Bruce Lemmerman at quarterback, Warrington caught three passes for 71 yards and carried the ball six times for 31. Lemmerman used Warrington and brilliant George McGowan as primary targets in completing 17 of 28 passes for 275 yards.

Estay led Edmonton's front four in keeping pressure on B.C. quarterbacks Don Moorhead, Pete Liske and Eric Guthrie. Matherne ran back punts and kickoffs and intercepted a pass by Guthrie late in the game.

Matherne's only major error came in the second quarter when he slipped while covering Rose Clarkson on a pass. Liske hit Clarkson for an 18-yard touchdown. It was converted by John Wintermeyer, who also had a 33-yard field goal.

Lemmerman set up a two-yard touchdown run by Roy Bell and a one yard charge by Calvin Harrell. He also threw a seven-yard pass to Larry Highbaugh.

Dave Cutler completed Edmonton's scoring with three converts, four field goals and a 19-yard single on the final play of the game.

McGowan caught eight passes for 136 yards, boosting his two-game total to 17 receptions for 327 yards. His longest was a 56-yard pass-and-run play which set up Harrell's touchdown.

The game was marred by a near-brawl in the final minute. Edmonton rookie Pete Lavorato was belted from behind after the whistle on Matherne's interception and both benches emptied briefly.

Moorhead was injured in the first quarter. Preliminary diagnosis indicated stretched knee ligaments. He was to be examined further when the club returned home.

Liske performed creditably after he took over but could not sustain long marches. Walt McKee's punting combined with a series of penalties to keep the Lions in poor field position.

Liske completed 10 of 18 passes for 126 yards as the Lions earned 13 first downs on net offence of 212 yards. Edmonton gained only 116 yards rushing and had 24 first downs on net offence of 387 yards.

B.C. took 11 penalties, many of them crippling, for 98 yards, and the Eskimos took only five penalties for 35 yards.

Looks Like Orr Is on the Way

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Orr has rejected Boston Bruins' final contract offer and is ready to jump to Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association, lawyer Alan Eagleson said Wednesday.

BOBBY ORR

Eagleson, agent for the National Hockey League defenceman, said only the sale of the Bruins to a new group of owners might prevent Orr from signing a contract with the Fighting Saints for a reported $8.5 million.

"Unless Storer (present owners Storer Broadcasting Corp.,) sells the Bruins in the next couple of days, we'll call in the Saints and sign their deal," Eagleson said. "We've told the Bruins we can't accept their contract offer and negotiations have been finalized."

Discussions have been held concerning sale of the Bruins to Sportsystems, a corporation headed by the Jacobs brother from Buffalo, N.Y.

Harry Sinden, managing director of the Bruins, said Wednesday that the offer to Orr was sizeable and that the Bruins were in no position to increase it. The NHL team's final offer was believed to be between $350,000 and $400,000 a year for the next seven years.

Minnesota's offer would make Orr the most highly-paid athlete in professional sports. It calls for a $1.5 signing bonus and $5 million over five years.

"I think if it was anything other than money, we'd be keeping him," said Sinden.

Meanwhile, NHL president Clarence Campbell reaffirmed Wednesday that no other NHL clubs would contribute to save Orr from jumping to the WHA. Club officials and owners of WHA teams have been asked to contribute to Minnesota's attempt to sign Orr.

Campbell also said that a delegation of proposed buyers of the Bruins would meet with the NHL board of governors today. The governors can veto any franchise sale.

The proposed purchase price is reported to be about $10 million.

More NHL Expansion Talk

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Hockey League's expansion plans could include Miami and the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

William Jennings, chairman of the NHL's expansion committee and president of New York Rangers, was quoted Wednesday as saying:

"Just yesterday I received an application from a responsible group proposing a Miami franchise for the 1977-78 season. They're going to build an arena in Miami in an area where the state is building a new university.

"Another area that as yet does not have a team is Texas," continued Jennings. I expect they could be interested in a franchise sometime, possibly in the Dallas-Fort Worth area."

The NHL, which has expanded from six teams in 1967 to its present total of 18, was expected to add Denver and Seattle for the 1976-77 season. But Denver instead took a franchise in the World Hockey Association for the 1975-76 season and backers of proposed Seattle franchise have encountered financial difficulties.

Russians Are Ready

TORONTO (CP) — The Russian Ice Hockey Federation has sent the National Hockey League a signed contract agreeing to participate in a series of exhibition games this season, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Wednesday at the league's semi-annual meetings.

It was the first official word the NHL, prime mover of the series, has from the Russians concerning games to be played in late December and January between two Russian club teams and several NHL teams in North America.

Approval for the series has yet to be obtained from the NHL Players' Association, which meets in Chicago next week.

CUT SWIM SHORT

DOVER, England (AP) — Stella Taylor of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., returned to Dover by completing an English Channel swim to France in 18 hours and 15 minutes. When she set out Tuesday from Dover's Shakespeare Beach, she hoped to become the first woman to swim from England to France and back again. "But when I reached the French coast after swimming through rough seas, I decided it would not be possible to swim back to Dover," she said.

You need 6" of insulation in your attic.
You can do it yourself, this weekend.

Tonight, go up to the attic and measure the thickness of your insulation.

If you don't have 6", you don't have enough.

If you don't have 6", you should add more insulation this weekend.

1 The high cost of heating is getting higher. In the past year or so, your fuel bill has gone up substantially. And it'll go up more. The only way around the situation is to use less fuel. And that means more insulation.

2 Insulation is an investment. Building codes are being changed and 6" of insulation in the attic will probably be the new minimum for all new housing. Make your insulation conform to the new standards and you'll be increasing the real value of your home and saving on the cost of heating, too.

3 What kind of insulation should you get? Fiberglas.* It's easy to install, readily available and inexpensive. It's also extremely efficient, rot and mildew proof, fire retardant and recognized everywhere as the best form of insulation.

If you already have some insulation in the attic you'll probably need Fiberglas friction fit batts.

They install without so much as a nail. Just stuff them between the floor joists in the attic, right over the insulation you have. Get your Fiberglas friction fit batts thick enough to make 6" when you add the depth of your present insulation.

Since you'll be adding to existing insulation, do not use insulation with a backing or a vapour barrier. (You could be creating condensation problems.) All you need is plain, unbacked insulation–Fiberglas friction fit batts.

4 If you have no insulation at all. You need Fiberglas kraft faced batts with a built in vapour barrier. You'll need it 6" thick (that's called R-20) and you apply it the same way–laying it between the joists in the attic floor. The vapour barrier (the paper side) always goes next to the warm side. So in the attic, it's paper side down.

5 The Fiberglas booklet. It tells all. Your building supply dealer has a free copy of the Fiberglas booklet for you. It's called "HOW TO FIGHT THE RISING COST OF FUEL BY IMPROVING YOUR HOME'S INSULATION". Ask for it and read it. It'll tell you everything you need to know about insulating your attic, rec room, cottage and give you other tips on conserving energy.

To do the average house should take the weekend. But it's an investment that pays dividends on every fuel bill you'll ever receive.

Tony's Drop to 3-1 Record

Ontario, B.C. Teams Are 4-0

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — British Columbia and Ontario clinched first place in their respective divisions Wednesday as the Canadian men's softball championships completed four days of round-robin competition.

British Columbia, represented by Victoria Bate, stretched its unbeaten streak to five games with a 3-0 win over the host Oshawa Tonys. The loss was the first for Oshawa in four games.

Ontario, represented by Kitchener, Ont., and led by the record-setting pitching performance of Bob Domik, rolled to its fourth consecutive shutout win of the tournament with a 7-0 decision over Alberta.

The B.C. victory clinched a first-place finish in the red divison while Ontario is assured of top spot in the blue division.

In other games Wednesday, Nova Scotia beat Saskatchewan 4-0 and later in the day shut out Newfoundland 6-0, Northwest Territories downed the Yukon 3-1, Alberta defeated New Brunswick 7-1, and Manitoba beat Prince Edward Island 2-1.

Harvey Stevenson hit a fifth-inning, two-run home run to pace Victoria's six-hit attack against Oshawa. Dave Ruthewsky was the winning pitcher and Paul Wannamaker, who earlier in the week pitched the first perfect game in the tournament's history, took the loss.

Domik, picked up by Kitchener from Newmarket of the Ontario Fastball League, struck out the first 14 batters he faced, a tournament record, to pace the Ontario victory. Ontario's seven-hit attack was led by Don Hoffman with a home run and single.

Nova Scotia's win over Saskatchewan knocked the team out of contention in the red division. Doug Webster allowed only four hits in getting the win over Fred Gardiner, who gave up nine hits.

Jack MacKinnon of Dartmouth led the Nova Scotians to victory over Newfoundland, coming within two batters of throwing his second consecutive no-hitter in the tournament. MacKinnon tossed a five-inning no-hitter over the Yukon on opening day.

Northwest Territories picked up its first victory in four games with its win over the Yukon. Steve Smith scattered five hits to hand the Yukon its fourth consecutive loss. Both teams are out of playoff contention.

Alberta moved into a second-place tie with Quebec in the blue division with its victory over New Brunswick. Cal Lange paced Alberta with a three-run homer in the third as winning pitcher Ken Chorney allowed four hits.

Manitoba climbed out of the cellar into fifth place in the blue division with its win over Prince Edward Island. Both Manitoba runs were unearned as the P.E.I. team suffered its fourth consecutive loss.

In games today, Quebec takes on P.E.I., Oshawa plays Newfoundland, Saskatchewan plays Northwest Territories and Ontario takes on Manitoba.

SCHWAGER — Wayne and Barb (nee Morgan) are pleased to announce the safe arrival of their 1st child, a daughter, Dawn Elizabeth, Saturday, August 16, 1975 at Belleville General Hospital, weight 8 lbs. 9 ozs. First grandchild for Elmer and Marlene Morgan, R.R. 2, Stirling, second for Gilbert and Helen Schwager, R.R. 2, Shannonville. Special thanks to Dr. Allore and nurses on 5th floor, also thanks to Dr. Briggs, Dr. Wai and Dr. Fry.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBINSON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Frank Robinson who passed away August 28, 1973.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
The world's weary troubles and trials are past,
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.

—Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Irene and family, Catherine, Carl and Dorothy.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincerest thanks to Drs. Tanton, Murray and Grant for their efficient care and to the nurses on 6th level for their kindness and help and to Rev. John Uttley, relatives, friends and residents of Fairview Towers for cards, visits and flowers while a patient in the Belleville General Hospital and upon my return home.

Molly E. Hick

To thank the nurses and staff on 6th level of Belleville General Hospital and the nurses and waiters at Queen's Care Centre for their care of me while a patient at these places. Also a thank-you and appreciation to Drs. Fisher, Morphy and Drs. Hart and Manderville for their good work and care too; and thanks to Rev. Poulter, relatives and friends for their many visits and also cards and gifts.

Clinton Bird

Many thanks to friends, family and neighbors for their cards and good wishes during my brief stay in the hospital. A special thanks to Dr. Morphy and the staff of Belleville General Hospital.

Leo Golden

AT HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bush and Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Bush will be at home to friends and relatives in honor of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bush's 50th wedding anniversary, at their family farm home at River Valley on August 31, 1975, afternoon and evening. For gifts - best wishes only.

MEMORIES

Ribbon tied love letters may start memories and baby shoes and albums, but so can things like these — a sweet two bedroom 1½ storey stucco home situated on a large country lot 5 minutes from Belleville. Attractive new kitchen cabinets and recently modernized bath. The extra room off the kitchen could be used for a den or hird bedroom. Asking only $29,900. No, memories are not just things that happened "way back when". Call for appointment to view tonight.

RUSTLE UP A SMILE

Only $20,500. And you can move right into this solid older brick home with separate garage. Large living room has hardwood floors, 3 good size bedrooms and big kitchen. Located in a desirable area of the west hill. With a bit of modernization it wouldn't be hard to rustle up a smile.

DON'T GIVE UP

Don't give up though the day seems blue — you may win out if you fight it through. Make an appointment to view this nearly new 3 bedroom maintenance free bungalow. Exceptionally large city lot and nearness to schools, shopping and churches makes this home irresistable. Separate living and dining rooms plus eat in kitchen. 4-pce. bath with vanity and finished receration room. Make an appointment to view and I'm sure your struggle will be through.

ATTRACTIVE SALES POSITION FOR A HIGH CALIBRE SALES PERSON

Xerox of Canada Limited has an immediate opening in Ottawa for a professional sales person with a university education, proven experience and ability to sell in a competitive market and a good record of achievement and success.

The person we are looking for will be used to a good income but very anxious to improve these earnings by selling a sophisticated product line to top level managers in business and industry. The successful candidate will also yearn for a work environment, which is result-oriented, but recognizes good performance.

Your earnings potential will be excellent — based on a salary plus monthly bonus and commissions. You will also enjoy a liberal program of fringe benefits, fully paid by the company, and profit sharing. We provide a fine, in-depth training program and good marketing support to help back up your efforts.

If you know you are the calibre we are looking for, call or write Carl Best, Xerox of Canada Limited, 785 Carling Avenue, Square II, Ottawa, Ontario, Telephone (613) 237-1731.

Computer Analyzes Violence on TV

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) is developing a computer technique of producing graphs of various kinds of television shows, but its initial demonstration Monday left TV officials mystified, suspicious, and in some cases angry.

Commission officials said the technique is still "very experimental, and we don't know perimental, and we don't know how to interpret the graphs yet."

But one official said the graphs can show there is a "tremendous variety of ways" in which television broadcasters can treat violence in drama shows and the graphs "can be used for monitoring commercials."

Patrick Gossage, acting associate director of the CRTC's research branch, told a Queen's University seminar on television violence that a number of British, United States and Canadian police drama shows have been run through the computer.

What was produced was a jumbled pattern of vertical lines which, he said, portrayed the amount of activity on screen. By reading the graphs, researchers hope to co[illegible] high-tension drama with the lines.

But television network executives protested they did not understand the graphs or their purpose.

Lister Sinclair, CBC vice-president for programming, said the graphs showed only camera movement, action on the screen and cuts between scenes. They took no account of background music, one of the most important means of heightening drama on the air.

Tom Gould, vice-president of the CTV network, said the graphs appeared useless in assessing the impact of violence in a show. A quiet talk show could incite violence without raising a ripple on the graph, he said.

The seminar, sponsored by the CRTC to explore deficiencies in current Canadian

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP) — Enzo Stuart, the Italian crooner who for years has made a pitch to television audiences with his spaghetti sauce commercials, has run into trouble selling a Rolls-Royce.

Len Leonards has filed a $28,673.15 damage suit against Stuart, charging that the singer sold him a used Rolls-Royce Phantom for $20,000 and didn't tell him it needed more than $8,000 in repairs.

In court papers filed here, Leonards said Stuart told him the car was in good mechanical condition, but it has needed a new $7,000 engine and $1,673.15 in other repairs since it was purchased last May.

PORTSMOUTH, R.I. (AP) — Betty Hutton, the former actress who worked at a Roman Catholic rectory here as a kitchen helper, has returned to California.

"She still wants to make a comeback, and I guess that would be the place to do it," said Rev. Peter Maguire, pastor of St. Anthony's.

Miss Hutton, 53, who said she "found" herself when she converted to Catholicism last year, worked at the rectory before going to New York for psychiatric treatment.

She has starred in movies including Annie Get Your Gun and The Greatest Show on Earth."

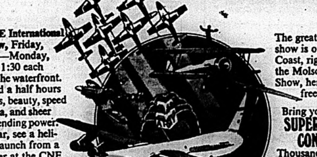
"99 44/100% DEAD"

The most exciting, most friendly, most star-filled, most fun-packed show in the world is nowhere else but in Toronto... for one more weekend!



The CNE International Air Show, Friday, Aug. 29—Monday, Sept. 1, 1:30 each day on the waterfront. Two and a half hours of thrills, beauty, speed nostalgia, and sheer mind-bending power. This year, see a helicopter launch from a destroyer at the CNE waterfront; see the Snowbirds, precision jet aerobatic team; see the Skyhawks parajumping team. Featured military planes include the giant RAF Vulcan delta bomber, the world's largest transport plane the Lockheed C5A, and the USAF F-15 Eagle jet fighter. You'll see aerial acrobatics, a wing-walker, a fly-past of World War II aircraft, and the great US parachute demonstration team, the Golden Knights. Monday, Sept. 1 is USAF Day; the Thunderbirds jet team will open the show. And it's all happening at the Ex!

The greatest lumberjack show is out on the West Coast, right? Wrong. It's the Molson's Lumberjack Show, here at the Ex, free every day.

For Friday, Aug. 29

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your work will suffer today from lack of concentration. Keep your mind on what you're doing or things will go amiss.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You'll have to be extra careful today regarding personal resources. Above all, don't gamble or speculate.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may find yourself out front alone today championing an unpopular cause. You'd be wiser to wait for proper backers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Some problems you'll be faced with today will be of your own making. It will only muddy the waters more if you try to pass the buck.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're a bit too extravagant with your funds for your own good today when among friends. You'll be taken advantage of.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You tend to scatter your forces thinner than you should today. Nothing too productive can result. Why so many irons?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't try to bluff your way today by pretending you're knowledgeable. Best you say as little as possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be tempted to poke your nose into something today that doesn't concern you. Be prepared to take the consequences.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you're rather independent and call your own shots. Today, your decisions will be overly influenced by others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're having work or services performed today. It's best to personally supervise each step particularly if those on the job are new at it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're too possessive of loved ones today you'll create problems that could have easily been avoided.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't make any major domestic decisions today without your mate being either present or at least consulted.

Celiac Disease Easy to Identify

By G C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a two-year-old with chronic diarrhea, which has been diagnozed as spastic stomach and duodenum. Is it possible that the underlying cause could be celiac disease? How is celiac disease recognized and what is its treatment? — Mrs. M. W.

Celiac disease has rather obvious and dramatic symtoms (irritability, growth retardation, weakness, protruding abdomen, bulky, loose, pale stools, and alternating diarrhea and constipation). Your physician would have had sufficient reason to suspect celiac disease if present. Also examination of feces reveals higher levels of fat than normally would appear.

Stomach spasm often occurs in highly tense individuals, which probably can be ruled out in your two-year-old. Stomach spasm can be caused by an ulcer or a narrowing of the stomach outlet.

Follow-up x-rays can detect these, if present. The best thing for you to do is to follow the doctor's suggestion with regard to diet, and if the problem continues, then you can discuss other approaches — surgery, etc. A milk intolerance is also a possibility.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband, who is 58, suffered from back pains for a long time. An orthopedist took a blood test and x-rays and told him he had stones in his kidneys. He sent him to a urologist who confirmed the stones diagnosis.

My husband was told to go home, drink a lot of water and come back in six months.

Does this mean there is nothing to be done about the stones? My husband can hardly sleep or walk. Can stones in the kidney cause all these troubles? —S.S.

Many small kidney stones give no trouble until they move down the urinary tract and are passed. Then the colic can be severe. The pain of kidney stones is easily "referred," that is in a sense radiated and reappearing as back pain.

Your husband's prognosis would depend on the size of the stone or stones and their location in the kidneys. Copious amount of water intake tends to flush small stones out and prevent new ones from forming.

If untreated, they can obstruct a duct and reduce urination From your letter I assume this has not happened in your husband's case.

The urologist appears to be taking the sensible approach, biding his time to see what this program accomplishes. If it is successful, your husband may avoid surgery to remove the stones later on. And surgery is the only other method. There is as yet no satisfactory method of dissolving the stones in place, although some research has been going on in this area.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 18, is susceptible to colds. She plans to attend college. She gets practivally no sunshine and is trying to cut down on her eating to keep from getting fat.

I'm afraid she'll lose some of the essential vitamins her body needs. A friend recommended that I give her cod liver oil in tablet form. I have heard so much controversy about vitamins A and D being bad for the system that I am afraid. What do you think? — Mrs. R.C.

In the first place, vitamins aren't the sole answer to cold prevention. Her resistance is dependent on adequate protein intake, which could be lacking in an overly-restricted diet. Adequate rest is essential, too.

If she is cutting down on food, the normal source of vitamin supply, she should probably be taking a mixed vitamin supplement of A, D, C and the B-complex group. These need not be of the high potency type. She doesn't want to get an excess of A and D, so you are correct there. Cod liver oil is one of the richest sources of the A and D vitamins.

Before the next cold season, you might have her take an influenza shot.

First Jet Engine Sells Well

LONDON (CP) — The world's first jet engine to go into airline service has bcome Europe's top-selling civil aircraft power unit. It was first used by an airline 22 years ago.

Rolls-Royce says that since the Dart tarbo-prop engine first ran in 1945 more than 6,500 have been built. It still is in quantity production after 30 years, and the production rate now is being increased to meet demand.

Rolls says the secret of the Dart's success is its established high reliability and steady development which has more than doubled its power. When it entered service in 1953 in British European Airways Viscounts it produced just over 1,500 horsepower; today versions give more than 3,400 horsepower. Despite the fact that its power has more than doubled, its diameter remains unchanged and it is only about four inches longer.

Dart engines now have flown more than 75 million hours in nine different types of aircraft, including the Hawker Siddeley 748 and Dutch Fokker F 27 Friendship airliners.

Rolls says there is every prospect of the Dart's remaining in service for another 20 years. Even after the decision has been taken to stop production, Rolls-Royce will produce spares for another 15 years. Sales of the Dart spares last year were worth L11 million ($25.5 million).

By Oswald and James Jacoby

We aren't going to get into a discussion about the merit or lack of merit in West's opening lead. Suffice to say that it gave former internationalist John Crawford who has played little bridge in the last 10 years a chance to show that his dummy play is still exceptional.'

He started by playing a low diamond from dummy. He wanted to save the king-jack-10 for the future. Then at trick two he led his deuce of clubs. This play was made with a two fold reason. First of all he wanted to maintain as much communication as possible. Secondly, he expected to lose two club tricks in any event and wanted to avoid the loss of three in case there was a singleton ace in the West hand.

Sure enough, there was. West had to use his ace on Johnny's deuce. West shifted to a spade, but there was nothing more that the defense could do. Johnny took his ace and played clubs.

East soon and led back a spade to his partner's queen. Another spade put Johnny back in his hand. Just for frosting on the cake Johnny cashed his last clubs and took a heart finesse for an overtrick.

Ask the Jacobys

A letter from Vermont reads, "We play weak two-bids. I elected to open two hearts with:

♠ Q J 9 7 6 ♥ K Q J 9 6 5 ♦ 2 ♣ 8. I was severely criticized, yet with nine high-card points and a good six-card suit my hand seems to meet all conditions for the bid.

We have to go along with the criticism. The hand meets all conditions except that it is too powerful. Our reader should have passed and planned to bid both his suits later.

Meet Purinaettes for Title

BYBF Sweeps Semi-final

Shirley Gulliver must enjoy hurling four hitters. She did it three times to Belleville Broadloom in their semi-final series in the Belleville and District Ladies Softball League.

Gulliver was on the winning end of the 7-1 Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund win over Belleville Broadloom. They take the series 4-0.

In the other playoff series Ellis Construction has been eliminated because of a default in a game to be played against the Purinaettes in Madoc.

Gulliver walked one batter and struck out three on the way to her playoff victory.

The loss went to Sue Fobert. Her performance in the game was better than 11 hits indicate. She walked one and struck out three batters.

Sheila Smith led the way at bat for BYBF with a triple and a single. Carol McFarlane doubled and singled to collect the winning RBIs.

Joyce McFarlane collected a double while Helen DeMille singled twice. Other singles came from the bats of Marj Reid, Gulliver, Nancy Birch and Sheila Alexander.

For Broadloom all four hits were singles, from Norma May, Margie Smith, Chris Fyke and Mary Anne Sills.

BYBF and the Purinaettes now meet in the finals for the BDLSL crown. The Benefit Fund lost just one game all season, and that was to the Purinaettes.

In favor of Madoc they have two top rate hurlers in Darlene Bedore and Sandra Fleming. Hitting will likely come from the Bailey's, Joan and Jane, and Roseanne Chapman, to name three.

The BYBF team is deep in talent, with Sue Morton and Shirley Gulliver the team's top pitchers. Fielding is excellent, especially at short with Nancy Birch and at first where Joyce McFarlane makes the play. Hitting wise Sheila Alexander, Shirley Gulliver, Donna Preston and the rest of the team can hit.

It should be a close series and neither team has a distinct edge at this point.

BING TRADED?

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit TV station said Wednesday that Dave Bing, veteran captain of Detroit Pistons, has been traded to Washington Bullets. WXYZ-TV said Bing, along with the Pistons No. 1 draft choice in 1977, was traded for guard Kevin Porter. The Pistons have scheduled a news conference for today. During his Detroit career, Bing has more than 15,000 points and 4,200 assists. His scoring average as a pro tops the 23-point mark.

Black Diamond Is in Command

Black Diamond bats once again sent Brooke Bond down to defeat, and gave B and D a commanding 3-0 lead in their final Belleville Industrial Softball League series.

The winners scored six runs in the first inning to get off on the right foot in the BISL playoff contest. Six more runs in the fourth inning clinched the game for the regular season pennant winners.

Ron Bateman recorded the win. He was touched for nine hits and walked two. He struck out two batters in the contest.

Ross Geen took the loss. He walked five and struck out two.

Gene Francis contributed three singles for the winners while Ron Andrews singled twice and doubled. Ron Bateman and Myles McDonnell each collected two singles. Jack Francis singled and doubled. Howard Meeks slammed a triple for the winners.

Lou Rivers tripled and singled for the losers while Ross Geen cranked a home run. Ron Stratton and Don Goodfellow doubled and singled for Brooke Bond.

Next game of the final series goes Friday night at the Alemite, game time is 6.15 p.m.

St. Catharines In Top Spot

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharines Mr. Jackets took first place in the Ontario Fastball League's West Division Wednesday with two 1-0 victories against London Dukes.

The two wins left St. Catharines and Oshawa Tony's with identical 29-25 records on top of the division. St. Catharines was awarded first place on the basis of its 4-2 record against Oshawa during the season.

Ken Rhora pitched a three-hitter for St. Catharines in the opening game and struck out eight. The loser was Metro Szeryk who gave up four hits.

The lone run of the game came on Bruce Orr's home-run in the fifth inning.

In the second game, Dick Balint threw a one-hitter and struck out nine. The loser was Don Dominas, who allowed two hits and struck out seven.

Ken Hodgkins singled home the game's only run in the second inning. The lone London hit was a sixth inning single by Charlie Winger.

League play resumes today with Belleville at Newmarket for a doubleheader.

Arctic Gas Considers New Pipeline Route

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. is considering a change in the route of a natural gas pipeline from Alaska into the Northwest Territories, miles an estimated $190 million from the cost of the project.

In a document filed with the National Energy Board, the company said the alternate route would take the pipeline across the mouth of the Mackenzie River Delta instead of going around the delta as now proposed.

The new route from Alaska would cross the mouth of the Delta, joining the main pipeline at Parsons Lake, about 43 miles souht of the Arctic coast, a shortcut of about 103 miles.

The company said it does not want to amend its application at the moment because more environment study of the cross-delta route is needed.

However, preliminary studies of the route show that a pipeline across the delta could be installed "without detrimental environmental impact," the company told the board.

An Arctic Gas spokesman also said the company is looking into the possibility of reducing the size of its 400-mile Alaskan pipeline to 42 inches from 48 inches as originally proposed.

The larger size was intended to eliminate the need for future expansion of the pipeline in "environmentally sensitive areas," the spokesman said. But the company now is looking at whether that proposal is justified in light of rising construction costs, he said.

Davis Criticizes Media

MOUNT FOREST, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis took a quick, critical swipe at the news media Wednesday night, the first time he has done so in his campaigning for the Sept. 18 Ontario election.

He chose a Progressive Conservative party dance in this community about 40 miles southeast of Owen Sound, to make his point, telling supporters that the province generally agrees with his government's policies, "despite the negative media campaign that I sense is developing."

The premier, who ended a busy campaign day by attending the dance with his 16-year-old daughter Cathy, said voters, not the media, will decide who wins the election.

Mercury Seeping Into Northern Lake

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says thousands of tons of mercury may have seeped into Lake Timiskaming, one of the main bodies of water in the Ottawa River system, in the early part of the century.

The newspaper quotes Herbert Niemetz, president of International Mineral Recovery and Explorations of Temagami, as making this charge Wednesday while panning successfully for mercury at three locations near Cobalt, Ont., in front of witnesses.

It says the witnesses included Timiskaming MP Arnold Peters; Bob Bain, the NDP candidate in the Sept. 18 provincial election; Jack Craik, a provincial vice-president of the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, and Roger Laperriere of Temagami.

The newspaper quotes Mr. Niemetz as saying that thousands of tons of mercury were probably used in the silver mills in the area as part of a process used until the 1920s to get silver out of the ore.

Mr. Niemetz, who does mineral recovery work for mining companies at abandoned mine sites, is quoted as saying the provincial government is hiding the facts and that the mining companies are aware of the mercury they left behind but are unwilling to do anything

Kickback Reports Not New

QUEBEC (CP) — Reports of kickbacks by Lockheed Aircraft Corp. to executives of foreign airlines are nothing new to the man who headed an inquiry into Air Canada's financial operations.

Chief Justice Willard Estey, of Ontario Supreme Court, is currently preparing a report to the federal government based on the recent three-month inquiry into Air Canada's finances.

"The Lockheed affair is not new to us," said Mr. Justice Estey, attending the Canadian Bar Association annual meeting here.

He said the matter is still under investigation, but that the inquiry would not be reopened unless something tangible is found.

Will Hold Irrigation Hearings

WASHINGTON (CP) — A House of Representatives subcommittee will hold a major public hearing Sept. 15 on the controversial Garrison irrigation project in North Dakota and a prominent Canadian environment group has been invited to take part.

Robert Lane, a spokesman for the subcommittee on conservation, energy and natural resources, said Wednesday that an invitation was sent Tuesday to the Manitoba Environmental Council, a government advisory body, to attend and present its views. It will also be allowed to table briefs from other interested Canadian bodies.

The hearing, in Bismarck, N.D., comes as the Canadian and U.S. governments are believed nearing agreement on terms of reference for a study of the project by the International Joint Commission (IJC).

Potato Prices Drop

By CATHY MCKERCHER
The Canadian Press

The price of potatoes and tomatoes dropped sharply in most major Canadian cities during August, a survey by The Canadian Press shows.

John van der Zalm, secretary of the Ontario Fruit and Vegetable Growers Association, said, however, that lower prices are not expected to last.

The survey found that Saint John, N.B. and Regina reported the largest price decrease for a 10-pound bag of potatoes—$1.20 to bring the price to $1.69 and 99 cents respectively. Ottawa and Montreal both reported 80-cent decreases to 89 cents. Ottawa also reported the highest decrease in tomatoes, 80 cents to bring the price of a pound of local tomatoes to 29 cents.

Britain Suffers Declines

LONDON (CP) — A year of rising unemployment and declines in trade, investment and production are predicted for Britain today by a respected body of economic forecasters.

"The general picture is one of severe recession brought about basically by the rise in oil prices and the failure of governments to offset its recessionary consequences," says the National Institute of Economic and Social Research.

The only light in the gloom is the prediction that consumer prices will start to fall from their current 26-per-cent annual inflation rate to about 12 per cent next year.

The forecast of hard times forms the backdrop to a government campaign to sell its anti-inflation program.

Air Controllers Threaten Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Air traffic controllers tried to put Transport Minister Jean Marchand in the hot seat Thursday, threatening an illegal strike at 3:30 a.m. Sunday unless the government backs down on a plan to give some control work to members of another union.

Mr. Marchand responded with a proposal that the 2,200 controllers hold their strike off until at least next week when the cabinet will be available in Ottawa to hear the dispute. Most ministers are away on holiday.

But he also warned the controllers, members of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, that the government would take legal steps to end any strike.

Jim Livingston, association president, announced the planned strike saying that the controllers would remain off work until the dispute with the government was resolved.

A strike by the controllers would virtually halt all commercial air travel in the country although the union has offered to provide emergency services.

A department spokesman at Toronto International Airport said a strike could affect about 20,000 passengers a day during the Labor Day holiday weekend.

A British Airways spokesman at Toronto said his airline was preparing to divert its flights to a U.S. airport near the border. Incoming and outgoing travellers would be transferred by bus to the alternate airport, likely Detroit.

Mr. Livingston said the government plan to transfer three specified duties of the controllers to assistants posed a safety hazard to the public.

The government plans a five-week training period for the assistants, members of the Public Service Alliance, but the controllers feel the training is not sufficient.

The duties to be handed over to assistants at 19 of the country's 625 work stations include collection of time and altitude information of incoming flights, pre-taxi clearance and flight data plotting.

The controllers would be responsible to check the work of the assistants to make sure it is correct.

Mr. Livingston said recently there have been several cases of errors made by the assistants—who are classified as clerks under their collective agreement—one of which posed the possibility of four mid-air collisions at Toronto.

A federal official later denied the incident had occurred.

Pelletier's Resignation Confirmed

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau, who has confirmed the resignation of Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier, will return to Ottawa later today, in time for a 2:30 p.m. swearing-in ceremony at Government House.

The scheduled swearing - in likely involves Mr. Pelletier's successor—who might be someone from either within or outside the present cabinet.

Mr. Pelltier's appointment as the next Canadian ambassador to France is expected to be announced shortly.

An official announcement expected today when a successor for the communications post probably will be announced.

The prime minister gave no explanation for the resignation of his long-time political and personal friend.

Mr. Trudeau slipped secretly into the North Sunday for a holiday with his three-year-old son Justin, his father-in-law James Sinclair, and Northwest Territories Commissioner Stuart Hodgson.

Israel Will Make Sinai Withdrawal in Peace Pact

JERUSALEM (AP) — Negotiations for a new Israeli-Egyptian agreement are moving ahead without any apparent setback, with Sunday or Monday as the target for completion.

"We are getting down to the wire," said U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger as he met with President Anwar Sadat in Alexandria Thursday and then flew back to Jerusalem late Thursday night. He planned to return late today or Saturday to Alexandria for his fifth meeting with Sadat of his current diplomatic shuttle.

The Egyptian president told reporters he is ready to initial the pact providing for an Israeli withdrawal behind the strategic Milla and Gidi passes in the Sinai Desert, the return of the Abu Rudeis oilfields to Egypt and electronic surveillance posts manned by U.S. civilians along the new buffer zone between the two armies.

Although Tahseen Bashir, Sadat's spokesman, cautioned that "there are still one or two problems that await resolution," Sadat said he saw nothing that could block the agreement.

He added that there is 'a good possibility" the pact would be initialed Sunday or Monday.

Diplomatic sources disclosed several important provisions of the tentative draft pertaining to Israel's commerce.

One clause provides for Egypt and Israel to recognize the Bab el Mandeb strait at the southern end of the Red Sea as an international waterway. This in effect would pledge Egypt not to interfere with shipping passing through the strait to Elat, Israel's southern port, including Iranian oil.

Egypt also will allow Israeli cargo to pass through the Suez canal, and the semi-official Israeli state radio said cargo for Israel may begin moving through the waterway before the pact is signed.

The Palestine Liberation Organization announced in Beirut that it had formed a commission to plan ways of sabotaging the agreement, which it called a 'dangerous' American plot."

Four Israeli jets attacked a Palestinian refugee camp Thursday near the Lebanese port of Tyre, a guerrilla training site nearby and a Mediterranean pier used by guerrillas. Reports from Lebanon said three persons were killed and two were wounded.

Fighting Breaks Out In Eastern Lebanon

BEIRUT (AP) — Fresh fighting flared between left-and right-wing groups in eastern Lebanon today, bringing the casualty toll during two days of clashes to 12 killed and 25 wounded, police said.

A police spokesman said four persons were killed in renewed exchanges of rockets and rocket-propelled grenades before mid-day and several houses and shops were damaged.

'But armored security forces separating the antagonists quickly brought the situation under control and prevented, at least for the moment, another outbreak of large-scale fighting," the spokesman said.

Earlier today, four men were found dead in a bullet-riddled car on the outskirts of Zahle, a predominantly Christian town 25 miles east of here.

The new hostilities sent a wave of tension through Zahle and the two neighboring Moslem villages of Housh el-Omara and Saad Nayel, whose inhabitants support Palestinian guerrillas.

Four persons were killed and 20 wounded in fighting Thursday between the two sides. The government finally sent a large police armored force to stop the shooting after learning machine-guns and rocket grenades were being used.

Irish Hero Dies

DUBLIN (AP) — Eamon de Valera, the tall, gaunt national hero of the Irish Republic, died today at the age of 92, ending a turbulent career as revolutionary and politician.

The American-born patriot who once said that "if I want to know what the Irish want, I look into my own heart," succumbed to bronchial pneumonia in a Dublin nursing home. All members of his family were at his beside when he died at 6:55 a.m. EDT.

The country was immediately plunged into mourning. Known as the "father of the Irish revolution," de Valera, former president of the republic, caught cold a week ago and his health weakened progressively.

To millions of Irishmen at home and abroad, the sombre-looking de Valera was Erin incarnate. The Irish poet William Butler Yeats once said of him: "He is a living argument father than a living man." Others have said: "He was the man who became the country."

Warring Factions Drop Arms

LISBON (Reuter) — Two of Angola's warring liberation movements—the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA) and the Union for the Total Independence of Angola (UNITA)—have agreed on an immediate ceasefire and exchange of prisoners, official Portuguese sources said here today.

The sources said the agreement had been reached during talks here this week between the MPLA and UNITA co-premiers in the now-defunct Angolan Transitional Government, Lopo de Nascimento and Jose n'Dele.

Too Many Stations Cause Price Wars Claims BP

TORONTO (CP) — Current gasoline price wars are caused by an oversupply of service stations, not by a surplus of gasoline, the vice-president of BP Canada Ltd. of Montreal said Thursday.

C. A. Deverell told the Ontario royal commission on petroleum product pricing that he does not believe "price-cutting is caused by oversupply, but by companies, including ourselves," who maintain stations in unviable locations.

Mr. Deverell cited the case of service stations in east-end Metropolitan Toronto which have lost traffic to expressways.

"You have to attract the motorist out of his way with what we call price sink," he said.

BP joined other major oil companies appearing before the commission in criticizing the Ontario government's freeze on oil product prices and recommended in a statement that "the price freeze should ..... be lifted as soon as possible and in any case, not later than Oct. 1, 1975.

Mr. Deverell said the freeze will cause BP to lose about $4 million in revenue.

He said the $1.50 increase in crude oil prices that came into effect July 1 has resulted in a permanent increase in the company's working capital requirements.

He argued that product prices should be allowed to rise when an increase in the price of crude oil occurs.

The inquiry continues.

Carpenters Sign New Agreement

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — After a day of picketing by the Carpenters' Union, two have signed two-year agreements providing wage increases, the union's business agent for the Lake Ontario district said today.

Garland Wilson said the new contracts give union members a $3.10-an-hour increase over two years plus 28 cents parity py fer Peterborough carpenters who were earning 27 cents an hour less than their counterparts in Belleville and 31 cents an hour less than carpenters in Oshawa. Wages will go to $10.60 an hour.

Striking Police Violate Ethics

TORONTO (CP) — Rocky Pomerance, president of the 12,000-member International Association of Chiefs of Police, suggests that policemen violate their professional code of ethics by going on strike.

Chief of police in Miami Beach, Fla., he made the remark this week in an interview while attending the annual conference of the Canadian police chiefs' association.

Chief Pomerance, whose term as president of the police chiefs associate ends next month when the association holds its annual meeting in Denver, Colo., touched on several other issues during the interview.

Muscular Dystrophy Leader Claims City Uncharitable

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

At least $175 which should go towards the fight to end muscular dystrophy will likely end up in the coffers of the city of Belleville, says an organizer of a muscular dystrophy carnival to be held Saturday at Ben Bleecker Auditorium.

Beverly Weldon, carnival co-ordinator, said Thursday the city's recreation-arena committee has demanded a $175 rental fee for the 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. carnival.

Mrs. Weldon said the city is the only organization involved with the carnival which has not made a donation — in the form of free rent.

Ironically, Ald. Wally Dever, a committee member, will officially open the carnival at 10 a.m.

Mrs. Weldon said as of Thursday the organizers had secured 93 donors, including insurance companies, retailers and wholesalers. In addition, Radio CJBQ has given free advertising of the event and there have been free plugs over Cablevue 4.

Mrs. weldon said organizers have set at least a $300 goal. "It's important that all this money goes to muscular dystrophy," she commented. "Everybody else is giving us something free so why can't they (committee)."

She said the committee might lessen its request at its Sept. 9 meeting when she will appear in person to describe the event in detail, its results and how much money was taken in. Net proceeds will be sent to the Canadian Muscular Dystrophy Association in Toronto.

Throughout the day, visitors can enter various games, purchase refreshments and participate in an auction sale which will run from 3 - 5 p.m.

Mrs. Weldon said a draw for a five-lb. block of cheese donated by Foxboro Cheese Factory will be held at about 5:30 p.m. Tickets have already been sold for the draw.

A previous cake draw has already raised $14.50 and over $70 in straight cash donations have already been received as well.

The carnival, which has been in the planning stages since the beginning of July, is the brain-child of Helen Bunnett, 15, of 108½ Station St. Including her and Mrs. Weldon, there are about 16 volunteers.

Reid Street Homeowner Protests Assessment

TRENTON — Town council faces a possible lawsuit about an alleged discriminatory improvement assessment levied on land bordering the Burttdale Heights subdivision when it returns from summer vacation, next week.

A local landowner on Reid St., the western side of which is the eastern boundary of the Burttdale Heights development, has retained counsel to contest what she terms is an unfair $5,607 bill received from the town for sewer service and sidewalks improvement. The figure is based on $63 per frontage foot charge.

A Mr. and Mrs. Wilson, one of 12 property owners effected by improvement, said through their lawyer in a letter to the town, they can't understand why some of their neighbors have been assessed only $1,200 while they are being charged the higher fee.

Reid St. sewers and sidewalks were completed during the Burttdale Heights construction and the town assumed responsibility for the work done on the eastern half of the street and was billed by the Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC) for the work.

They were billed by the agency at $63 per foot for the improvements and must recover for the services, said town officials.

"Town council did the fairest thing they could when they decided on the current assessment plan", said Arden Royce, deputy clerk.

Of the 12 properties on the eastern side of Reid St., the older homes all paid $1,200 to the town when they were constructed about 10 years ago for the eventual addition of sewers and sidewalks.

Three original homes on the street, built before the area was subdivided were also charged $1,200 but two of them, having enough land for future development were informed they would be subject to a $63 per foot assessment for any lots they sold in future.

Two of the properties are vacant, one belonging to the Wilsons and the other to a Scarborough woman, town officials said.

Council ruled anyone able to recover the costs of the services, through future selling of lots, will have to pay the $63 rate for the improvements which doubled the value of their properties, officials said.

Mr. Arden said the town could not be expected to absorb the cost of the improvements pointing out that when anyone builds a house they are charged for local services.

Lawyer for the Wilsons said he believes proper procedure was not followed because property owners were not informed of the action nor allowed to contest it.

Spokesmen for the town say they checked with the Ontario Municipal Board and OHC to determine if they are able to recover the moneys through this method and were informed it is allowable.

There is about 12,000 feet of frontage on the Reid St. property the town is being billed for and it will only be able to recover a small portion of the charges, through the original assessments and the newer levies, town officials said.

Lawyer for the Wilsons has requested a hearing before the council, and this is expected to be granted, in an attempt to avert court action.

District at a Glance

Food Gets Tender Care

PICTON—The Crystal Palace, one of the most popular display areas at the Prince Edward County fair this year offers a special cooling room for baked goods.

Second vice-president of the agricultural society, Mrs. Doris Whiteford says that hopefully this new facility will boost entries in the domestic classes and create a keener competition.

Horse Show Ends Season

PICTON — The Prince Edward Horse and Pony Club will hold its final show of the season on Sunday, August 31 at Picton fairgrounds.

Four shows were held this summer with points awarded to winners in all classes. Trophies will be presented to first place riders and to runnder-up at a banquet this fall.

Campaign Goes Door-to-Door

PICTON — A Palo-New Democratic Party in the Prince Edward-Lennox riding will prepare for a door-to-door canvass on Saturday by picking up campaign literature from the committee rooms of candidate Jan Nicol.

Miss Nicol has urged all supporters to collect needed materials on the weekend.

Liberal to Attend Dance

PICTON — Liberal candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox riding, Keith MacDonald, will meet the public at a free dance and social evening to be held Saturday, September 13 at the Wellington Civic Centre.

Music will be provided by The Shilos of Napanee. mino saddlebred stallion, Beebe Dare owned by Roger Flake of Yerexville recently placed second at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

A Great Body

Judges at the soap box derby in Picton Thursday voted this car owned by Mark (right) and Michael Aman as "best built" in the competitions. The team won the first runner-up trophy just to prove their sporty model had speed as well as looks.

Four Cars In Mishap

BRIGHTON — An unusual four-car accident on Highway 30, three miles north of here, caused $3,500 in damages but no injuries, Thursday afternoon.

A car driven by Ernest Tompkins, 52, Oshawa was in the northbound lane waiting to make a left turn with a second car stopped behind it.

A third car, driven by Judy Towns, 23, 85 Main St. Brighton also northbound attempted to halt but could not.

Police said her car swerved into the southbound lane and back into the northbound lane where it was in collision with the rear end of the vehicle driven by Gaye Reddom, 20, Main St. Brighton.

The Reddom car spun around and struck a fourth automobile driven by George Wickett, 21, of Belleville.

Police say Towns was charged with careless driving.

Damage to the Reddom car was estimated at $2,000 to the Town's vehicle $500 and at $1,000 to the Wickett car.

14-year-old Takes Derby Honors

PICTON — Race car drivers and their mechanics were in the pits on Prospect Ave. early Thursday morning to prepare for the Soap Box Derby sponsored by Lake Ontario Cement Co. Ltd. and the Picton recreation and parks office.

Five sports models were entered in the downhill race for trophies and cash awards, one of them driven by Karen Dunlop of Picton, the only girl in the race.

Miss Dunlop was forced to drop out of competition in the elimination heats when the front wheels of her cart dropped off in the home stretch. Mechanics were unable to make repairs in time for her to continue in the competitions.

Winner of the derby was driver Karl Sensenstein, 14, of Picton a Grade 9 student at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

He took first place in a final heat with Mark Aman of Picton winning the runner-up trophy and a cash prize.

Second runner-up was Steven McConnell who received a trophy and cash prize.

Prizes also were presented to the other drivers in the derby by James Dunlop of Lake Ontario Cement.

Race entrants were Karl Sensenstein, Steven McConnell, Tommy Gill, Karen Dunlop and Mark Aman.

A special prize for the best built car was won by Mark Aman whose derby model featured rally stripes and a built-in tool box.

Timer for the derby heats was Picton recreation director Richard Hall.

Air Command Shuffle Means Small Staff Cut at Trenton

From The Ottawa Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Air Command, the new Canadian Forces organization responsible for the nation's air power at home and abroad, officially comes into being Tuesday, Defence Minister James Richardson announced this week.

With it, will come a new name and slightly-altered function for the current Air Transport Command based at CFB Trenton.

Lt.-Col. Carl Fitzpatrick of defence information services said Wednesday that the new Air Command absorbs Air Transport Command and Air Defence Command in North Bay. These two will revert to group status and become part of Air Command.

The net effect on CFB Trenton will be a reduction of about 45 personnel, he estimated, this will have no major impact on the community's economy.

As a results, Lt.-Col. Fitzpatrick said, there will be a slight shifting of responsibility at Trenton with some personnel fulfilling air training headquarters functions.

The net effect on CFB Trenton will be a reduction of about 45 personnel, he estimated, this will have no major impact on the community's economy.

The whole thing has been resolved with a minimum of disruption of military and civilian staff, Lt.-Col. Fitzpatrick said in a telephone interview from Winnipeg, where he is involved in preparations for the inauguration ceremonies which which will take place Tuesday.

In addition, the current Air Training Command in Winnipeg will be shifted to Trenton and renamed the Canadian Forces Training System, effective Tuesday.

The new Air Command will be based in Winnipeg and some members of Air Transport Command are being transferred to the Manitoba capital.

Creation of an Air Command by Mr. Richardson is, in effect, a reversion back to Canada's traditional system of three separate forces — army, navy and air force — which ended with unification when Paul Hellyer was defence minister in the 1960s.

The move was seen by many observers as an attempt to boost sagging morale and quell disgruntlement about unification.

As Mr. Richardson said this week, Air Command will be the focal point for airmen of the forces, in the same way that Mobile and Maritime Commands are regarded by soldiers and sailors.

Race Craft On Parade

PICTON — Main Street will be transformed into a mall this Saturday morning as traffic is blocked off to permit shoppers a close-up view of boats competing in the Gold Cup races here on Labor Day weekend.

Ronald Scott, a spokesman for the Picton Merchants' Association said the event was planned because the public usually has no opportunity to see the race craft in the pits.

The Merchants' Association will award numerous prizes for the boats on display.

In addition a special shoppers' draw has been planned with a weekend for two in Nashville as the prize.

From one to two p.m. on Saturday The Prince Edward High Steppers will perform in the Main Street mall in front of Scott's Gift Centre.

A band will travel through the streets and into the sores offering enertainment for shoppers and visitors to Picton for the weekend boat races.

Stirling Fair Opens

STIRLING — The two-day Stirling Fair will be opening its gates tonight at 7:30 p.m. with a horse drawing match at the fair grounds here.

The official opening will be Saturday with Jack Ellis, MP, cutting the ribbon.

The fair will feature a 4-H calf show; a dairy princess competition; a horse show and race; a tractor pull; and a fiddler's contest.

Other events at the fair will be the grandstand show with the Land O' Lakes Cruisers.

Along with a midway for the children, displays of farm animals and handicrafts will be exhibited.

Saturday night, there will be a dance with Murphy's Band at the fair grounds.

Fortunately for Canada, U.S. Recession Shows Signs of Ending

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The signs of economic recovery in the United States are growing.

That probably represents the best hope for a revival of the bogged-down Canadian economy—much as we may dislike following U.S. leadership in anything.

A review of Canadian economic trends, from wage rates to capital investment, doesn't offer much hope for an immediate return to satisfactory economic performance here.

Nor does the federal government's policy of drifting and dreaming while the economy shudders and sputters like an old car on a cold morning.

In the United States, on the other hand, the recession appears to be ending. Latest figures show U.S. gross national product growing at an annual rate of 1.6 per cent—not much, but a start on the way toward employing the country's full productive potential.

If the U.S. recovery takes hold, and is not choked off by an early return of super-inflation, the benefits to the Canadian economy would be obvious. The U.S. is by far the biggest export customer of Canadian business.

Cutbacks in U.S. production, resulting in a drop in purchases from Canada, were a major cause of our current recession. A revival of U.S. orders would be a shot in the arm for Canadian producers and processors.

Few economists are anticipating any boom in the U.S. economy during the final four months of this year—although some predict that 1976 will see major gains.

Rather, the general expectation seems to be an unspectacular expansion, held in check by still worrisome inflation, energy shortages, and—in the long run—a potentially serious shortage of capital.

"The capital requirements of the next decade significantly exceed the amount that American business and the American people have financed out of their savings in the past," says the economics group at the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York.

The bank puts the cash requirement at an almost incomprehensible $5.1 billion over the next 10 years, to satisfy U.S. needs for new housing, factories, transportation facilities, energy and environmental protection, and to finance deficits in government budgets and international payments.

"Insufficient investment leads inevitably to shortages of goods and to inefficiency—both highly inflationary,' the Chase Manhattan's economists warn.

Both here and in the United States, the growth of needed capital investment in new plant and equipment has been restrained by the depressed level of corporate profits during the past several months.

(A company has little incentive to undertake costly expansion when it is operating below capacity and earning an inadequate return on its existing investment).

In the April-June quarter of this year, however, U.S. corporate profits were 8.2 per cent higher than in the January-March quarter—the first such rise in almost a year.

With most signs pointing to continued improvement in the pace of economic activity, prospects are becoming more encouraging for further gains in corporate earnings and a resulting step-up in spending on new plant and equipment.

The major potential obstacle remains the danger of a new flare-up in inflation—quite possibly touched off, as it was two years ago, by excessive U.S. exports of grain to the Soviet Union.

New government measures to check that inflation could also check economic growth just when it is nicely under way.

Smith Summit Futile?

Old cliches are best.

The Greeks, as usual, had a word for it.

Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad.

The white man, in Africa, has long been mad.

But the mills of the gods, though they grind exceeding small, grind slowly.

Here we had Ian Smith, prime minister of Rhodesia, sitting in a railway car parked on a bridge over the great Zambezi, the dividing line between the white racism of the south and the black racism of the north. He was there to talk to the African National Council, representing the black residents of Rhodesia, who are, of course, the majority of that country's inhabitants.

Smith says his white government has "no policy to hand our country over to any black majority government."

In view of what has happened recently in other African countries where black Africans have assumed power, that is understandable.

Smith adds "as far as I am concerned, we never will."

Others have felt the same way. "After me, the deluge". Understandable! But hardly reassuring. Horatio at the bridge flashing his sword in an age of tanks and rockets.

The Associated Press reports that Smith may "turn his back on the African National Council and seek a political settlement with conservative black leaders amenable to continued white domination."

The logic of the madman.

"Black leaders amenable to white domination." What kind of men would they be? Even a pimp resists the puritan.

In Africa, as almost everywhere else, change has been too little and too late to avert tragedy. Indeed, as one looks at history, one may be pardoned for wondering whether it is possible to ever avoid the penalty for mistakes.

The night of the long knives is probably inevitable in Rhodesia, and in South Africa.

Both white man and black man know too much history to find the way to salvation.

Another cliche: what Africa needs is the bliss of innocence, minds wiped free of the knowledge of past wrongs to the blacks, and the portents of wrongs to come, to the whites.

If it were possible to bring all the African Samsons, white and black, to a modern Gaza and put out their eyes, so none could see the color of the other's skin, and then to have them dream together of their grandchildren's tomorrow, there might be some hope for that continent.

A meeting of minds healed of the wounds inflicted by history is what is needed.

It is an impossible dream. South of the Zambezi, Smith awaits the Furies.

Corke Warrants Support

There were some pretty cogent arguments for the alternative methods of selecting a replacement for resigning Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Possible confusion resulting from a mayoralty plebiscite being held too close to a provincial election was a strong platform of the pro-appointment school of thought.

But new chief magistrate Ben Corke will have to live with one of the drawbacks of not being the official "people's choice" for the mayor's chair. Every time during the duration of his term council touches a sore taxpayer's nerve, city ratepayers will be able to say: "We didn't pick him, THEY — meaning his fellow members of council — did."

That will not be an entirely valid criticism. Mr. Corke topped the polls at the last municipal election and, both in business and 12 years on council has proven himself an astute individual.

Almost as if to vindicate his appointment by council, Mayor Corke says he will run for office one more time in 1976, but not thereafter.

Just one example of Mr. Corke's public service was the campaign he spearheaded to erase the longstanding capital debt of the city's YMCA branch.

Similar dedication to civic matters deserves the wholehearted support of the new mayor's constituents.

Handelman Good Speaker for Layman

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Quite some time ago I presented here a list of good speakers for your luncheons, meetings and other functions.

Add to this list Sidney Handelman, minister of consumer and commercial relations.

Mr. Handelman, who wasn't in his ministry at the time of the last list, rates near the top of our public speakers.

An economist, he isn't an orator, but he is a good speaker and he talks a great deal of sense. And he has the knack of expressing complicated matters in terms the layman can readily grasp.

* * *

All government publications aren't a waste.

Currently the health ministry is issuing a series of pamphlets which are valuable.

There are about a dozen of them and they cover subjects running from the common cold to pills.

They are modestly printed, written in earthy language and are full of information.

Particularly they knock out old wives' tales. (You don't catch a cold from sitting in a draft. You catch it from a germ that someone else passes on.)

You will find them on racks in most drug stores.

Pick up a few and see if they aren't interesting.

* * *

Speaking of Handelman, his ministry has gone to work on the new Consumer Protection Act.

It has cracked down on a Toronto firm that was dealing in land in foreign countries.

It got caught up for bad advertising.

There seems to have been some misrepresentation in that people here were buying land which supposedly was serviced and when they went to take a look at it found it was in a raw state.

But it was on the advertising claims that the ministry was able to nail the company.

It found that it had been making exaggerated statements.

The result: It was barred from dealing in foreign lands for five years.

There's a double warning in this action.

One is to retailers to watch their advertising. This ministry obviously means business in administering the advertising sections of the new act.

Secondly, make sure that you are selling what you are advertising.

If you don't you're in trouble.

And incidentally, a lot of credit for the ministry's tough stance can be given to Handelman.

He isn't a man to fool around.

Tankers Sit Idle in World Ports

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The home ports of the supertankers all over the world are filled with these laid-up giant ships, often unpaid for, now without any cargoes to carry.

There are about 3,500 ships each with a deadweight tonnage in excess of 150,000 tons and going up to about 350,000 and of these, about 500 are now lying idle.

All of them are hugely expensive ships to build and even to maintain in idleness while their entrepreneurial owners find some way to finance the growing debt charges against them.

The quickly-growing number of these monster ships is a result of the same kind of gamble taken by high flyers at sea that others of their kind take with vast real estate gambles on land.

Both the sea-borne and land-based entities are literally floated on major loans from international financial institutions against the assurance the former will find plenty of oil to move around the world, the latter plenty of tenants.

Given this parallel, the plight of world tanker men, many of whom have just lost that big gamble, is more easily appreciated.

For many of them, the opening came after the closing of the Suez Canal during the 1956 Arab-Israeli War. Post-war demand for oil in Europe, North America and Japan was just beginning the now-familiar climb, and existing tankers, many of them built during the Second World War, could no longer carry the great fuel demands.

And with Suez closed, many of them in any case would have to make the long haul around the southern tip of Africa say to Japan.

But the burgeoning economies with their impatient and mounting needs for oil, couldn't wait.

Hence a much larger new tanker, three to five times the size of existing ones was needed but able to sail with the same size of crew or even smaller ones because of new automated ship-handling equipment.

The name-of-the-game were the long-term oil transport contracts, called "charter parties" in the business, which an oil tanker magnate would sign even before his ship was launched.

When the formula worked, the newly-launched ship would have immediate and continuing business, would start to pay its way and some individual trips would net in the millions of dollars.

A handful of these deals and the owner or charterer was well on the way to paying off a $15 to $25-million ship plus a profit.

Another part of the formula is the basically simple construction methods used in building these giant floating storage tanks. Not requiring the intensely sophisticated equipment of a modern warship or ocean liner, the tankers could be built with quick prefabrication methods.

And the Japanese who relied totally on seaborne oil for their mounting economy, became the world's specialists in pre-fabricated shipbuilding. But today, Japan has only 20 of these new monsters on the order books, compared to 120 about a year ago.

What has happened to the super-tanker industry of big gambles and old-fashioned entrepreneurship? The Arab oil-producing nations changed the ball game when they announced major cutbacks in oil production, afraid like we in Canada, their oil is going to run out.

This has meant fewer cargoes for these huge ships, layups and bankrupt shipowners unable to pay their way under the formula outlined above.

The final irony is that those same oil-producing Arab nations, already very rich from their 1973 price hikes, have the money to buy up the big ships - and at a bargain price!

We Could Learn From Arab Free Enterprise

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

M.D. Reid in his letter "Quinte Politics" invites an answer.

First, I am not particularly concerned about Mrs. Jeffrey's bath tub. After all, if her presentation to the voters needs such gimmicks I am sure the electorate will take that into consideration on voting day.

Why didn't we pay $2 a pound for beef and 75 cents a gallon for gas when John Diefenbaker was in power? That's easy.

First, at that time the farmers were not so well versed in the art of militancy as they are now. Since that time they are, quite rightly asking for a bigger share of the free enterprise pie.

In similar vein, at that time the Arabs had not started to practice the virtues of free enterprise — now they have, they appear to be better thieves than we are.

Your writer neglected to ask why Mr. Diefenbaker, who is today, along with his Tory colleagues, allegedly so concerned about the state of our armed forces. Where was his concern when he tossed the Arrow out of the window in favor of a second rate American aircraft?

Your writer did not touch on the fact that Mr. Diefenbaker, with the biggest majority ever in the House of Commons, led the country into excess of 400,000 unemployed with very little inflationary pressure at the time.

Mrs. Jeffrey's leader Bill Davis slams the federal government for having a deficit of some two billion dollars while running one of his own at over six billion. It will be interesting during the campaign to hear the tub paddler explain that one away.

There's lots more, but as M.D. Reid wrote a short letter a short answer will have to do.

Incidentally, history will probably show John Diefenbaker as one of Canada's worst prime ministers.

WILLIAM C. HOCKLEY.

Old Madoc Road Hazard

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

This letter speaks for numerous residents in this area with children attending the new Foxboro Senior Elementary School.

It seems a number of adults enjoy a certain stretch of road, namely from Ducette's Barber shop up past the new school and down the old Madoc road as a race track.

We have noted however, the speed limit has now been reduced to 35 MPH and signs are now posted, but this does not stop most of the drivers. They are still driving like maniacs, especially those who use this route to get out on to the 8th Thurlow.

There are no sidewalks out here and with this new school now open and children will be walking on this road to go to school — I suppose it will take a child or two to get killed before some of those idiots obey this speed limit.

To those who are not aware of this speed limit, now please take care, one of the kids may be your own. We suggest the area to be patrolled.

Society Popping Pills

The Christian Science Monitor

New weight has been lent to the 1960s view that young Americans become vulnerable to the false promises of narcotics by growing up in a pill-popping society. Now it is just the example of what a youth-culture novelist called "their druggie parents" that is being blamed. It is the TV commercials that encourage a "drug mentality" among children.

This point was emphasized by Massachusetts Attorney General Bellotti and his colleagues from 13 other states in petitioning the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) for the removal from TV of over-the-counter drug ads all day from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

"There is a very direct relationship between drug ads on TV and the addiction young people have to pills of all kinds," said Mr. Bellotti in a recent congressional hearing.

To which a drug-industry spokesman offered a defence reminiscent of an old defence of marijuana: "There is no evidence that advertising of proprietary medicines causes children to shoot up with heroin."

The issue is more subtle than that, of course. It reaches to the effects on a whole generation through stimulating ever greater dependence on artificial means toward everything from a quiet stomach to a lovable spouse. Mr. Bellotti is concerned about the ads' glorification of drugs "to improve the quality of one's life."

In this the drug ads are like many of society's ideas, products, and other possible influences on children's developing judgment of means toward desired ends. And proper discrimination among both means and ends fundamentally depends on all the teaching, training and example provided to children.

The Quebec Bridge on the St. Lawrence River, six miles above Quebec City, collapsed 68 years ago today—in 1907—carrying 75 workmen to their deaths. The bridge was started in 1900 as the world's largest cantilever bridge. After the tragedy, construction started again and both cantilever spans were completed when the centre span, as it was being hoisted into position Sept. 11, 1916, fell into the river taking the lives of 13 workmen.

1916—Hsin Yu sank in China Sea and 1,000 were drowned.

1935—Queen Astrid of Belgium was killed and King Leopold hurt in a motor accident in Switzerland.

1960—Jordan's Premier Majali and 10 others were killed by a time bomb in Amman.

U.S. Programs Produce High Return

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The most popular United States television shows imported by the CBC and CTV television networks last season cost $2,000 or $4,000 for each episode and yielded the networks 24,000 or $46,000 each.

The figures of costs and revenues were given in a research paper prepared by the staff of Commission (CRTC) for the seminar on TV violence it is sponsoring here this week.

The figures revealed showed the disportionately-high rvenues from the airing of U.S. TV shows on the Canadian networks compared with their costs, and the high cost of Canadian shows in relation to the revenues they brought in.

All in the Family, the highest-rated U.S. situation comedy, cost the CBC network $2,000 a week, and yielded revenues of $24,000. So did Rhoda, Mary Tyler Moore, Maude, Chico and the Man, and M.A.S.H on the CBC network.

On the CTV network, the most popular shows were Ironside and Harry-O, for which CTV paid $4,000 a week and from which revenues were $46,000 each. Similar figures applied to Marcus Welby, Streets of San Francisco, Medical Centre and Nakia. Kojak, the most highly-rated U.S. show and condemned at the CRTC seminar as the most violent police story on the air, also cost the CTV network $4,000 a week and yielded revenues of $46,000.

Compared with the highly-popular U.S. shows imported at relatively cheap prices, Canadian-produced shows are heavily on the other side of th eledger.

Excuse My French, CTV's Montreal-based situation comedy which grew in popularity last season and will be continued in the coming sason, cost $30,000 an episode, but yielded only $16,000 a week.

On the CBC network last season, the most popular Canadian-produced show was The Collaborators. Figures were not given in the CRTC staff study for this show alone, but were lumped with Sam Adams, and Anthology Drama and Performance—the latter counted the CBC's most successful home drama product so far. They had costs running to $120,000 and revenues of $48,000, a loss of $72,000 a week.

CBC's mandate is to produce Canadian shows for Canadian network viewing and is subsidized heavily by the taxpayer. The CTV network, a co-operative among its member stations, has to operate on its commercial revenues.

Two of the popular CTV shows last season—Pig 'n Whistle and Maclear—each showed revenues of $16,000 and costs of $15,000 a week last winter, with net revenues of only $1,000 a week each.

The figures pointed up arguments at the seminar on TV violence that the only way Canadian networks can compete with the highly-popular U.S. shows, whether violent or not, is to pump more money into Canadian TV production and raise the popularity ratings for Canadian shows, thereby attracting higher advertising revenues.

CRTC lawyer John Lawrence said Tuesday the CRTC does not have power under existing law to censor violence on TV.

Summing up the seminar, Northrop Frye, noted author and critic and a part-time member of the CTC, said violence is misdirected energy which should be turned around for the benefit of society. He said he hopes this will be recognized in television and turned to more constructive use of the medium.

Klondike Days Draws Big-name Entertainers

EDMONTON (CP) — Organizers of Klondike Days went after everyone from Sinatra to Elvis for their entertainment package this year, and the gamble paid off.

Big-name entertainers such as Johnny Cash, Paul Anka, the Osmonds and Dionne Warwicke attracted 132,000 persons to performances during the city's 10-day July festival with tickets ranging from $5 to $7.

It was the Edmonton Exhibition Association's first attempt at lining up an all-star cast, a move inspired by the recent completion of the 16,000-seat coliseum adjacent to the exhibition grounds.

Applauded by critics as "the best entertainment package Edmonton has ever seen," the coliseum attractions packed in 24,000 for the Beach Boys, 19,000 for Johnny Cash, and 18,000 for the Osmonds.

"Some people thought the exhibition association was getting carried away, hiring all those stars," said Bill Owen, public relations director with the exhibition association.

"But experience has shown that it has been a very great success."

Although the concert series cost about $750,000 to produce and grossed about $755,000 in ticket revenue, it has been credited with being the major promotional draw for the entire event.

Klondike Days drew 600,614 persons through the turnstiles, 7,185 more than last year and only the second time in the history of the 14-year-old festival that more than 600,000 persons have visited the grounds.

And participation in almost all other areas was up this year, despite some rainy weather.

In contrast, attendance at the Calgary Stampede—where no major entertainers were brought in—slumped to 878,644, a decrease of more than 100,000 from 1974.

In Saskatoon, entertainers such as Pat Boone, Lawrence Welk and Donna Fargo drew maximum crowds of about 10,000, brought in on the exposition's low entertainment budget of about $80,000.

On the other hand, Buffalo Days in Regina recorded large grandstand attendance with a hefty entertainment package that included Bobby Vinton, Bill Cosby, Lawrence Welk and the Bachman-Turner Overdrive.

It all goes to show that the public wants entertainment and is willing to pay for it, Mr. Owen said.

Although unable to obtain all the stars initially requested, Edmonton ended up with a star performance for each day of the 10-day event, with 5 p.m. and 9 p.m. shows scheduled most nights.

The big-name stars weren't cheap. Johnny Cash charged the exhibition $55,000 for his two shows and Gladys Knight and the Pips $45,000—much more than their normal fee.

"Big name entertainers don't usually want one-night engagements, so they charge a large fee," Mr. Owen said.

"But the exhibition association wanted to come up with a varied package that would have wide public appeal."

It is virtually impossible to hire "the really big people" like Elvis or Sinatra without "giving away the coliseum," said Bob Vincent, the Los Angeles entrepreneur hired to produce the show.

"However, by negotiating and buying carefully, you can still do very well."

QUEENSBORO UCW

The August meeting of the Queensboro United Church Women, Unit 1, was held Thursday afternoon in the Sunday School room. Blanche McMurray was hostess and Goldie Holmes, unit leader, conducted the business and devotional.

Jessica Holmes was in charge of the program about faith, assisted by several members who gave short readings.

RECIPE CORRECTION

The recipe for Sandwich Spread in the Quinte Cuisine column, Monday, August 25, should have included one 16-ounce can of evaporated milk instead of the can of condensed milk that was listed.

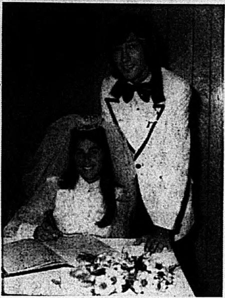
BGH AUXILIARY DANCE

The annual dinner dance of the Belleville Hospital Auxiliary will be held Friday, October 17 at the Four Seasons Hotel. Tickets for the evening of cocktails, dinner and dancing are $22 per couple. The public is invited to attend, along with the auxiliary members, hospital staff and doctors. Conveners to contact for tickets are Betty Colden and Dorothy Locke.

CORRECTION

Ramona Jean Radway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Kenneth Radway, and Robert George Hyderman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Calvin Hyderman, were wed at Bridge Street United Church recently.

Charles Hyderman, the groom's brother, was best man at the wedding.



Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kitcher

Kitcher — Tufts

Foxboro's Emmanuel United Church was the setting for the recent ceremony uniting Marlene Helen Tufts and Robert Wakefield Kitcher in marriage. Rev. Abel Parsons officiated at the service.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Tufts of RR 2, Stirling, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P.W. Kitcher.

The bride, given in marriage by her father and mother, wore a Victorian-style gown with a stand-up collar, buttoned front, long sheer sleeves with buttoned cuffs, and three rows of lace down the skirt to the self-train. The gown had a complete overlay of white with blue flocked sheer. Her coronet of seed pearls held a three-tier veil, and the bride's bouquet was yellow diasies.

Elaine Treverton, the bride's sister, was the matron of honor, in a blue crepe gown in a similar Victorian style to the bride, but with an open V-neck, stand-up collar and puffed sleeves, covered with blue flocked sheer.

Ssusan Kitcher, the groom's sister, and Frances Wilson were bridesmaids in outfits identical to the matron of honor's. All the attendants carried baskets of white daisies, yellow mums and baby's breath.

Tom Jackson of Wellington was best man. Serving as ushers were the groom's brother William Kitcher and the bride's brother William Tufts.

After a reception in the church hall, the newly-married couple travelled through northern Ontario on their honeymoon. They now live at 174 Charles Street.

Mr. and Mrs. David Clapp

Clapp — Peacock

Joy Peacock became the bride of David Clapp in a service performed by Rev. Laurie Sutherland in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church recently.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garn Peacock and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Clapp of Picton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of nylon over taffeta with an Elizabethan neckline and a bibbed bodice accented with seed pearls and English lace. Her two-tiered full-length veil fell from a headpiece of seed pearls and flowers, and she carried red roses and baby's breath.

Debbie Harold was maid of honor in a pink swiss dot gown with a tiered skirt and long-sleeved jacket. Vickie Ter Haar, Debbie Chapman, Alice Bullock, Maureen Costello and Laura Clapp, the groom's sister, were bridesmaids in matching outfits. All the attendants wore pink organza hats and carried white parasols with pink roses.

Heather and Stephen Campbell, cousins of the bride, were flower girl and ring bearer. Heather was dressed the same as the attendants, and carried a nosegay of rosebuds.

The groom's brother Michael Clapp was his best man. The ushers were Robert Clapp, John Peeck and Don Bruce.

A dinner at the Four Seasons Hotel followed the wedding service.

The newly-married couple have settled in Napanee since their honeymoon in the Pocono mountains, Pennsylvania.

Books by Phone

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — A three-county area around Columbia has a books-by-phone program, the only one in the state. It uses mobile phones so librarians can call from mobile library units to the main library in Columbia. If a patron needs pages from a reference book, the bookmobile operator telephones the request to the main branch then places the mobile phone handset in his telecopying machine. Then the readable copy of the needed material is received at the bookmobile.

Scent Of Success

NORFOLK, England (CP) — Britain's lavender harvest is a record this year. A spokesman for lavender growers said the 50-per-cent boost has been due to the heat wave experienced throughout the United Kingdom recently.

Books By And About Women

DEAR TO BEHOLD by Krishna Nahru Hutheesing

Since Indira Gandhi has been in the political spotlight most prominently in recent weeks, this intimate portrait of the Prime Minister of India, written by her aunt, is good topical reading.

Author of "We Nehrus" among other books, Mrs. Hutheesing presents a warm and affectionate account of this Brahmin family into which Indira was born. Her aunt was only ten years older than Indira and became her companion and confidante. This book was a true labour of love and the manuscript was nearly finished when Krishna Hutheesing died leaving it to her husband Raja to edit notes she left behind.

Indira came from a distinguished and wealthy family but as a new India arose they found a new direction as activists. Even at the age of twelve, Indira organized the "Monkey Army" a band of youthful undercover agents.

Through the eyes of Mrs. Hutheesing, it is intersting to watch her niece's development, her education, her marriage, and her political involvement up to the election as leader of the Congress Party in the Parliament with 355 votes against the opposition's 169. She deals with India's ministry but also answers the questions "what is she like as a person, as a mother?"

One chapter "Political Power Entrusted to a Woman" seems particularly significant in this International Women's Year devoted as it is to the spectacular role of women in India's history and the emotional climate and attitude toward women that made Indira's rise to Prime Minister, entirely natural.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

Laura Dixon, with one of the newborn babies she's cared for.

After Long Career at BGH, Nurse Laura Dixon Retires

Retiring after 36 years on the staff of Belleville General Hospital, Laura (Foster) Dixon was honored August 22 at a retirement dinner in the Fiesta Room of the Quinte Hotel.

Mrs. Dixon won the silver general proficiency award when she graduated from the BGH School of Nursing in 1939. Friends from the various hospital departments she has worked in since then, joined her other friends in wishing Mrs. Dixon well.

Dorothy Taylor, unit supervisor of the obstetrical department where Mrs. Dixon has most recently been working, presented the gifts from the BGH staff, including a gold watch, pen and pencil set, and photo memory book. Mrs. Taylor spoke highly of Mrs. Dixon's dedicated service, noting especially her work as head of the medical-surgical ward when the 1940 wing was opened. For the past 18 years she has worked on a part-time basis, during most of these years caring for the newborn.

Mrs. Dixon talked of her years at the hospital, remembering particularly the 12-hour shifts, and the one-to-one relationship that nurses had with their patients.

"To this day I still find it heart-warming to be greeted with such words as 'You cared for my husband when he broke his back', or 'You nursed my father when you were a student' or even 'Are you STILL nursing?' It has been a real privilege and pleasure to have served all these years," Mrs. Dixon concluded.

Ann Landers

If You Love Your Family, Make a Will Immediately

Dear Ann Landers: Why would a bright, loving man who showed every consideration for his wife and children during his lifetime die without leaving them protected by a will?

It's too late for your answer to help us, but please, Ann, print this letter because both my attorney and funeral director have told me that an unbelievable number of men, responsible and competent in fiscal matters, behave as if they are going to live forever. They make no preparation whatever for the eventuality of death.

I am now faced with a financial mess beyond belief. Attorney's fees and inheritance taxes are horrendous. I am also having heartbreaking problems with my husband's brother over some property—the ownership of which is unclear.

I know my husband loved me and the children with all his heart. Why didn't he take care of us properly?—Thorns Among The Widow's Weeds

Dear Thorns: Why? Because, like so many others, he hated to think about death—as if by ignoring it, it would ignore him.

I hope every man who reads this column will ask himself, "If I died tonight would my family be protected financially?" If the answer is "yes," you deserve to sleep like a baby. If not, get busy and put your affairs in order. You owe it to those you love.

Dear Ann Landers: I can't do one other thing until I write a letter which I hope Melanie's parents will read. She's the 22-year-old girl who wanted to have her nose done.

I, too, had a nose with "character," according to my parents. They were dead set against my doing anything to change it. Actually, it was a big blob and much too big for my face. I hated it.

After months of pleading, my father took me to a plastic surgeon who was well known for his fine work, fair prices and high ethical standards. He sided with me and his operation changed my life.

Like Melanie, I was never popular. After the surgery I was the same old me but my whole attitude changed. I had confidence when I met new people and a much better opinion of myself.

NOW, EVEN MY PARENTS ADMIT I was right. Good luck, Melanie!—Much Happier

Dear Much: The key phrase in your letter, which should be noted carefully, is "a plastic surgeon well known for his fine work, fair prices and high ethical standards." Take heed, readers—and thanks for writing, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing this in answer to the letter from n "Pint Lover I Miami." I am 13 years old and have been doing a lot of experiments with plants for the Science Fair. Here are my findings:

I took three different kinds of plants and played three different kinds of music, six hours a day, to all of them. The plants that got the rock and roll were dead in 24 hours. The plants that "listened" to the dance music of the '50s didn't die, but they weren't especially healthy. The third category, which got the Chopin, Mozart and lullabies flourished. So you see, Ann, there IS something to it.—Another Plant Lover

Dear Lover: So my readers told me—by the hundreds. Thanks for sharing your research.

Dear Ann Landers: Somebody in this group is crazy and I am asking your opinion. Which one is it?

Recently we were visiting a campsite. Mr. B discovered a snake under a board and ran away yelling language that is unprintable. Mr. T caught the snake (non-poisonous) and chased Mr. B for two country miles "just to scare him a little."

Mr. C watched all the action and Mr. T, who was holding the snake at arm's length, was laughing his head off!

Then Mr. C walked up to Mr. T and said. "I have always been a follower of the Golden Rule. 'Do unto others as ye would have them do unto you.' Snakes bite people and I believe in getting even!"

With that, Mr. C bit the snake and I got sick to my stomach. Who is crazy? Jackson Miss.

Dear Jack: Mr. C is the leading candidate for the hatch, with Mr. T his possible roommate.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to know if it's normal for a wife to be upset when she finds $30 in her husband's billfold and he says he is saving the money to buy her a lovely birthday gift. Then, when her birthday comes around, he shows up with a cake from the bakery and hollers, "Surprise!"

I took a part-time job and saved $90 for that jerk's birthday gift. When he hands me something that costs $11 especially after lying about the money in his wallet I feel that he is being selfish and unfair. Any advice?Let Down Plenty

Dear L.D. Plenty: The next time The Last of the Big Spenders has a birthday, show up with an $11 cake and holler, "Surprise!"

Murderer In Will

LONDON (AP) — Convicted murderer John Less was willed $2,200 by his former landlady because, her neighbors said, 'she felt Less was one of the deprived people of the world." He is serving a life term for murdering a 17-year-old youth with an axe.

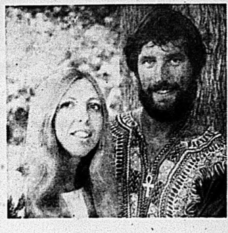
Brants Celebrate 60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brant of Shannonville celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary August 16 at the Tyendinaga Community Centre with dinner and dancing. More than 200 friends and relatives joined in honoring the couple.

Commemorative plaques and letters of congratulation were received from Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Premier William Davis, and Chief William Brant of the Mohawks. Telegrams from Queen Elizabeth and John Diefenbaker were also received, as well as letters from Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Robert Stanfield.

All the Brants' 10 children were present, along with 24 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. The family includes Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Maracle (Gladys) of Deseronto; Mr. and Mrs. Wolfgang Sack (Lorraine) of Ithaca, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Castellano (Marlene) of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. James Armstrong (Ardeth) of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brant of Rochester, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brant of Louville, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Brant and Earl Brant, of Rochester, N.Y.; Willis Brant of Shannonville and Dr. Clare Brant of London.

Mr. and Mrs. Brant have been life-long residents of the community, apart from a few years in Oshawa. Now retired from the carpentry trade, Mr. Brant and his wife are active members of the local senior citizens group.



Engagement

The engagement is announced of Janiece Vera Lakins, daughter of Mrs. Milton Edgar Lakins, Harrowsmith, and the late Mr. Lakins, to James Clifford Elliston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Charles Elliston, of Fairport, New York. The wedding will take place in the Harrowsmith Free Methodist Church on Saturday, September 6, at 2:30 p.m.

'Heart Attack Risk Greater for Pill Users'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has warned doctors that women who take birth-control pills run a higher risk of heart attack and that the danger is greater to women older than 40.

The warning was carried in the FDA's July-August Drug Bulletin mailed this week to 650,000 doctors, pharmacists, hospital administrators and other health professionals.

The FDA said it intends to revise the labelling of oral contraceptives to include a warning to women older than 40. The warning would suggest that women in that age group use other forms of contraception.

In its Drug Bulletin, the FDA said the increased risk of blood clots in the lungs, brain and inflammation of the veins among oral contraceptive users has previously been established. But, the bulletin said, the risk of heart attacks had been equivocal until now.

The FDA said two recent studies reported last May in the British Medical Journal "strongly suggest that oral contraceptive users are a greater risk of developing coronary thrombosis than non-users."

One study found that the risk of heart attack among birth-control-pill users is 2.7 times higher in the 30-39 age group and 5.7 times greater in the 40-to-44 age group.

The second study found the risk was 2.8 times higher in the 30-to-39 age group and 4.7 times higher in the 40-to-44 age group.

The FDA said the first study compared the frequency of use of oral contraceptives in women discharged from the hospital after heart attack with the frequency of use among similarly aged women selected randomly in the same hospital. It found that the risk appeared to increase if women who took birth-control pills also had a history of cigarette smoking, diabetes, hypertension, obesity or high cholesterol.

Based on those studies, the FDA said, "the average over-all annual additional risk of developing a fatal or non-fatal myocardial infarction (heart attack) for all women taking oral contraceptives is about one per 1,000 in users over the age of 40."

"Women with additional risk factors (hypertension), hypercholesterolemia, diabetes, cigarette smoking, etc.) have a greater risk than the average," the Drug Bulletin said.

Umbrellas Popular

TORONTO (CP) — Umbrellas, once considered dull but necessary rainy-day accessories, are selling faster than ever, borne on a tide of high fashion.

Manufacturers report sales are up about 20 per cent from this time last year.

Marjorie Stewart an umbrella buyer for Simpsons Ltd., of Toronto, says that as clothing has become more casual and colorful, so have umbrellas.

One manufacturer explains that umbrellas give convenience and elegance whereas raincoats cover up stylish clothes.

One area of fast sales growth has been in men's umbrellas.

"We tried off and on for eight to 10 years to sell more fashionable men's umbrellas," says Miss Stewart. "But only in the last year have they sold well."

In Toronto, women are still outbuying men by two to one, she said, but "men generally go for more expensive umbrellas."

"They're more intersted in gismos and like to buy 12 to 16 telescopic umbrellas."

Jack Sibulash, president of Atlas Umbrella Manufacturing Ltd. of Toronto, said men's umbrellas account for about 30 per cent of the market.

Four or five years ago, they never took more than 10 per cent.

While sales have risen, there was some consumer buying resistance in the last year to sharp price increases, manufacturers say. Prices of some umbrellas jumped 25 per cent in two or three months, partly as the result of the declining value of the Canadian dollar.

Costs have risen for the industry too, and Canadian manufacturers face stiff competition from low-priced umbrellas from the far east.

Umbrellas, of course, are still sold for their usefulness.

"As our cities grow larger and you have to walk from subway and bus stops," you can really get drenched," says Mr. Sibulash. "Umbrellas are becoming a necessity in our cities."

Birth Control:

'Traffic Light' Method Will Be Safe and Easy

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP)—A birth control method which when used correctly has no side effects and has the full approval of the Roman Catholic Church is being developed by a Melbourne research team.

It is a small traffic light testing device which turns red when a woman may conceive and green when she is safe.

A spokesman for the team said it will make the ovulation birth control method already used by many women much simpler.

The traffic light is a two-inch long paper pencil impregnated with chemicals which a urine test will turn red during the six or seven days of the menstrual cycle in which a woman can conceive. It turns green or remains colorless during the remainder of the cycle when a woman can have intercourse without risk of conception.

It should be available within three years. A version of it, in a less refined form, will be on sale by mid-1976.

Precise traffic light pinpointing of dangerous and safe times is described by a leading member of the research team which developed the ovulation method, Melbourne physician Dr. John Billings, as stage three of a natural birth control and fertility research project which began 20 years ago.

Dr. Billings, dean of the clinical school at Saint Vincent's Hospital, and his wife, Dr. Lyn Billings, began work on this method when they decided that the rhythm method was unsuitable for women whose cycle was irregular.

Both are Catholics and have moral as well as medical objections to birth control methods such as the pill and the loop.

Stage one was the discovery and understanding of what Dr. Billings calls the ovulation method of fertility control. Basically this method uses the fact that on certain days of the menstrual cycle, the relatively short time during which a woman can conceive is always accompanied by secretion of a particular type of mucus from the glands of the cervix of the uterus.

These mucus symptoms develop immediately ahead of ovulation, and are a clear warning that the period when conception may occur is approaching. Intercourse must be avoided until the mucus disappears.

Thousands of women who have followed this method, which they learned in clinics in Melbourne and other parts of Australia, have been able to avoid unwanted pregnancies. And because the phase of highest fertility is clearly defined, childless couples have a greater chance of conceiving a child.

Dr. Billings described stage two of the development as the work performed by another member of the team, Prof. James Brown of the Melbourne Royal Women's Hospital, in providing laboratory proof of the conclusions Dr. Billings had reached after extensive clinical trials.

Stage three, he said, was the develpment of the do-it-yourself fertility test kit.

An enormous advantage, particularly in South America, the Philippines, and other countries where the rapidly growing population is predominantly Catholic, is that the ovulation method has full Vatican approval.

In fact, such is the Vatican appreciation of Dr. Billings' work that Pope Paul conferred a papal knighthood on him four years ago.

Already, instruction in the ovulation method has spread to other countries, far beyond the small group of people who first learned it at the Catholic Welfare Bureau in Melbourne in the mid-1950s.

Gradually, by extensive clinical trials in which hundreds of women co-operated, the method was proved to be far more precise than the rhythm method.

The World Health Organization began its own clinical evaluation of the ovulation method in June of this year with trials at Saint John's Medical College, Bangalore, India, El Salvadore in Latin America, and Fiji.

While these tests are progressing, work continues in Melbourne to refine and simplify the fertility do-it-yourself test kit.

The kit is not yet as simple as the traffic light pencil. It consists of a small test tube and vial of chemicals similar to some pregnancy testing kits now on the market.

But Dr. Billings is confident the traffic light pencil is not far away. Color reaction for safe and danger periods may be varied in countries where red and green do not have the same stop and go meanings they have in western countries.

Alternatively, two other colors defining safe and dangerous times may be devised and promoted for universal use, avoiding any problems with traffic light pencils taken from one country to another.

We're out to get you...

...on the Ontario list of voters.

Who are we? We're the Ontario Returning Officers and our job is to make it as easy as possible, for everyone who is qualified, to vote. By now you should have been enumerated and have in your possession your proof of enumeration, Form 103. If not, and you are qualified or will be at the time of voting, you still have time to get on the list of voters. A qualified voter is a Canadian citizen or British subject, 18 years of age or over, who has lived in Ontario for twelve months preceding Election Day, September 18.

So if you live in an urban area and haven't been enumerated, simply fill in the coupon in this ad or give us a call at your Electoral District number shown and we'll make arrangements to get you on the list.

Remember, a new list is compiled for each election, so even if you have voted before, you must be included on the new list of voters in order to vote in the forthcoming Ontario Election. Deadline for changes or additions to the list is Wednesday, September 10 at 9.00 p.m. EDT.

Rural Residents

If you live in a rural area, and are qualified to vote, it's much easier if your name is on the list of voters. And there's still time to get on that list. However, qualified rural voters, not on the list by Election Day, may still vote by having a friend or neighbour on the same list "vouch" for them on oath.

Proxy Voting

If you are a qualified voter, and enumerated, but will be absent from your polling subdivision and unable to vote at the regular or advance polls because:
a) you are employed in long distance transportation;
b) you are a member of the Canadian forces on active duty;
c) you are away attending an educational institution;
or, you are physically handicapped and unable to attend a polling place, you may vote by proxy in your Electoral District.
If you wish to vote by proxy, contact your Returning Officer whose number is on your proof of enumeration, Form 103.

FAST
SEAT BELTS

If you are a qualified urban voter and haven't been enumerated, please fill in and mail the coupon or give us a call at the appropriate number and we'll make arrangements to get you on the list of voters.

QUINTE: If you live in Belleville, Trenton or Sidney Township, your Returning Officer is Gerald W. Joyce, 432 Bridge St. E., Belleville. Phone: 962-9548 (collect if necessary).

HASTINGS-PETERBOROUGH: If you live in the Electoral District of Hastings-Peterborough, your Returning Officer is Lloyd H. Price, Town Hall, Tweed. Phone: 478-2146 (collect if necessary)

Davis Hints Oil Price Freeze to Be Extended

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Premier William Davis promised an all-out battle Thursday against higher energy prices, but he gave no indication how it will be fought.

He hinted briefly at one point that he may extend the 90-day Ontario petroleum freeze beyond its Sept. 30 cut-off date. But he cautioned reporters later not to jump to conclusions. Nothing has been decided, he said.

Legislation authorizing the freeze gives the government the power to grant a 60-day extension. Gasoline prices are expected to jump at least five cents a gallon Oct. 1 if no extension is approved.

The premier, campaigning for the Sept. 18 election, raised the subject in Kincardine during a day of campaigning through rural and small-town Ontario.

"We are going to use every power and resource we have to limit the impact of increased energy costs, as presently conceived by the federal government on our provincial economy," he told a local service club. "That is not a threat to anyone, but a promise to the people of Ontario," he said.

The price freeze, imposed July 1, will delay all increases "for at least three months," he said. But he would not elaborate later when asked for details.

Neither would he expand on his reference to Ottawa, a major target of criticism in the Progressive Conservative campaign.

Ottawa gave oil companies permission, in effect, to raise gasoline and heating oil prices Aug. 15. Prices have gone up in several provinces but the freeze has delayed increases in Ontario.

Six Killed

LUANDA (Reuter) — Six members of the Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola (MPLA), have been executed after being found guilty of murdering 11 persons, the movement said Thursday.

Hoffa's Mother Dies

DETROIT (AP) — Viola Hoffa, mother of former Teamsters president James Hoffa, died in a Detroit hospital Thursday, 29 days after her son disappeared. She was 85. A spokesman for Dr. Jahangir Mohtadi said Mrs. Hoffa died of natural causes at Plymouth General Hospital.

Ontario Buys Peaches

OTTAWA (CP) The federal agriculture department says it will buy part of the Ontario peach crop this year in a special canning program to assist growers.

May Strike Saturday

KAPUSKASING, Ont. (CP) — Union officials representing 1,400 workers employed by Kimberley-Clarke of Canada Ltd. and Spruce Falls Paper Co. Ltd. said Thursday the workers will be in a legal position to strike at midnight Saturday night.

Agree on Plan

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — Denis Healey, British chancellor of the exchequer, says European Common Market finance ministers have agreed on a three-point plan to help developing countries, including the sale of $3 billion worth of gold holdings by the International Monetary Fund.

Cites Abuse

CALGARY (CP) — John F. Bulloch, president of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, said Thursday that abuse of power by governments is the basis of Canada's inflation. He said governments transfer too much of the gross national product from the productive to the non-productive sector and finance deficits by expanding the money supply disproportionately.

Zero Growth Near

TORONTO (CP) — Canada will experience zero growth this year despite a Statistics Canada report that indicates the current recession may be over, says B. V. Gestrin, a vice-president of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

Observer Saved

LONDON (CP) — The eminent Sunday newspaper The Observer has been saved from closure, at least temporarily, by an agreement between management and unions under which the staff was reduced by 25 per cent.

Protest Invitation

NEW YORK (AP) — Top officials of the National District Attorneys Association Thursday asked the United Nations Congress on the Prevention of Crime to rescind its invitation to the Palestine Liberation Organization to take part in the congress, which opens Saturday in Geneva.

Lawyers Want Clarification On Death Laws

QUEBEC (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association has rejected a resolution from its national council calling on the federal government to commute a death sentence "only on the merits of each individual case."

Instead delegates to the association's annual meeting accepted Thursday a resolution supported by Solicitor-General Warren Allmand urging the government to clarify its stand by either abolishing the death penalty or by specifying grounds for commutation.

In a sometimes heated debate, about 250 lawyers attending the closing session of the week-long annual meeting literally destroyed the proposal from their national executive before finally voting it down 132-104.

The controversial resolution implied the government was ignoring Criminal Code provisions that the death penalty be used for convicted murderers of policemn and prison guards.

It also suggested that Mr. Allmand's stand against capital punishment contributed to concern that the law was not being applied.

British Policeman Takes Stand Against Capital Punishment

TORONTO (CP) — A high-ranking British policeman took a firm stand against capital punishment Thursday in a speech to the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, which wants the death penalty fully restored in this country.

Sir Robert Mark, commissioner of police at Scotland Yard, told the association's annual conference.

"It is too high a price to pay for the demonstrable ineffectiveness of the judicial system. . . . I am therefore opposed to the death penalty and so are most of my senior and most experienced colleagues.".

A veteran of 38 years in police work, he said removable of this "irrevocable punishment" from the statutes would pave the way for progressive law reform.

The death penalty was abolished in Britain in late 1965. Although hanging still is the penalty prescribed for killers of on-duty police and prison guards in Canada, the cabinet has commuted all death sentences since 1962.

Eight men still are under sentence of death in this country, but Solicitor-General Warren Allmand has said he did not think there would be anymore hangings in Canada.

He said the cabinet will make "certain decisions" about capital punishment this fall, by said he did not think the decision might be to restore hanging.

The Canadian police chiefs' association has pressed the government for years to restore general capital punishment and has protested vigorously several commutations to life imprisonment.

70 Cyclists Invade Belleville

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

About 70 cyclists pedalled their way into Belleville Thursday as part of a tour of eastern Ontario.

The group, which started from Toronto Aug. 17, is on the return portion of their tour which included a brief stop in Ottawa Tuesday.

During their overnight stay here the group set up camp at Zwick's Island.

Les Humphreys, the national chairman of the touring committee, said the trip has two purposes, one to help promote the Olympics, and secondly to practice for the tour next year when cycle clubs from all over Canada will be touring to Montreal.

The tour is a test to set the ideal number of cyclists a canteen truck can handle and feed, said Mr. Humphreys.

The program next year will be called Cycle Canada '76, which is being organized through the Canadian Cycling Association and the Association of Student Councils.

The major complaint by cyclists Mr. Humphreys said was sore knees.

"We also have people here who have never biked more than 10 miles a day so they are complaining about sore bums."

"We try to average 50 miles a day but right now we're doing around 60 miles, which is good," said Mr. Humphreys.

They are quite a variety of people in the tour said Mr. Humphreys.

One couple, a professor and his wife, is reported to have cycled from Boston to join the tour in Ottawa.

Dennis Barrett said he came from California just for this tour.

"This is my first time in Canada. I heard about this tour when I was on another bike tour in Ohio which attracts over 30,000 people," said Mr. Barrett.

People along the road are pretty good, ' said Brent Townsend, a Toronto student.

"Belleville has treated us very well. I don't think we'll get much better," said Mr. Humphreys.

There are about 20 girls and 50 boys in the tour with an average age of 24 years. The youngest being an 11-year-old girl and the oldest a 50-year-old man.

Thursday night the group was welcomed by Mayor Ben Corke and were entertained by a country and western show at the park.

Today, the 70 cyclists will be on the road again and hope to be in Peterborough by the end of the day.

Mr. Humphreys said he hopes to make the tour an annual event even after the Olympics is over.

The Long and Winding Road

Seventy members of the Pre-Olympic Bicycle Tour made their way to Zwick's Island for an overnight stay before heading on to Peterborough and eventually Toronto. Arriving around 3 p.m. Thursday, were (left to right), Bill Hilash of Winnipeg, Eric Wargel of Toronto, Dennis Barrett of California, and Brent Townshend of Toronto, of the group. Most of the touring group are from the Toronto - Hamilton area, but there are people from Manitoba, Quebec, California and Massachusetts. The group is on their return leg of their Toronto to Ottawa tour.

Giving Pointers

Warming up for her instructions in the Leader Course is Joanne Mullin, a high school student at Moira Secondary School. The one-week course running at the YMCA will allow swimmers to earn their assistant leaders certificate.

YMCA Training New Lifesavers

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The YMCA family pool is being used for more than a quick dip this week as eight disciplined swimmers try to earn their Red Cross Leader Course certification.

Instructors Joanne Mullin and Paul Hart have outlined an extensive program designed to teach swimmers basic skills in leadership and life saving so they may assist instructors and lifeguards at pool sites.

The only course prerequisites are the ability to be a strong swimmer, at least 15 years of age and over and the holder of a YMCA Senior Lifesaver, YMCA 5th Star, Red Cross Senior or R.L.S.S. Bronze Medallion.

Cost for the week-long session is $15.

Swimmers will spend a total of three hours in the pool every day filling in the extra time with theory on teaching methods, attitudes, physical principles of swimming and generally emphasizing their own personal swimming perfection.

Warm-up before the sessions is for the heartier group. Those swimmers must do five lengths of the pool in back crawl, side stroke, front crawl, elementary back crawl — legs only and breast stroke. After the initial warm-up they spend another 10 minutes treading water.

At the end of the session they will be tested by both a written and practical examination by a Red Cross examiner. They will also be rated on attitude and attendance by the instructors. And if it sounds vaguely like school Miss Mullin pointed out "they're going to learn fast and put all the information into direct application; not wait for five years to try it."

Credit Sales Down Despite Tight Money

Credit cards, the answer to buy-now-pay-later dreams and one of the more acceptable ways of buying on time, are undergoing a quiet decrease, a survey some of the larger stores in Belleville shows.

While some stores honor Master Charge and Chargex, many stores rely on credit plans established by their company chain within their business.

Not only are consumers being a little more careful with this year's spending, says Doug Shaw, manager of Cherney's Furniture World, they are selecting quality items.

Mr. Shaw estimated 60 per cent of their business is on a credit basis and the average balance is $400.

"Younger people are buying the more expensive furniture," he told The Intelligencer. He also said there was only a small minority abusing the credit plan.

Most stores operate on the basis of a credit charge on the unpair balance.

Dorothy Flack, a spokesman for the Canadian Tire Co., said there is no increase on the amount of people applying for credit but those who have it are using it more. The average account balance is around $250 said Mrs. Flack and approximately 15 per cent of the entire business is credit.

It's the same story for the Eaton's catalogue centre. 'Price appears to be' the first consideration and the consumer is spending money more carefully this year," commented manager Mr. C. L. Clancy. 'They are comparing prices and getting better value for their dollar."

An official at Sears in the Quinte Mall said he had no figures available.

Penningtons, a ladies wear store, is currently phasing its company's credit plan out. "'existing accounts are being honored," explained a company spokesman. Master Charge and Chargex are the new credit cards available.

Debbie Tebworth of Walker's Department Store, said there is no noticeable increase in the use of credit. The store offers service to major credit cards and company credit. She said there is an inner-store promotion among the employees for new accounts.

Approximately 30 per cent of their monthly business is credit and cash sales are also on the increase, she added.

Three Fires Reported Burning in Tweed Area

TWEED — Doug Mumford, fire control supervisor of the ministry of natural resources for the Tweed district, said today to date there have been 140 fires in the district this year.

In the 1.5-million acre district, there have been 1,404 acres of forest destroyed by fire this year, said Mr. Mumford.

Currently, there are three fires in the district. One is reported west of Bon Echo; a second two miles north of Stoco Lake; and the third reported Friday, six miles northeast of here in the Potter settlement, a reforestation area.

The fire hazard is reported to be moderate as a result of .25 inches of rain which fell today around Plevna.

The Tweed district comprises areas of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, and Hastings counties.

Getting to Know You

The four Lahr, West Germany students arrived in Belleville Thursday and today met with exchange program officials to map out their coming year's stay here. From left are Ald. Jean Smith, Iris Frank, Gisela Bauml, Angelika Isele, Bernhard Faust and Ed Neville, director of education for the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board.

Student Job Centre Closes Doors But Work a Success Says Official

The doors of the Student Manpower Centre are closing today after what Peter Fleming, student placement officer, called a "successful" summer.

"Things have been real good," Mr. Fleming said in an interview Thursday. Of the 2,408 people who registered, just under 50 per cent of them got either regular or casual jobs.

There were 739 students placed in regular jobs and 392 in casual positions, reported Mr. Fleming. A casual job is defined as lasting less than one week; a regular job is anything over a week's period.

"The students did a good service to the community. The stereotype of the student is wrong,' said Mr. Fleming.

To help with the placements, 417 personal employer visits were made by the four staff members. Along with this, letters were sent to the Chamber of Commerce, said the officer.

Mr. Fleming said most of the jobs were through the service industries and the picking of fruit was more plentiful.

"We sent about 10 or 12 kids to pick tobacco, which we paid the transportation, through the Student Mobility Program," said Mr. Fleming.

Before the centre opened at the beginning of May, the Manpower Centre went to different schools in the area and provided information about job searching, and explained the programs offered through the provincial and federal government.

"I would say the popularity of the centre is growing. One thing registration was up from last year," said the officer.

Mr. Fleming said the job roles are changing. "We placed the right people whether male or female with the right people."

There were four or five girls in the militia, some as flag-people, and other doing some landscaping said Mr. Fleming.

The placement officer recommended students, next summer to start looking for jobs early, fill the applications correctly, and have the right attitude.

Once the Student Manpower Centre closes, the main branch of the Canada Manpower will handle the responsibilities of the students.

Placement Program Gets Praise

Jim White the manager of the Canada Manpower Centre in Belleville, said the student Manpower Centre has done "an excellent job."

The summer report on the centre is presently being prepared and this will be evaluated once they are submitted, said Mr. White.

All of the reports for the province will be filed and then assessed on the whole.

"I expect the program to be continued, but we can't be sure until we get the word from the powers that be," said Mr. White.

Mr. White said they usually plan for the student office in the fall but definite word on a decision will come later.

The local centre has just completed six years in operation.

Two Firms Get Contracts

From The Ottawa Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Two Quinte Region firms have been given contracts totalling $61,650, Supply and Services Canada has announced.

AOCO Ltd., of Belleville will be paid $45,000 to provide optical services for the health and welfare department, while Bayside Dyeing and Finishing Co. Ltd., of Trenton will be paid $16,650 to supply the department of national defence with cloth.

The two were among 316 unclassified federal contracts, each worth $10,000 or more, awarded to Canadian firms during the week ended Aug. 15. Total value of these contracts was $33,894,327.

NDP Candidate Opposes Regional Government Plan

DESERONTO — Regional government in Ontario has led to depersonalization — 'people becoming merely numbers rather than people," says Bob Thompson, New Democratic Party candidate in Hastings-Peterborough riding, for the Sept. 18 provincial election.

Noting the NDP is opposed to regional government, Mr. Thompson told party workers here recently, 'local control would be lost to urban areas with higher population."

"We all know what William David did as minister of education and personally, I'm afraid he'll do the same with regional government," he commented.

Mr. Thompson remarked, 'I'm afraid the people of our rural areas are going to have something laid on them again — and as seen in other areas of Ontario where regional government has been introduced, it is the small towns and rural areas that will suffer."

Mr. Thompson said there is confusion on the issue of regional government within the Progressive Conservative party.

He said Robin Jeffrey, Conservative candidate in Quinte riding, says she is in favor of regional government while Clarke Rollins, Conservative hopeful in Hastings-Peterborough and current MPP in the now-defunct Hastings riding, states he disagrees with it.

Closing Shop

The Student Manpower Centre on Dundas St. East have closed their doors for the last time today. Peter Fleming, student placement officer, and Jim White, manager of the Canada Manpower Centre for Belleville, clean up the office by taking down one of the many posters for the centre. Mr. Fleming said he feels it was a successful summer and the only thing which is left to finish is the final report.

Four Lahr Students Make City Home

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Four students from Lahr, West Germany arrived in Belleville Thursday to begin a year's stay here as part of the continuing exchange program between the two cities.

The students — three girls and a boy — met with Ald. Jean Smith and Ed Neville, director of education for the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board, at city hall early today.

They discussed the coming educational year and other aspects of life in the city.

The students are Gisela Bauml, 16, who will attend Centennial Secondary School, Bernhard Faust, 15, who will go to Quinte Secondary School Iris Frank, 15, who will study at Belleville Collegiate Institute and Angelika Isele, 16, who will attend Moira Secondary School.

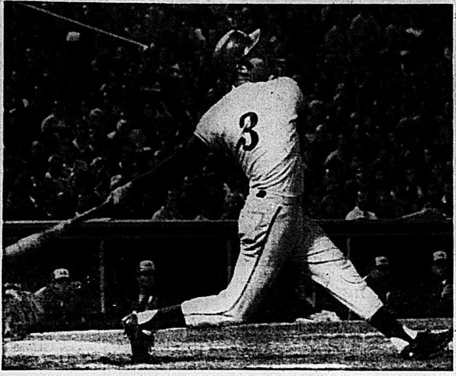
Three of the students are not unfamiliar with the area. Iris had a brother visit here two years ago while Angelika and Gisela had brothers here last year.

The students will reside with families who had offspring of their own fly to Lahr earlier this month to begin the exchange program.

Angelika is with Mr. and Mrs. Milton V. Duffey of 33 Diamond Cres., Bernhard is with Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Halpin of 108 Orchard Dr., Gisela is with Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Reid of RR 2, Belleville (Avonlough Rd.) and Iris is with Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Paquet of 15 Queen St.

Barry Duffey, Ross Halpin, Peter Paquet and Tim Reid are the Belleville students who flew to Lahr.

Ald. Smith said all four students speak English and will participate in a regular school program.



Bailey Comes Through With Bat

Expos Rebound from 7-2 Deficit

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Buzzie Bavasi, president of San Diego Padres, threw such a fit Thursday that manager John McNamara may have put his job on the line when he allowed star left-hander Randy Jones to give up nine runs before lifting him in their twi-night 10-8 loss to Montreal.

Jones, 17-8, entered the game with a 2.09 earned run average and had a 7-2 lead after four innings. However, his advantage had dwindled to 7-6 with the bases loaded and one out in the sixth when McNamara went to the mound to talk to him.

"Except for Nate Colbert's homer, all the rest of their hits had been singles and most of them were ground balls that had eyes," McNamara said later.

"On the bench, we thought Randy still had good stuff. He said the same thing when I went to the mound and Freddie (catcher Fred Kendall) thought so, too."

With a right-hander, Bill Greif, warmed up in the bullpen, McNamara let Jones continue. Bob Bailey, a right-handed hitter, followed with a game-tying sacrifice fly, then Tim Foli and Gary Carter hit run-scoring singles to give the Expos a 9-7 edge.

That's when Bavasi began to kick things and vent his displeasure in his private box at San Diego Stadium. "Randy had gotten Bailey to hit two ground balls to shortstop and one to third base his first three times up," said McNamara "and, needing a double play, we thought the chances were he might get him to hit another ball on the ground. He didn't, but that's the chance you have to take."

Before Bill Greif could bail him out of the sixth inning, only to giveup Montreal's fourth gift run of the game in the seventh, Jones' ERA had soared to 2.32 and he had become destined to only his second loss in his last eight decisions.

"When we gave Randy a 7-2 lead, I was thinking I would be willing to bet my life that he would win," veteran San Diego second baseman Tito Fuentes said after the Padres' fourth consecutive loss.

San Diego wasted a season-high 18 hits off Steve Rogers, Chuck Taylor, Fred Scherman, 3-4, Don DeMola and Dale Murray. Willie McCovey drove in three runs for the Padres with a double and his 15th homer. Fuentes knocked in two with a single and a sacrifice fly. Bobby Tolan, who had two singles, and Kendall, who had two singles and a double, each drove in a run while Dave Winfield delivered a run-scoring single.

Bailey, Carter and Colbert each knocked in two for Montreal. Foli, Larry Parrish and Jose Morales hit run-scoring singles and pinch-hitter Jim Dwyer posted an RBI with a bases-loaded walk off Greif.

"Colbert showed us the way when he went to the opposite field with his home run," said Montreal manager Gene Mauch. "You have to go up the middle or to the opposite field against a sinker-ball pitcher like Jones. If you try to pull him, he'll eat your lunch."

Sale Approved

New Owners Woo Bobby Orr

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League's board of governers approved Thursday the sale of Boston Bruins to a new group of owners, continuing the negotiations to keep star defenceman Bobby Orr from jumping to Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

The board of governors officially accepted the sale of the Bruins and Boston Garden by Storer Broadcasting Corp., to Sportsystems Corp., a multi-faceted international firm based in Buffalo, N.Y.

Storer made the announcement of the sale from Miami Beach, Fla., earlier in the day. Sportsystems is controlled by the Jacobs brothers, Jeremy, Max and Lawrence.

The Jacobs said they now will try to renegotiate a contract with Orr's lawyer and agent, Alan Eagleson.

On Wednesday, Eagleson said the Bruins' final contract offer—thought to be $350,000 a year for seven years—had been turned down, and that unless the Bruins were sold, Orr would sign with Minnesota for ported $6.5 million, including a $1.5-million signing bonus.

Eagleson said the matter has to be resolved by midnight of Sept. 15. The Bruins training camp opens the next day and Orr has asked Eagleson to settle the matter before then.

"I don't expect the new owners to match the Minnesota offer, but the offer will have to be substantially more than the final Storer offer," Eagleson said. "I think we're looking at a 10-year deal pre-paid so we can invest the entire thing."

Jeremy Jacobs said he doesn't plan any immediate changes in the Bruins' non-playing personnel, but has contemplated building a new arena to replace the Boston Garden.

Sports Service—a Jacobs-controlled subsidiary of the now defunct Emprise Corp., two years ago—has since become Sportsystems. Emprise once owned Dominion Sportservice of Canada, Ltd.

B.C., Tony's Win

Round Robin Series Opens

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — British Columbia, represented by Victoria Bates, struck early in the game and went on for a 4-1 win in the first game of their round - robin playoff series Thursday against Quebec in Canadian senior men's softball championship action.

In other round-robin playoff action, host Oshawa Tony's won a 4-1 victory over the Ontario representative, Kitchener Evergreens.

Earlier in the day, Ontario advanced to the playoffs with a 5-1 victory over Manitoba. Quebec won its playoff position by clinching a 10-0 victory over winless Prince Edward Island and Oshawa qualified by defeating Newfoundland 2-0.

Saskatchewan edged Northwest Territories 4-3 in the final game for each team.

In the British Columbia-Quebec game, B.C. scored one run in the second inning when Bob Holness doubled and scored on Pete Longhurst's single.

Des Underwood singled in the third. Carl Walker reached first on an error and Bob Burrows doubled to score two runs. Burrows connected with his third homer of the tournament in the sixth inning.

Quebec, represented by Gatineau Thom Construction, scored its run in the third inning when Jean Claude Cyr scored off Marcel Boucher's single.

Oshawa 4 Ontario 1

Two-run rallies in the second and sixth innings gave Oshawa its 4-1 win over Ontario, represented by Kitchener Evergreens.

Ontario jumped to a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Les Downing doubled-in Don Hoffman.

Oshawa put some strong hitting together in the fourth inning. Bob Young led off with a walk and was followed by Hal Kemp who singled. Paul Gibbens lined a drive into right field for a stand-up double, bringing across the two Oshawa base runners.

Singles by Ed Neudorf, Phil Solomon and Gibbens, a two-base error hit by Kemp, and a sacrifice hit by Bob Solomon accounted for the final two Oshawa runs.

Ontario 5 Manitoba 1

Ontario's earlier 5-1 win over Manitoba was the fifth consecutive victory for the team. Four of the games were shutouts.

Winning pitcher Keith Wagler gave up four hits. The loss was taken by Ken Dilk, relieved by Wayne Banman during the first inning.

Russ Woloshyn had a double for Ontario and Ab Henshaw, John Hagey and Tim Burkhart had singles.

Barry Braun, Lloyd Penner, Darcy Normand and Don Barton were the Manitoba hitters.

Quebec 10 P.E.I. 0

Quebec's 10-0 game over Prince Edward Island was called after five innings under the mercy rule.

Pitcher Claude Lafleur helped his own cause with a pair of hits, driving in three runs. Tom Duguay had a double and triple.

A one-out triple by Mike Flanagan in the second inning was the only hit off Lafleur, who struck out eight.

Oshawa 2 Nfld. 0

Pete Landers turned in the fourth no-hit game of the championship as Oshawa edged Newfoundland 2-0.

Landers struck out 14. Only two men reached base—lead-off batter Bill Malone, who was safe on an error in the first inning and Len Beresford, who walked in the seventh.

Phil Solomon doubled home a run in the first inning and Jack Senodon doubled in the second inning for Oshawa.

Sask. 4 N.W.T. 3

In their final game, Saskatchewan committed eight errors but managed a 4-3 victory over Northwest Territories.

Barry Haidey was the winning pitcher, with Rob Guenter going the final two innings.

Saskatchewan finished the round-robin schedule with two wins and three losses and Northwest Territories had one win and four losses.

25th Homer Powers Yankees

Bonds Has A's Pitchers Guessing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's a funny thing, this relationship between fastballs and Bobby Bonds.

On Wednesday night, with New York trailing Oakland by a run in the ninth inning and two Yankees on base, Rollie Fingers slipped a pair of fastballs past Bonds for a critical strikeout and the A's won 3-2.

Clearly the way to beat Bonds is to fastball him, right?

Wrong. In the sixth inning Thursday night, with Chris Chambliss aboard with a walk, Ken Holtzman tried to slip a fast one past Bonds. It wound up bouncing off the right-centre field fence for a run-scoring double.

Okay, so the way to beat Bonds is not to fastball him, right?

Wrong again. With two outs in the eighth inning, Holtzman hit Ed Brinkman with a pitch. Up came Bonds, and out to the mound went Oakland manager Alvin Dark. "Don't throw him any fastballs," he told Holtzman.

So Holtzman wound up and threw him a change-up. It wound up far beyond the left-centre field wall. Bonds' 25th homer, a two-run shot that catapulted the Yankees to a 3-2 victory.

"With all that fastball business last night and then the fastball that I hit in the sixth this time," Bonds said. "I didn't know what to look for. I was just looking for a ball to hit."

In the only other American League game Thursday night, Baltimore beat Chicago 2-1.

In the National League, Cincinnati blanked St. Louis 4-0, Philadelphia downed San Francisco 8-5, New York defeated Los Angeles 4-1 and Montreal outlasted San Diego 10-8.

The A's, whose AL West lead over idle Kansas City was shaved to 7½ games, got their runs on Billy Williams' homer off Pat Dobson in the fourth inning.

Baltimore's Mike Cuellar stymied the White Sox on five hits. Run-scoring singles by Ellie Hendricks in the second inning and Don Baylor in the fifth gave him the runs Baltimore needed to trim Boston's lead in the AL East to 6½ games.

Don Gullett notched his seventh consecutive victory with a five-hitter and Darrel Chaney cracked a homer to lead Cincinnati past St. Louis, which fell 3½ games behind idle Pittsburgh in the NL East.

Philadelphia moved into a tie with the Cards by battering four San Francisco pitchers for 17 hits. Garry Maddox' triple and doubles by Mike Schmidt and Johnny Oates were the key hits in the Phils' three-run sixth.

The Mets stayed close in the NL East race, moving within 4½ games of the Pirates. Mike Vail's tie-breaking single in a two-run fifth inning, Del Unser's two-run homer in the seventh and Jerry Koosman's eight-hit, 10-strikeout pitching carried them past the Dodgers.

Canada Shoots For Top Spot

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada still has a chance to finish in first place in Group A of the Intercontinental Cup baseball tournament thanks to a helping hand from the United States, winners of Group B.

The Americans defeated Japan 1-0 in 12 innings Thursday night for their sixth win to remain the only undefeated team in the round-robin affair. The Japanese, who dumped Colombia 9-2 earlier Thursday, now are 5-1 and hold a two-point lead over Canada in the battle for top spot in Group B. Canada, 4-2, meets Japan tonight and if Canada can win, they will take top spot in the division.

If Canada does finish first, they would meet Nicaragua in semi-final play while the U.S. would take on Japan in the other. Nicaragua finished their round-robin play with a 3-4 record after dropping a 5-2 decision to South Korea Thursday.

Canada manager Wayne Norton feels his club has a chance of beating Japan.

"If we can continue to play well defensively, we have a good chance," he said. "We feel we can score because we have been getting good hitting. But we have to play the same way we did against Puerto Rico Wednesday night."

WON 8-0

Canada topped Puerto Rico 8-0 in that game with pitcher Fred Cardwell picking up the win.

Cardwell may be able to pitch in the semi finals Saturday, but today Norton is scheduled to start John Osborne, who has two of Canada's four wins and an earned-run average of 2.69. Osborne is likely to pitch half the game with Brad McArthur, who has an ERA of 1.34 for 6 2-3 innings worked, is scheduled to relieve.

The U.S.-Japan clash Thursday was a crowd-pleasing affair that ended when Jerry Mondalto stroked a run-scoring single to centre to score Ron Hassey with the winning run.

Hassey reached base when second baseman Katsuhijo Fukusaki failed to handle his ground ball. He advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt and went to third on a wild pitch by loser Tomayasu Hagino. Mondalto then slapped his two-out game-winning hit out of the infield and out of the reach of centre-fielder Fumio Isobe.

In Japan's win over Colombia, Tadanori Murakami collected five hits in six at bats and drove in three runs to pace the winners.

Right-hander Ho-Joong Kim scattered seven hits and struck out 11 batters to lead South Korea to its win over Nicaragua.

Dong-Kyun Yoon had three hits in four at bats, scoring two runs and driving in another as South Korea got a single run in the second and two runs in both the fourth and fifth innings.

In the other game today, the U.S. takes on Colombia.

USSR Is Easy Winner

HALIFAX (CP) — The Soviet national volleyball team downed Canada 15-9, 15-3, 15-4 Thursday to win their best-of-five series in three straight games.

In the opening game the Soviets jumped to an early 2-0 lead before giving the Canadians a point on a "carried ball" called by referee Brad Barton. The Soviets then took an 11-1 lead on the strength of double-team blocks and spikes, but the Canadians rebounded with an eight-point rally before bowing out 15-9.

In the second game, Canada managed a number of service breaks but failed to dent the Soviet defence.

The Canadian team spotted the Soviets 12-0 in the third contest. They were never able to catch up.

Canadian coach Bill Neville said his team's strength was sapped in order to line up players for preliminary matches against the Soviet No. 2 club.

The two teams meet again Saturday in Fredericton.

Minor Baseball President Issues an Open Challenge

Many people appreciate a challenge.

Some even respond to one.

I hope several of the parents of minor baseball players in the city who have had so much to say all season long will pick up this gauntlet.

Issuing the challenge is Sy Bochnek, president of Belleville Minor Baseball Association.

He'd like to see those loud mouths who were so quick to pop off with all the free advice through the season, attend the September 11 general meeting and election of officers. And so would I.

Sy is more than a little fed up with the criticism the association has been taking this year. He'd like to be on the other end of the firing line for once. And he is ready . . . . . eager in fact . . . to face all the detractors at that September 11 meeting.

"Let's hear all these people with the big ideas stand up and let themselves be heard at the meeting," challenges Sy.

Bochnek, it appears, is tired of the BMBA playing babysitter for young ball players while the parents sit back and moan. President of a wailing wall is what Sy feels he has become.

I think what Sy wants, is for some of these leather-lunged critics to turn their energies to more constructive matters . . . like serving on the BMBA executive for instance.

"It's the same few people who take on the responsibility every year and quite frankly, some of us are fed up with the attitude of the parents," asserts Bochnek.

Seems to me there is a growing feeling among those usual standbys who run minor sports that the time is ripe to get out. Who needs the aggravation?

But will the loud mouths step into the breach? Not many of them will.

Trouble is, their own children will suffer because of the ignorance of dad and mom who know nothing more than to stand back . . . watch . . . and criticize.

I can see the day coming when the old faithful few will say "to blazes with it" and that will be the end of it.

Come September 11, be at Parkdale Community Hall for the 8.45 p.m. meeting. But come with the idea of being of some assistance, not tearing down the way you have all summer.

Anyway, Sy Bochnek deserves the chance to let you know what he thinks of you to your faces.

If you don't show for the meeting, Sy has my permission to have at the crux of the matter in this column.

How about it?

SLICES — A caller (you don't notice it but there is a long pause following the typing of those two words while I chuckled along with everyone else at the reminiscences of William Demarest on the Merv Griffin Show) wants to know why more coverage of minor soccer isn't included in these pages.

Here's the reason.

No one (that should be very few people) lets us know what's going on in the sport.

Dr. T. I. Woodley forwarded information on the peewee final.

Just yesterday, someone called to say Town and Country Restaurant had won the Atom playoff title with a 1-0 win over National Billiards. But our informant didn't know who scored the goal, never mind who recorded the shutout.

Get with it.

Plenty of top flight Ontario Amateur Softball Association action at the minor level on tap Saturday at Alemite Park.

At 1.30 p.m., Belleville SACO Peewees open a best of three set with Scarborough Cedar Hill.

Following that game, it's the deciding match between Scarborough North Bendale and Belleville Downtown Merchants Bantams. That showdown is expected to start at 3.15 p.m.

Minor Softball Playoffs

AOCO Takes Tyke Title

The championship of the Belleville Minor Softball Association tyke division has been won by AOCO which completed a 14 game season without a setback.

In the game which gave the squad the title, it was a 33-12 defeat of Town and Country.

Kevin Newell and Carl DeRusha along with Steve McGrath, Jeff Plane and Jeff Male supplied most of the hitting power for the champions. Newell belted two homers; DeRusha had a homer and two triples; McGrath and Plane each homered and doubled while Male checked in with three triples.

Brian Clarey, Dale Richardson and Burke Brodie said it for Town and Country. Clarey had two homers; Richardson one, and Brodie a double and a single.

The AOCO team was coached by Al Vanclief.

At the bantam level, Red Shark wrapped up its semi-final series with Shell Car Wash, taking the deciding game 13-7. Randy Smith and Bob Paul combined pitching talents for the win. Hurling for the losers were Gary Haig, Dwight Begley and Ron Doornbos.

Bob Dall whacked a home run for the winners as did Rick Turner. Doornbos homered in defeat.

In another bantam match, Belleville Police Association topped the OASA SACO Peewees 12-2 behind the pitching of Tim McWilliams. John Munkittrick toed the rubber for SACO.

Sparking the winners at the plate were John Jianopoulos with a homer, triple and double; Mike O'Shaughnessy, a homer, double and two singles; Ray Gee, a homer, and Pete Fredette, three singles.

Kinsmen OASA Squirts took Stephen Licence in two straight in semi-final play, taking a close 9-8 win in the opener and coming on strong in Game 2 to record the victory by a 19-3 score.

Allan Thompson was the winning pitcher in both games. Steve Bennett was the tough luck loser in the squeaker while he and Steve Murray shared the pitching for Stephen Licence in the second match.

Bennett banged out a homer, double and single in the first game in which Bruce Shugg tripled and doubled and Kevin Johnson supplied two singles. Angelo Lentini homered for the winners.

John Ramsay and Dennis Tam each stroked a circuit blast in Kinsmen's second win. Warren Cavalier supplied three singles to the attack. Daren Addy's two singles were tops for the losers.

League Honors To Olympics

Belleville Olympics wrapped up first place in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association standings Thursday night at Sir James Whitney School, but they didn't do it without a battle from challenger Cobourg Tony's, pennant winner in 1974.

Until late in the game, it appeared as if Cobourg would retain its chances of repeating as league champs. Tony's scored the only goal of the first 80 minutes when Eric Golab connected from the penalty spot in the first half.

Golab got his free shot after Olympics' Mike D'Ornellies handled the ball in the penalty area. And the goal stood up for what seemed like forever to Olympics' supporters.

With 12 straight wins under their belts and the league title there for the taking, Olympics got the job done in the final 10 minutes.

Zdravko Fundic, the team's leading scorer, fired his 22nd goal of the season when he picked up the ball on the edge of the penalty area and hit a swerving shot into the netting.

That equalizer appeared to spark the home side and five minutes later, a pass from playing - coach John O'Neill found Chris Johnson in full flight and that solid performer slammed home the winner.

It was a tough loss for Tony's who seemed capable of snapping Olympics' win string. But it wasn't to be.

In other league action, Quinte Hellenic got goals from Ted Adams, Zoltan Vigh, John Prianis and Neilson in a 4-2 defeat of Warkworth.

Wednesday night, an improving Canadian Forces Base Trenton squad blanked Trenton Citizens 3-0 and Belleville Parsons shut out Brighton 4-0. Details on these matches were not submitted.

SETS STABLE FIRE

DESSA, Del. (AP) — Investigators say an eight-year-old boy playing with matches caused a stable fire that killed between 18 and 20 horses. The boy fled the barn uninjured and six horses were rescued.

ORDER RUNNER HOME

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — John Akii-Bua, Uganda's 400-metre hurdles world record holder, has been ordered to curtail his European tour and return home, a Kenyan newspaper reported Thursday. A Ugandan official told the newspaper that since Akii-Bua was on the Ugandan team taking part in this weekend's East and Central African track championships at Mombasa, Kenya, Uganda had no alternative.

NAMED COACH

BUFFALO (AP) — Guy Trottier, who played for teams in both the National Hockey League and World Hockey Association, Thursday was named player-coach of Buffalo Norsemen, a new team in the North American Hockey League. Trottier, 33, a native of Hull, Que., played for Toronto Maple Leafs in the NHL during the 1970-71 and 1971-72 seasons before switching to the WHA where he played for Ottawa Nats, Toronto Toros and Michigan Stags.

CINCINNATI (AP) — A doctor who examined Johnny Bench of Cincinnati Reds says he believes the catcher is suffering only from a damaged cartilage and not an arthritic condition. Bench has been bothered by a painful left shoulder since a collision at home plate nearly four months ago.

Belleville Team in Split with Newmarket

Player Shortage Doesn't Stop McDonald's

By TOM GAVEY
Staff Reporter

NEWMARKET — The Belleville McDonalds travelled here Thursday night to compete in an Ontario Fastball League doubleheader with the Rays.

The way things started off it looked like they wouldn't be competing anywhere. The team bus broke down and was half an hour late getting to Belleville to pick up the players. Only nine players showed up for the contests, with one of the premier teams in the OFL.

Contrary to the way things have gone for the McDonalds this year, the Macs actually came out ahead. In the first game Belleville lost on a pair of home runs 2-0. The good news in that in the second the Macs were victorious 4-3.

Scott Reid found himself the only pitcher to make the trip and pitched both contests. In the second game Reid was not only nursing a sore wrist on his throwing arm, but also was battling waves of nausea in the late innings. He hung in and took the victory, his fifth of the season.

In the first game Reid only gave up five hits, but two were homers from Les Chaisson and Wally Cooper. Both home runs were hit about 218 feet, which tells you something about the park they played in.

Belleville left nine runners stranded on base in the first game and should have scored. Hits came from Gary Goyer, with two singles, Peter Harrison and Frank Robinson, both with one baggers.

The winner for Newmarket was Bill Lunney with eight strikeouts.

Reid gave up five hits and walked one in the loss while striking out one.

In the second match the Belleville team came up with a few tricks of their own.

The Macs jumped off to a quick 1-0 lead in the third and came in on Pete Harrison's hard hit triple.

In the sixth Newmarket scored three times and it looked like the end for Belleville. With one out in the top of the seventh Scott Reid looped a single into left field and got the Macs offence going. He moved to second on a passed ball and then came in on Glenn Carleton's double.

Carleton scored when Gary Goyer slapped a clutch single to right field and he came in when Mavety hit his second double of the night.

It was quite a comeback for a team with only nine players and a designated runner on the bench. Harold Reid, the Macs manager was quick to point out that none of the missing players explained their absence. Among the missing were shortstop Paul Goodfellow and pitchers Ted Waite and Jim Chase.

Belleville had a good night hitting-wise off Newmarket pitcher Larry Marshall, as they collected nine hits.

Mavety had quite a game at the plate, he slammed two doubles and a single for the winners. Harrison tripled in the win as well as making a number of key plays in left field for Belleville. Carleton doubled to keep his hot bat alive while singles came from Ling, Goyer, Dale Duvall and Reid.

Reid held Newmarket to five hits in the victory, he walked no one and struck out seven.

The Macs now have 11 wins for the season, Scott Reid leads the staff with five victories. Jim Chase has chipped in three wins and Ted Waite has two.

Tonight the McDonalds close their 1975 season with a game at home against the Hamilton Waxman Scrappers. In the past two weeks Belleville has played the way they have all year. In other words, they have been winning. The bats of Carleton, Mavety, Harrison and Goyer have come alive to give the Macs a solid hitting punch.

SLICES: Doug Dafoe is out of action for the Macs. He has an injured foot and can't run. He turned out for the games in Newmarket, but Mac's coach Harold Reid felt Dafoe shouldn't risk further injury and the big Macs outfielder didn't make the trip.

• • • • •

The Macs will be playing in a tournament on September 4 and 5.

The Toronto Globals and Newmarket Rays are also entered. More on that later.

• • • • •

Finally, it should be mentioned that the Macs won more on desire last night than anything else. With an ailing Scott Reid on the mound things could have just fallen apart and a shellacking could have transpired. Instead the team held together and Belleville won 4-3 in a stirring comeback. The players who made the trip were, Larry Mavety, Frank Robinson, Dale Duvall, Gary Goyer, Carl Boomhower, Scott Reid Pete Harrison, Glenn Carleton, Steve Ling and Doug Adams.

Devolin Back On Even Terms

Speaking of turn about being fair play, that's exactly what Devolin Motors did to Bardon Supplies on Thursday night in their Quinte Fastball League final series.

After Bardons defeated them 6-5 in extra innings on Thursday night, the Devolin team decided to come up with some late inning magic themselves.

They did just that, winning the game 5-4 and squaring the series at 1-1.

Reinforcement Larry Griffin was on hand to relieve a weary Donny Holoway of the pitching duties for Devolin Motors. Griffin had 16 strikeouts in 11 innings to pick up the playoff victory. He was touched for seven hits and walked two.

The Bardon loss was shared by Wayne McConnell and Ken DeMille, the twosome allowed 12 hits and five walks. They struck out seven batters in the match.

Devolins had to come back from a 4-1 deficit in the second inning to score three times and tie things up and send the game into extra innings.

Rick Rosebush got a measure of revenge from Bardons when he singled and then stole second base. John Burnside followed up with another one bagger and the winning run was scored.

Griffin had no trouble at the plate for Devolins, as he had three singles off Bardon hurlers. Jim Horwood had two singles and a double while Dave Horwood also had two singles. Burnside singled twice in the winning cause while Rosebush and Ralph Plane added the other safeties for the winners.

Denis Neron had two one baggers in his team's loss as did Doug Noble.

Other singles were contributed by Marv Stacey, Rob Wallwork and Warren Ostrander.

With the series as close as it is every game will be crucial and it looks like the finals will go the full seven games.

Final Series Tied

After losing the first game of their final Prince Edward North Shore Softball League series the Ameliasburgh A's decided to get even on Thursday night.

That they did, as they defeated Bayview Orchards 12-2 in the seven inning encounter.

Harold Werkhoven picked up the win with just three hits allowed and four walks issued. He struck out one batter.

The loss was shared by Steve Doxtator and Dennis Snell, with 11 hits and four walks allowed.

Gil Nisbitt led the devestating A's attack with a home run and a double. Murray Maracle doubled and tripled for the winners while Ed Callow also had a two bagger. Ken Burkholder had two safeties and Gary Thompson added a hit for the winning cause.

George Foote doubled for the losers while Doxtator and George Daniels also had hits.

Ploen One of Six Elected To Football Hall of Fame

HAMILTON (CP) The incomparable Kenny Ploen, who led Winnipeg Blue Bombers to four Grey Cup championships from 1958 to 1962, has been elected to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame, the hall's selection committee announced today.

Ploen, who played 11 seasons at quarterback for the Canadian Football League's Blue Bombers, is one of six persons elected to the hall.

Also elected as players were Byron L. (By) Bailey, former star fullback with British Columbia Lions who scored the team's first touchdown in CFL competition: Dick Shatto, who holds 13 club records and numerous CFL marks after a 12-season career with Toronto Argonauts; and Herb Trawick, former offensive lineman for Montreal Alouettes who was chosen to the CFL's all-star team a record seven times.

Elected as builders are Lew Hayman, former CFL president and now president of the Argonauts; and T.L. (Tom) Brook, former president of Calgary Stampeders and one of the first to suggest an interlocking schedule between the Eastern and Western conferences.

Ploen started his professional football career by completing an unusual double. He played in a Rose Bow' game and a Grey Cup game the same year—1957.

He starred as his Iowa University team beat Oregon State 35-19 in the Rose Bowl, but as a rookie quarterback later in the year, the Blue Bombers were defeated by Hamilton Tiger-Cats 32-7.

Ploen was selected all-Canadian in 1965 and when he retired after the 1967 season, he was sixth on the all-time list of CFL passers. He is now a resident of Winnipeg and works on the Blue Bombers' executive.

Bailey, a native of Omaha, Neb., played briefly with Detroit and Green Bay before coming to B.C. for eight seasons as fullback and three more as defensive back.

Bailey ran from scrimmage 783 times in his career for 3,643 yards and 26 touchdowns. He now lives in Vancouver and is an official with the CFL Lions.

When Shatto retired from competition in 1965, he had caught more passes, and accounted for more offensive yardage than any other player in the history of Canadian football.

Shatto's 91 touchdowns have only been exceeded by Saskatchewan's George Reed, and his 13,642 rushing yards has been topped only once—again by Reed.

Shatto now is director of public relations and marketing for the Argonauts.

Trawick was one of the first imports selected when Hayman and Leo Dandurand started to build the powerful Alouette team in 1946

Trawick played for 12 years and was named to the All-Eastern Conference team for his first five years. In 1954 and 1955, he was named to the all-star team as guard.

Hayman, a former coach of the Argonauts who won five Grey Cup games in five tries, took over the staggering Montreal franchise and worked at getting Montreal sports fans interested in football.

He returned to the Argonauts in 1956 as general manager.

When football was at a low ebb in Calgary in 1948, Brook chose Les Lear to coach the Stampeders. Lew responded by bringing in a host of new players, including Woody Strode, Keith Spaith and Chuck Anderson.

The team that Brook and Lear built won 22 consecutive games over two seasons and resulted in Calgary's first-ever Grey Cup victory—a 12-7 decisions over Ottawa in 1948.

Evert's Chances Looking Good

CHRIS EVERT

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Evert's credentials as a clay court player are so convincing after only one match at Forest Hills that even she is confident of capturing her first U.S. Open tennis crown.

"I feel eager," Miss Evert said. "This is the only title I haven't won outside of the Australian Open. I have a pretty good chance."

The top-seeded Miss Evert won her 76th consecutive match on clay by a 6-1, 6-0 count at the expense of Australian Lesley Hunt on Thursday night. The string, which covers 15 tournaments, stretches back to 1973.

Miss Evert and Jimmy Connors led 14 seeded players into the second round after Thursday's day-night action, which drew a total crowd of 20,310.

Connors began defence of his title with a 6-3, 6-3 triumph over Geoff Masters although he blew 3-0 leads in each set.

"The first three games I never played better," Connors said. "Then Geoff started keeping the balls in play."

Virginia Wade, the No. 2 seed from Britain who was decimated by Miss Evert in the final of a clay court tournament in suburban Harrison, N.Y. on Monday, was the only seeded woman who failed to see action Thursday.

Most of the others moved into the second round with ease.

Evonne Goolagong, the No. 4 seed from Australia, opened the day's play on centre court with a 6-0, 6-0 rout of Peggy Michel, her World Team Tennis teammate in Pittsburgh. Margaret Court closed out the afternoon by crushing Nathalie Fuchs of France 6-2, 6-0.

The most startling result of the day was the demise of 26-year-old Rosemary Casals, an institution at Forest Hills along with Billie Jean King and twice a runner-up here to Mrs. King.

Miss Casals, of San Francisco, fell victim to Marina Kroschina. The blue-eyed, 22-year-old wife of a Soviet physician stunned Miss Casals 6-4, 6-2.

Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, seeded right behind Connors, made quick work of Hans Gildermeister of Brazil 6-2, 6-2.

Bjorn Borg of Sweden trounced Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J., 6-2, 6-2.

Manuel Orantes of Spain, seeded third; No. 8 Ilie Nastase of Romania, and No. 9 Rod Laver of Australia also advanced in straight sets while No. 11 Raul Ramirez of Mexico was extended to 6-2, 6-7, 7-5 for a victory over Eric Van Dillen of the U.S.

Junior Tournament

Swedes Are Upset

OTTAWA (CP) — Joseph Brabenac and John Picken of British Columbia, defending Canadian Junior doubles tennis champs, upset Leo Palin of Finland and Ulf Ericksen of Sweden in an international tournament Thursday.

Brabenac, of Vancouver, and Picken, of North Burnaby, lost one set 5-7 to the third-seeded European team but took the others 6-4 6-2, in one of the last games on the fourth day of action.

Palin was defeated Tuesday in singles by unranked Lucjan Sosnowski of South Africa who shared a doubles win Thursday.

Sosnowski paired with Andrew Jarrett of England, whom he had earlier defeated in singles, to beat Tsuyoshi Fukui of Japan and Hans Muench of Toronto, 6-2, 6-1.

Sosnowski and Jarrett will meet Brabenac and Picken in semi-finals. Top-seeded Chris Lewis of New Zealand and Warren Maher of Australia also are in the semi-finals, but their opponents have not been decided.

In 18-and-under singles action, unseeded Elizabeth Ekbloom of Sweden upset Anne Gerrain of Belgium 6-2, 6-0 and will feet Debbie Mescarin of Michigan in semi-finals today. Miss Mescarin defeated Nicole Marois of Quebec City who took one set 4-6 but lost the others, 6-1, 6-3.

BIRTHS

BOYKO, Brett, Valen — wishes to announce his arrival at Belleville General on Sunday 24 August at 7 lbs. 15¼ ozs. He also wishes to thank the hospital staff and Drs. O'Boyle, Kelly, Allore and Briggs for their help and care. Brett will be residing in Stirling with his parents Phil and Sandra Boyko.

TOMLINSON — Terry and Elaine (nee Golden) are thrilled to announce the arrival of their first born a daughter Tara Lee on August 26, 1975 at 1.14 p.m. Weight 8 lbs. 10½ ozs. First granddaughter for Mr. and Mrs. William Tomlinson, Orono and fourth for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Golden, Cannifton, Ont. Special thanks to Dr. Brearley, nurse Else and staff of 5th floor Belleville General Hospital.

WILSON, David and Sandra of 79 Burton St. are pleased to announce the arrival of their baby daughter, Margaret Ellen, on Monday, August 25, weighing 7 lbs. 5 ozs.

IN MEMORIAM

FERGUSSON — In memory of Mr. Robert J. Fergusson who died August 28, 1965.
10 years have passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home - It was His will,
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—From Betty and Jean and family.

HASLIP — In loving memory of my dear mother, Nellie, who passed away August 29, 1963.
If I had all the world to gvie,
I'd give it, yes, and more,
To hear mother's voice and see her smile,
And greet her at the door,
But all we can do dear mother,
Is go and tend your grave,
And leave behind our token of love,
To the best mother God ever made.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Olive, son-in-law Arthur and family, daughter-n-law Phyllis and family.

KEMP, Tucker, Edith — In loving memory of a dear mother.

She little thought when she left home how long she would be ill, at hospital and nursing home, over three years she would spend with pain and patience and some dejection and much loneliness she would contend. Then on August 29th, 1971 she was called to her reward.
May she rest in peace.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by son Harry and his wife Evelyn.

JONES — In loving memory of our beloved mother Marguerite Anna Jones who passed away three years ago today, August 29, 1972.
Please God, forgive a silent tear,
A fervent wish our Mom was here,
There are others, yes, we know,
But she was ours and we loved her so.
Dear God, take a message,
To our mother in heaven above,
Tell her how much we miss her,
And give her all our love
—Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by daughter Connie, son-in-law Doug and son Steven.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Doreen Stoliker would like to say thank you for the many acts of kindness in our sudden loss of a beloved daughter, mother and grandmother. For the beautiful floral tributes, donations, to the Gideon Bibles and the Heart Fund. Messages of sympathy and calls. The kindness of the policeman, the staff at the Belleville hospital, Dr. Stock, the Thompson Funeral Home. Special thanks to the Rev. George Ward for his words of comfort.

Her mother Mrs. Keitha Bowers, sons Lynn, Larry, Dean; daughter Catherine; grandchildren Jo-Anne and Bradley; brother Bruce Fergusson; sisters Jean Donaldson and Betty St. Martin.

NOTICE

THE CORPORATION OF
THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE
NOTICE OF PROPOSED
BY-LAW

TAKE NOTICE that the Corporation of the City of Belleville proposes to pass a by-law which will stop up and close South John Street at the CPR and CNR tracks, being designated as Part 1 on a Plan of Survey received and deposited as Plan 21R-1495 by the Land Registrar for the Registry Division of Hastings (21R).

The City of Belleville has applied to the Railway Transport Committee for an Order to close the South John Street railway crossing and the Railway Transport Committee has indicated the street allowance must be closed by by-law before the Order can be issued.

Notice of this proposed by-law is being published pursuant to Section 446 of The Municipal Act RSO 1970, and amendments thereto.

DATED at Belleville this 8th day of August, 1975.

NOTICE

THE CORPORATION OF
THE TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW
NOTICE OF PROPOSED
BY-LAW

Take notice that the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow proposes to pass a by-law which will stop up and close a section of road allowance in Lot 8, Concession 4, of the said Township of Thurlow which said parcel is described as follows:

All and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises, situate, lying, and being in the Township of Thurlow in the County of Hastings and being composed of Part of Lot 8, in Concession 4, of the said Township of Thurlow and being designated as Part 2 on Plan 21R 1642 deposited in the Land Registry Office for the said County and allow the Township of Thurlow to sell the said road allowance so stopped up.

And further take notice that before passing the said by-law at its meeting to be held at the Township Hall in the Village of Cannifton, on the 16th day of September, 1975 at the hour of 8:00 p.m. the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow shall then and there hear in person or by his Council, Solicitor or Agent, any person who claims that his land will be prejudically affected by the said by-law and who applies to be heard.

Notice of this proposed by-law is being published pursuant to Section 446 of The Municipal Act R.S.O. 1970 and amendments thereto.

Dated at Cannifton, Ontario this 21st, day of August, 1975 .

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Saturday, Aug. 30

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is one of those days when you'll be far more adept at handling lrger issues than smaller ones. Think big.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You will benefit today from a confidential arrangement well-screened from persons not directly involved.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Yesterday you couldn't rely upon friends to back you. Today, your influence with your peer group is very strong.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) One who is important to something you're involved in will be looking out for your welfare today. Relax. The bases are covered.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) A friend has some valuable information for you today. However, when you first hear it you won't fully appreciate its worth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today will work out very advantageously for you, materially and reputationwise. Luck is acting for you behind the scenes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Something worthwhile is to be gained today from an enterprise you'll share with a cohort. Just be sure your aims are synchronized.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your handiness can save you a fair piece of change today. You'll salvage something others might have thrown away.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're lucky today through persons with whom you share a close, one-to-one relationship, especially in your social life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) Help will arrive in the nick of time, so don't fret. You won't be stuck with a chore you weren't looking forward to doing alone.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll be in a very sociable frame of mind today, especially toward evening. Bright lights, music and activity will be your cup of tea.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're going to dig into your purse today for something for the family. The money will bring pleasure to all.

First Baby Woes Unlikely Again

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had my first baby at age 30. My baby came early, two weeks early by due date. He was not considered premature, but was called "small for date." My doctor said he was about six weeks early by birth size. He only weighed four pounds.

The problems we encountered were numerous. My doctor said my placenta did not function properly. My son had low blood sugar that caused breathing difficulties. The baby is doing fine now.

My doctor feels that in subsequent pregnancies I should not encounter the problem with my placenta. Do you agree?—Mrs. D. A. M.

The terms "premature" and "small for date" are the cause for some confusion. The estimated date of confinement can easily be two weeks off. The variation often reflects the fact that pregnancy occurs at mid-cycle, a couple of weeks before the last period was missed.

As to "prematurity," this is a pretty specific term. A baby weighing under 5½ pounds at delivery is regarded as premature, and special care is required.

Low blood sugar is not unusual, even in full-term babies. Some exhibit symptoms, others do not.

Your baby's breathing problem may or may not have been attributable to the low sugar. A distress syndrome" is common in premature babies, in those delivered by Caesarian section, and among those of diabetic mothers. The cause is not clear, but it is thought to be caused by a coating on the air sacs of the lungs which hinders the necessary exchange of gases between lungs and blood.

I think your doctor is correct in stating that your placenta problem is unlikely to occur in subsequent pregnancies.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you please tell me how long you can keep eggs? I do my food shopping nce a month and buy four or five dozen eggs. These last through the month. Is it safe to keep eggs that long? —Mrs. B.

Yes it's safe under certain circumstances.

The eggs should be kept in the refrigerator, preferably in their cartons, and at temperatures between 45 degrees and 55 degrees fahrenheit. Under such conditions they will keep several weeks, according to the U.S. Poultry and Egg National Board.

At room temperature eggs lose more quality in a single day than they would in a week under refrigeration. Even under refrigeration eggs lose water and carbon dioxide through the porous shell, but the nutritional quality is not lost.

Keep in mind, too, that eggs can pick up odors and tastes from nearby foods, and this can occur under refrigeration.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please explain what a "herald patch" is, and what is its cause and treatment?—M. T.

This is a term used to describe the first sign (the herald) of pityriasis, which is a mild inflammatory skin eruption of unknown origin. It can "herald" a general eruption.

Often the herald patch will fade and be replaced by another, similar eruption elsewhere on the body.

Mild causes require no treatment. If itching is pronounced, soothing lotions may be used. Ultra-violet light has also been used and, rarely, steroid drugs.

Canadian Displays 'Precious Charm'

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — A Canadian artist has established a foothold in an unusual market—New Zealand. His one-man show in Auckland has aroused a good deal of interest, partly because shows by Canadian artists in this part of the world are rare.

An exhibition at the John Leech Gallery by David Silverberg was classed as successful by the gallery management, particularly for an artist unknown locally. About 25 works were sold.

The exhibition was opened by A. P. Smythe, first secretary at the Canadian High Commission in New Zealand, who expressed the hope that the venture would encourage art exchanges between the two countries.

Aged 39, Silverberg was born in Montreal and furthered his art studies in Canada, France, London, Japan and Peru. After holding a number of art teaching posts, he was appointed an associate professor at Mount Allison University in Sackville, N.B.

In a review of the exhibition, the art critic of New Zealand Herald, T. J. McNamara, said:

"Delicately tinted lovers ensnared in flowers are the principal subjects of the sweet, highly competent prints by the Canadian artist David Silverberg.

"All his prints have a rather precious charm which is at its best in the unforced images of lovers among flowers . . . and least effective when he is forcing the meaning in a print such as Chanson Marine full of fish and flute-playing females.

"The degree of professional competence Mr. Silverberg has as a print maker is seen in the swept sky and cold atmosphere of Before Dawn, a print full of the cold North.

"The eroticism of the images of lovers is keyed up by the hectic color. This makes for pleasant works of no great power, but arriving unheralded as they do, they make a piquant contribution to the current exhibitions."

Although few Canadians have exhibited in New Zealand, Auckland at least has a thriving art market.

The unlucky expert had us cornered again. This time he was all smiles. He chortled, "I think I've finally broken my jinx."

He showed us the North and South cards and said, "You are in four hearts after a two club overcall by West. He leads the king and ace of clubs. East echoes so he continues with the jack. Which one of dummy's trumps do you ruff with?"

We looked the hand over carefully. It was a close choice. The king would be the winning play if East held singleton queen or queen-small; the 10 play right if West held either of those holdings. It was far more likely if hearts broke 3-1 for East to be long so we replied,

"The 10 spot is the percentage play."

He said, "I figured that out also. It wasn't much better than the king play. Then I thought about my regular bad luck and decided to go against the percentage. I played dummy's king; led low; finessed and made my contract."

Ask the Jacobys

A Minnesota reader asks, "If my opponents bid a grand slam can I bid eight and play the hand there? Doubled, of course!"

The answer is that the laws of contract bridge specifically prohibit such a bid. There are various penalties, but the one really serious one that would require a player who has bid eight hearts over seven spades to bid seven notrump has been left out on the theory that it would be cruel and inhuman punishment.

Hustle New Dance, It's Contact Sport

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Last year it was the bump. This year the hustle is the craze.

Now a Western Ontario teacher has brought here the dance step that started in Spanish Harlem in New York, was taken up by the discotheque set and is sweeping North American ballrooms.

What makes the hustle different is not its newness, but the fact it's the first modern "contact dance" to come along in more than 20 years.

It may sound the death knell for the do-your-own-thing type of dance that began in the 1950s with the mambo and continued through such crazes as the twist, boogaloo, hitch-hiker and chicken in which partners virtually ignored one another.

"The hustle has to be learned, not absorbed through osmosis," said Ann Suetta who has just returned after five weeks in New York studying dance.

There are eight movements in the hustle and these, plus the arm positions, means it takes more than just close observation to get it down pat.

Mrs. Suetta said she is excited by "this new-rage dance" that had instructors from North and South America crowding the floors at the Roosevelt and Statler-Hilton hotels in New York.

"It's a great fun dance," she said and she is hoping to introduce it to this area in her dance and baton-twirling school.

But it is definitely "a couple's dance" and she expects prospective students to bring partners.

Previously, Mrs. Suetta's adult classes were for women only.

"It's not very fast," she said, "so it's good for any age. Once the basic steps are mastered, the rest comes easily."

Although special music has been composed for the dance, she said it can be danced to any two-four or four-four rhythm.

The couple start out facing each other, holding opposite hands. The body progresses through various movements, such as a cross-hands turn, two-hand back-away, pretzel turn and side fallaway.

And, of course, there's the hustle bump which can be knee, hip, shoulder or double bumps.

"They're different because the couple hold hands throughout," Mrs. Suetta said.

This was Mrs. Suetta's seventh year studying dance in New York. This year, programs were under the aegis of the Dance Educators of America, Dance Masters of America and the Professional Dance Teachers Association. Most of the 10 Canadians present were from Montreal.

Classes were held both in the performing arts and in ballroom dancing. Mrs. Suetta sat for examinations in the art after courses ranging from anatomy through pre-tap dance to music theory.

U.N. Asks Guarantee For Canada Meeting

OTTAWA (CP) — Even the United Nations felt obliged to ask last week whether its congress on housing and urban life would go on as scheduled in Vancouver next spring.

After all, Canada had asked for postponement of a United Nations crime congress in Toronto, saying that it might split the country on the Middle East issue because Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) delegates were eligible to attend as UN observers.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen said that the crime congress could not be held successfully anywhere this year. But the United Nations promptly rescheduled it for Geneva later in September and Canada will attend.

Meanwhile, the fate of that congress left the one on housing in some doubt.

Last week United Nations organizers asked in effect whether the PLO, which has official observer status, would be welcome in Vancouver. Mr. MacEachen promptly replied that Canada would "accept the normal rules that apply to United Nations conferences," meaning that anyone with UN status could attend.

"It seems inconsistent," says Sidney Harris of Toronto, president of the Canadian Jewish Congress. He added in a telephone interview Thursday that the congress intends to object "to the presence of any known terrorists in Canada"—an objection successfully directed against PLO attendance in Toronto.

"If everything remains the same next May as it is now, my recommendation will be that we take the same position on the Vancouver congress," he said.

But everything won't be the same. For one thing, the PLO won't threaten to become an issue in the Ontario election campaign as it did this summer, when federal Liberals from Toronto exerted strong pressure on the cabinet to delay the crime congress.

Plastics May Cause Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) plans to prohibit the use of a common plastic in bottles, boxes and other rigid food containers because it says the product might cause cancer.

The proposed ban would be on polyvinyl chloride, the second most common production plastic.

Plyvinyl chloride is a solid derivative of vinyl chloride gas. The gaseous form is widely acknowledged as a cancer agent, and its use is already under strict government regulation.

The FDA cited Thursday "evidence that residues of vinyl chloride may migrate into food from the semi-rigid, rigid and generally heavier VC (vinyl chloride) plastics," the most widespread of which is polyvinyl chloride.

The industry denied that there is a possibiliy of polyvinyl chloride causing cancer.

"The actual possibility ... is nil," a spokesman said. The Society of the Plastics Industry Inc. also said it will ask the FDA for a full hearing on its proposed rules governing polyvinyl chloride food packaging materials.

Ralph Harding Jr. of New York City, president of the plastics society, said through a spokesman that the federal agency "has acted with undue panic in regard to that possibility."

WHY MEN WON'T SEEK HELP

Many men won't admit they have a problem. They're trapped — in jobs they don't like, or in cold, empty marriages, losing contact with their children. Most men are too proud of their masculinity to admit failure. But in expecting men to always be strong, and never show the weaknesses that all of us possess, we put a terrible burden on them. Learn how you can lessen that burden — and help someone who is endangering his emotional and mental health. Read WHY MEN WON'T SEEK HELP. 2,000 Timor Residents Die in Civil War

DARWIN, Australia (AP) — An Australian refugee from Timor estimates that about 2,000 of the Portuguese colony's 600,000 people have died in the civil war between liberation movements fighting for control of the island territory.

Randall Riseley, an aircraft engineer who was brought to Darwin by an Australian Air Force transport, said the Timorese Democratic Union (UDT) holds about 80 per cent of the island, but the rival Revolutionary Front for Independent East Timor (Fretilin) is strongest in the capital, Dili.

"I've seen women and children shot," said Riseley. "I've seen old men being pushed on to fires. You've got people on one side of a street fighting people half a block away and those in the middle getting killed and having mortars dropped on them."

The Macao freighter MacDili arrived today with 700 more refugees, most of them native Timorese. The ship's British captain, Frederick Dagger, told a similar story.

He said that while his small, 550-ton freighter was loading in Dili, he saw a mortar round kill three brothers aged 5, 7 and 9. He said that about 15 other mortar shells and fragmentation grenades went off on the packed wharves, and a Portuguese official told him dozens of children were killed.

Dagger said hundreds of refugees had to be packed in the ship's hold for the two-day voyage, food ran out 20 hours before arrival in Darwin, and there was scarcely enough water.

Computer Sharing May Be Profitable

MONTREAL (CP) — The sale of Air Canada's computer expertise "could become an interesting source of revenue," says Pierre Jeanniot, vice-president of computer and systems services.

Additional revenues, no matter how small, cannot be overlooked these days when most airlines, including Air Canada, operate in the red.

Mr. Jeanniot estimated there are about 40 medium-sized airlines around the world that are potential Air Canada customers.

Juneau Replaces Pelletier, Ottawa's Three Wise Men Disband

OTTAWA (CP) — A new communications minister—Pierre Juneau—was sworn in Friday as Prime Minister Trudeau returned from a northern holiday to preside at the breakup of "the three wise men," who for 10-years had exerted a major influence on federal politics.

A few hours after Mr. Trudeau saw Gerard Pelletier vacate the communications ministry to become ambassador to France, the prime minister was at an Ottawa hospital discussing a possible resignation with the third member of that group, Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

While all the attention was being focussed on the cabinet appointment of Mr. Juneau, head of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission since 1968, it was clear that the prime minister was facing one of his most historic days since entering Parliament in 1965.

He, Mr. Pelletier and Mr. Marchand—all three are 56—had entered federal politics together after a long and intense association. They had maintained that closeness in Parliament, and in cabinet.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Marchand, pale and shaky, pleaded guilty in provincial court to a criminal charge of leaving the scene of an automobile accident. He was fined $200 and barred from driving for one year.

During the evening hospital meeting, Mr. Marchand offered to resign because of the court conviction, but Mr. Trudeau refused.

However, the prime minister said that because of Mr. Marchand's persistant illness—he has been ill and out of hospital for several months—his future in the cabinet would be discussed between the two over the next two weeks.

as the new ambassador to Paris was arranged by Mr. Trudeau before he went north on vacation last weekend.

Mr. Pettetier's appointment "To me it is kind of a blow," the prime minister said about the resignation of Mr. Pelletier. "But I am happy he will continue to serve his country in another capacity."

Meanwhile, the transport minister has said that despite his illness—hospital officials say he is being treated for high blood pressure—he would go ahead with a meeting today with air traffic controllers who had threatened to strike.

Mr. Juneau—a long-time friend of Mr. Trudeau—becomes the first non-parliamentarian to enter a cabinet since John Diefenbaker appointed Sydney Smith to his cabinet in 1957.

Mr. Juneau will contest Mr. Pelletier's vacated Montreal-Hochelaga seat in an Oct. 14 byelection.

On the same date, another byelection will be held in Restigouche, following the earlier resignation of former public works minister Jean-Eudes Dube.

One of the most immediate problems facing Mr. Juneau., 52, is the dispute with the provinces over cablevision rights. The feud, simmering for months, recently reached crisis proportions when Quebec began issuing licences in defiance of the federal government.

Mr. Trudeau said Mr. Juneau, who since 1949 had worked through the National Film Board and the old Board of Broadcast Governors before becoming head of the CRTC in 1968, 'has proved his loyalty to the federal government and he is a Quebecker with very ancient and deep roots."

Former broadcaster Harry Boyle takes over as acting CRTC chief.

Mr. Pelletier said that when he entered federal politics, after a noted journalism career in Montreal, it was for a 10-year period, ""although it could have been nine or 11."

Sight-Seeing Raft Kills 3 Tourists

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Three persons were killed and more than 20 injured Friday when a raft being tested for thrill rides on the turbulent river below Niagara Falls pitched its 20 passengers into a foaming stretch of the Niagara Gorge near the treacherous Whirlpool Rapids.

Killed were Julia Martinez, 30, and David D. Ross, 37, both of Toronto, and Anthony John Sawczyk, 24, of, Niagara Falls N.Y.

Canadian and U.S. helicopter crews began plucking bodies and survivors from the river about 20 minutes after a police officer on shore radioed for help as he watched the 37-foot air-filled raft flip over on a wave.

The Toronto-owned raft on its 11th exerimental trip preparatory to going into commercial service on the lower Niagara River next year, was two miles along a five-mile route from the foot of the U.S. falls to Lewiston, N.Y., when the accident occurred.

Dave Kewley, a reporter for The Review, who was aboard the raft, said it was flipped over by a wave "that must have been 30 feet high."

The nylon and rubber raft, designed and made in France for a group of Toronto businessmen who sponsored the ride, was to be part of a commercial fleet. The craft feature one-inch safety ropes to which passengers could cling to stay aboard.

Mr. Kewley said he clung to one of the ropes for about 10 seconds after the raft capsized, hoping it would right itself, then realized he was trapped under the craft and had to swim to the surface.

The raft was equipped with two outriggers to prevent it from turning over on to its side but it "went into a trough, stood on its end and flipped over on its back," Mr. Kewley said.

A spokesman for the Niagara Frontier state park commission in Niagara Falls, N.Y., said later that "considering it happened where it did, with so many people involved, it was a miracle they were able to save so many of them."

Much of the rescue work was carried out by Ontario provincial police helicopters, because coast guard boats could not navigate the rapids, but sightseeing helicopters hovered in the area as survivors were lifted from the water and transferred to ambulances in a nearby park.

One survivor, Marta DeSorcy, 22, employed by Niagara River Trips Inc., operators of the tour, said:

"Everything was fine and it was fun at first. Then we hit the rapids . . . the front end just went straight up and there were people flying over my head."

She said a lifejacket and prior instructions from the craft's pilots helped to save her life.

The pilots, Jerry Morton, 25, of Colorado, and Dick Overgaard, 26, of Arizona had told passengers earlier to protect themselves from rocks by keeping their feet out in front of them if they happened to be thrown from the raft.

Portugal Gets New Premier

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — A 56-year-old Angolan-born admiral took over today as Portugal's new prime minister following a cabinet reshuffle that ended at least temporarily the military regime's five-week-old political crisis.

The new premier, Vice Admiral Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo, replaces Gen. Vasco Goncalves, whose pro-Communist policies had thrust Portugal to the brink of civil war.

In a compromise hammered out by the military leadership in three days of virtually non-stop secret negotiations, Goncalves moved slightly higher in power if not in prestige to become chief of staff of the armed forces. The post was formerly held by President Francisco da Costa Gomes, the main architect of the compromise.

It remained to be seen whether the rebellious anti-Communist officers who campaigned for Goncalves' ouster would recognize his authority as chief of staff. They include such men as security chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho, who ordered his men to refuse Goncalves access to their barracks and installations.

Peru Undergoes Bloodless Coup

LIMA (AP) — Peru was calm today after a bloodless "palace coup" by army commanders who placed Gen. Francisco Morales Bermudez at the helm of the socialist-oriented military regime.

Only a few riot troops were placed around important government buildings and there were no reports of large troop movements, violence or opposition to the new regime.

Veteran observers predicted the new leftist rulers would continue the mixture of state socialism and capitalism adopted by ousted president Juan Velasco Alvarado, the leader of the seven-year Peruvian "revolutionary" government who had been criticized recently for his crackdown on the opposition and the press.

National radio said the communique announcing the coup said the revolt was to eliminate "personality cults and detours that our insitutions had suf- Bermudez, 53, immediately fered."

gained support from Peru's army, air force, navy, police and civil guard units. He was 600 miles south in Tacna where the coup had been planned but flew to Lima late Friday and entered the presidential office building at dusk without fanfare.

He had been named to the triple post of prime minister, army chief of staff and defence minister by Velasco in February after serving twice as economy minister. Observers speculated at the time that Velasco had personally picked him as his eventual successor. Velasco has been suffering severe circulatory problems since February: his right leg was amputated in 1973.

Communiques issued by radio and television to a startled but calm population said the new president and commanders would follow the "guidelines" set over the past years.

Hours later, Velasco, 65, emerged to a crowd of several hundred and said "Long live the revolution," before speeding off to his private residence east of here in the Andes Mountains.

Intelligencer Home Delivery 90 Cents

With costs continuing to increase in all areas of publication, in addition to recent increases in the price of newsprint, The Intelligencer has found it necessary to establish a new carrier home delivery price.

Effective Monday, Sept. 1, the carrier home delivered price will be increased to 90 cents per week.

The single copy and newsstand price will remain the same.

Your Intelligencer carrier boy will benefit from this increase.

Air Controllers Will Vote Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Air traffic controllers were to decide today whether they will obey a Federal Court injunction and call off a strike they have planned for 3:30 a.m. Sunday.

A walkout by the 2,200 controllers would virtually halt commercial air travel in the country and could disrupt holiday-weekend plans of thousands of Canadians.

Jim Livingston, president of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, said Friday a decision whether to abide by the court order forbidding a strike will be made after talks today with Transport Minister Jean Marchand and union directors.

The dispute is over a government plan to give some control duties to the controllers' assistants, who are represented by another union.

Mr. Livingston said the controllers fear that there could be a safety hazard to the public if the assistants perform the duties.

The union plans a news conference this afternoon to reveal its plans.

The injunction was awarded government officials Friday by Mr. Justice A. Alex Cattanach after Mr. Marchand promised tough legal steps to prevent a strike.

The injunction forbids the union executive from counselling a strike and prohibits union members from participating in a walkout.

If the order is not obeyed, the union leaders could face contempt of court charges, including stiff fines and possibly jail terms.

The government also plans Monday to take action under the Public Service Staff Relations Act against the union executive for calling the strike.

The act allows maximum penalties of up to $300 for union officers and $100 for members who participate in illegal strikes.

Picton Man Dies in Car Accident

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

MOUNTAIN VIEW — A Picton man was killed instantly Friday afternoon and three others taken to hospital following a two-car collision on Highway 14 about one quarter mile north of Mountain View Cheese Factory.

Dead is James Branscombe, 21, of Union St., passenger in a car driven by Kevin Marchington, 19, of Georgetown.

Injured were driver of second car, Ronald Clarke of Disraela St., Picton and his passenger Francis McConnell, 20, of RR 9 Picton, who were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital and Kevin Marchington who was admitted to hospital with unspecified injuries.

Picton OPP said the car collided almost head-on as the Marchington vehicle speeded out of control.

Nixon Plans Visit To Area Wednesday

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon will visit Quinte riding next Wednesday, Lyn Harrington, campaign manager for Quinte Liberal candidate Hugh O'Neil, announced Friday.

Mr. Nixon's visit will coincide with a previously announced visit by Ontario Premier William Davis. Their itineraries show they will not likely cross paths.

Mr. Harrington said Mr. Nixon's flight will arrive at CFB base Trenton at 11:15 a.m. and 15 minutes later, he will mainstreet in downtown Trenton and visit the Liberal committee room there at 69 West Dundas St.

He said Mr. Nixon will visit Liberal headquarters in Belleville at 257 North Front St. at noon when a press conference will be held.

Son's Car Implicated

DETROIT (AP) — A Detroit radio station says the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) believes a car belonging to the son of a reputed Mafia figure was used to "facilitate the abduction" of former Teamsters President James Hoffa.

Radio station WJR says it obtained its information from FBI documents that relate to the Hoffa case.

The FBI would not comment on the report. It has not said officially that it regards Hoffa's disappearance as an abduction.

The radio station says Hoffa's foster son, Charles (Chuckie) O'Brien, used the car belonging to the son of Anthony (Tony Jack) Giacalone.

MacDonald Sees Support for Two Tiers

PICTON — Liberal candidate for the Prince Edward Lennox riding in the upcoming provincial elections, Keith MacDonald Friday morning officiated at the opening of his Picton committee rooms.

In a brief ribbon-cutting ceremony the 48-year-old Hallowell reeve told supporters he has been campaigning door-to-door in the riding and has spoken with constituents in Amherstview, Napanee and Ameliasburg.

Reeve MacDonald said he is following " an unbelievable schedule" that stresses personal contact with voters in the Prince Edward-Lennox riding.

"Many of the people in Ameliasburg told me this is the first time a provincial candidate has called on them," he noted.

He observed that county government was "a very hot issue" among Amelasburg township residents.

The candidates reported that few persons support a single tier system of government for Prince Edward. The majority has indicated approval for the present two-tier system.

Reeve MacDonald, who is the chairman of Prince Edward County council's county government committee, said Ameliasburg residents feel that a one-tier system would make them remote from their representatives.

The reeve added that he intends to support the people's choice when county council presents its new proposal for county government.

He emphasized that the new report, scheduled for release this fall, is not "pro or con". Instead, it is a compilation of facts and figures concerning county government and is intended primarily for information purposes.

Reeve MacDonald said he does not feel, as an elected Prince Edward County representative, he can stop the study of county government.

"The people wanted the study. Its for the good of the people," he added.

He said that there "definitely" will be public meetings concerning the findings of the county government committee as this is the only way to learn the true feelings of Prince Edward residents.

In his nomination address reeve MacDonald pledged he would support wishes of the public concerning county government.

Miss Gold Cup Crowned In Picton Pageant

PICTON — The Miss Gold Cup crown was captured Friday night by 19-year-old Beverley Brough of Picton in a beauty pageant sponsored by the Kinette Club here.

Miss Brough, a pharmaceutical assistant with Tessel's Drug Store, was crowned by 1974 beauty queen Joanne Tammel of Picton.

Runner-up for the Miss Gold Cup title was Bonnie Johnston, 20, of Bloomfield who is a model.

Other contestants in the pageant held at the Elks' Hall were Sharon Clegg, 22, a residential counsellor at Prince Edward Heights, Cindy Gorsline, 18, of RR 2, Picton a key punch operator, Susan Fremr, 18, RR 2 Picton a student and Debbie Growe 18, a Picton sale clerk.

Each girl modelled an outfit of her choice, a swim suit and an evening gown.

The contestants were required to give impromptu answers to questions drawn at random from a hat.

Judges for the 1975 pageant were Picton Mayor Donald King, Marion Hand, Mrs. Sue Fraser and Gary Campbell.

Master of ceremonies was Picton reeve Larry Richardson.

In addition to her crown and title Miss Brough won a $100 award from Molson's Brewery and a wide variety of gifts from Prince Edward merchants.

JOHN R. BUSH

R. DOUGLAS RUSHNELL

QUESTION?

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE FOR PUTTING THE FUNERAL NOTICES IN THE PAPER?

ANSWER!

This again is another service performed by your funeral director when he meets with the family to discuss funeral arrangements. Once the family has determined the time and place of service and provided the funeral director with all the necessary family information he then in turn must varify the time of service with the clergyman before having the completed notice inserted in your local paper.

A death notice is meant to be inserted in the newspaper prior to the service not after the funeral has been held. As this can be misleading. The purpose of a death notice is to inform friends of the time and place the service is to be conducted not when and where it was held.

Farm and District

Fort Produces Own Food

THUNDER BAY, Ont. (CP) — In the early 1800s, Fort William was a trading outpost for the North West Co. fur-trading empire that had to provide for its inhabitants through cold and snowbound winters.

This summer, at the $10-million reconstruction of the old fort, life has been getting back to the self-supporting ways of those earlier years.

A dairy, farmers' cottages and a farm have been opened at the site, and fort workers have been producing milk, eggs, butter, vegetables and bread.

Rich, thick batches of stew and that old French-Canadian belly-warmer pea soup simmer away in large pots before the eyes of visitors.

Unlike the original fort, the re-created one rents its animals from local farmers during the summer months when the site is open to the public. However, they are put to good use during those months.

The farm's three milking cows, for example, provide the dairy with cream, which is churned into butter and used on home-made whole-wheat bread, one of the fastest-moving items in the fort.

Mike Gauvreau, a 19-year-old Laurentian University student, is the fort's baker.

He chops wood for the fire in his clay oven, heats it up for as long as five hours and begins the actual task of baking only when the oven reaches a temperature of 350 to 400 degrees—determined by tossing a handful of flour inside.

"If the flour burns, it's just too hot," he explains. "If it turns a nice brown, it's just right."

The original fort was the scene of a great rendezvous every year from its inception in 1807 to 1821, when the North West Co. was absorbed by Hudson's Bay Co.

Canoes from Montreal and the interior would bring 2,000 employees to the fort each July, and furs from the west were exchanged for finished goods from the east.

In the mercantile tradition, the idea was not for the fort to be self-sufficient. However, Ken Heald, supervisor of barns at the re-created fort, says self-sufficiency in foodstuffs probably was the result of the fort's distance from supplies.

The original farm had 200 acres of farm land, 50 to 70 sheep, about 10 pigs, more than 20 milk cows, three teams of work horses, two teams of oxen and countless chickens.

Blackbirds Headache For Trenton Farmer

TORONTO (CP) — A farmer from Trenton, 100 miles east of here, says a last-minute decision by the Ontario environment ministry has left his cornfields at the mercy of blackbirds which have already damaged 10 per cent of the crop.

Owen Carr said Friday he was counting on a spraying program of a chemical called Avitrol toprotect his 700 acres of corn this year but Environment Minister William Newman refused final approval just before the spraying was to begin.

Avitrol attacks the nervous system of the birds, causing them to screech and flop around in distress, alarming the rest of the flock. The majority of those affected by the chemical recover but some die.

Environment Minister Newman said be learned of the experiment in late July and "realized what it was and got all the facts as quickly as possible ..... after reading how the birds die and the cruelty of it all, I made up my mind not to approve it."

Mr. Newman said he was sympathetic to the farmers' problem, "since I used to grow corn myself," but said there are other options, such as the amplified distress calls or "organized shoots by rod and gun clubs."

Mr. Carr said that he has been unable to get any electronic screechers, which broadcast distress calls that frighten the crows, on short notice.

The spraying at Mr. Carr's farm was to have been part of a proposed 7,000-acre experiment in Ontario by Chipmen Chemicals Ltd.

Ronald Coston, in charge of the program at Chipman, said the provincial government gave tentative approval for the experiment and told Chipman to "go ahead and get the customers lined up."

Mr. Newman said it was quite possible some local officials in the ministry might have indicated the experiment would be approved, "but they should have known it had to have final approval."

Fall Best Time To Plant Many Bulbs

By ROSS HAWTHORNE
Staff Reporter

"Bulbs" is a term I'm sure everyone is used to when you plant those round-shaped roots that end up growing plants such as dahlias, daffodils and tulips.

Now it may be of some interest to know that some are true bulbs, but others are tubers (begonias), corms (gladioli), or rhyzomes (Cannas). And that some are winter hardy and some are not.

A bulb can be defined as a packaged plant in a dormant state, awaiting the proper climatic conditions to continue its life cycle.

If you ever want proof that the total plant is contained in the bulb, take a sharp knife and split a fat, bursting hyacinth bulb from top to bottom. And you'll be surprised at what you see. A perfectly formed, embryonic flower surrounded by layers of nourishing tissue.

You could also describe a bulb as a tuberous root. Or an underground food storage compartment. Because if you apply the general term "bulb", you'll find they are among our most popular food stuffs. Such as onions, potatoes and radishes. And there are some bulbs that you would not suspect as "being deadly poisonous, but they are, such as: the autumn crocus or the shy, retiring lily of the valley.

Now the flowering bulbs we are primarily interested in, for gardening purposes, could be roughly divided into two categories: those you put in and those you take out of the ground in the fall.

Today we'll stick to the ones that will soon be for sale: the ones you plant in the fall: the tulips, daffodils, paper whites, hyacinths, snowdrops, crocus and the glorius family of lilies.

One of the nice things about spring flowering bulbs; they can be planted almost anywhere in the garden. They don't demand full sun and, in fact, some shade will mean longer-lasting flowers and deeper hues.

The better drained the soil, the better your crop of flowers will be. Bulbs don't like to sit in water; so the addition of plenty of peat moss, sand or vermiculite dug in to a depth of six to eight inches will be a definite asset.

Now, planting depth is important. The minor bulbs, such as snowdrop or crocus should be planted at a depth of about two inches. Tulips around four inches and hyacinths and daffodils from four to six inches. Now those distances are approximate, but I'm sure wherever you buy your bulbs, will have planting charts available.

A good friable soil is a must if your bulbs are to put out to their fullest next spring. Dig in plenty of peat moss and-or vermiculite to a dept of at least six inches along with a fertilizer with a higher middle and moderately high last number onf the container. Then after you think you're all finished, dig it in again and rake smooth, removing all sticks and stones and debris.

Now the sooner you plant spring flowering bulbs the better. Because they've got a good deal of growing to do this fall. All underground and invisible to you.

Each bulb develops a large root structure that sets it solidly in place. In fact, some bulbs have two root strucutres: one for anchoring and the other to pull the bulb to the proper growing depth.

And this fall, they will send up leaves just to, and not above, the soil surface, as a sort of a sensor that will notify the bulb next spring, when it's time to do its thing.

Fair Prices Questionable

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — In September it's "Heigh Ho, come to Prince Edward County fair" where inflation already is waiting at the main gates of Picton fairgrounds.

This year price of admission for adults is $2 with children under 12 admitted free. Students with cards will pay $1.50 to see the annual fall fair.

Fairboard directors swiftly point out that the $2 ticket includes free parking in a field hear the fairgrounds and a seat on the grandstand at no extra charge.

It's of special benefit to large families when children under 12 are admitted free with their parents who must pay $2 each at the gates.

Fairboard director Philip Dodds says that in former years admission for adults was $1.50 at the gates with an extra dollar charged for a grandstand seat for special performances.

The new 1975 admission prices reportedly are planned to result in actual savings for families attending the fall fair and its grandstand show.

Although the county fair each year books an excellent evening entertainment group such as the Doc Williams Show, The Carleton Show Band of The Family Brown, there are many persons who attend only to watch the horse shows or to smell the flowers.

Often parents bring their youngsters to the mid-way with no plans to take in the grandstand show.

For all of these people the $2 gate charge offers little in the way of side benefits. Its a savings only for fair visitors who expect to go to the grandstand for the Saturday night program of guest stars.

The Prince Edward County fair annually boasts an outstanding display of flowers, handicrafts, commercial exhibits and livestock entries. Visitors may want to attend daily to fully enjoy all of the featured attractions without spending any time on the grandstand. To do this, an adult would pay $2 per day or a total of $6 during the three-day fair. That makes it an expensive field trip to the showcase of Prince Edward.

A class B fair since 19[illegible], the Prince Edward County fall fair has steadily introduced new exhibits and attractions to make it a family entertainment and education centre.

To ensure that as many Quinte area residents as possible enjoy these displays, it is important to offer admission prices compatible with most family budgets.

The new rates may lead to a marginal savings for some families but for others the $2 tickets may be considered too expensive.

Under the old admission prices fair visitors were allowed a choice in spending extra money for a grandstand seat. Now they must pay whether or not they wish to see the featured performers.

Fairboard directors and other agricultural society members deserve congratulations for Prince Edward's colorful fall fairs but, to promote attendance, admission fees should be separate from grandstand admission charges. This year's package deal is no bargain.

Vast Majority of Canadians Unaware of Bilingualism Cost Factors

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — So a great many of you out there beyond the horizon of the National Capital don't care about bilingualism.

Not enough to get excited about it, anyway.

You figure that if there is a problem, it's pretty well confined to the Capital and its army of public servants . . . and who worries about them?

Well, perhaps in a very narrow sense you may be right.

It was not likely — until now — to have any direct bearing on you.

Oh sure, if your son or daughter aspires to climbing the federal public service ladder to one of those hundreds of fat jobs on the top rungs paying a comfortable $35,000 to $66,000, they'll need to be bilingual.

And for some of those cushy spots — 20 per cent of them in Finance, Industry, Trade and Commerce, and in the Treasury Board — they won't need English at all. Just French for the new Francophone - only sections being set up in every department.

So bilingualism — unless you're involved in the federal government operations in the Capital, in the Acadian sections of the Maritimes and the little French enclaves in Manitoba — is not going to bother you.

You calculated that you were insulated from it all.

And so you were, except that it was costing you — well, even Treasury Board is not prepared to say what the total price in taxes runs.

The Board doesn't say, some suspect, because even it, the all-knowing agency in matters of government costs, isn't sure.

There are so many cost factors . . . the language schools . . . the doubling up of staff . . . the duplication in French and English jobs . . . the translation services . . . the printing of everything in two languages . . . the boards and commissions on language . . . and even, out there, French and English on every package of just about any commodity.

But that was about as close as it came to touching you . . . cost in taxes . . . and a condition of employment if any of your family joined the federal payroll.

True, Prime Minister Trudeau and the "Montreal Mafia" of the cabinet parachuted more and more Quebeckers into High Places in the public service and the crown corporations.

But English, because it is in the overwhelming majority, and since there is only one bilingual district — the National Capital itself — seemed secure.

Wait though.

Now there could be coming about what must be regarded as "The Big Bilingual District in the Sky."

Bilingualism imposed, as it were, from the top.

Aircraft and control towers at five Quebec airports have been operating bilingually in a continuing experiment that has both pilots and controllers in an uproar.

Because English is the international language of air traffic, they warn that use of French at the Quebec airports is a clear and present peril to public safety.

They're talking about a one-day strike in protest and Transport Minister Marchand says he'll take the issue to cabinet.

They threaten that their strike could continue indefinitely if a report, now in front of Mr. Marchand favoring extension of the bilingual "experiment" beyond Quebec, is accepted.

And Mr. Marchand is on record as saying he won't promise that it won't be.

Here's how it reads on Hansard — and there's been no correction or even explanation from Mr. Marchand.

Gordon Towers, Conservative MP for Red Deer: "In view of a statement made by the Canadian Airline Pilots Association (supported by the International Airline Pilots and the Air Controllers) on behalf of major Canadian aviation associations to the effect that the very concept of bilingual air traffic services should be rejected because of the inherent degradation of safety standards due to the possibility of language misunderstanding, will the minister assure Parliament that the government will not take unilateral action which would jeopardize complete and rapid comprehension of communications by all pilots so as to ensure passenger safety?"

Jean Marchand: "No."

Which means, on its face value: bilingualism first; safety second.

People Lack Party

There's an election coming up in Ontario.

It's a three-party race.

But many people won't vote. Some will be too lazy. Some will be too stupid. But many will not vote because they have no party to vote for, no party whose policies are not the antithesis of the non-voter's most cherished beliefs.

That must mean that the three parties, Progressive Conservative, Liberal and NDP — yes, and even the Communists who are running several candidates — have one thing in common.

They have — a belief in progress.

With the Conservatives, this long-standing association with belief is founded in the party's long-standing association with the financial establishment. Wealth not only begets more wealth but, in this age at least, consciously chooses accumulation of wealth as its goal. More wealth requires more production and more production means growth.

As for the Liberals, they are the arch-priests of improvement, not only in things material but also in things spiritual. They believe that not only man's world but man himself can be improved.

So do the socialists, and especially the Marxists. Not the capitalist's preoccupation with the production of wealth but the existing division of the toils and the spoils is what they quarrel with. Stephen Lewis may talk about our disappearing agricultural land, but he also talks about providing more houses and more jobs. He believes in progress.

But today there are a growing number of young people who don't believe in progress. Increased production means, for them, a faster depletion of the world's limited natural resources. A growing city means a more crowded city. Increased consumption becomes increased pollution. They are satisfied with life as it is or, if not satisfied, are convinced that it cannot be improved.

And they have no party to vote for. But that will almost certainly be changed. And their party may prove to be the party of the future majority.

Act to Blame for Secrecy

It appeared during Monday's special city council meeting that the aldermen were resorting to unethical means when they went behind closed doors to vote among themselves to select a new mayor.

Locked in the secure confines of its committee room, council agreed upon an appointment procedure and voted through three ballots before choosing Ald. Ben Corke as Robin Jeffrey's replacement.

Council's authority to shroud the selection with secrecy is spelled out in the municipal act.

Chapter 284, section 197, sub-section two states that during open council meetings, "no vote shall be taken by ballot or by any other method of secret voting and every vote so taken is of no effect."

Speaking for council, Mayor Corke has said if the appointment procedure was undertaken in public, then each alderman would have had to openly show who he was voting for during the balloting.

Ideally, as elected officials, city aldermen should have the courage of their own convictions, show the public their actions and also be answerable for those actions.

But their uneasiness over possible open resentment during balloting can be sympathized with and perhaps the Municipal Act is to blame.

The act should be amended to make it possible for municipal councils to appoint persons to elected posts by secret ballot in open meetings if there is more than one nomination.

Be Wary of Home Grants

The Ontario Home Buyers Grant, despite its obvious political timing, is achieving its goal and helping hundreds of new home buyers make ends meet.

But unfortunately some Belleville realtors say the initial $1,000 grant presents an unrealistic temptation to young people unfamiliar with the costs of buying a home.

The grant, which became available April 8 and lasts through to Dec. 31, 1975, gives first-time home buyers $1,000 upon occupancy and $250 for the following two years. In order to obtain the additional $500 the applicant must reside in the house for 24 months.

Many young people, particularly young married couples, view the grant as an automatic foot into a new or old home without really understanding the extra costs involved in purchasing a home.

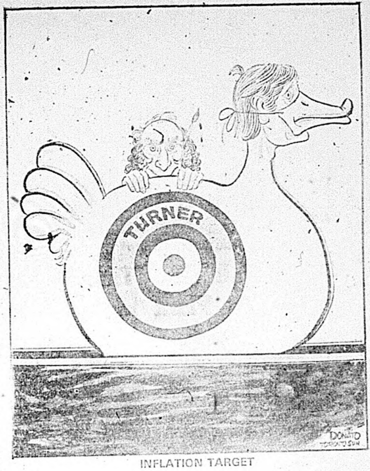
Administered under the ministry of revenue, government officials see the grant as a supplement to an existing downpayment. The grant, which comes several months after the occupancy date can't be used as a downpayment.

The ministry of revenue expects to approve about 55,000 grants by the end of the year. By mid-August the ministry had approved 28,290 applications. It allocated about $55 million towards the grant program.

In actual fact the grant simply helps pay for the lawyer's fees, necessary appliances and other costs associated with buying a house. The two following grants of $250 each help pay the taxes.

In most cases the additional costs are beyond $1,000 and the grant can't even be used to help with a second mortgage. However, the grant is a welcome relief for people who have used all of their available funds for a downpayment.

The grant is not enough to provide the sole motivation for buying a house and both realtors and prospective buyers should be aware of this fact.



INFLATION TARGET

Many Females Employed This Summer as Outside Workers

The latest bulletin from the office of the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources at Kemptville contains an observation which many of us have probably made in recent years: "If you think a woman's place is behind a typewriter, hang up your hardhat."

Some women like working outside. Proof of that is the fact 100 high school and university girls are working as manual laborers for the ministry this summer in Eastern Ontario. Furthermore, they are proving they can handle the working end of a pick, shovel, axe or chain saw with the best of boys.

The girls are among 400 working in resource development in this part of the province. It's part of Experience 75, Ontario's $10 million student summer work program which provides jobs for 7,500 students. Under a variety of names, the program has been in operation for the past five years.

Ministry officials in Kemptville note that although the girls may not possess the "bullish strength" of their male counterparts they consider [illegible] work at a steadier pace and do a considerably more thorough job.

In Larose Forest, for instance, half a dozen girls worked with boys in building a large picnic shelter, clearing brush, building a log footbridge and pruning trees.

"They got right into it — moving pulpwood, getting dirty — they really seemed to love it," said Pierre Chartrand, supervisor of the Larose projects.

At the Kemptville Nursery, Wright was not surprised at the ability of girls to cope with manual labor. "We've had women working here every spring planting trees since 1949, and most of the time their productivity is better . . . the men's work will start to fall off a bit, but the women will stick right at it."

Another point we can make is that after talking to a couple of girls who helped plant trees in the area this spring, we were convinced they thoroughly enjoyed the out-of-doors.

We also came across another example of girls doing manual work recently in Prescott. They were hired by the town for a few weeks during the vacation and were out painting traffic signs, doing odd jobs and even repairing a roof.

Work for Elderly Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Nothing but praise for the Elderly and Youth Benefit for pensioners, the result of five young people who came to your homes, and would do anything, headed by Dan Hexford.

I regret very much that this service has come to an end. I would like to see such an outstanding service continue all year, as it means so much to pensioners, and the best part is, it is free.

I am surprised more people have not mentioned this special service.

There are not too many young people who would work as these young people. I surely appreciated the help very much.

Jennifer Jaynes, Janice Everard, Rob Graham, Gary McNamara and Dan Hexford all are to be commended on the very special service they have rendered and it was hard work.

Tories Withstood Nine Elections

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

The Progressive Conservatives have been in power in Ontario for 32 years and in that period there have been nine general elections.

The PC's, of course, have won them all — in the majority of cases very easily.

There have been some differences in all the elections, but there have been two dominant factors in all of them, factors which we find are still present in the election which is underway in the province today.

One is that the party has always had a powerful and high-geared political machine. The second is that, since its first term in office starting in 1943 its election appeal has been mainly based on its record.

It has not had election platforms as such, particularly platforms full of promises.

Its election promises have mainly been local ones, a road here, a bridge there, a home for the elderly or a new park.

There has been the occasional bait in the form of a general new policy, such as a promise of gun control which has been made in this campaign by Premier Davis.

But for the most part, in fact almost exclusively, it has relied on muscle and the record.

The first victory, in 1943, was in a bit of a freak election.

There was a war on, of course, and the vote was held in August. The combination of war and summer-time meant that only 55 per cent of the voters turned out, as against the normal 60 - 70 per cent plus, and they came up with an unusual result, minority government.

They sent back 38 PC's, but they also returned 34 CCF'ers, the largest representation by far the CCF-NDP has ever had, then they added on 15 Liberals, two Communists and an independent. Mitch Hepburn, who had left the premiership the year before, also was a semi-independent, not sitting with the Liberal caucus.

By 1945 George Drew had solidified himself. The CCF, who were an almost entirely raw group, were not ready for an election and didn't want one. But Communist Alec MacLeod worked with Mitch, who was back heading the Liberals, and manoeuvered the defeat of the government — which was delighted. In the resulting election Drew won handily. The PC's got 68 seats, Liberals 14, CCF 8 and Communists 2.

The 1948 election was a bit more touchy. The Conservative private members didn't want it. They had only been in office for three years and some of them were still paying off bills from 1945.

But the national Conservative leadership was opening up. Drew wanted it. And he wanted to go to the convention riding on the glory of a strong provincial win.

He didn't get his big win. His majority was cut and he was defeated personally in High Park. But, of course, he did win the national convention. The result was 53 PC's, 21 CCF, 14 Liberals and 2 Communists.

The province now entered the reign of Leslie Frost, the real golden days for the PC's politically.

Frost was a curious politician. He ran every election scared — really scared. But nobody has ever racked up such majorities.

He waited for two years, building up himself and the party, until he called his first election in 1951.

Walter Thomson was the new leader of the Liberals. He had strong backing from the Toronto Star and at the start of the campaign was quite close. But not for long. The vote was a landslide, with Frost winning 79 of the 90 seats. The CCF was reduced to two members, one of the Communists (LPP) got back and the Liberals had the other 8 seats.

Then came 1955, the dullest election in modern times. There had been the Highways "scandal" in the interval but the public didn't care about it. It returned 84 Conservatives, 11 Liberals under leader Farquhar Oliver and three CCF'ers under Donald MacDonald, leading the party in its first election.

The last Frost election was in 1959. Now John Wintermeyer was leading the Liberals and he managed to boost them up to 22 seats and the CCF gained to five but still the PC's had an overwhelming majority with 71 seats.

Then John Robarts took over in 1961, and as Frost had done waited two years until calling an election in 1963.

This was probably potentially the closest shave in the whole 32 years of Tory rule. Robarts was not really well known and was considered reserved. The Liberals started the campaign within two points of the government in the polls.

But Wintermeyer was on his crime kick, he and the press kept hacking away at it and the public got fed up. Wintermeyer was just able to hold his own at 24 seats to seven (and resigned right away), the NDP made slight gains, but Robarts was returned handily with 77 seats.

And then we had the 1971 election, the first under Bill Davis, where the government won 78 seats, the Liberals 20 and the NDP 19.

Now we are in the 10th election and we are seeing the same thing as for 32 years. The main PC campaign is the government's record and the muscle of its big and highly-organized machine.

There is a bit of anti-Ottawa mixed in. This also has been present in the past, particularly in the Drew years. And Premier Davis is paying more personal attention to opposition leader Bob Nixon than has been the custom of his predecessors.

But still the main wallop of the campaign is record and muscle.

Ontario Law Hiring Model

Kitchener — Waterloo Record

Sex discrimination in hiring for jobs is a currently fashionable issue. Ten Canadian provinces and 50 American states have a variety of laws and customs dealing with the matter, but in general their purport resembles the law in Ontario. An employer is expected to pay no attention to gender when hiring or firing.

A law of this kind is fairly easy to interpret in most cases. If an employer is accused of refusing to hire a stewardess because he is a male, or of firing a policewoman, at least we can understand what the argument is all about.

What could the wisest of judges say about the firing of Carol Lynn Voyles from a job as a laboratory technician at a medical centre in California? No complaint was made about her work which she had apparently been doing satisfactorily for five years. Neither could it be said, exactly, that she was fired for being a woman.

She was fired for having become a woman. She was first hired as Charles Voyles. After years of employment as a man he (or she) had sex-change surgery and became Carol. Her employer said the change would cause distress to patients at the centre who had known her as a man and gave her her walking papers.

Now she is suing for her job back, alleging discrimination by reason of sex.

Red Bishop of Brazil Is Foe of Torturers

RECIFE, Brazil (Reuter) — Helder Camara, attacked by his enemies as Brazil's "red bishop," is determined to intensify his crusade against poverty, torture and violation of human rights despite harassment from the country's authoritarian military regime.

The Roman Catholic prelate, a long-time candidate for the Nobel Peace Prize, said in a recent interview that the lot of the people in Brazil's poverty-stricken northeast has worsened to a startling degree.

He called for the replacement of higher war colleges and other military institutions by a "higher college for peace" to better the lot of the poor and the world at large.

"We must replace the old adage, 'If you want peace prepare for war,' by a new slogan," he said. "It must be, 'If you want peace, prepare for peace.'"

A frail little man of 66, Archbishop Helder wears the shabby cassock of an ordinary priest with a simple wooden cross around his neck instead of the silver crucifix of his high office.

He has been in a state of virtually continual warfare with authorities ever since he was enthroned as Archbishop of Olinda and Recife more than 10 years ago.

His outspoken denunciations of alleged torture and his vibrant calls for social justice and agrarian reform have earned him the labels of "subversive," "Communist" and "a Fidel Castro in cassocks" from military and state leaders.

Two years ago he told the local state assembly here: "We would not be worthy of Christ if we remained silent before the institutionalized injustices that maintain two-thirds of the population of our nation in conditions unworthy of human beings. . . ."

A few months later, at the height of his battle with the authorities, eight of his collaborators were arrested by security police and tortured for five months, he said.

Since President Ernesto Geisel assumed office last year with a policy of gradually liberalizing the more repressive aspects of the regime, Catholic sources here said the harassment of Archbishop Helder also has been relaxed. But it has not ceased.

Archbishop Helder himself declined to comment but one of his closest associates said the prelate did not doubt President Geisel's good intentions.

Bishop's Aid to Leftists Brings Demand for Ouster

SANTIAGO (AP)—The human rights controversy in Chile has erupted in one of the country's most important Protestant church groups, and one faction wants its bishop ousted because he aids political refugees.

"I have a clear conscience," says Helmut Frenz, 41, the German bishop of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Chile, founded here in the late 19th century.

Seven congregations of the church sent an official letter to the ruling military junta demanding Frenz and four German ministers be expelled from Chile and the church itself dissolved.

The group, formed of German-speaking congregations and calling itself the coordination Council of Evangelical Lutheran Communities in Chile, described Frenz and the others as "a group of foreign ministers of foreign political tendencies."

The letter said the activities of Frenz in helping political refugees "conceals political actions directed from overseas. . . ."

This charge referred to the junta's continuing campaign which claims that "international Marxism Leninism" has been carrying out a plot to crush the military government through propaganda and other actions.

The bishop, a German national, was elected to his post in 1970. His term ends next year.

Frenz has been embroiled in controversy since the Chilean armed forces toppled the leftist regime of the late Marxist President Salvador Allende in September, 1973.

He and other religious leaders in Chile established the Committee of Peace, an organization of volunteers to aid the families of thousands of Allende supporters who were arrested or simply disappeared after the coup.

Frenz was awarded the Nansen Medal, given for extraordinary service in the cause of refugees, in September, 1974, by the United Nations high commission for refugees.

But his work angered many of his congregation. Many now are influential landowners who reacted angrily to Alende's experiment in socialism which included massive expropriations of private farms. Some were financially ruined.

Frenz said in an interview he has "acted out of humanitarian concern and not for political reasons."

He said the German-speaking faction opposes him because of his work to bring into the church more Spanish-speaking Chileans who have embraced the Lutheran faith. Many German-speaking Chilean citizens, he said, who still cling to the old ways, do not want integration.

Five Simple Rules For Happy Marriage

By

Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

Couples look forward to marriage, but not all find what they hope for. It is one thing to anticipate the wedding, but another thing to live happily beyond that day. Happiness does not just happen; it is achieved.

Some quite simple but fundamental principles may help guide a couple in establishing the kind of relationship that will give them mutual satisfaction in the early months of marriage and prepare them emotionally for the years ahead.

(1) One of these principles is to burn the bridges of the past. The choice has been made. They have said that they were taking each other "for better or for worse", and so should be prepared to take the worse with the better, though they should concentrate on the better.

(2) A second principle is for them to be positive instead of negative. They ought not to be niggardly about their compliments. But they should never be critical of each other in the presence of others. To air their matrimonial problems before relatives and friends makes for a loss of mutual and self-respect without which their marriage is moving toward disaster.

(3) A third principle is to divide and share the tasks of home-making. A couple will be happy if they plan together, if they make their decisions together, if they develop a spirit of mutuality in all their experiences. If they go into debt, they should do so in line with anticipated income. Many marriages have gone on the rocks because one or the other, or perhaps both, failed on the level of financial maturity.

(4) Another principle is to feed their love and thus keep it growing. There are many ways that love is witnessed — by a thoughtful act, a warm glance, an encouraging smile, an affectionate kiss, and, of course, the most complete human witness of all, when the two become one in body as an outer token of their union.

(5) The final principle is to keep growing mentally and spiritually. The couple ought to share the best things — the best books, the best music, all beautiful things possible; the religious way of life.

I am not reluctant to acknowledge that many couples have a satisfying and rewarding marriage without benefit of an on-going church connection. However, in most of these instances they at least got an early start in life at church or parents bequeathed to them the church's ethic.

At the same time the observation must be made: a generation that is drifting from the public worship of God is experiencing a corresponding decay in marriage ties. In church a couple find support for the ideals that shone in their eyes on the wedding day.

The marriage service usually opens with some such words as these, "Unless the Lord builds the house, those who build it labor in vain" (Psalm 127:1). Therein is wisdom, as over against the fiction of soap operas and too many romantic novels taking advantage of human weakness for the sake of the almighty dollar.

Kovoor Debunker Of Godmen and Gurus

BOMBAY (CP) — A 78-year-old Indian has become the terror of astrologers, occultists, exorcists, holy men and other agents of the supernatural.

He is Abraham Kovoor, a native of the south Indian state of Kerala. The Bombay newspaper Lokasatta said of him recently: 'Dr. Kovoor is the greatest debunker of godmen and gurus, currently one of India's major exports to the West.'

Dr. Kovoor now lives permanently in Sri Lanka where he is president of the Sri Lanka Rationalist Association (SLRA).

With the help of rationalists, scientists and other modern-minded people, the SLRA has been successfully disproving many claims of supernatural behavior.

Dr. Kovoor has shown that many sadhus (holy men) who go about "producing" all kinds of things from watches to gold ornaments from their turbans are no more than clever magicians. He even calls them "downright frauds out to make quick money out of public gullibility."

He says that astrology is not a science as claimed by its practitioners, but only "a particularly ingenious way of exploiting people who are prepared to listen to good news about themselves."

Dr. Kovoor, who was in Bombay and addressed several rationalist groups this spring, says ghosts just do not exist.

The SLRA ha offered a reward of 100,000 rupees (about $12,500) to anyone who can prove that there are ghosts. The reward will come out of Dr. Kovoor's personal savings.

The reward will also cover anyone who can walk on live coals for more than 30 seconds without getting his feet burned. Several Indian holy men have claimed they can do so. Two Calcutta newspapers reported a "fire-walking" feat last year, but investigations by two Indian rationalists at the instance of Dr. Kovoor indicated there was no truth in the claim.

Bombay Times reports that when a "top Indian scientist" attributed supernatural powers to a holy man, Dr. Kovoor immediately challenged him. The scientist had said that when a leading Japanese watch manufacturer visited the holy man in India, the latter promptly produced the latest model of a watch which had been sealed in a Tokyo vault.

Many believed the claim but Dr. Kovoor, The Times said, wrote to the Japanese who denied ever having called on the Hindu holy man.

Music to Pay By

READING, England (CP — The accounts department in the new council offices will pipe out soothing songs when ratepayers turn up to settle their bills. Staff have suggested that numbers such as Hey, Big Spender and Money is the Root of All Evil would cushion the blow of paying up.

Good Consuming All Winter Long

Preserving Day for a winter of good consuming:

First, some words from Carroll Nelson of the Ontario Food Council (she'll address Belleville's Garden Club next month on canning and freezing) about shrivelled pickles.

Ms. Nelson says now is the time to check the pickles you have already processed in the case you need to change recipes or methods before all the pickling is done.

One common problem is shrivelled pickles which occur for several reasons.

First, if more than 24 hours elapses between picking and pickling, then you may have shrivelled pickles.

Too strong a pickling solution at the beginning of curing or a too-strong brine solution might cause pickles to curl up. A syrup that is too heavy might have the same effect.

If you've used the same recipe for years with good success and suddenly your pickles don't turn out the right way, it's probably that you waited too long after picking or that they were too old when you purchased them.

More grapes produced in the vineyards of the Niagara Peninsula will be available this year for home wine making and processing into juice, jams and jellies.

The 1975 crop should be excellent and Concord grapes should be inexpensive and easy to find.

You can use these grapes to make grape juice without the time and trouble of actually squeezing the grapes. Here's the method I learned from my husband's mother and used last year very successfully. Even at last year's prices we made 50 quarts of grape juice for about one quarter the store-bought cost. (Of course, if you have to buy jars it will be more expensive but I'm still convinced you'll be financially ahead.

Simply wash and sort grapes. Place one cup of grapes in a quart jar. Sprinkle with sugar according to taste (if you must) and fill with boiling water to within one inch of the top. Close the lid and process in a boiling water bath for 25 minutes. When your want to drink it, simply strain into another container or chill and pour off into glasses.

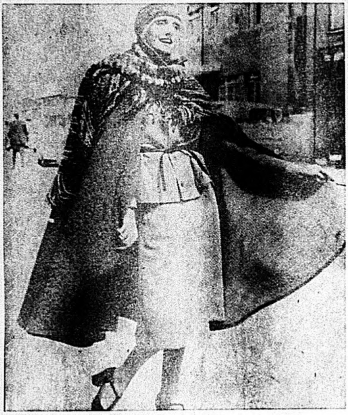
Blueberry Butter is a novel way to preserve those luscious berries currently appearing on the market from Quebec and northern Ontario.

You'll need four cups of frozen blueberries, four large green cooking apples, peeled, cored and sliced, four cups of sugar, ½ tsp. allspice, ½ tsp. ground mace and ½ tsp. ground nutmeg.

Combine all ingredients in a large saucepan. Bring to a boil and simmer over low heat for one hour, stirring occasionally. Cook until thick. Spoon hot mixture into sterilized glasses, seal and cool. Store jars in a cool dry place.

This recipe will yield about four pints.

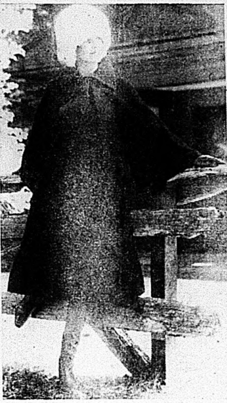


Batlady Look?

This ensemble is called Burford, created by the royal dressmaker Hardy Amies, Boutique and Couture. From the autumn and winter collection shown in London, it is a brown checked reversible "batman" cape worn over a matching suit. (CP Photo)

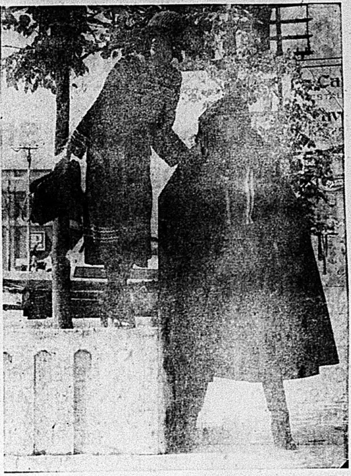
Layers, Layers, Layers, Everywhere You Look!

Getting dressed and undressed this winter will take longer for fashion-conscious women who follow the new trend to wearing multi-layered outfits. Capes, jackets and coats over sweaters, shirts and suits, with scarves, belts, stoles and hats . . . This is the New Look, like it or not, coming from all the European fashion capitals. Will it translate well onto the streets of Belleville?



Cozy Elegance

Bulky but still terribly elegant in its line, this loose black wool coat had a detachable cape and a tie belt, the requisites of any stylish outfit this autumn. By Fouks of Paris, the coat is shown with a blue fox hat by Sam Frankel of Toronto. (CP Photo)



Fall Fashion Forecasters

Strong Stomach Needed in This Job!

HALIFAX (CP) — Most women find it hard to cope with live mice, let alone dead rats.

But for Nancy Blackmore, Nova Scotia's first woman public health inspector, it's all part of the job.

While carrying out an inspection of a basement apartment one day, "I moved a panel in the ceiling and out dropped a dead rat in a trap, right on top of me."

Despite such experiences, the 22-year-old inspector finds her work, after two years, "interesting, challenging, at times, frustrating."

Her job takes her into restaurants, hospital kitchens, supermarkets, sewage treatment plants, new lots and numerous food-handling establishments. She inspects, reports, and recommends.

Miss Blackmore said her interest in the job began in high school when she decided she didn't want an indoor, traditional desk job.

"I was interested in pollution control . . . and I became interested in the treatment of industrial wastes."

A guidance counsellor at high school gave her a public health department folder which sparked her interest immediately. She applied for a bursary at Ryerson Polytechnical Institute in Toronto, and was interviewed by personnel of the division of public health engineering, becoming a successful candidate upon completion of senior matriculation.

The two-year course with field training included courses in medical and engineering technology, food processing, chemistry, physics, environmental health, microbiology, communication and laboratory work.

Frustrations develop sometimes in the enforcement aspect of a public health inspector's work. Inspectors make recommendations through their health unit directors to boards of health, for follow-up and possible legal action. Sometimes the results are thwarted because of lack of strong action by boards or difficulties in securing prosecutions, or small fines.

"Sometimes, people try to bluff because of my being a woman, or perhaps also because of being junior," Miss Blackmore said. "However, within the unit, I am simply one of its members and by now, too, the novelty of having a woman inspector has worn off."

In 1973, Miss Blackmore was prevented from carrying out inspection of a tavern because women then were not allowed in taverns. She took matters in hand immediately by obtaining a letter of permission from the chief administrator of the liquor board. She was not stopped again.

What are some of the qualities needed to be a good public health inspector?

"To be a good communicator, free from timidity, and to carry authority," Miss Blackmore said.

"And have a strong stomach, capable of dealing with garbage, sewerage and dead rats."

Public Health inspector Nancy Blackmore checks the temperature in the milk and cheese section of a Halifax supermarket. Inspectors are health specialists directly involved in the protection of the environment through inspection and monitoring programs. Ms. Blackmore is Nova Scotia's first female public health inspector. (CP Photo)

Junior League Gets Involved With Real, Relevant Issues

By GINNY PITT
The Associated Press

A dozen young women, many of them dressed in blue jeans, are discussing the victimization of women. Rape. What can be done about it? Job discrimination. How can it be stopped? Prison. What are women subjected to when confined? Day care. How can a working mother provide a good environment for her children?

It's not a consciousness-raising group, nor is it a meeting of the local chapter of the Radical Feminists Union. It's a group session of the Junior League—that elite organization of wealthy and socially prominent women.

The Association of Junior Leagues of America, the headquarters organization for the individually incorporated leagues, insists that the Junior League and its members are changing.

"NOW (the National Organization for Women) and other women's organizations are concerned with women's issues and so are we," says Mary D. Poole of Albuquerque, N.M., president of the association and also a member of NOW.

"Our heads are very much in the same place as Mary Poole's," says Jane Kirkham, president of the Cleveland, Ohio, Junior League.

Mrs. Kirkham, mother of three and wife of a real estate executive, has lived in Cleveland Heights, a wealthy suburb, almost since graduation from college. During the late 1960s and early 1970s, she said she went through a period of "disenchantment" with the league, which she had joined fresh out of college "as part of a whole life set since I was born.

"I was really on the verge of resigning," she said; "because I felt the league was risking irrelevancy.

"When I was a provisional (the first phase of membership), they put me in a soda shop in a hospital as my volunteer work. What did I know or care about that?"

Last year Mrs. Kirkham accepted the Cleveland league's invitation to become its president this year.

"I just decided that the time had come that I was either going to resign or I was going to do something," she said.

One of the projects developed by the Cleveland league under Mrs. Kirkham was an attempt to find out more about league members themselves. Questionnaires—asking such things as "Who am I?" "Who was I?" "Who will I become?" "What do I need now?"—were distributed to members to try to develop a profile of the membership.

As a result, seven task forces in seven areas identified as of high interest to members were established: the arts, criminal justice, the elderly, the environment, youth, women's role in society and the city of Cleveland.

"We are definitely trying to establish a balance between service and change oriented projects," said Mrs. Kirkham. The service projects—hospital and museum volunteer work—continue. But social action programs are increasing in Cleveland and elsewhere.

"We've sent representatives to Washington to support certain legislation. And we've taken very strong stands on proposed legislation within the state—such as . . . gun control," Mrs. Kirkham said. "Our members voted . . . to ban all handguns."

The Junior League was founded in New York City in 1901 by debutante Mary Harriman, sister of Averell Harriman, the diplomat and former New York governor. The league's purpose then was to promote voluntarism. And that's still important.

Many leagues are debating with NOW and other groups which say that voluntarism is exploitation of women. NOW says most volunteer work is done by women and that if the same functions were performed by men there would be monetary compensation. NOW also says that unpaid work is demeaning and keeps women subordinated to men.

The Junior League believes that contrary to keeping women subordinated to men, volunteer work has allowed women "to achieve management positions . . . that were denied them elsewhere."

Mrs. Poole argued that many women prefer the flexibility of hours and the variety of work that volunteering allows. She adds that many jobs simply would not be performed if wages had to be paid.

Ann Landers

Reader's Life Saved by Al-Anon

Dear Readers: You have often asked me, "Do the people you advise ever write back and let you know how their lives turned out?" The answer is yes, they do—sometimes. Today I'm going to print a letter which appeared on Aug. 6, 1971, and the follow-up which I received in a recent batch of mail.

Dear Ann: It is Sunday afternoon, our 13-year-old boy went to a ball game, the 10-and 12-year-old girls are in the neighbor's swimming pool and my husband went to his favorite tavern to get drunk. I'm not writing for advice. I'm writing to thank you for your advice.

A few years ago I would have been crying my eyes out, or venting my anger to a friend on the telephone. But today I am calm, content and very happy with my life. Why? Because I listened to you and joined Al-Anon.

Every woman who is married to an alcoholic must at some point decide whether she is going to allow his problem to defeat her or learn how to live with it. Since I joined Al-Anon I love and understand my husband more than ever. Our marriage is better than most marriages where no drinking problem exists. Due to a marked change of attitude toward my husband, he has become a better father and a better person.

At the moment my husband has expressed no interest in joining AA. I hope one day he will do so, but he must come to the decision himself. If he never comes to it, it's all right with me. I have learned to live with him, and I appreciate the many other wonderful blessings in my life.

Please Ann, keep telling people about Al-Anon. It's a lifesaver—both literally and figuratively.—Gage Park Member

Dearest Ann: After reading your column for nearly 20 years, I know you take a personal interest in your readers and like to know how things turn out. Well, I LIVED HAPPILY EVER AFTER!

It's more than four years later now, but THANK YOU for printing my letter. Our Al-Anon group got calls from other groups who wanted to invite the "author" to give a talk at one of their meetings. I became involved in the business end of the fellowship and worked on a public information committee.

I had never joined or volunteered for anything in my life until Al-Anon. In this fellowship, I am finding complete fulfillment, but most important, peace of mind and love of fellow man.

Incidentally, my husband made a decision for sobriety on May 1, 1972—and has been sober ever since.

You are Al-Anon's best friend, Ann, and I'm sure you'll be happy to hear that when we ask newcomers where they heard about Al-Anon, three out of four say, "From Ann Landers's column." No need to ask you to give us a plug now and then—you do it automatically. The good it serves should leave you with an everlasting sense of satisfaction.

GOD BLESS YOU and may He grant you serenity all the days of your life.—Most Sincerely, Marie

Dear Marie: Your letter made my day. Thank you, dear.

Dear Ann Landers: I was having coffee with a friend recently and she was being very critical of a mutual acquaintance who was suffering from depression.

In the meantime Mrs. X was lighting one cigarette off the other, choking and coughing, her hands trembling as she struggled to hold the coffee cup.

Finally I said, "Why don't YOU stop smoking? It's killing you and you know it."

Mrs. X became furious because of the unspoken comparison. Am I THAT farr off base? How about it, Ann? — Straight Talk In Detroit.

Dear S.T. — A person who is that hooked on tobacco is in as bad shape emotionally as one who is in a state of depression.

Tattoos Becoming Popular with Women

TORONTO (CP) — Joanne Smith was shopping in a supermarket when a toddler fascinated by the colored pictures on her legs, reached out to touch one.

She said the little boy's horrified mother pulled him back and slapped him.

Joanne says the mother's reaction was characteristic of women who think a tatooed lady belongs in a circus, a brothel or on the burlesque circuit.

But in the past five years a growing number of women have begun to ornament and accent their bodies with tattoos.

Stars like Jane Fonda, Pearl Bailey, Joan Baez and the late Janis Joplin are among those who may have helped popularize the tatooing trend among women.

Nobody was more surprised by the trend than Toronto tattooer Beachcomber Bill, who estimates 45 per cent of his clients today are female.

It used to be that only Tugboat Annie types or girls who rode with motorcycle gangs showed up at his tatoo parlor. But these days, Bill says he isn't surprised to greet nurses, secretaries and other middle-of-the-road types of young women.

"Five years ago if I saw a dozen women in the year that was a lot," he said.

"Now it's not uncommon to have a day when there are only one or two guys and the rest are women."

Bill credits the women's libertaion movement for nurturing an atmosphere that has made the change possible.

For Joanne, who is 20 being tatooed meant defying her parents and being prepared to be stared at unless she were wearing slacks and a long-sleeved blouse.

She was 18 and had been living away from her home in Niagara Falls for a year when she decided to decorate one ankle with a small and delicately detailed butterfly.

Now she has 45 tattoos — all of them visible when she wears a bikini.

"My parents didn't accept it," said Joanne. "My father had been in the navy. He didn't have tattoos, although many other sailors did. What he couldn't accept was a tattoo on a woman."

By the time her father discovered the artwork, it was already too late:
Joanne already had 17.

Sex of Reporters Influences Readers

OTTAWA (CP) — Lynda Painter Cole, Donald Lewis Shaw and Richard Cole of the University of North Carolina, said a survey they conducted shows that even journalism students discriminate in their rating of stories "along traditional sex stereotypes."

The teachers told the annual convention of the Association for Education in Journalism that "as women more and more appear as byline writers on all kind of stories doubtless reader judgments will gradually shift."

"But for now it appears that a female byline can flag some readers' perceptions almost as surely as a miniskirt."

The teachers used four short news stories in their study. "Each story was capable of being classified along traditional sex-stereotype lines, but all represented areas in which there has been a blurring of such lines in recent years."

The stories dealt with the arrest of a confessed rapist, a report on a new female fashion, a men's golf tournament and a legal appeal of a conviction in an extortion-federal income tax evasion case. Each story was printed with the male byline and a female byline and one copy of each story was distributed to 150 undergraduate students at the university.

The rape story bearing a male byline was judged "more accurate, more believable and more informed" than the same story carrying a female reporter's byline.

The fashion story with a female byline "was rated over-all more interesting and more clear" and the male-bylined sports story was judged more interesting, more dramatic and more active.

The teachers said there was no significant difference in the ratings of the income tax appeal story.

Their paper said males surveyed "discriminated much more than female respondents." Male readers also appeared to be more "sensitive to story bylines and find male bylines more favorable by and large."

"Women do not appear, at least now, to be very sensitive to bylines."

The conference also was told that news coverage of women has increased, but most stories about women are still relegated to the lifestyles section of newspapers.

Want to Keep Name

TORONTO (CP) — Queries at the rate of three a day about a woman's right to change her name or to retain her birth name after marriage are being received at the Ontario Women's Bureau, Queen's Park. Lesley Lewis who handles most such questions for the bureau said about half the calls and letters are from young women who are about to marry and the other half from married women who want to resume the former name after not using it for years.

Sport for Families

All the family joins in Boyd Butts hobby of keeping racing pigeons. Son Craig, 13, (left) is looking forward to the day when he is old enough to establish his own coop of birds and Gwen Butts enjoys the social activities of pigeon fanciers' clubs. New Zealand Wants Antarctic To Become Scientific Reserve

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (Reuter) — Strenuous efforts to have the Antarctic continent sealed off forever as a world scientific reserve, free from exploitation, are being made by the New Zealand government.

Already the frozen continent is protected by regulations strictly observed under the 1961 Antarctic Treaty signed by the 12 nations who have territorial claims or scientific bases in the area.

But the treaty, which runs for at least another 30 years, does not cover vital areas of mineral reserves or living marine resources.

Foreign affairs ministry sources here say the government wants an agreement completely ruling out mineral exploitation.

Failing this, it will seek a further treaty giving the 12 parties to the existing pact—New Zealand, Australia, Chile, Argentina, South Africa, the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain, France, Japan, Norway and Belgium—sole power to issue licences and impose conditions for exploiting mineral resources, including oil.

The agreement has been sought by New Zealand since 1970, when the treaty nations met in Tokyo. After this year's conference in Oslo, Prime Minister Wallace Rowling said he was disappointed more progress had not been made.

The 12 nations will meet again in Paris next year.

Each country has been asked to study known resources and the likely impact of oil exploration and other mining.

As yet little is known about the resources of the Antarctic, which is one of the major regulators of the world's weather and about the only place where man has not affected the atmosphere.

All the treaty powers have agreed that incursion of any sort into the area should be strictly controlled.

In some areas—where there are beds of delicate lichens and mosses and some bird colonies even scientists are barred.

All bases on the continent ship out non-organic garbage.

Even organic garbage such as food scraps and sewage—which would be preserved by the freezing temperatures—is put on sea ice which drifts north in the summer thaw.

Whisky Now Essential French Status Symbol

PARIS (Reuter) — The elite "in" Frenchman should sip 12-year old whisky, take summer holidays in Iceland, be a crack polo player and own a hi-fi set that looks like a jetliner's control panel.

His elegant lady should wear a small diamond in her ear lobe, know all the best dieting clinics, give leather-lined pocket computers as presents and buy chocolate-covered ants for dinner parties.

Together they should roll round town in a chauffeur-driven Volkswagen convertible and live in Paris' plush 16th Arrondissement.

Pigeon-racing Family Sport

TORONTO (CP) — Boyd Butts, a 51-year-old insurance underwriter, says he spends six hours a day, seven days a week, for a thrill that can last about five seconds.

Mr. Butts, his wife Gwen and 13-year-old son Craig keep 60 racing pigeons and the supreme thrill of the sport is in the last few seconds before a bird returns to its home loft, he said.

"You look up in the sky, fingers crossed, and see one of your birds coming in," he said.

"Will it go straight into its loft for water so you can clock it, or will it touch down on a rooftop and just taunt yu while the seconds tick away?"

Mr. Butts, a pigeon fancier since age 14, said his pigeons cost him about $1,600 a year. He spends $20 a week on food for them and about $600 a year for competition costs and gasoline to take them on training flights, he said.

The cost of buying a racing pigeon may range from $30 to $400 for a pedigree import. The sport was introduced to Canada by immigrants around 1890.

Pigeon racing has made much progress in Ontario in the last decade. In the early 1960s,' 300 miles was a long race but now "we have 500- and 600-milers regularly," he said.

Owners come from a wide range of occupations, Mr. Butts said. One local club has two business executives, a policeman, a fireman and three city employees.

"I doubt if there is a more democratic sport in Canada," he said.

Mrs. Butts, president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the 2,000-member Canadian Union of Racing Pigeon Clubs, said the sport is perfect from a wife's point of view.

Mississauga Corruption Charges Being Probed

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Noel Bates says he feels as though he is looking for pieces to a "monstrous jigsaw."

The puzzle: Has corruption eaten away at municipal politics here?

Mr. Bates is the solicitor for the judicial inquiry into alleged civic misconduct at Mississauga City Hall over several years.

Since June 19, he and a staff of four have been interviewing, reviewing files and minutes of meetings, and "tracing steps" of the way city affairs have been run.

"I think 99.9 per cent of all people are honest," the 35-year-old lawyer said in an interview. "I work on that assumption until I'm proven wrong.

"Maybe—or maybe not—Mississauga has an excess amount of the .1 per cent."

The inquiry was called in April after Mayor Martin Dobkin said he had information on alleged bribery, misconduct and assault in city affairs ranging over several years.

Mr. Bates and his staff are gathering information to be used at a public hearing under Judge Ray Sortini, which may be held in September.

The solicitor declined to give details of the investigation so far, beyond saying that he now is "looking at specifics" of various allegations.

Mr. Bates said he must ensure the public hearing does not become a forum for "smear allegations."

RULES NOT BINDING

He said the rules of evidence which apply in criminal court will not be binding at the public hearing, and witnesses will testify under the protection that their evidence will not be used against them.

That could lead to smears, "an indelible mark all the refutations in the world won't wash away," he said.

One of the major differences between the inquiry and the usual law case is that the lawyer is investigating the evidence—a job usually done by the police—as well as presenting it in court.

"The terms of reference are sufficiently broad to exercise some discretion," he said.

So the research team must sift with care the evidence that rolls in through interviews and letters and anonymous telephone calls. In addition, Mr. Bates said, if individuals are to be named at the hearing they will be notified well in advance so they can bring lawyers and their own evidence.

They won't read of their involvement in the newspaper first, Mr. Bates promised.

The Halton regional solicitor and his staff of four work in an office that has a giant map of Mississauga covering one wall; on it is a newspaper clipping of photographs of the 1964-65 council of Toronto Township, former name of Mississauga.

New School Bus Law
effective September 1st, 1975.

Traffic in both directions must stop regardless of posted speed limit, when a chrome-yellow school bus flashes red lights, front and rear.

What the changes mean:
Previously, the stop-in-both-directions requirement meant that motorists stopped their cars on seeing a school bus flashing red signals only where the maximum speed limit was greater than 35 miles per hour.
Now the law applies regardless of the posted speed limit.
The law applies everywhere—on highways, country roads, city, town or village streets—except on multi-lane highways with a *median barrier. On these, only the vehicles behind the school bus must stop.
Conviction for failure to stop when required carries a maximum fine of $100 and an assessment of 4 demerit points.

How do you know it's a school bus?
Now, under the new law a school bus is defined as:
a bus used for the transportation of children to and from school that:
a) bears on the rear the words: DO NOT PASS WHEN SIGNALS FLASHING.
b) carries two red signals on the rear and two red signals on the front.
c) is painted chrome yellow, with black lettering and trim.
A bus that is not used to transport children to and from school cannot be painted chrome yellow.
No motor vehicle other than a school bus shall bear the words "Do not pass when signals flashing" or the words "School Bus."
No bus other than a school bus may be painted chrome yellow.

7246 SCHOOL BUS
DO NOT PASS WHEN SIGNALS FLASHING
EMERGENCY DOOR

What is a median barrier?
*Median barrier means the portion of a highway constructed to separate traffic travelling in one direction from traffic travelling in the opposite direction. The median barrier is a physical barrier or an unpaved strip of ground.
School bus safety is everybody's responsibility.

Council Committee Juggling Required by Mayor's Resignation

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

City Council has announced new appointments to the various city and area boards and committees — necessitated by the appointments of former alderman Ben Corke as Belleville's mayor and Frank Seemungal as city alderman.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said Friday the board and committee appointments were worked out this week and will be ratified by council in Bylaw form at its Sept. 8 meeting.

And during the same meeting, council must pass another bylaw which will appoint the city's new cheque signing officers — the city treasurer, Mayor Corke and Ald. Art Keegan.

The former signing officers were the treasurer, former mayor Robin Jeffrey and Mr. Corke as the alderman.

Subordinate Planning and Advisory Committee — Mr. Seemungal will replace Mr. Corke as aldermanic appointment and Mr. Corke will fill the mayor's position.

Quinte Area Planning Board Member Corke's position was reclassified as that of mayor and Ald. Seemungal will replace Mrs. Jeffrey. Sidney Township must also approve these changes.

Belleville General Hospital Board of Governors — Mr. Corke assumes the mayor's automatic position and Ald. Jean Smith will fill the vacant aldermanic post.

Hastings County Museum Management Committee — Ald. Seemungal will replace former mayor Jeffrey.

Financial Appeals Review Board — Ald. Stu Meeks will replace Mr. Corke.

Belleville Transit Commission — Mr. Seemungal had to resign when appointed alderman. The vacant position will be filled at the next council meeting.

Subdividers Committee — Mr. Corke was chairman but will now fill the mayor's ex-officio position. Member Keegan will become new chairman and Ald. Wally Dever will take Ald. Keegan's place.

Service Project Success

By RON HIUSER

Work experience in social service agencies under program 12 of the provincial Experience 75 program has been termed a successful endeavor by Jennifer Staveley, the summer job co-ordinator.

"It has been an over whelming success on behalf of the 14 agencies and the 14 students invovlved," said Miss Staveley.

"I also think the clients appreciated the students: the fresh face welcome," she said.

As part of the ministry of community and social services, the summer program achieved two main aims, said Dave Morrow, head of the service.

"One, it brought an awareness to the student as to the type of job they were having. And it also provides the agency the means to do extra programs which they might not have been able to run through because of manpowers and resources. This in turn helped the client," said Mr. Morrow.

Miss Staveley said at the beginning of the summer she helped choose the students for the different agencies, for the eight-week summer period.

The students chosen were picked on qualifications and not patronage as has been the accusation in Toronto recently, said Miss Staveley. It was reported earlier this week summer job co-ordinators in Toronto accused the Ontario ministry of community and social services of patronage in the placement of job fulfillments.

One of the special services provided this summer in the district was held at the YMCA in Cobourg.

The girl there set up special activities for teenagers in the area, such as bike-a-thons, and entertainment nights, to help smooth over the summer, said the summer co-ordinator.

Another person worked with mentally handicapped adults, taking them on trips to the Toronto Zoo, picnics and swimming.

"These are projects which the regular staff didn't have the time to plan."

Miss Staveley said next year she hopes to have better publicity in the high schools on the specific program, and would like to see a maximum of three years for the summer help. This would allow students to take the job in different phases ending as co-ordinator by the time they are post-secondary students.

Of the assessments received by Miss Staveley from the different participating agencies, and the students, all have been positive."

"The students enjoyed the summer job," said Miss Staveley.

Competition for the positions was tough. There were 98 secondary students and 42 post-secondary student applicants of which 10 and four were hired, respectively.

"I hope this program will be expanded next year because it is worthwhile for everyone," said Miss Staveley.

Program 12 Completed

Jennifer Staveley, summer job co-ordinator of Program 12, part of the Ontario's Experience 75 project, is completing her final report on the project. The purpose of the program was to provide employment and work experience in area social service agencies. Fourteen students were hired to fill positions with 14 social service organizations.

Funeral Held for Girl Killed in Car Accident

NORTHBROOK — Funeral was conducted Friday from Northey Funeral Home here for a six-year-old Northbrook girl who died Aug. 27 at Kingston General Hospital from injuries suffered after she was struck by a car Aug. 22.

Ontario Provincial Police at Kaladar said Chirstine Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Clark, ran into the path of a vehicle on Highway 41 in this hamlet, located about 10 miles north of Kaladar.

Police said she suffered lacerations and head injuries in the collision and was taken to KGH where she died Wednesday evening. Interment was at Northbrook Cemetery.

The driver of the car was a 17-year-old female American tourist but her name was unavailable from police. The 3 p.m. accident is still under investigation by Constable Paul Haller.

Too Close ?

MADOC — A 56-year-old Deloro man has been charged by the Madoc Detachment of the provincial police with following too close Friday following an accident 1.5 miles south of here on Highway 62.

Charged is Thomas Armstrong for hitting the rear-end of a car driven by Allan Gainham, 43, of 108 Lemoine St. Belleville, police report.

Damage to the Gainham car is estimated by police at $600 and to the Armstrong car $50. There were no injuries.

Car Flips

PICTON — A Picton area man was treated at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital shortly after 1 a.m. today following a single car collision on County Road 14 two miles east of Highway 14.

Injured was driver of the car Jonathan McKenzie, 21, of RR 8 Picton.

Police say McKenzie was eastbound when his car went out of control, entered the dtich, struck a fence and overturned.

Damage was estimated at $2,000.

Salt Supply Okay

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

Despite strikes last April of the two largest Canadian Salt Companies — Windsor and Sifto — there is no shortage of salt, Bill Preston, owner and manager of United Produce of Belleville, said today.

United Produce, a Belleville wholesale and retail outlet, is supplying Belleville and Ottawa area grocery and chain stores with salt trucked in from Watkins Salt Company, Watkins Glen, New York.

Mr. Preston said 40 tons of salt was delivered here last week and 40 more will be picked up Thursday.

He said the demand for salt, expecially non-iodized used for canning, began two weeks ago and hasn't stopped. "There is no shortage; the supply is unlimited. It's just a matter of tapping the source," he said.

The price of a one-pound 10 ounce box of salt has increased 11 cents in most stores.

3 Women In Hospital

Three Frankford women are in hospital following a car-cement truck accident Friday at the corner of Highway 2 and the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road, Belleville Detachment of the provincial police report.

In fair condition is Hazel Chard, 41, in Belleville General Hospital, and Ida May Crowe, 74, in Kingston General Hospital; and in fair condition also at Belleville General Hospital is 11-year-old Christine Chard, all of RR 1 Frankford.

Driver of the truck, Daniel Joseph Lucas of 273 John St. Belleville, was not injured.

Damage to the car is estimated by police at $1,300 and to the truck, $300.

City Man Charged

A 46-yearold Belleville man has been charged by Belleville OPP with careless driving Friday, following a one-car accident on Highway 14 one mile west of the intersection of Highways 14 and 62.

Charged is Edward Boyce of 82 Gilbert St. who was driving eastward when he left the road and entered the south ditch and hit a culvert, police said.

Mr. Boyce was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital, police report.

Damage to the vehicle is estimated by police at $1,000.

Win Days with Police

Three winners were chosen last week in the province-wide draw, Win Two Days in Toronto with the Ontario Provincial Police, sponsored by the Ontario Road Builders' Association.

They are Karen Bartz, 10, of Dinorwic, Brian Burns, 6, of Dryden and Suzanne Dionne, 10, of Kapuskasing.

Their names were drawn from about 3,000 entries at Queen's Park in Toronto by Donald Campbell, association president, Harold Graham, provincial police commissioner and Jean Bloodworth of the provincial police community services branch.

David Bailey (left) of 70 Holmes Rd. and John Reeve of 102 Wright Ave., both 13, are two Belleville youths who have utilized their summer vacation to build a hideaway in the woods just west of the city. Here they relax in the interior of their fort which has panelled walls, carpeting and some posters to brighten up the room.

Boys Construct Fort for Keeps

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The engineers involved with the CN Tower in Toronto have nothing over two enterprising Belleville teenager.

Deep in the woods in the southeast corner of Sidney Township, several hundred feet from the nearest road, David Bailey of 70 Holmes Rd. and John Reeve of 102 Wright Ave., both 13, have built a fort.

Now, all boys of about that age have either considered or actually went about building a fort — but this one is something special.

It is a one-storey, one-room job, elevated to avoid dampness and complete with shingled roof, plywood and two-by-four walls, wall paneling, wall-to-wall indoor-outdoor carpet and total insulation against the cold.

The boys use it for overnight camping or for relaxation during the daytime. "That's what we like about it — it's quiet." John said this week when he and David invited a newspaper reporter to their secret abode.

And its location must remain a secret. Already some so-called friends have attempted to tear it down — a futile attempt since nothing short of a wrecking ball would work on the sturdy structure.

"We think we know who it is," John remarked of the would-be vandals. "We're going to put another lock on the door and we might try to put the hinges on the inside."

The boys had to draw the building materials over rocky, hilly ground and through trees by trail bike. They had started with a wagon but changed to a discarded grocery cart "after our wagon died out on the trail," John said.

They have spept four nights in the fort since they completed it almost two weeks ago (it was started three months ago) "and it doesn't leak in the rain out of all these storms we've had," John related.

The shingles were the only items which had to be purchased. "The rest we got from people tearing down buildings," he said.

John noted there will still be some improvement. "We're going to get shag carpeting for it when we sleep here during the winter."

To reach it after the snow flies, the boys will use skis and John said he might even be getting a snowmobile. And off to one side of the fort, the boys have erected a shelter amongst the trees to protect their trail bike in summer and snowmobile in winter from inclimate weather.

The fort will not be receiving as much use for the next nine months. John is entering Grade 8 at Sir Mackenzie Bowell Elementary School and David is all set for Grade 9 at Centennial Secodary School.

French TV Station Opposed

A Quebec group is opposing establishment of a CBC French language television station in Belleville.

The Citizens' Committee for the Promotion of English TV says establishment of a CBC English station in Saguenay on St. Lawrence River should take priority of establishment of a French CBC station in Belleville."

In statements made in a brief prepared for submission to a CRTC hearing the group says they also oppose establishment of French CBC stations in Peterborough and Kingston.

"Despite promises by government officials and agencies all efforts seem to encounter one roadblock after another," committee chairman G.A. Wishart says in the brief.

There are three full CBC English station in operation or approved in Quebec and 30 French stations. In Ontario there are 15 full French CBC stations and 12 English CBC stations, said the committee.

"This discrepancy is deplorable and completely unacceptable," said Mr. Wishart.

Application for an English language re-broadcasting station for the region is scheduled for a CRTC hearing.

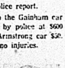
Chamber Takes Cruise

Member of the Chamber of Commerce for Belleville and Trenton have been invited to buy tickets for a moonlight cruise through the 1,000 Islands, Saturday, September 13.

The 3½ hour cruise on a three-decker cruiser leaves from Gananoque.

Tickets reserved from the Chamber's office, for the occasion cost $15 per person, with the buses leaving the Quinte Mall at 6:45 p.m.

Education Beat



Truant Officers Not Sufficient

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The ministry of education has forced the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board to scramble for four truant officers rather than a properly trained attendance counsellor.

The ministry, by law, requires the board to have an attendance counsellor or an agency who can provide the service. Last May, the Family and Children's Services opted out of the job leaving the board hamstrung.

At its August meeting the separate school board decided to hire four part-time attendance counsellors in various parts of the two counties to do the job on a piece-meal basis and then report to the superintendent of education who, in turn, would report to the board.

While the board may be complying with the ministry regulations it is doubtful that the arrangement can meet the real needs that this task affords. The four counsellors will only be truant officers, rounding up absentee students and admonishing their parents.

With today's society the role of the attendance counsellor must go beyond the truant officer aspect. A counsellor today must understand the social and family problems that often accompany a situation when a student is missing school.

The realistic approach is for the counsellor to investigate and work with both the student and the family to discover why the child is a habitual absentee and how it can be corrected. The work of an attendance counsellor is full-time and requires in-depth skills in human relationships.

Bigger boards, like the Hastings County Board of Education, are able to hire professional counsellors. These counsellors can earn as much as $15,000 and take a good slice of the board's budget.

The separate school which is only one-tenth the size of the county board can't budget for a professional counsellor. However, the same need and problems are still with the separate school board despite its smaller size.

The ministry of education should have some provision in its grant structure to compensate for this disadvantage. As long as the ministry is interested in maintaining the separate school system it should not have to endure a second-rate service.

No doubt the separate school board is attempting to comply with the regulations and at the same time provide to the best of its ability a counselling service. But the only realistic way to do this is to hire a professional, one who is trained and has experience and that takes money.

Inflation Affected Some Holiday Plans

By RON HIUSER
Staff Reporter

With the rate of inflation about one per cent a month, many people may find budgeting for their vacation different this year than last.

Area motels, inns, and garages report there is a markable difference in the amount of travellers, comparing the two years.

Most operators agreed Belleville is attracting more Canadians than Americans, and more people are travelling by car.

Business at the motels and inns has been reported good but there are not as many tourists being turned away.

In a survey taken in a local shopping centre, people were asked: Did or has inflation cutdown on your holiday plans ?

WALTER LEOPOLD

Walter Leopold, a 37-year-old Campbellford resident, said inflation has affected his holidays to a degree.

"It all depends on what you want," said Mr. Leopold.

Mr. Leopold said he is more money conscious than he used to be.

"People can do things like borrowing someone's camper, like we did for two weeks."

It is a matter of economizing, he said.

KEN GILLIES

"This is the first time in a long time that me and my wife have taken a holiday, but inflation has not bothered our plans," said Ken Gillies.

The 47-year-old education assistant for the Board of Education for Hastings, said he plans holiday regardless.

Mr. Gillies and his wife are teachers and this summer is the first time neither of them have been taking summer courses, he said.

GUIDO DICESARE

A truck driver with Stanley Structures of Belleville, Guido Dicesare said since he is on the road a great deal of the time, he takes his holidays at home.

"Inflation is starting to affect me because I'd like to do some home improvements," said Mr. Dicesare.

"I don't go on the road much when I'm on my holidays. I like to spend my time at home," he said.

SHEILA BOULTER

Sheila Boulter, 30-year-old Belleville resident, said inflation has not bothered her holiday plans.

"My husband and I both work, and we didn't stay at home," said Mrs. Boulter, who works at Mobil Plastics.

Inflation has effected her though, she said. "It pressured me to get a job in order to afford holidays," said Mrs. Boulter.

KAREN BITTLE

"Yes, inflation has affected our plans," said the 19-year-old Belleville housewife.

Karen Bittle said she and her husband are planning to go camping because it is cheaper.

"I'm very price conscious. We watch every penny we earn," said Mrs. Bittle.

To save money and gas Mrs. Bittle said she and her husband bought 10-speed bicycles to get around. "We use them when we can."

JULIE MAVETY

A 20-year-old Ottawa University student Julie Mavety said inflation has not affected her plans.

"A person can save enough if they want to take a holiday," said the Belleville resident.

"When a person sets out to enjoy oneself, the price would not affect them. You have to plan for it," said Miss Mavety.

A's Subdued By Red Sox

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball's American League playoffs may be another cup of tea, as Reggie Jackson says, but in the meantime the Red Sox are having a party whenever they meet Oakland A's in Boston.

Boston made it four in a row over the A's in Fenway Park with a 6-1 victory Friday night as Cecil Cooper delivered a single, two doubles and his 12th homer and Rick Wise scattered eight hits for his 17th win, equaling his career high.

That increased Boston's lead in the American League's East Division to 7½ games over Baltimore Orioles, who bowed 4-2 to Chicago White Sox.

The A's, however, maintained their 7½-game bulge over Kansas City in the West when New York Yankees edged the Royals 6-5 in 10 innings.

In Friday's other American League games, Cleveland Indians downed Minnesota Twins 9-6, California Angels trounced Detroit Tigers 8-1 and Milwaukee Brewers routed Texas Rangers 1-1.

With two weekend games remaining, the Red Sox lead the A's 6-4 in their season series and 4-0 in Boston, where the playoffs would open if the Red Sox win their division.

"They're not telling us they're gonna beat the hell out of us in the playoffs," said Jackson, the Oakland slugger. "The playoffs aren't the same cup of tea. It's more intense, there's more pressure.

The managers, however, aren't even thinking about the playoffs...so they say.

"It's too early for either one of us to think about each other in the playoffs," said Oakland's Alvin Dark.

"It's just another game," echoed Boston's Darrell Johnson. "We just have to go out and try to win tomorrow."

Switch-hitting Ken Henderson, who had hit only six home runs this season, homered from each side of the plate and Deron Johnson and Bob Coluccio also connected for Chicago as Jim Kaat earned his 19th win with seventh-inning relief from Rich Gossage.

New York's Thurman Munson raced home from third base on a wide throw by Kansas City second baseman Cookie Rojas in the 10th inning. Munson singled with one out and went to third on a single by Graig Nettles.

After an intentional walk loaded the bases, pinch-hitter Walt Williams grounded to Rojas but his throw home was up the third base line, where catcher Bob Stinson caught it as Munson slid past him with the winning run.

Rookie Rick Manning's grandslam homer in the eighth inning enabled Cleveland to beat the Twins.

Frank Tanana fired a seven-hitter and fanned nine to run his major league-leading strikeout total to 206. John Balaz doubled home California's first two runs and Dave Collins homered for the last two

EAGLE KEYS

JACKIE PARKER

Ackles, Murphy In

Lions Fire Keys, Parker

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jackie Parker, fired Friday as general manager of British Columbia Lions was the golden boy of the mid-50s, the man who put Edmonton on the football map once and for all.

It was Parker who scooped up a Montreal fumble late in the 1954 Grey Cup game at Toronto and rambled 85 yards for the tying touchdown. The convert gave the Eskimos a 26-25 win, the first of three straight Canadian Football League championships.

The centre on that Edmonton team was Eagle Keys who was fired Friday as head coach of the Lions.

The club directorate named Parker's former assistant, Bob Ackles, as general manager and appointed one of Keys' former assistants, Cal Murphy, as head coach

Parker, who spurned an offer from New York Giants of the National Football League to sign with Edmonton in 1954, had been an All-American in college football.

Three times he was named the outstanding football player in Canada and seven times in eight years he received the Jeff Nicklin Trophy as the most valuable player in the Western Football Conference.

Keys was an assistant coach with Edmonton when the Eskimos won the Grey Cup in 1955 and 1956, both times against Montreal.

The Eskimos named Keys head coach in 1959 and Edmonton made it to the 1960 Grey Cup game, losing to Ottawa Rough Riders.

Parker and Keys both left Edmonton following the 1962 season. Parker was traded to Toronto Argonauts and Keys was fired.

Keys became an assistant coach in Saskatchewan the following year and was elevated to head coach of the Roughriders in 1965. Saskatchewan won the Grey Cup in 1966 and were finalists in 1967 and 1969.

Parker finished his playing career with the Argos in 1966 and was named head coach to Toronto Rifles of the Continental League in 1967. He agreed to join the B.C. team as an assistant coach the following year.

Parker was named head coach of the Lions late in the 1969 season and the team finished in the playoffs for the first time in five years.

Following the 1970 season, he was promoted to general manager and Keys was brought in as head coach.

B.C. made the playoffs in both 1973 and 1974, only to lose both years to Saskatchewan in the WFC semi-final.

Parker, who was elected to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame, said in an interview Friday that the board asked him to resign but he didn't because he thought such a move "would not help the football club at this time."

"I would still like to try and help the team somehow this year," said Parker, "because I believe in the remaining coaches and the players here."

Keys, a respected man because of his record of 147 victories as a head coach, had little to say.

"I guess they (the directors) think that by getting rid of Parker and myself that they can put some people into the stadium," said Keys. "I certainly don't agree with their decision."

Club president Bill McEwen resigned following the morning board meeting "for personal reasons."

Just three weeks ago, McEwen told reporters that there would not be any change this season in the coaching staff.

A club statement said, the board's decision to fire Keys and Parker was unanimous.

Nastase Not Nasty

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Ilie Nastase says when he quits playing tennis he may join the circus.

He was joking, of course, as usual. But it is an interesting concept.

Depending how his game goes, he can be a rubber face and make the crowd laugh. Or he can be nasty and make the crowd boo.

But here at the U.S. Open championships, he says he is being good.

"I don't know if I can win this tournament, but I can go far—to the semis or the final," he said. "I've played on this surface (clay) since I was born.

"It is the last major tournament of the year. It is the only tournament to give me a chance to go into the first four in the world rankings."

He moved a step closer Friday when he pranced into the third round, protecting his No. 8 seeding with a 6-2, 6-3, triumph over Allan Stone of Australia.

But the new clay surface took a heavy toll on the third day of play.

Bounced out of the men's draw were No. 6 Tom Okker of The Netherlands, No. 7 Tony Roche and No. 12 John Alexander of Australia and No. 14 Vitas Gerulaitis and No. 16 Cliff Richey of the U.S.

The bottom two seeds among the women also were toppled—No. 7 Francoise Durr of France and No. 8 Julie Heldman of the U.S.

Margaret Court, a seven-time winner seeded No. 5, survived by the skin of her teeth, beating Betty Stove of The Netherlands, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1 after being down 1-3 in the second set.

Jan Kodes, the No. 15 seed from Czechoslovakia, also barely squeezed through, defeating Hans Kary of Australia 1-6, 7-5, 7-5.

Arthur Ashe, the No. 4 seed whipped Vijay Amritraj of India, 6-3, 6-1.

Never Lost Hope Carrithers Sharp

SAN DIEGO (P) — Two springs ago, San Diego Padres and all others major league teams had a chance to grab San Francisco righthander Don Carrithers for the 25,000 waiver price.

All of them passed and Montreal picked up the hard thrower in a trade that sent catcher John Boccabella to the Giants. Although the Expos assigned Carrithers to their Memphis farm club, it was a transaction they can be proud of today.

The 25-year-old from San Mateo, Calif., handed San Diego its fifth successive loss Friday night as he hurled a four-hit, 4-0 victory for the Expos.

"I never gave up, I never lost hope," said Carrithers.

"Don has pitched well for us, very well," said Montreal manager Gene Mauch after Carrithers, 2-1, notched his second shutout and lowered his earned run average to 3.00. Friday night, he walked four, struck out two and was in trouble only once.

The smallest home crowd of the year here, 4,976, saw the tottering Padres remain two games ahead of fifth-place Atlanta in the National League West.

The most surprised of all the Expos was first baseman Mike Jorgensen, who homered with none on in the fourth inning to trigger a three-run rally against loser Joe McIntosh, 8-13.

"It was my first homer in this park," said Jorgensen, who has 13 homers this season and a total of 54 in his big league career.

Gary Carter and Tim Foli singled home fourth-inning runs off McIntosh, while Larry Parrish singld home the game's final run off San Diego reliever Dave Freisleben in the sixth.

The only consolation for the Padres was that Dave Roberts, the 24-year-old infielder recalled from Hawaii a little more than a week ago, hit safely in his eighth consecutive game.

Tournament Richest in History

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1976 Federation Cup tennis tournament, the women's equivalent of the men's Davis Cup event, will award prize money for the first time in history with a total purse of $110,000, the richest in women's team tennis, it was announced Wednesday. Thirty-two countries, including the United States and 1975 champion Czechoslovakia, are scheduled to compete in the 1976 tournament, to be held Aug. 22-29 at the Spectrum in Philadelphia. The winning team, consisting of a minimum of two players and a maximum of four, will receive $40,000.

Lead Stands Up

No Worries For Matlack

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When New York Mets jumped on Don Sutton for six runs in the first inning Friday night, Jon Matlack figured he was in trouble.

"When we get a big lead like that, it's usually a bad sign," the Mets' ace lefthander said. "Too many runs too early generally means I won't make it through the game.

"It's been a common thing for our pitching staff this year."

But Matlack had nothing to worry about Friday night in Los Angeles. Buoyed by that big lead—compliments of his own two-run single and Dave Kingman's three-run homer—Matlack proceeded to cruise to a six-hitter and the Mets beat the Dodgers 6-1 in their National League baseball game.

"I was looking for a real tough game," Matlack said. "When we got to Sutton early, it really surprised me."

In Friday's other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies beat San Francisco Giants 3-1, Cincinnati Reds defeated St. Louis Cardinals 6-2, Montreal Expos shut out San Diego Padres 4-0 and Chicago Cubs ripped Atlanta Braves 8-3.

A game at Pittsburgh between the Pirates and Houston Astros was rained out.

Matlack finished with one walk and seven strikeouts—and the only Dodger who didn't hit the ball to someone was Lee Lacy, who wrecked Matlack's shutout by leading off the sixth inning with his sixth homer.

The win was Matlack's 16th, the most he has had in any of his five major league seasons. And it was the Mets' fifth win in a row, pulling them into a third-place tie with St. Louis, one game behind Philadelphia and four back of the idle Pirates.

Sutton, also a 16-game winner, had allowed just five hits and two earned runs in his previous two starts, covering 17 innings. This time, though, he was raked for six runs and seevn hits in just two-thirds of an inning before heading for a very premature shower.

Dave Cash's tie-breaking double in a two-run eighth inning gave the Phillies their victory over the Giants and Ed Halicki, whose previous start had resulted in a no-hitter against the Mets.

The location may not be Hayward Long Reach, near Picton, but the spectacular scene on the water here took place at races held recently in Miami's Biscayne Bay. More than 125 boats are expected for the two day Gold Cup event, at Hayward Long Reach, from Canada, the United States, and Mexico. Incidently, the drivers of the boats in the picture were only slightly injured.

Power to Burn at Gold Cup

By ALAN TEBWORTH

PICTON — When the drivers of the boats entered in the Grand Prix classes of the Prince Edward Gold Cup Races step into their cockpits this weekend, they'll be getting behind some pretty powerful machines.

The Grand Prix class is the largest of the six classes of inboards that will compete in the races at Hayward Long Reach. They will be going for the top prize of the weekend — the Prince Edward Gold Cup.

Entries in the Grand Prix are allowed to have engines up to 500 cubic inches in displacement, and can be either fuel injection or blown fuel types. Most use Chevrolet or Chrysler engines, similiar to those used in the larger cars on the road.

The motors produce up to 1200 horse power to propell the ton and a half of boat through, or more appropriatly, over the water at speeds up to 175 miles per hour.

The speed record for the three points hydroplane is 176.6 miles per hour, held by Howie Benn of Toronto, driving Sudden Seven, a two time winner of the Gold Cup.

Most of the boats at the Reach this weekend in the Grand Prix class will reach speeds of over 160 mph, and possibly highter, depending on water and wind conditions.

Although the Grand Prix steal a lot of the limelight at the two day affair, there are ten other classes in which action will take place, with the inboards, going right along with the sportscraft, or outboards.

Five other classes of inboards will be racing, all on the three point hydroplane hull with the exception of one.

That one, the SS class, has engines of up to 427 cubic inches running on a regular flat bottom hull. The hull must be at least 16 feet long, and weigh at least 1500 pounds. The boats attain speeds of about 125 mph. in the chutes.

The other three inboard classes are the 280 with maiximum engine displacement of 280 ci. the three litre class, with three litre engines, and the 145 class, with maximum of 145 cubic inches.

The largest of the outboard categories in the S class, for tunnell hull boats powered by 150 horse modified engines. The cubic inch restriction is 99.9 or less, with no restrictions on the modifications. The boats reach speeds of up to 110 in this class.

Two other classes use the tunnell hulls forming a hollow under the boat to ride on. The SJ class uses stock outboards of up to 150 horse, 99.9 c.i. or less motors, while the SE class is limited to 75 horses and 49.9 cubic inches.

The SJ's attain speeds of about 80 mph, while the SE reach 60.

The two remaining classes run on V-bottoms, in the FE and FJ categories. The FE class is limited to 75 horsepower or less, and gets up to around 55 miles per hours, while the FJ with a 150 stock motor gets 70 mph in the straights.

Racing begins at the Reach at about noon on Sunday, and will carry on until dark. The action resumes Monday with the running of the finals of the Gold Cup taking place on Labor Day.

Edge Tony's 2-1

Victoria Bates Sweep to Finals

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — Victoria Bates, representing British Columbia, swept into today's finals of the Canadian men's softball championships, edging Oshawa Tony's 2-1 Friday.

A game scheduled later Friday between the host Oshawa team and Kitchener Evergreens, representing Ontario, to decide Victoria's opponent, was postponed until 8 a.m. today.

The winner of that contest will go against Victoria to decide the winner in the round-robin championship.

In Friday's victory over Oshawa, Victoria clinched a berth in the finals by making three straight hits off losing pitcher Pete Landers in the seventh inning. Dave Ruthowsky, who relieved Victoria starter Stan Kern in the seventh and struck out the side, was the winning pitcher.

Kitchener advanced to the sudden-death playoff game today by whipping Quebec 6-1.

Bob Domik gained the decision.

Victoria catcher Bob Burrows hit a double to right centre and Mike Taafe, running for Harvey Stevenson, scored from first base to clinch the victory for B.C.

The winner between Kitchener and Oshawa today will go against Victoria. If the Bates win the first game, they will be the champions.

However, under tournament rules, the B.C. team must win a second game to win the championship if it loses the first.

Wilson Masks Are Called Back

RIVER GROVE, Ill. (AP) — Wilson Sporting Goods Co. said Friday it is recalling 167,000 football helmet face masks manufactured since 1972 for use by youths.

The firm urged immediate return of the involved helmets even if previously tested and that none should be used in competitive play if a crack or break appears."

It said that no injuries linked to the equipment have been reported but that "in the interests of safety, the company is making the better mask available at no cost to the consumer."

Helmet models involved are F2053, F2060, F2255 and G0672.

BUYS FRANCHISE

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Joe Holody, a local businessman, has purchased the Guelph franchise in the Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League from John Prigione, operator of the franchise for five seasons. Alex Campagnaro has been appointed general manager and coach. Bob Nolle has been named chief scout. A new coach is expected to be appointed within the next two weeks.

FEAR EXTRADITION

TORONTO (CP) — Czech national hockey stars Vaclav Nedomansky and Richard Farda will accompany Toronto Toros to their World Hockey Association training camp in Sweden next month but will not play two games in Finland. The two players, who fled their homeland last year to play professional hockey in North America, fear extradition from Finland to Czechoslovakia.

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran forward Bobby Rousseau of New York Rangers, one of the National Hockey League's top playmakers, announced his retirement Wednesday. The 35-year-old right wing-centre played 15 seasons in the NHL—10 with Montreal Canadiens, one with Minnesota North Stars and four with the Rangers. Last season he underwent spinal fusion surgery and appeared in only eight games with New York.

RAICH DEMOTED

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians sent one of their young starting pitchers, Eric Raich, to their Oklahoma City farm team Wednesday to make room for Bob Reynolds, acquired on waivers Tuesday.

DENIES OFFER

TORONTO (CP) — John Ferguson said Wednesday he has not been approached by Toronto Maple Leafs regarding a coaching position with the National Hockey League club. The former Montreal Canadien, Team Canada's assistant coach in their 1972 series with the Soviet Union, said neither Leaf president Harold Ballard nor vice-president King Clancy had talked to him about being an assistant to coach Red Kelly. Ballard earlier said talks were in progress.

Events Rained Out

The downpour that drenched the Quinte area with almost an inch of rain Friday also put a damper of the sports schedule in the region.

Two softball games scheduled for the Alemite, as well as the harness races at Quinte Exhibition Raceway, were washed out.

The fourth game of the final series between Black Diamond and Brooke Bond, scheduled for 7:15 was postponed to Tuesday night. That contest will go at 6:15 at Queen Elizabeth School.

The Belleville McDonald's were to have completed their initial season in the Ontario Fastball League, but the game last night, originally to have been played last weekend, postponed then due to a city curfew bylaw, went down with the rain. The game will not be replayed, leaving the Macs with an 11 and 42 won-lost record in their first year of play.

The harness races were called shortly before the 8 p.m. post time after a vote by the horsemen, the only way the 10-race card could have been stopped.

With the cancellation, the Gerald Vance Memorial Pace will likely be moved to September 19. Thet additional card has all but been confirmed by race officials.

Owners of each horse entered at last night's meet was given $10 to cover expenses.

Monday's holiday card will go as scheduled, with post time 2 p.m.

Intercontinental Series

U.S. and Japan Are Favorites

MONTREAL (CP) — The United States and Japan have set the pace and are strong favorites to win semi-final games today in the Intercontinental Cup baseball tournament.

The U.S. picked up its seventh win in as many games in the eight-country, round-robin competition with a 12-2 romp Friday night over Colombia, and Japan whipped Canada 8-1 to take first place in their section ahead of the host country.

The U.S., Group B champions, meet Canada, second in Group A, in one semi-final while Japan, with a 6-1 won-lost record, faces Nicaragua, a poor second in Group B at 3-4. The winners will meet in the final Sunday and the losers will battle for third place.

The U.S., who blanked Canada 6-0 on a one-hitter by Steve Lane in round-robin play, rank as solid favorites over Canada.

The U.S. scored more runs in their seven games than anybody else, but their 50-49 edge over Japan came in a thrilling 1-0 win in 12 innings Thursday night. Each team allowed only eight runs.

Yoshihiro Maekawa socked two solo home runs to lead Japan over Canada in their Group A showdown and captured the home run title with three.

Japanese starter Seiji Kamioka retired the side in order through the first four innings before Canada loaded the bases in the top of the fifth. Minoru Hayakawa came in to fan Marty Maxwell for the second out before giving up a run-scoring walk to Dave Grass.

Kamioka had given up just two hits and Hayakawa checked the Canadians on the same number the rest of the way.

In Dressage, It's Jim Day

KING, Ont. (CP) — Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., riding Mr. Super Plus, won the dressage portion of the Canadian three-day with 28.67 penalty points Friday.

Day, a member of the Canadian three-day event team to compete in the Pan-American Games at Mexico City in October, also took third place with Deep South. His 47 penalty points put him behind second-place Rick Maynard of Vancouver, who was assessed 44.34 points on board El Adohr.

Fourteen riders took part in the dressage section of the competition with the endurance portion scheduled today and the jumping stage Sunday.

The over-all winner will be determined from the combined points of each competition.

In the Canadian preliminary championships, Susan Fraser of Halifax, aboard Not Available, finished first in the dressage portion with 37.34 penalty points.

Lawrecean, ridden by James Wofford of Upperville, Va., was second with 40.3 and Apryl Hahn of Belle Plains, Sask., on Mesallience, wound up third among the 26 entries with 49.34 points.

Cathy Powell of Edmonton took the dressage portion of the North American junior championships. The member of the Alberta team, riding Double Image, defeated 25 other rivals with 35 penalty points. Tom Glascock of Upperville, on Que'Dice, was second with 35.34 points.

Individual and team winners will be decided in the junior championships.

Records Smashed

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Ruth Fuchs led a record-smashing spree by an East German team with a javelin toss of 66.46 metres Friday in a duel women's track and field meet with Canada.

Fuchs's toss was the best in the world this year and missed the world record by less than a metre. She easily eclipsed the Canadian open mark of 61.12 metres set by Australian Petra Rivers in 1968.

The East Germans broke seven Canadian open records and easily defeated their hosts 83-51 in the meet, held on the Laurentian University campus.

Canada's 400-metre relay team set the only native record although it finished second to an East German quartet that broke the open mark.

Joan McTaggart of Saskatoon and Tinker Robinson, Patty Loverock and Marj Balley of Vancouver clipped three-tenths of a second off the native mark took 43.6 seconds.

The East Germans, Sybille Priebsch, Renata Stecher, Carla Bondenorf and Doris Muletzki, tooj 43.6 seconds.

Thelma Wright of Vancouver met the Olympic standard of 4:15 in the 1,500-metre run, finishing third in 4:13.2.

Veteran long-distance runner Abbie Hoffman of Toronto failed to meet the standard, running in 4:18.5. The two Canadians finished behind East German Ulrike Klapezynski, who ran in 4:08.8 and Waltraud Strotzer, who had a time of 4:09.4.

Only Canadian winners in the meet were Miss Loverock, who won the 100 metres in 11.7 seconds, Joan Wenzel of Waterloo, Ont., who took the 800 metres in 2:02.6 and Louise Walker of Toronto, who high-jumped 1.86 metres.

East Germans also set open records in the 1,600-metre relay, discus, shot put, and 200 and 400-metre runs.

The East German 1,600-metre relay team of Kristina Brehmer, Anton, Ellen Streidt and Brigitt Rhode won in 3:29.4 seconds, beating the open record of 3:33.9.

A throw of 64.[illegible] Sabine Engel in the discus enabled her to be[illegible] record of 56.76, set by West German Liesel Westermann in 1967.

Marianne Adam, a pending world record-holder in the shot put, threw a distance of 20.66 metres to beat the open record of 17.27 metres set in 1967 by East German Margitta Gummell.

A time of 22.7 seconds gave East German Renate Stecher an open record in the 200 metres. The old standard was 23.1 seconds.

Streidt and Rhode also bettered the 400-metre standard of 52.4 seconds, set by Australian Charlene Rendena in 1973. Streidt won in 51.3 seconds, one-tenth of a second ahead of Rhode.

Mexican Sharp Shooter

L'ACADIE, Que. (CP) — Juan Bueno of Mexico won the gold medal at the skeet event Friday at the International Competitions 1975 shooting event.

Bueno broke 287 of 300 clay birds with his sharp shooting.

Dave Burgy of the United States finished second with 283, the same as Harry Willsie of Montreal. In the case of a tie, the shooter with the best score in the last set takes the higher ranking. Burgy broke 73 of 75 targets Friday while Willsie broke 72.

Jules Sobrian of Omemee, Ont., took the gold medal in the free-pistol event with a score of 1,083 out of a possible 1,200. second with 1,073 points fol- second with 1,073 poipst followed by Canadian Ed Jens with 1,066.

Daniel Nadeau of Quebec took the running-game competition with a score of 939 out of 1,200 while Mexico's Olegario Vazquez Rana grabbed the three position rifle event with a total of 2,275 while Montreal's Hans Adloch was second.

Sobrian leads the rapid-fire pistol and John Primose of Edmonton is ahead in the trap shooting event heading into today's activity.

Wings Are Out

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (CP) Butch Keegan scored with 55 seconds remaining in the third period to break a 17-17 tie and Long Island Tomahawks went on to defeat Philadelphia Wings 19-17 Friday night, eliminating the Wings from the National Lacrosse League playoffs.

Chuck Medhurst added an insurance goal for the first-place Tomahawks with 20 seconds remaining in the game watched by 4,722 fans.

Ted Greeves had two goals and four assists and Doug Hayer had two goals and two assists for Long Island.

Talk of Millions Turns Orr to Tennis

Bobby's Signing Denied

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for hockey star Bobby Orr says a report that he has signed a new contract with Boston Bruins is not true.

Toronto television station CFTO reported Friday night that Orr had signed with the Bruins on Tuesday before sale of the National Hockey League club was announced.

Orr's lawyer and agent, Alan Eagleson, was unavailable for comment, but a source close to Eagleson said the defenceman has not signed anything and will begin negotiations with the Bruins' new owners next week.

CFTO says the contract provides Orr with a bonus of $1-million and a salary of $500,000 a year for at least three years.

Earlier this week Eagleson and Orr met with Wayne Belisle, president of Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association.

Eagleson said Belisle offered Orr the richest contract ever offered a professional athlete. The Minnesota offer is reported to have included a $1.5-million bonus and $5-million over five years.

Wendy Defends Tennis Title

OTTAWA (CP) Defending champion Wendy Burkhart of Ohio took the singles crown in 16-and-under competition at the Canadian international open tournament Friday defeating Beth Ruman of Indiana 6-0,6-1.

Miss Burkhart also competed in the 18-and-under class but lost 6-4,6-2 in the semi-finals to top-seeded Ragina Marsikova of Czechslovakia.

Miss Marsikova's opponent in finals today is Elizabeth Eckbloom of Sweden who trounced Debbie Mescarin of Michigan, 6-2, 6-3. Earlier in the week Miss Eckbloom defeated second-seeded Anne Gerrain of Belgium to advance to the semi-finals with Miss Mescarin in 18-and-under doubles action. They defeated Yoshie Watanabe of Japan and Miss Eckbloom, 6-1, 6-4.

Miss Burkhart and Miss Mescarin now will meet Emitse Rapoint of Argentina and Lian Harrison of Australia, who defeated Anne Gerrain of Belgium and Marjorie Blackwood of Ottawa.

The only other final decided Friday was in 16-and-under doubles competition. Jennifer Bland of Victoria and Wendy Barlow of Vancouver defeated Claire Lardner of Toronto and Judith Pridham of Oakville, Ont., 7-5, 6-3.

In the boys 18-and-under class, first seed Chris Lewis of New Zealand advanced to the singles final when he squeezed past sixth seed Warren Maher of Australia in the longest match played of the tournament which began Monday.

Maher took the first set 6-0 while Lewis yelled to spectators several times: "I can't play on these courts."

The matches were shifted to indoor hard courts because of rain Friday while earlier play had been on outdoor clay courts.

Lewis won the second set 6-4 and the pair chased each other from tie to tie in the third set until Lewis finally won 16-14.

Lewis now will meet third seed Ricardo Yeaza of Ecuador who eliminated, South African Lucjan Sosnowski.

In 18-and-under doubles semi-finals Sosnowski teamed with Jarrett to defeat Joseph Brabenac of Vancouver and John Picken of North Burnaby, B.C. 6-4, 6-1 after beating Fernando Dalla Fontana of Argentina and Dushan Kulaj of Czechoslovakia 5-7, 6-2, 6-1.

Sosnowski and Jarrett will meet Lewis and Maher today in finals. Lewis and Maher defeated Yeaza of Ecuador and Fernando Manyetto of Peru, 7-6, 6-7, 6-4. Yeaza and Manyetto earlier beat Shlomo Glickstein and Chaim Arlazoroff of Israel 6-4, 7-5.

Robert Gordon of Toronto was defeated by second seed Shi Puni of Irael, 6-4, 6-2 in the semi-finals of the 16-and-under group singles. Puni will meet first seed Murray Robinson of Pennsylvania who scored a 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Jim Broder, also of Pennsylvania.

Bill Cowan and Nigel O'Rourke of Tronto will meet Greg Bell of Lion's Bay, B.C. and Bill Geddes of Vancouver in final double action today.

Cowan and O'Rourke had defeated Gordon and Steve Volrich of Vancouver, 7-5, 6-4 while Bell and Geddes defeated Greg Boire of Montreal and Kyle Langill of Toronto, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

The tournament is expected to end today.

Challenge Cup to Savoir

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Savoir certified his credentials as the world trotting champion by winning the $50,000 Challenge Cup at Roosevelt Raceway Friday night.

The 7-year-old gelding, driven by Del Insko and representing the United States, became the second horse in the 17-year history of the series to sweep the American Trotting Championship, the $200,000 Roosevelt International Trot and the Challenge Cup in the same year.

Speedy Crown, also of the United States, was the first to do it in 1972.

Savoir rushed into the lead soon after the start of the 1¼-mile race and led the rest of the way, just as he did last Saturday in the rich International that gained him the world title. Off as the 4-to-5 favorite, Savoir won by 1¼ lengths over Elesnar of Canada in 2:33 1-5 for the distance.

Elesnar close fast on the outside to take the place by a head over Dream Of Glory, also of the United States.

Savoir paid $3.80, $2.60 and $2.60. Elesnar returned $6 and 3.80, while Dream Of Glory paid $3.80.

It was the sixth straight victory for Savoir, owned by Helen Buck of Far Hills, N.J. He earned $25,000 to up his earnings for the year to $250,810 with nine victories, two seconds and two third-place finishes in 13 starts.

He now has won a total of $953,991 in his career.

Detroit Lions Clawed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the past seven weeks, Washington Redskins have been trying to discover a running game to augment their awesome passing attack.

They got a glimpse of one Friday night against Detroit Lions.

Until their 34-13 victory over the Lions, it appeared the Redskins' rushing during 1975 would match the one of last season, which ranked 23rd in the National Football League with an average gain of 3.1 yards per carry.

The running of rookie Mike Thomas and veteran Moses Denson in the first half of the exhibition game against the Lions gave the Redskins renewed hope. But it was the passing of Bill Kilmer and Randy Johnson, each with two touchdowns, that crushed the youthful Detroit team.

"We were able to throw the ball and loosen up a bit because of the runs we were breaking off at first," said Kilmer afterward. "This is the way we want to play it, we hope, all year."

Thomas, picked up 64 yards on 16 carries and scored a six-yard touchdown, with most of the action in the first period. Denson, a Canadian Football League transplant from Montreal Alouettes, carried eight times for 35 yards, all in the first 30 minutes.

This afternoon New York Giants played Pittsburgh Steelers at Princeton, N.J.

Tonight's schedule has San Francisco '49ers at Oakland Raiders, Baltimore Colts at New Orleans Saints, Los Angeles Rams at Kansas City Chiefs; San Diego Chargers at St. Louis Cardinals, Denver Broncos at Chicago Bears, New York Jets at Atlanta Falcons and New England Patriots against Green Bay Packers in Milwaukee.

Important Showdown For Cats and Argos

HAMILTON (CP) — Toronto Argonauts can make thinks a little easier for themselves at the end of the season by beating Hamilton Tiger-Cats on Monday afternoon.

A win would give the Argonauts a four-point edge over the last-place Ticats in the Eastern Football Conference standings. That could increase the pressure on Hamilton when the two clubs meet in back-to-back games at the end of the season.

While the Argos and Ticats scramble for position in the EFC playoff race, their head coaches try to sort out their quarterbacking situation.

Neither Russ Jackson of Toronto nor Jerry Williams of Hamilton has indicated who will start the Labor Day game at Ivor Wynne Stadium.

Two games back, Jackson was reported to have given rookie Bill Bynum the job on a more or less permanent basis.

Bynum started the next Toronto game, a loss to Edmonton Eskimos, and Jackson denied he had ever handed him the job. Veteran Mike Rae was back at the helm for Wednesday's 33-17 loss to Montreal Alouettes and Jackson had critical things to say about his performance.

Rae who began by completing 17 passes in a row, took a pounding from the Montreal defence and completed just two of his last 16 attempts.

Jackson drew attention to the fact that two Montreal touchdowns were direct results of errors by Rae—a fumble and an intercepted pass.

That leaves the Argonaut quarterbacking job still in doubt, with an added complication the arrival on the scene of Ken Pettiford, a recent cut from San Francisco '49ers of the National Football League.

Veteran Jerry Keeling is expected to get the starting nod over rookie Jim McMillan for the Ticats, who have had 13 days to think about a stumbling start that has produced only one win in five starts.

There will be at least two changes in the Hamilton defence, the most porous in the EFC. The Ticats have allowed 26.8 points a game. Montreal's average, the next worst in the east is 20.5.

Defensive back Dave Easley, who was injured in an exhibition game, returns to the lineup. And Joe Harris, a recent cut from Chicago Bears of the NFL, replaces Tony Perea at middle linebacker.

Hamilton may face another more serious long-term loss. The Toronto Globe and Mail says Andy Hopkins, the team's top running back has asked the Ticats to quadruple his salary to $100 000 a year.

Hopkins, who is playing out the option year of a two-year contract for a salary said to be less than $25,000 a year, would not comment on the report. His agent, Earl Chromwell of Houston, could not be reached for comment.

While the Ticats and Argos worry about improving their playoff positions, Hamilton officials will be checking the gate receipts. Attendance has been down an average of 5,000 a game this year, but the Labor Day game is traditionally a big drawing card.

Bombers Look To B.C. Match

By JOHN SHORT

The Canadian Press

Strange as it seems, Winnipeg Blue Bombers are looking beyond their vital Western Football Conference struggle Monday against Saskatchewan Roughriders to a comparatively minor meeting Thursday with British Columbia Lions.

A major reason is that wingback Tom Scott might be back from the injured list in time to play Thursday in Vancouver.

Coach Bud Riley concedes that he plans no lineup changes for the Monday contest. The Bombers and Saskatchewan are tied for first place with Edmonton Eskimos, who meet Calgary Stampeders in the other WFC game during the Labor Day holiday.

The only way for the three clubs to retain tied would be for both games to end in deadlocks.

All four clubs have injury problems heading into the weekend, with Saskatchewan getting the worst of it. Versatile Tom Campana has a possible broken wrist and flanker Rhett Dawson has suspected ligament damage in a knee.

However, Saskatchewan's veteran kicker Jack Abendschan, previously on the suspended list because of a contract dispute, has returned and as a result kicker Ivan MacMillan was cut.

MacMillan played one game, obtaining a perfect score on three field goal tries and one convert. Abendschan is Saskatchewan's fourth highest scorer with 13 points. Guard Jim Hopson also has returned to Roughriders' roster.

If Campana and Dawson are both out, Saskatchewan would lose two major offensive threats. Of the club's 12 touchdowns this season, Campana has five and Dawson four.

Fullback George Reed, who sets a rushing record almost every time he touches the ball, will play despite a sore shoulder. As usual, he is heading toward 1,000 yards rushing with 560 yards gained in six games.

Even Reed's figures, however, do not compare with those of Calgary halfback Willie Burden, who has gained more than 100 yards in five of Calgary's six games and has a big lead in the rushing race.

Despite Riley's concern over the difficulty of playing in Regina's Taylor Field—where Saskatchewan has lost two in a row—he conceded the Bombers are in good physical shape.

Running back Richard Crump aggravated an ankle injury but will play. Offensive tackle Butch Norman spent a night in hospital after a blow to the head, but he rejoined the team for practices and is ready.

But Riley's major problem is where to fit Scott in when he returns.

IN MEMORIAM

CASSIBO — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Clara who passed away August 31, 1973.
Many a day her name is spoken,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts.
A link in our family chain is broken.
She has gone from our home but not from our hearts.
—Ever remembered by Louis, Rhoda and family.

HANNAH — In memory of a dear friend, Wally Hannah who passed away August 31, 1974.
Not dead to us who loved him,
Not lost, but gone before;
He lives with us in memory
And will forever more.
—Ever remembered by Sharon.

JONES — In loving memory of a dear daughter Marguerite Anna Jones who passed away August 29, 1972.
When evening shades are falling,
And we sit in quiet alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing
If she only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
Our smiles hide all the while.
—Sadly missed by her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Phillips.

CARDS OF THANKS

I would like to thank the many friends and relatives who visited me or sent cards while I was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital A special thanks to Rev. Betts for taking time to stop in and see me and a very special thank you to the Edwards family for their help and many kindnesses to my wife and I during my recent illness.
Sincerely Ed. Lindsay

Too Many Foxes

ISLE OF WIGHT, England (CP) — Foxes are marauding the village of Freshwater here and are raiding poultry runs, killing cats and frightening residents. Ronald Legg, landlord of the Red Lion public house, said: "I have been here 25 years and a tradition of the village pub is that we keep geese in the orchard. They are almost a trademark, but the other day the foxes devoured the last two—that makes 15."

Captain Kidd's Treasure Is Hunted in Nova Scotia

MAHONE BAY, N.S. (CP) — Dan Blankenship's search for the legendary treasure of Oak Island has not diminished after nine years.

He has finished drilling a second pumping shaft, 12 inches in diameter, in an effort to beat the flooding that has always foiled treasure-hunters in the nearly 200 years of searching on this mystery-shrouded island in Mahone Bay on the south shore of Nova Scotia.

The original pumping shaft could push 440 gallons of water a minute from the underground tunnels. It was not enough.

"We must get out a thousand," said Mr. Blankenship, looking down the 27-inch wide, 20-storey deep original shaft.

The second shaft was completed in July.

"Now we are setting up a diesel power plant with a 30-kilowatt generator and negotiating for another pump," said the 50-year-old building contractor turned treasure-hunter.

It has been four summers since an underwater television camera filmed a profile of a human face, a hand, a wooden chest and pieces of rotting wood. Wood chips and iron stuck to the drill have been dated as 18th-century by the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

Mr. Blankenship has made several dives to the bottom of the 235-foot shaft.

"It's not a very nice feeling," he said.

He said tests have established that a total capacity of 1,000 gallons a minute will be sufficient to keep the water level to the point where "we can go down and have a better look."

He hopes to be able to do this soon. A large drilling bit was lost in the pumping shaft this summer, causing a delay of nearly a month.

"We will then start cutting exploratory tunnels where the sonar has picked up disturbed areas behind the metal casing, and explore the cavern which lies at the bottom of the shaft."

The cavern is a 10-by-12-by-20-foot recess at the base of the original shaft which might contain important clues to the elusive prize.

Sometime during the 18th century, an unknown engineering wizard, reputedly the English pirate Captain Kidd, is believed to have buried a mysterious treasure with estimated worth up to $30 million.

More than a dozen men have forfeited life or livelihood looking for it. The downfall of every search has been man's inability to curtail the sea that floods the complex network of tunnels.

One dejected searcher wrote: "Stop the sea and the treasure will be found."

Mr. Blankenship is project co-ordinator for Triton Alliance Ltd., a syndicate formed in 1969 as the latest in the long line of hunters who have tried to unravel the mystery. He first arrived on the island with Robert Dunfield in 1966, one year after four treasure seekers were asphyxiated in one of the shafts.

Undaunted by the tragedy, they drove on. After spending $120,000 and reaching a depth of 136 feet, Dunfield gave up when the money pit and six other shafts collapsed. Dan Blankenship kept on.

"If anyone had told me nine years ago that I would still be here now I would have said they were crazy," he said. "But we keep finding clues that spur us on."

"It's the kind of operation that keeps you plugging away, working like fools sometimes trying to accomplish something no one else has been able to."

The soft-spoken, hard-working Ohio native spends six days a week on the island, often working from dawn to dusk.

In 1971, his wife Jane, who had previously made only visits to the province, moved into a home minutes from the causeway linking Oak Island to the mainland. Two years later, their son David joined the search.

After thoroughly exploring the new shaft, Mr. Blankenship plans to sink several large holes near where the money pit had been.

"These shafts will be used for exploratory purposes to determine the direction of tunnels, and to obtain artifacts from the area."

Previously, only small bore holes had been drilled around the money pit.

A six-by-12-foot wood-cribbed shaft will be sunk 700 feet west of the current drilling site.

"We have come across man-made articles in this area, and are optimistic that it will produce something substantial in the future.

"But we are waiting to get electrical power on the island to run pumps 24 hours a day over a substantial period of time before we can economically complete a shaft of that magnitude."

While Mr. Blankenship and his Triton Alliance group drill near the site of the original money pit, another searcher with equally high hopes is concentrating on several adjacent lots he has purchased near the centre of the island.

Fred Nolan, who has been hunting the treasure on and off for 18 years, recently announced the discovery of an old surveyor's monument which he says might be an important clue in discovering the treasure.

"We feel the monument was placed in its position for a purpose as the last in a series of reference points we have uncovered, and are hopeful of finding something in the area it has directed us to," Mr. Nolan said.

"Through use of this find we have already been led to one spot where we found enough evidence to prove that an oaken chest was once buried there, approximately 4½ feet in length."

The find supports Nolan's own theory that the treasure is located near the surface at several spots on the island, and that possibly the money pit was only a decoy that has kept people so busy that the treasure could never be found.

Mr. Blankenship has considered the possibility and rejected it.

Visitors can tour the hunt first-hand on a 1½-hour walking tour organized by the Nova Scotia department of tourism.

Cuba Ready To Greet Tourists

HALIFAX (CP) — Canadian travellers might not show much enthusiasm this time of year for a vacation down South but when the bone-chilling, snowbound days are here, they may quickly change their tune.

Among the latest winter vacation retreats is Cuba. Bob Sime, Atlantic provinces regional manager for Suntours Ltd. said here his company is completing preparation for a winter tour schedule to include resort areas on the Caribbean's largest island.

Flights to Cuba out of Montreal and Toronto were first offered by the company last year. Due to the great response, the number of Canadian points of departure has been expanded to include Halifax, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Calgary and Vancouver for the coming season.

Mr. Sime, describing the tour as the most economical and novel in the company's winter tour package, said price for one week in Cuba is expected to be about $425. This would include return air fare, hotel accommodation and gratuities.

Visitors to Cuba will receive one of the warmest and most genuine receptions offered in the Caribbean, he said.

There is one hitch, however. Accommodations might seem under par in comparison to other resort areas.

The hotels used by the tour companies were those operating prior to the 1959 Cuban revolution.

"They were first-class hotels at the time but now they may seem a little outmoded.

"But they are clean and probably have more character than the modern hotels of today."

Mr. Sime said most rooms would have a private bath.

Although Spanish is the official language, English is used in the hotels and resort areas.

And for those willing to wait, Mr. Sime predicts within five years, Cuba will be comparable to Nassau as a tourist resort.

"The casinos will be back, and the hotels will be renovated."

But "now is a good chance to see it before it really opens up."

King George Really Helped Washington Father Country

By KENNETH J. FREED
The Associated Press

George Washington has proper claim to the title of father of his country. But in a perverse way, King George III also can take some credit for the birth of the United States of America.

If it weren't for his stiffness, lack of grace, limited intellect and probable mental illness, the American Revolution might have died aborning.

A bit of English doggerel of his time:

George the 3rd
Ought never to have occurred.
One can only wonder
At so great a blunder.

This rude assessment would have been unthinkable at the beginning of his reign, particularly when young George III was compared to his father and grandfather, whose excesses had left Britain demoralized and corrupt.

They were both unstable, a characteristic of their ancestors, and both remained more aligned with the Germany of their family than England.

Young George III, however, took his crown in September of 1761 as a truly English king, devoted to the monarchy. And if the shy young man was not really loved, the people had great hopes for him.

He was tall and well built, much like the American George, who was still a relatively unknown Virginia planter.

His reign, which stretched into the longest for any British monarch except Queen Victoria, began with promise.

Unlike his father and grandfather, he was considered good-natured and extremely honest. He was modest both personally and with money.

He avoided the sexual excesses of his predecessors and he tried early on to curb the degeneracy that marked the English court and the country.

He succeeded to a great extent and in his time England enjoyed growth in the theatre, sport and literautre. He was a tolerant man at first and restrictions on religions were eased.

Before he died, English explorers had sailed the globe, English inventors dominated the world and the Empire was truly established.

Yet he was never truly popular. He angered politicians and political philosophers alike by trying to ignore the British party system.

His demand for public morality became a campaign against sports and recreation and, to the great harm of his country, his stubbornness led to the loss of the richest colony—America.

He overlooked the unrest in the colonies at the start as he moved toward his goal—the personal rule of the king.

At the same time he showed a great capacity for misunderstanding his own people and, in 1765, he suffered the first attack of what would ultimately lead him into insanity.

His greatest blunder in dealing with America was simply to underestimate it. By 1770 he could still give a speech to Parliament, making more of a cattle disease than the very visible unrest in the colonies.

Some prsent-day historians and psychologists say George was acting out an attempt to cover up a deep-rooted fear of his own incapacity. Whatever the cause, he showed a singular lack of flexibility.

As America became more of a problem, George's mental stability weakened under increasing attacks of depression. Tragedy also compounded his woes as his brothers and sisters became involved in sex scandals.

He expected an easy victory over the Americans and he refused all the last-minute efforts by American moderates to compromise. He also turned his back on British politicians who saw disaster in a revolution.

Breech Births Are Explained

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm 27-years-old and recently gave birth to my first child, finally. The child was a "frank breech." No one seems to know what causes this. What are the chances my other children will be breech?—A.M.

The normal "presentation" of the fetus in delivery is the head first. But they can present in a variety of positions. The frank breech is the presentation of the buttocks first, with the legs lying across the body and the feet up toward the head.

There can be a variety of causes for a breech presentation. The fetus can move about in the uterus more than you may think. The size can be a factor. If delivery is a bit premature, this could result in a breech presentation.

The contour of the mother's pelvis can have something to do with it, as can the amount of amniotic fluids in the sac.

Breech presentations are more common in women who have had several babies. They tend to develop more space for the pre-delivery movement of the fetus.

You say no one knows the cause of your breech presentation. I'll bet the doctor who delivered you knows. Have you asked him?

Depending on which of those circumstances I listed above applies in your particular case, you may or may not have subsequent breech deliveries.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In your opinion is surgery needed in my case of hiatus hernia?

I have constant pain in my right upper chest area. It is not unbearable, but constant. I have been taking antacids for four months and they do not seem to help.

Periodically (once or twice a week) I have spasms of tremendous pain up the esophagus and into the neck, chest and face. What do you think? —Mrs.K.

Is this hiatus hernia a self-diagnosis or has it been established from an examination? I ask this because it is unusual for pain of hiatus hernia to occur in the right upper chest area. The original problem is usually on the left side of the structure involved.

Has Tietze's disease been considered? I recently had a detailed discussion of this in my column. Briefly, it involves a disorder of the second and third rib attachment to the sternum (breastbone). There may be some local swelling but the joint is tender to pressure and can be a case of such constant discomfort as you report. The pain of hiatus hernia tends to be periodic, for example, when lying down.

I am glad you realize the decision for surgery for the hernia is up to you, if hiatal hernia is the final diagnosis.

But as I said, I'm not convinced your trouble is that. At any rate, surgery would be a last resort. Usually, conservative approaches bring satisfactory results, and by that I mean dietary restrictions, upper trunk elevation in bed, antacids, etc.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The wily Mordred was really surprised when Lancelot went to five hearts over his spade preempt. He looked at his five hearts and decided a double was in order.

Dinadan, sitting North considered a redouble, but was too cowardly to take such drastic action.

Mordred cashed two spades and shifted to a trump. When East showed out Lancelot announced, "Running trumps" and spread his hand.

Gawaine, sitting East, said, "It's not like you to concede down one."

"I'm not," replied Lancelot. I'm claiming all the rest."

Lancelot was right as always. Mordred's four spade opening had marked him with seven spades. Gawaine had discarded on the first heart so that gave Mordred five cards in that suit. That left him with just one card in diamonds or clubs.

Lancelot would discard four diamonds and two clubs from dummy. Then he would lead a diamond to dummy's ace and his final trick would come from his deuce of diamonds or dummy's last club.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if it pays to be an overbidder.

The answer to his question is that it pays to overbid your good hands. In other words, you should strain to bid games and slams. On the other hand, it does not pay to go overboard with bad hands. For one good sacrifice bid you are likely to find yourself with several bad ones.

Finally, it is important that both partners don't overbid. If you know your parner is an overbidder it behooves you to be cautious.

Weekend Horoscopes

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, Aug. 31

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you let your head rule your heart today you'll deprive yourself of a good time. You could spoil the fun for others as well.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful in your conversation today or you'll let something slip you'll have difficulty in retracting.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you do any shopping today, count your change! There could be an oversight. You could suffer a small loss.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your moods are subject to a sudden change today when you meet with minor frustrations. Stay loose. Take things in stride.

LEO (June 23 - Aug. 22) A friend is going to be disappointed when she learns you've told another something she told you in the strictest confidence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 Sept. 22) It's not the day to find fault with a sensitive friend over a trivial issue. A few wrong words could impair the friendship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) In your social amusements today, don't be too much of a stickler for rules. You could win the game, but hurt your image.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Stick with your original plans today. Last-minute changes won't work to your satisfaction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let yourself be drawn into business discussions on deals today if your mind is on less serious subjects.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You won't have much luck making an agreement today if you aren't willing to make a few small concessions first.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Put off till tomorrow a small task that isn' atll that urgent. It will tie you up more than you think. If you try today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You won't have all the patience you usually have with youngsters today. Let them to their [illegible]. YOU go have fun and do yours.

For Monday, Sept. 1

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful a third party doesn't cause you unnecessary complications today in a matter that's strictly "family."

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The little green imp of jealousy hovers about you today. You could be just a bit too possessive of one you love.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You and your spouse are not in complete accord on your family budget. One will be extravagant and perturb the other.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Have the courage of your convictions today. Don't be timid in an area where you know bold measures are called for.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not a very good collector of obligations owed to you. Don't be a Scrooge today; at the same time, don't let one who's indebted fall behind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A sensitive friend will be hurt if she's not included in something you're planning with a mutual pal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There will be strings attached to a favor being done for you. Before accepting, be certain it's worth the price.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Another will probably profit more from your plans today than you will, though the basic ideas are yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll not find buyers today if you place a higher price on your wares than they're really worth.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A major decision you'll make today will be correct, but after you talk with another you'll have doubts. Let time render the verdict.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful in business affairs that you don't make an arrangement with one who doesn't have the authority, yet makes the commitment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone who has promised you something is not going to be able to deliver, but he does not know how to tell you and yet save face.

For Tuesday, Sept. 2

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't try to attend to several important matters today at the same time. You'll wind up with an even bigger muddle.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's not a good day to tackle trying mental tasks. Your thoughts won't be well-organized. Major mistakes will result.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's a bad time to assume additional financial obligations. Live within your means, or you'll be robbing Peter to pay Paul.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you expect anything done right today you're going to have to do it. Don't attempt to delegate responsibilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to be a good guy you're apt to make some promises today you won't really mean. They'll be difficult to fulfill.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you're fond of might put you on the spot today by making a request that will cost you out-of-pocket if you comply.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This could be a tough day for you responsibility-wise, yet you must meet obligations head-on. Don't sweep anything under the rug.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're going to meet opposition today regarding an issue you feel very strongly about. Neither party will yield.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be very careful today how you handle property of others. Don't ask to borrow your friend's car to run errands.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your one-to-one relations will cause you a few headaches today. Even an old ally may make some unreasonable demands.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your work habits are likely to be a bit slovenly today especially if you're asked to do something you think is beneath you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're prone to either be extravagant or take material risks today that have little chance of paying off. Stick with sure things.

Education Costs Jump 15 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of students starting classes in Canada next month will be down slightly from last fall but the cost of educating them will jump 15.5 per cent, Statistics Canada said Friday.

An estimated total of 6,133,435 full-time students at all levels—81,449 less than last year—will enrol for the 1975-76 school year, as public school enrolment continues to drop and the number of post-secondary students continues to rise.

Education costs for the year are expected to rise to $12.2 billion from $10.6 billion for the 1974-75 school year. Inflation is responsible for much of the increase.

Education costs as a percentage of personal income decreased to a national average of 9.5 per cent in 1974 from 11.2 per cent in 1971.

Enrolment in elementary and secondary schools is estimated at 5.5 million for 1975-76, down 1.3 per cent from the previous year.

CP News Roundup

Forms Consortium

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Members of major lumber producers in Ontario and Quebec are forming a consortium to ship up to 100 million board feet of timber a year to England and Europe, the president of Great West Timber Ltd. of Thunder Bay says.

End Protest

MONTREAL (CP) — Guards at the north-end Bordeaux prison ended a seven-hour sit-in Friday staged to protest working conditions at the provincial jail. About 170 prison guards, members of the Union of Peace Officers of the Public Service, took part in the protest to voice a series of complaints.

Jury Hears Witness

WARSAW, N.Y. (AP) — A United States grand jury investigating the 1971 Attica prison revolt has heard from the man who authorized the assault that put a bloody finish to the uprising, Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller.

Rockefeller, governor of New York at the time of the convict rebellion, spent two hours and 45 minutes Friday in the Wyoming County Courthouse as the grand jury questioned him about the events of Sept. 9-13, 1971, when 43 men lost their lives in the bloodiest U.S. prison riot.

Watch Continues

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP) — Cottage residents in the Nipawassi Lake area near Sudbury are being asked by police to be on the watch for indications of forced entry at their camps. The area is the last known location of Donald Kelly, the suspected murderer who escaped Aug. 2 from North Bay district jail.

de Valera Buried

DUBLIN (AP) — Eamon de Valera, the American-born Irish revolutionary who became president of his country, will be buried according to his wishes in the brown and white habit of the Carmelite Order, his family said today.

De Valera, who died Friday at 92, was received into the Roman Catholic order in St. Albert's College, Rome, when he visited the Vatican as Ireland's prime minister in 1951.

MacDonald Warns Of Food Imports

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — If the downward trend in Ontario agriculture continues as it has during the last 10 to 15 years, the province will be importing 60 per cent of its food by the year 2000, Donald MacDonald, NDP agriculture critic, said Thursday.

Mr. MacDonald, former Ontario party leader and MPP for York South in the last legislature, said the NDP and Ontario Federation of Agriculture agree that a British Columbia-type farm income-stabilization program would meet the needs of both farmers and consumers.

Mr. MacDonald said more than half the farmers in Ontario now are part-time farmers with jobs in nearby communities because they cannot earn their living on the farm and that 38 per cent of those farming in 1966 have given up farming. While average farm net income rose to $7,900 in 1973 from $3,600 in 1971, it dropped to $6,200 last year.

Mr. MacDonald accused the Progressive Conservative government of attempting to renege on a farm income-stabilization program promised in the March throne speech.

Oil Price Controls Extended by Ford

NEW YORK (AP) — A plan to gradually phase out price controls on the U.S. oil industry got new life this week.

President Ford agreed to stay a veto of a bill extending price controls for six-months on the assurances of Democratic leaders that they would push Congress to adopt a phase end of oil prices controls.

With present controls expiring Sunday, Ford's promised veto seemed likely to lead to an immediate end to price regulations on oil, though Congress might have overriden the veto.

The administration had estimated that immediate decontrol would increase gasoline prices initially 3½ cents a U.S. gallon—0.833 Canadian gallon.

Forces for immediate decontrol were fractured early in the week by unexpected division within the oil industry itself, highlighted by Mobil Oil Corp.'s call for a gradual phase-out.

Mobil's position, denounced by some other major oil companies, was in line with some smaller independent firms which fear that decontrol will raise their costs and hurt the economic recovery now underway.

Ironically it was a gradual phase-out of controls that both the industry and President Ford had originally sought.

Marches Detour

TORONTO (CP) — Sex marches on in downtown Toronto, but it will have to detour the city centre's birthday party.

The president of the Downtown Business Council says persons connected with body-rub parlors and sex shops are not invited to next week's party.

[illegible] came along to any of the events, it will be over [illegible]," said Peter Clark, a recently-elected member of the Metro Licencing Commission, the agency which will enforce a new city bylaw to clean up the Yonge Street "sin strip."

Munro Reminds Labor Canada's Import Status

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro said in a Labor Day message Friday that unions must strive to reach contract settlements that are comparable with those in countries with which Canada must trade and compete.

But he said it is unrealistic to place the burden for the country's economic woes at the feet of one group in society.

Mr. Munro cited recent comments from some circles that current wage levels could reduce Canadian competitiveness in world markets. Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie said earlier this week that high pay raises would lead to inability of Canadians to compete for external markets.

"While it is true that some wage demands have been excessive, so also have been some corporate profits and returns on investments," Mr. Munro said.

"The challenge to Canadian labor this ensuing year is to reach competitive settlements. . .This challenge, if to be met, must be accompanied by a determination on the part of Canada's business community to maintain fair and just prices.

"I believe that in the majority of cases Canadian unions are diligently endeavoring to act as responsibly as those in other nations, to come to grips with, and attempt resolutions to our problems," he said.

"Surely there can be no doubt that in this forthcoming year the individual involved in the collective bargaining process must become increasingly aware of the competitive environment in which we live."

Lewis Responds To Davis Attacks

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, responding quickly and sharply to Premier William Davis's first concentrated attack on the New Democratic Party since the start of the Ontario election campaign, issued a statement Friday terming the premier's efforts "tawdry, poorly documented and inaccurate."

Within hours after the premier issued a statement questioning the accuracy of statistics used by Mr. Lewis in attacking government policies on housing and preservation of prime agricultural land, the NDP leader produced a statement in rebuttal.

The premier's statement challenged Mr. Lewis's assertion that 26 acres of prime agricultural land are lost to urban development every hour, attributing the estimate to a group of university professors working with incomplete and outdated information.

Not so, replied Mr. Lewis, citing the 1966 and 1971 Statistics Canada Census Reports for Ontario to support his assertion. He accused the premier's aides of indulging in "sleight-of-hand arithmetic" to produce less damaging figures.

He ridiculed Mr. Davis's assertion that there would be 80,000 housing starts by the end of the fiscal year rather than between 59,000 and 65,000, as Mr. Lewis had predicted earlier. The premier said his estimate was based on figures supplied by the housing ministry.

"The housing ministry has not once in the last three years got a single projection right," the NDP leader replied. The only valid projection was based on figures for the first seven months of the year, which showed housing starts lagging 31 per cent behind comparable figures for 1974.

The premier was "manipulating figures as if they were plasticine" and his credibility was "fast coming to an end."
